HOMEDALE, OWYHEE COUNTY, IDAHO

SEVENTY-FIVE CENTS

Beating suspect held in Owyhee County jail

Accused of passing counterfeit money in Homedale

One suspect in the beating attack on a Washington woman nearly two years ago is among those being held in the Owyhee County jail. Homedale Police Department filed charges against the 26-year-old Caldwell man for possessing counterfeit money and later discovered an intense manhunt was being conducted for the long time criminal.

Sanchez

Jeremy Sanchez was charged last Wednesday by the Canyon County Sheriff's Office on robbery, first-degree arson, aggravated battery and first-degree kidnapping in the violent beating attack of Linda LeBrane of Washington. He was arrested on Feb. 26 by the Canyon County Sheriff's Office on a Homedale Police Department warrant

Last minute decision places Pfrimmer in mayor's seat

Marsing Councilman Paul Holzhey ended a weeklong deadlock over who would be appointed to fill the mayor's seat in the City of Marsing after former Mayor Jenny Haken died from cancer late last month. A letter of recommendation written by Marsing business owner John Salove seemed to be the deciding factor to break the council's stalemate and push Holzhey to give his deciding vote to former councilwoman Faye Pfrimmer.

Marsing City Attorney Susan Wildwood began the meeting by reminding the council of the legal issues involved in appointing a new mayor. The council had to have a majority of the votes to seat a new mayor, which would mean a three-to-one vote.

BLM attempts compromise on Trout Springs

Hanley says it's as bad as ever

A week after Martha Hahn resigned as state director of the BLM, that agency issued what it is calling "final grazing decisions" for the 29,690-acre Trout Springs Allotment which is primarily grazed by rancher Mike Hanley. The decision represents an apparent attempt to compromise by BLM on some of the more universally criticized provisions of its initial Trout Springs decision, but is still unworkable according to Hanley.

"It cuts a month and a half off my grazing time, reduces my grazing area more than 60 percent, is loaded up with unworkable terms and conditions and unreachable goals that are not supported by science," Hanley told the Avalanche. "It's no better than the earlier decision. It just prolongs things a little. It'll put me out of business in two years instead of one."

The heart of the decision, according to the BLM, is that "new fencing will create two riparian pastures that will be grazed early in the summer two years, then rested two years. Most important, riparian resources in a third pasture will be excluded from grazing by exclosure fences. The remainder of the pasture can then be grazed in the summer months without harming important stream habitat."

BLM employee Jim Sparks, author of the environmental assessment that led to the decision, said that fences necessary to implement the grazing system must be constructed this year. While the BLM will provide raw materials, the fences required by the BLM must actually be built by the ranchers affected, specifically Mike Hanley. Sparks estimated the cost of materials at about $1500 per mile, and the labor costs to actually construct the fencing at up to $2500 per mile. Sparks claimed that only 11 miles of stream fencing would be required, but Jenna Whitlock of the Owyhee BLM office has said that the land includes 45 miles of streams.

Sparks told the Avalanche that the BLM had decided to revisit the initial Trout Springs decision, which was highly controversial, in an attempt to accommodate the needs of local ranchers. It is widely believed, however, that enormous political pressure by U.S. Sen. Larry Craig and others was necessary to change the federal bureaucracy's mind. In fact, sources close to the situation told the Avalanche that the forced resignation of state BLM director Martha Hahn was intended partially as a strong warning to lower-level BLM staffers that what has been perceived as activist and arrogant behavior on the part of the BLM will no longer be tolerated in the changing Department of Interior.

Jump Creek rescue...

Emergency crews from Marsing and Owyhee County Sheriff's Office, carry a Boise man out of Jump Creek Falls Canyon last week after he fell nearly 60 feet from a rock rim. Access Air transported Don Swanson, 22 to Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center with back injuries.

Boise man injured in Jump Creek Falls accident

An afternoon lunch break in Jump Creek canyon turned into disaster Tuesday afternoon for a Boise man who fell nearly 60 feet from a rock rim near Devil's Ladder.

Don Swanson, 22 of Boise, was taken to Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise by an Access Air helicopter with back and leg injuries. Volunteer emergency crews from Marsing, deputies from Owyhee County Sheriff's Office and Owyhee County Posse members hiked into the canyon to assist Swanson. Three of Swanson's co-workers were on the scene and called emergency crews for help.

"We just went in during our lunch break," Paul Lane, 33 of Boise said at the scene. "We were working in Homedale installing low-income weatherizing and had to go to Marsing next, so we decided to take a look at the falls."

Jake Morton, 20 of Boise, and Jason Hanson, 26 of Boise, also accompanied Lane and Swanson on the hike.

"We were just looking around up there," Hanson said. "None of us could see Don because he had crossed the creek. I went to see where he went and found him laying in the rocks. I called for Paul and Jake and we called for help."

Lane said Swanson told him he didn't have any feeling in his left leg. "He could move his toes when I got to him, but when the paramedics got there he said he couldn't feel anything," Lane explained.

"He had a previous injury in a car accident a couple of years ago, so I don't know if that is why he can't feel his leg or not.

He had a metal pin put in then."

Lane said Swanson told him he was climbing the rocks and started to slide. "He said when he thought he was going to free fall he just pushed himself away from the wall. He landed right on his back." -CP

Homedale couple injured Monday

A Homedale High School substitute teacher and her husband, Media Specialist for the school, were injured in a two-vehicle accident Monday afternoon on Homedale Road.

Ned and Gloria Stokes were transported by Life Flight to Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center with broken bones and internal injuries after being hit by Jim Nelson, of Wilder on Homedale Road and Allendale Road near Homedale.

The couple was admitted to an intensive care unit throughout the week and were released to a medical floor in the hospital last weekend.

Homedale School District Superintendent Bob Lisonbee said the couple were doing better and are now able to receive visitors.

Ned is a Bishop for the First Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints and has worked for the district for more than 20 years. Gloria is a substitute teacher for the district and is actively involved in sports functions for the school.

Lisonbee continued to say that the couple were on their way to visit a friend in the hospital when the accident occurred.

Nelson was transported to West Valley Medical Center and was later released. Canyon County Sheriff's Office said citations were pending.

Rural addresses to change soon

County commissioners sign ordinance to aid 911

Rural routes are going by the wayside. Soon every home, farm and ranch outside of incorporated cities in Owyhee County will have a numbered street address which will coincide with a location recorded with a global positioning satellite.

"The whole point of this is to make our 911 Call system effective anywhere in the county where help may be needed," said sheriff Gary Aman.

The Uniform Addressing Ordinance itself (NO. 02-01) reads, "This Ordinance is enacted for the purpose of providing such uniform system of addressing, which will benefit the public health and safety of the citizens of Owyhee County.

A uniform system of assigning street and road names and addresses will facilitate quicker, more efficient response of emergency service vehicles and personnel to the citizens of Owyhee County. A uniform system of addressing will assist law enforcement personnel in responding to calls for assistance and in performing law enforcement duties more efficiently. It will also facilitate more efficient public utility responses and service."

The new addressing system is expected to be completed in the Marsing area within a couple of weeks, with the rest of the county to follow in a timely manner. Affected residents will receive a letter from the Post Office and the Owyhee County Sheriff's Office containing their new address. The new address may be used immediately, though the old address may also be used for up to a year with no disruption of mail service. -RB

Homedale School Board accepts petitions

The Homedale School Board had a rare sight at their regular school board meeting on March 11, a room packed full of people that spilled out into the main lobby of the district office. The item drawing the crowd, however, wasn't on the agenda but rather came from the appearance of two people who spoke during the public forum section on a matter of personnel.

Dan Landa and Kendall Hopkins both signed up to speak to the board during the public forum part of the meeting and presented the board with packets of information. They were cautioned by the school board president John Demshar that if they wanted to address a personnel issue to not state names and just refer to a title, and that no precedent was to be set by acceptance of petitions, which would be considered on a case by case basis by the board.

Dan Landa, who addressed the board first, said, "We would like to present the board with these names in support of the basketball coach, AD and teacher in Homedale. You as an administration know his record on and off the court. He is well respected by his peers in the coaching community and has received awards and recognition. Always remember there are two sides to every story. In every situation please check the facts."

Kendall Hopkins, who is a member of a group calling itself the Homedale Patrons for School Improvement, briefly spoke to the board but did not state the content of the packet he presented to the board at the meeting.

"I'm just here as a representative of a patrons' group," Hopkins said. He added he wanted to "present the board with a survey of opinions concerning a school matter, a personnel matter ... just like to present this to you as a matter of consideration at your discretion."

(In an interview with Hopkins after the meeting, he said that he was not representing the Homedale Patrons for School Improvement during the presentation at the meeting, and did state that the petitions presented asked for a change in the district's varsity boys' basketball coaching position. However, just prior to that interview Hopkins stated to the Avalanche editor that the petition he presented "was not to get rid of a coach." He also acknowledged that he is not a resident of the district and cannot vote in the district.) The petition from Landa and the packet from Hopkins were accepted by the board without public discussion. Earlier in the evening of the school board meeting Mike Greeley, who is president of the Homedale School District Employee Association, addressed the association's hope for the board's handling of any kind of personnel matter.

"The Homedale School District Employee Association acknowledges that there are concerns from patrons involving personnel, communication and leadership. We as HSDEA representatives urge the board to address communication and leadership concerns without allowing personnel to become scapegoats for system failures within the district," Greeley said.

Homedale School District Superintendent Bob Lisonbee handed out a form to the board members to use as a method of addressing concerns in the district. Any patron who has a concern would fill out one sheet that has the subject the patron wants to address, what he or she sees as a problem along with examples of the problem and the impact of that problem on him or her. A second page would indicate the information gathered in review of the problem by the district, people contacted, the decision on the matter and the result of communicating that decision to the patron and any further steps that might be needed.

Lisonbee said there were three major problems in the district which were a low level of trust, a breakdown of communication and misunderstandings between parties. He said that the only way to begin to solve the problems was to try a new way of approaching issues.

After the meeting Lisonbee would not elaborate on the content of Hopkin's packet or the number of signatures on Landa's petition, calling the issue a personnel matter. He did say that no action was taken by the board after an executive session that night. —MH for possession of false bills. A nationwide manhunt for three men and one woman suspected in the beating began and composite sketches of the suspects were shown in newspapers and on television news stations throughout the United States.

LeBrane reportedly was alone driving east on I-84 to her vacation home in Bear Lake, Idaho at about 2:30 a.m. on June 15, 2000 when she was forced off the road by another car.

The four suspects proceeded to break her windshield using a baseball bat. At least two of the suspects entered her car and pushed LeBrane into the passenger seat, striking her with the bat. One suspect drove the car while another demanded her purse and began stabbing her and beating her with the bat.

After continued beatings, the assailants dumped her body in a field near the Sandhollow exit. The suspects left the scene but returned a short time later and beat and cut her throat. Shortly after the attack, one of LeBrane's stolen credit cards was traced to the Los Angeles area.

Kenneth Wayne Wurdemann, 33, formerly of Canyon County, was indicted by a grand jury earlier this month on seven charges related to the attack. He is currently being held in the Canyon County jail on a $1 million bond and was arraigned in district court. He was charged earlier this month with conspiracy to commit robbery, robbery, conspiracy to commit first-degree kidnapping, first-degree kidnapping, aggravated battery, aiding and abetting first-degree arson, and aiding and abetting attempted first-degree murder.

Sanchez, like Wurdemann, has an extensive history of run-ins with law enforcement agencies. He was arrested and jailed on May 12, 2001 and was released a month later by Caldwell Police Department. He was again arrested on June 24 by Nampa Police Department on June 24, 2001 and was released on July 9, 2001.

Homedale Police Chief Jeff Eidemiller said Friday that, at the request of Owyhee County Prosecuting Attorney Ed Yarbrough, he would not release any public information on the arrest report of Sanchez. Canyon County Detective Chris Smith said to his knowledge Sanchez had been arrested in Homedale for attempting to use stolen checks.

"Mr. Sanchez has been charged by Canyon County with many aggravated assault charges, battery, malicious injury to property, displaying a deadly weapon, obstruction and delay of an officer and grand theft," the detective said. "He was charged in 1996 with a parole violation and attempted murder."

Wurdemann has also had several law enforcement meetings since the attack last year, according to Canyon County court records. He was charged with three counts of forgery in July, 2000 and with petty theft in October of the same year.

Nourse is asking the public to contact his office with information that would lead to the arrest of the woman involved. -CP

Hanley doesn't think BLM staffers have got the message. "You can see the arrogance here in this decision," He said. "There's no science here, just politics. They obviously want their national monument in the Owyhees and they want it cattle-free."

The attempt to rein in more radical elements of the BLM has infuriated environmental extremists such as Jon Marvel of Sun Valley. When initial reports said the Trout Springs decision would put Mike Hanley out of business, Marvel was openly delighted. He said that he hoped the grazing reduction was "one more step toward the sun setting on public lands ranching."

The sun is a long way from setting on Mike Hanley, but he says he must remain constantly on guard against the treachery and deceit for which both Jon Marvel and the BLM are known within the ranching community.

"When they cut our grazing areas in half about 25 years ago," Hanley said, "it was on the promise that within 20 years we would have them all back again. Now, instead of returning our grazing lands as promised they're cutting them in half again."

Hanley also pointed out some of the tricks routinely used by the BLM to get around court rulings such as the Hage v. United States case which, on the face of it, prohibits the implementation of certain widespread BLM policies.

"They put all that in the terms and conditions," Hanley says. "For instance, the stubble height requirement last year was four inches. The stubble wouldn't even grow four inches last year because of the dry weather. Well, this year they raised the stubble height to six inches which is even more laughable. And they've limited stream bank damage by cattle to 10 percent when there's no way you can tell the difference between damage caused by cattle and damage caused by elk or deer."

"This latest decision on Trout Springs is bad. They completely ignored our proposal, ignored everything that didn't support what they wanted to do. It's a bad decision and I'm going to appeal it immediately." -RB

✓ Mayor

Councilman Don Osterhoudt told the council he didn't have any new names to submit to the council for nominations, but said he would be willing to break the deadlock if an agreeable nomination was made.

"In the spirit of cooperation and getting this thing done, I am willing to move off of Faye's vote if we can come up with an agreeable candidate," Osterhoudt explained. "The next guy on my list would be Roger Howard and he is on our slate of candidates."

Osterhoudt continued to tell Holzhey and Councilwoman Carol Edwards that if Howard's nomination would help them move off the deadlock, he would be willing to make the third vote.

"I got a call from Jerry Bowman (Marsing business owner) and he said he also called the rest of the council members," Council President Jennifer Finlay explained. "He said he could not be available for the meeting, but he also said he was very heavily in support of Roger Howard."

Finlay again nominated Howard, followed by Osterhoudt's second. Osterhoudt moved to add Pfrimmer to the list in which Finlay seconded. Holzhey nominated Edwards at which time she seconded the motion and Edwards attempted to nominate Holzhey. The motion died due to a lack of a second with Holzhey stating he didn't feel comfortable running for mayor. The nominations were then closed.

A vote was then taken for Edwards and as in last week's meeting, received the same deadlock votes. Edwards and Holzhey voted yes and Finlay and Osterhoudt voted no. Howard was then voted on with Finlay and Osterhoudt voting yes, and Edwards and Holzhey voting no.

The vote for Pfrimmer seemed to again go in the same direction as it had in the past several votes, but as Finlay spoke to call for the no votes, Holzhey stopped the meeting to enter a statement.

"Wait a minute," Holzhey told the council. "I have put a lot of faith in John and Dot Salove. John is a pretty sharp man. He has been here all his life. I think I am going to have to change my vote and vote yes for Faye."

"We have a new mayor," Wildwood said.

"I can't believe it," Pfrimmer explained through tears after the final decision. "I really thought Roger would be the next mayor. I am so honored to be able to serve the people of our community."

"John told me that if Paul had come to him before I did that he would have written him a letter of recommendation. Paul is a very smart man and I thank him for his vote of confidence. I didn't think I would ever make it to the council and I did. I never dreamed I would make it as far in the VFW as I have, and I did. It will take a while for this one to sink in. I am just a kid from a small town in Iowa." -CP

Parking changes...

Parallel parking on West Idaho Avenue in Homedale will soon be a part of the past as business owners' request to change the parking to diagonal will soon begin. Homedale Engineer Bob Walker told the city council last week as soon as weather conditions permit, the repainting of the lines will begin.

Snake River cleanup planned for Saturday

A trash cleanup along one of the more popular stretches of the Snake River is planned for Saturday, March 23, weather permitting. Additional volunteers are needed to help with this effort, hosted by the Idaho Department of Fish and Game.

The river cleanup will be conducted from the Walter's Ferry bridge downstream to the Marsing bridge. "Ducks Unlimited volunteers are helping with the cleanup effort as are some local Fish and Game volunteer reservists," Fish and Game utility craftsman Dennis Hardy said. "But we'd love to have additional volunteer help." Volunteers are asked to meet at the Fish and Game regional office (3101 S. Powerline Road, Nampa) at 8:00am on Saturday or at the Map Rock access site at 9:00 am. Hardy noted that lunch and refreshments would be furnished to all that volunteer.

"A few workers will be assigned to boats for a portion of the cleanup effort," Hardy said. "But most of the volunteers, and we hope to have a bunch of them, will be working along the banks of the river." Trash will be hauled to a central location for transport to a landfill. Because of a waterfowl nesting closure, federally owned islands will not be part of the trash collection effort this year.

Area landowners are encouraged to note the cleanup effort date. "We wanted to inform land owners in advance of the activities planned for that day," Hardy noted. "So when they see a flurry of activity along the river, they will know what's going on."

For more information regarding the Snake River cleanup, contact Hardy at Fish and Game's Southwest region office, 465-8465.

BLM appoints acting state director

Mike Ferguson comes from deep inside BLM

Almost three decades of federal employment, most of it with the BLM and much of it in California and Washington, D.C., are the qualifications cited by the BLM in appointing Mike Ferguson acting state director of the federal agency. Martha Hahn officially resigned the job last week.

Ferguson moves up from the position of associate state director he has occupied since March 2001, but the promotion is temporary according to BLM spokesman Kris Long.

"We have to go through a public process of advertising for the state director's position for six weeks," Long told the Avalanche, "and then the candidates go through the interview and selection process – it could take two or three months. Once the new state director is chosen, Mr. Ferguson will return to his job as associate state director."

It is common knowledge that at least three candidates are lobbying for the position of state director, including Steve West, K. Lynn Bennett and Bill Bachman, all of whom "the County could work successfully with" according to the Owyhee County commissioners. However, these three candidates are not officially recognized by the BLM and will not be unless and until they go through the bureaucratic selection process outlined by Kris Long.

Teachers concerned state cutback will cause wage freeze

Athletic director says Homedale sports will probably remain untouched

Many teachers throughout the local school districts are concerned where cutbacks will begin with the recent state reduction, if they will happen in the classroom, on the athletic field or in their own pockets with wage freezes. Homedale High School Athletic Director Randy Potter says he doesn't believe the district will cut high school athletics.

Several teachers from the local districts have voiced concerns as to where the cutbacks will begin, and most feel it will start with their own wages.

The average salary for teachers in the Homedale School District on a 190-day working contract is $34,323 per year for elementary school teachers and $34,807 for secondary teachers. Teachers in the Marsing School District earn an average of $33,715 on a 190-day contract.

A teacher in one district said it is not unusual for teachers to buy supplies for their own classrooms, because the district has always been tight.

"We requested new textbooks several years ago because ours are 10 years old and we still have not seen them," the teacher explained. "So we just do what we can with what we have. I feel the first thing they will do is freeze our wages, which will not be devastating for me, but for others it is their only income."

"We follow the state adoption plan for books pretty closely, but we are one year behind," Homedale School District Superintendent Bob Lisonbee said. "We do that because they have a lot of mistakes in their first edition. The second year they have weeded those out."

"Everyone right now is on schedule where they should be with textbooks. It seems to me that a couple of years ago we had some teachers who said they liked the books they had and they were good enough to use, so they didn't get theirs. But theirs were not the critical kind that we must have."

Each school district follows an Idaho Curricular Materials Adoption Schedule from the State Board of Education. The Marsing School District has a $12,000 budget for the 2001-02 school year for textbooks. A spokesman at the district office said elementary science, high school physics, elementary health and 1-3 and 6-8 reading books have been purchased this year.

"The general fund has two budget lines involving athletics," Debbie Holzhey from Marsing School District said. "The middle school athletic budget line was $1,000 for this school year. Items purchased were football helmets, hip and kneepads, volleyballs, equipment bag, rib vests, wristbands and girdles. The high school budget was $5,000 in which they purchased caps, tape, a pole-vault pole, helmets, down marker and chains, reconditioning of equipment and catastrophic insurance, activity fees and membership dues."

"I don't know that we can add anything else on to this, but I don't think we would cut back on what we already have," Potter said. "I am all for extracurricular activities and what they do for the other part of education and I am certainly not the one who makes those decisions, but I really think financially we can make it. Now if we go through another year or two of having the school district bail us out as we had to do this year, then we are in trouble. If we can show that we can make it financially and keep our head above water then I think we can keep our sports."

Potter's department entered the 2001-2002 school year with a $9,000 deficit in which funds from the general budget were used to cover the overage. Since that time, the athletic fund is currently at $10,000.

"When we were in deficit at the start of the school year the district bailed us out and got us to a zero balance," Potter explained. "The $6,000 we have now is what we have made through the fall and winter sports. We feel like, this is not a positive thing to say but, we feel like if something would happen and our baseball and softball teams did not make it to the state tournament, which we would hate for that to happen but, we should come out $2-4,000 ahead. If one or both of those teams should make it we should be right at zero at the end of this school year."

Potter said nearly $10,000 was spent on state tournament expenses last year, but said he hoped the district would wait before charging athletes fees to participate. Homedale

School District Superintendent Bob Lisonbee said the funds to transport the students to out-of-area games and tournaments puts a big dent in the school's transportation budget.

"Track, tennis and golf cost us a couple of hundred dollars," Potter continued. "Softball is in Blackfoot this year and will cost us upwards of $1,500 to $2,000. Baseball is in Orofino and it would cost about the same to send our baseball players there. So our little cushion of 4-5,000 if we happen to qualify would come close to zero by the end of the year. If we happen to make it we would probably just break even. We surely want to see our kids qualify but if they don't we think we can carry over a couple of thousand to next year."

"What we are concerned about is we know we are spread thin. If we can be a little creative with our accounting and get back to some normal years where we make a little money and carry some over I think we will be fine."

"We have 150 kids in spring sports, which is great, I am not excited about telling our kids they have to spend $75 a sport to play. I think we are going to go with what we have for a year or two and see how it goes."

Nearly half of the high school's population participates in the five spring sports that Homedale High School offers. Money from concession stands and vending machines in the school are often used to help purchase uniforms. Potter said the school bought new track uniforms this year and the concessions money helped pay for half of those.-CP

Discovery Might End Heartburn Forever

WASHINGTON — According to recent research, upper gastrointestinal (GI) problems like acid reflux, heartburn and ulcers may be eliminated with a new type of chewable tablet. Scientists say that GI problems are not the result of excess acid, but the body's inability to deal with it. The new tablet called Pepstat 380™ contains an extract from the Glycyrrhiza glabra plant or DGL that strengthens the body's natural defenses against acid.

Pepstat 380 goes to work immediately on stomach acid while addressing the underlying cause of GI problems. Scientists suggest that the DGL in Pepstat 380 improves the body's protective substances, increases the lifespan of digestive tract cells, improves blood supply to the area and has no known side effects. Comparative studies have appeared in publications like the British medical journal The Lancet showing DGL to be superior to Zantac®, Tagamet® and/or antacids. This new type of formula may make these drugs obsolete.

The problem with antacids which neutralize stomach acid and acid blockers which reduces acid secretions is that they can interrupt the body's normal digestive process. Pepstat 380 is a natural alternative to antacids and H2 receptor antagonists more commonly known as "acid blockers." Pepstat 380 is available at pharmacies without a prescription or call 1-800-729-8446.

4 acre-feet allotment made under Owyhee project

This year the water situation for the Owyhee Project is a little more critical than it has been the last few years, according to Erich Knehans, secretary manager of the South Board of Control, Owyhee Project. As of March 1st, the Owyhee Reservoir contained 505,030 acre-feet of water. The inflow of the reservoir has been down, averaging 18,000 acre-feet per month. The carry over of 430,000 acre-feet from last year has helped the low runoff year tremendously, Knehans said.

Due to the low storage in Owyhee Reservoir, the basic allotment of 4 acre-feet per acre will be delivered to the farm turnout with no excess being available.

Gas build-up in water explodes

MARSING – Sunday a 50-year old Mexican woman received burns in an explosion at her Marsing Labor Camp residence.

Monday the official report had not yet been completed, however according to available information, the woman received severe burns on her back and arms. She was taken to the Caldwell Memorial Hospital for treatment.

The explosion is believed to have resulted from a methane gas build up in the water which could have been ignited from a heater in the bathroom or perhaps static electricity in the rug.

Boise Cascade proposes new subdivision of 113 homes

HOMEDALE – Plans for a new subdivision of 113 homes was presented to the Homedale city council Monday evening for consideration and approval by Marion Vance, manager of the Boise Cascade yard here.

The subdivision would be located on approximately 24 acres of ground just west of the county fairgrounds. Vance told the council his company planned full water, sewer lines and street installations, and underground power and phone lines.

He added that the normal (average) frontage per lot was 80 feet. Curbs and gutters would be installed, but not sidewalks, he said.

The council accepted the proposal, and advised Vance the matter will be considered following recommendations from engineers concerning water and sewer system capabilities.

In other business the council heard a complaint regarding the present leash law, listened to a complaint against the police department, and other similar civil matters. No action was taken.

Hearing held on proposed Revenue expenditures

HOMEDALE – The City Council at Homedale held its public hearing on proposed Federal Revenue Sharing expenditures Monday night, and twenty-one persons were present to hear the proposals.

Following discussions on the proposal, the council will combine the Revenue Sharing figures with the annual all-city budget proposal, to be presented to the public at a March 29 hearing.

Items listed Monday night were tile to cover ditches, $2,000; chlorine, $1,200, meter fittings, meters, and water lines, $8,000; Senior citizens, $1,477.25; recreation (Jaycess) $500; sewer lines, $9,355; codification of city ordinances, $1,500; engineering feasibility study on water system, $3,750. The total Revenue Sharing money was collected during 1976, to be spent this year, totals $27,782.25, Mayor George Murray said.

Homedale Ships 2,793 Loads of Produce in ‘51

Beets led in carlot shipments for 1951 from Homedale. Of the total 2,793 cars shipped, 1,309 were beets, G.K. Spiers, local Union Pacific agent, said this week.

Potatoes ranked second with 766 cars; onions 246; prunes, 242; cantaloupes, 28; apples, 14; wheat, 22; alfalfa meal, 156; wool, eight; sheep, one and scrap, one.

Beets and potatoes shipped from Napton are included in these figures, Mr. Spiers said.

Monthly shipments for February were 106 cars of beets, hay, 16, and onions, five.

Trojans Turn out for Ball Practice Mon.

About 30 hopefuls donned sweatshirts and heavy equipment Monday and braved the snow and sleet to make a bid for the 1952 version of the Trojan baseball squad.

Of the 30 only six are letterman. They are Bill Morrisson, Dean Vance, Dick Newby, Harold Breach, Fred Miklancic and Rodger Nash. Most of the other boys have had little or no varsity experience. Only one regular from last year’s infield and two from the outfield remain.

Coach Tucker reports that he is short on pitchers and that all fielding positions are open. A great deal will depend upon the boys’ ability to hit in order to secure scoring power to make up for deficiencies in experience and fielding ability.

Boys who look good for possible infield jobs are Harold Tolmie at 3rd, Newby at short, Thomas Yost at 2nd and Marvin Friel at 1st. Breach has experience behind the plate.

There are a good many underclassmen and a couple of inexperienced seniors who may get the nod.

Outfielders who show promise are Miklancic, Salutregui, Griffith and several underclassmen.

Such boys as Kowalk, Moss, Anderson, Townsend, Brown, Bean, Starman, and Rowland look like good timber for the frosh-soph team.

IDAHO BLOTTED OUT. – A telegram says that a memorial has been presented by Senator Yates of Illinois, from the citizens of Utah, praying for the organization of the Territory of Wyoming and asking the annexation of Utah and Idaho thereto. Oh pshaw!

WRITE HOME. – We are continually in receipt of letters anxiously inquiring about friends and relations, who in many instances have not written home for years. This is wrong. Could you realize with what anxiety a feeble old father and mother wend their way to the post office in hopes of receiving tidings from their loved one could you imagine with what eagerness a fond sister or brother scans the letter-list, hoping to hear from the absent one whose place has long been vacant in the family circle; could you know with what painful suspense the once loved wife of your bosom passes the lonesome weary hours, awaiting your return; could you picture to yourself the heartache of the beautiful girl that at one time you considered dearer to you than any one else on earth; have you forgotten the parting kiss, the fond, the last good bye when you promised – Ah, well! promises are broken; but do write home. It is a duty you owe to your friends and they will bless you for it.

NEWSPAPER POSTAGE. – Weekly newspapers sent by the publisher to actual subscribers within the County where printed and published are mailed free of charge. On weekly newspapers, when sent out of the County where printed and published, the postage, if paid in advance at the office of mailing or delivering is five cents per quarter or three months.

SOIREE. – The dancing school soiree passed off pleasantly last Wednesday evening. The music was of the very best. Linn and Tom Gibson discoursed the violins, Eugene Holman the banjo, and Harry Wilkinson enlived the merry dances with the stirring notes of his pickelo. A large number of ladies were present, who with their countenances beaming with fun and lit up with good humor together with their well-known amiable sociable qualities made the evening seem to pass away rapidly, and of course pleasantly and agreeably. The dance broke up about twelve o’clock, when a large number of those present repaired to the Cooper Restaurant and partook of an excellent supper. The dancing teacher Mr. McMahon informs us that there will be another soiree of the same sort next Wednesday evening.

INDIGNATION MEETING. – Last Saturday as soon as it became known that the Saloon keepers had increased the price of whiskey by refusing to take greenbacks any longer at par, quite a commotion was raised among the bummers that never pay a cent for the whiskey they drink. A meeting was called and a number of boisterous indignation speeches were made. It was agreed not to patronize the Saloons that had entered into the compact extorting a greater price for spiritual consolation. The meeting was concluded by the adoption of a resolution, providing for an organization of these indignationists into a joint stock company for the purpose of carrying on and supporting a greenback gin-mill.

FROM FLINT. – Twenty men are now at work on the Rising Star in Flint. A whim has been erected on the mine to expedite the hoisting of rock and water until the steam works for that purpose shall have arrived. The Company are also at work sinking on the Excelsior, which at the beginning of the present week was down thirty feet.

School Board reviews calendar

The Homedale School Board reviewed a potential school calendar for the 2002-2003 school year at their regular March 11 meeting which includes early release on Mondays. The calendar proposes an early release on Monday afternoons at 1:30 to allow for teacher in-services in the afternoon. The potential calendar sets Aug. 13 as registration and Aug. 27 as the first day of school. Oct. 30 would be the end of the first quarter. Dec. 23 through Jan. 3 would be days off for Christmas break under the proposed calendar with school resuming on Jan. 6. January 17 would end the second quarter. The third quarter would end on March 3. March 24-28 would be spring break. The last day of school is scheduled for May 29 on the proposed calendar. The calendar will now be reviewed by the board and the staff and will likely be considered again for action at the April board meeting, which will take place on April 11.

Swing...

Homedale Trojan Clay Haylett swings at the ball during a boy's baseball game against Notus last week. Homedale will host Nampa Christian Thursday and will travel to Weiser on Friday.

Trojan baseball team tastes first victories

Homedale Trojan Coach Tim Fulwood didn't have to wait very long this season to have his first victory. The Trojans edged out the Notus Pirates 9-6 on Monday, March 11. It was a nice bounce-back after a loss the previous Saturday.

Homedale pitcher Matt Nauman once again put in a solid performance on the mound, pitching five innings and keeping the Pirates scoreless in the third and fifth innings.

The Trojans also used a five-run third inning to set up the victory. Homedale's B.J. Robinson doubled home two runs in the third. Cole Cooper and Michael Shenk each drove in one run.

Homedale had another victory on Thursday, March 14, when the Trojans battled the Parma Panthers. They took the victory 8-4 in their first Calls 2A conference game.

The Trojans scored four runs in the first inning. Pitcher Cole Cooper pitched six innings leaving eight Panthers the victims of strikeouts, and also picking up a home run while at bat.

Marsing High tracksters perform well at invitational match

Marsing Track Coach Don Heller was very pleased with the performance of his team at a non-scoring invitational match at Middleton last Thursday, March 14.

KC Wilson won the 100 meter event. Jamie Lynde took second in the 100 meter and followed that up with victories in the 200 meter and 400 meter.

Cody Heller threw the shot-put 40 feet 1 inch for a third place ranking. Amanda Stewart took third in the high jump to match a personal best of 4 feet 8 inches. Matthew Berends took third place in the 800 meter event.

"It was a good day, good first meet," Heller said.

The Marsing track team will be at Weiser at 4 p.m. tomorrow.

District works on new eligibility policy for athletics

A beginning draft of a new policy for participation in athletic activities was brought to the Homedale School Board of Trustees at their regular meeting on March 11. The new policy, which was presented by Homedale High School Principal Mike Williams and Homedale Middle School Principal Keith Field, calls for all students involved in interscholastic sports and activities at Homedale High School to pass all classes and sets up a grade point average criteria as well.

The board took no action on the policy draft at the meeting that will now go to a committee of parents, coaches, and teachers of the middle school and high school according to Homedale School District Superintendent Bob Lisonbee.

The draft included a policy of monitoring grades on a weekly basis. Students who fail to meet the standards at grade check will be put on probation for a week-long period. During that probation time the student is eligible to participate in practices and contests, but must work to bring his or her grades up.

If the athlete does not meet the standard for a second consecutive week, it is proposed that the student would be suspended and not allowed to participate in any contest for a week. The student would still be allowed to practice provided they are seeking help to improve their grades.

"It's good possibly for everyone. It's good for the athlete or student because they're being held accountable on a weekly basis. It's good for the teacher because they're being held accountable for it on a weekly basis. It's great for the parents," Williams said.

Currently, the policy for middle school students who wish to participate in extracurricular activities says a student must pass a minimum of five classes and achieve a 2.0 GPA during the nine-week period preceding the season of the sport the student wants to participate in.

The policy for students at the high school states that a student must be enrolled full time and have passing grades and earn credits in at least five full-credit subjects, or the equivalency, in the semester previous to the sport season.

Williams stressed that the draft was just a "jumping off point" for further discussion on the issue and needs to have input from teachers, parents and coaches from the middle school and high school.

Weight Loss Puzzles Doctors

ATLANTA, GA -- Doctors were surprised when two separate studies found that a natural dietary supplement could help cause significant weight loss.

Although not conclusive, both studies found that patients receiving the formula called Bio-Rex 3000[®] lost more than twice as much weight as those in a control group on the same fat reduced diet. Neither group was instructed to decrease the amount of food they ate or to increase their exercise levels. An article published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition says that you don't have to decrease the amount of food you eat to lose weight, provided that you limit the fat.

According to a spokesperson for Phillips Gulf Corporation, the exclusive North American distributor of Bio-Rex 3000, the company is considering additional studies in order to get federal approval to make pharmaceutical claims. Currently, weight loss claims for the Bio-Rex 3000 supplement are limited. However, with the requisite approval, the company could say that Bio-Rex 3000 decreases sugar cravings, increases metabolism and interferes with the body's ability to produce excess fat.

Bio-Rex 3000 is currently available as a dietary supplement and plan in pharmacies and nutrition stores or by calling 1-800-729-8446. Suggested retail price for a four week supply is just $19.99.

The truth about lies

We hate to admit we ever lie, though we obviously do. We hate even more to admit we believe the lies we're told, which we even more obviously do. We hate the whole idea of lying so much we hardly ever call it that anymore.

If it's a kid-size lie told by a kid we call it a fib, whereas a kid-size lie told by an adult is called a misrepresentation. If it's a politely pronounced lie we call it a prevarication. If it's a beehive of lies told by a politician we call it spin. If the politician is big-time and harps on it long enough we call it propaganda. If it's the usual hogwash that emanates from the swinish minds of Hollywood we call it entertainment. If it comes from the same kind of minds in New York we call it art. If it's an esoteric lie cooked up by some academic and disseminated as truth to the masses we call it history, or maybe medicine or some other scientific sounding name. If it's the daily product of the megalomaniacal wienies who inhabit the liberal media we call it news. And if it's a bunch of big fat lies repeated over and over again ad nauseum we call it a Northeastern Democrat, with little need to distinguish between Kennedy, Schumer, Leahy, et al as they're all interchangeable and each is as accomplished and experienced a liar as the other.

Of course, the worst kind of lie is the kind we tell ourselves. These self-lies we prefer to call psychotic delusions so we can blame them on our parents.

The only way to stop the cycle of lies is to stop telling them and stop believing them. The former is a very painful social procedure. The latter is wholly dependent on our ability to tell the difference between objective fact and wishful thinking, and therein lies the rub.

I mean, there are some people who believe Santa Claus visits every kid on earth one night every year, the Easter Bunny lays multicolored boiled eggs, and Hillary Clinton and Martha Hahn will soon be legally joined and move to a desert island which will quickly be wiped off the face of the planet by a record-smashing volcanic eruption and neither will ever lie to anybody again.

Summary Judgement

Lynx, water, cattle, and the Fish and Wildlife service

by William Perry Pendley
president, Mountain States Legal Foundation

In December 2001, The Washington Times reported that employees of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) had planted lynx fur on rubbing posts in two national forests in Washington State to make it appear as if lynx were there in order to compel closure of those forests. Western U.S. Representatives were livid; Congressman Scott McInnis (R-CO), Chairman of the House Forests and Forest Health Subcommittee, launched a congressional investigation. Months later the story is still making news, most recently when environmental groups defended the FWS employees and attacked the investigation as "a witch hunt."

Days ago, The Washington Post reported the results of a National Academy of Sciences (NAS) study regarding the Draconian demands imposed by the FWS on Klamath Falls, Oregon. The FWS, pursuant to the Endangered Species Act (ESA), had shut off water, to which farmers had a legal right, because delivery of the water violated the ESA. The action came during a drought, which turned productive fields into acres of withering crops. Secretary of the Interior Norton visited the embattled and embittered community but said her hands were tied. The NAS concluded: there was "no sound scientific basis" for the FWS's actions.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, the nation's most liberal and most frequently reversed circuit, struck down efforts by the FWS to end cattle grazing on a vast area in Arizona. The Ninth Circuit concluded that the FWS's evidence was "vague," "speculative," and "woefully insufficient." The FWS, concluded the court, "has a very low bar to meet, but it must at least attain it," otherwise compliance with the ESA would be left "within the unfettered discretion of the [FWS], leaving no method by which [private parties] or [other federal agencies] can gauge their performance."

For those who have followed the ESA and the FWS over the years, these recent reports of FWS malfeasance are nothing new. Almost ten years ago, when the FWS was accused of basing its opinions, not on biological science, but on political science, one high ranking official responded, "If you define 'politics' in the non-pejorative sense of it being the 'balancing of competing demands,' yes, our business is Öpolitical." At the same time Clinton's Forest Service Chief and spotted owl expert told reporters there was not a "magic number" of spotted owls, that what the FWS was doing was making "moral judgements between the needs of the owl and the needs of mankind!"

The FWS's decisions may be political or moral and not scientific, but they have real life consequences. Every federal agency has a duty to consult with the FWS regarding any proposed public or private action that could affect species covered by the ESA. The so-called biological opinions that the FWS issues during that consultation, which bind all other federal agencies and private parties, can be the death sentence, as seen above, for public use of a national forest, for delivery of private water, or for the grazing of cattle.

What is new after all these years is that the public and the national media are starting to pay attention. Perhaps one of the reasons is that after eight years of a president famous for quibbling over the definitions of "is," "alone," and "false," the idea that low-level federal employees might engage in unethical or illegal shenanigans is not so far fetched. But while the public may be changing its opinions, the message has yet to reach Washington, D.C. The U.S. Department of Justice, by defending the often indefensible, continues to make it difficult for citizens to obtain relief from improper, illegal, or unethical actions by federal employees. In addition, those up the chain of command have failed to signal change. Recently a federal administrative law judge declared, in a controversial ESA case, that FWS witnesses had to be believed because they had no reason to lie since they were simply doing their jobs!

Commentary

On the edge of common sense

Baxter Black, DVM

Kids...

I was expressing concern about my eight year old son whose "talking in class" keeps him staying after school on a regular basis. In spite of discipline, threats and punishment he still relapses now and then. Granted, he's remorseful but sometimes, I guess, he just can't help it.

After hearing my lament, my friend and philosopher W.C. just shrugged and said, "You can't swim outside the gene pool." It was a hard blow to swallow.

When I was in the sixth grade I had my first man teacher. He was retired Air Force and a strict disciplinarian. Demerits were given for talking or misbehaving. A monitor was appointed in each row to keep track. Staying after school was the consequence of too many demerits. Those who had a minimum were promoted each week. That way we learned about military rank. By Thanksgiving there were girls in my class who were Five Star Generals. I made it to Corporal once in the sixth grade.

My daughter has inherited her mother's "keep a stiff upper lip" and "get even" stubbornness. I used to take great delight in hiding behind a door or leaping out from behind the couch shouting, "BOO!" Sometimes she'd cry, but what the heck, she was just a little kid. One Saturday morning I staggered into the kitchen, groggily poured some milk on my Cheerios and sat down at the table. It was a quiet morning, overcast, cold outside, no leaves on the trees, tan grass, grey bark, chirpless birds, "not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse." Or so I thought.

Sneaking from her second grade little girl bedroom, came revenge on her hands and knees. Stealthy as a Navy Seal, down the stairs, across the rug, through the kitchen right up under the table where I sat oblivious as Pompei the day before Vesuvius blew.

I was wallowing my spoon around in the bowl trying to spell Oolagah, staring at the sliding door that looked like a blank movie screen, not yet able to form a coherent thought. I grasped the bowl as a primate would, to slurp. Suddenly, rising like a Trident missile, 36 inches from my pursed lips, across the table appeared the most terrifying visage I had ever seen. It was accompanied by a blood curdling scream that would break glass!

My mind could not compute. My "fight or flight" mechanism kicked in, the chair went over backwards, the table rose six inches off the ground and the air was filled with flying objects, both edible and inedible.

I crashed!

My heart pounding, I crawled back up and peeked over the tabletop. All I saw was the back of a seven year old kid wearing pajamas and pigtails, swinging a stuffed rabbit. She walked back to her bedroom.

I couldn't see her face, but I think she was smiling.

Letters to the editor

About time

Dear Mr. Boatman,

Thank you for your commentary on the never ending propaganda effort of the government school establishment. It is about time that someone in the media pointed out that when a larger dollar amount is budgeted this year than last year, it is an increase... not a cut, as the educationists and their allies in the government media complex would have us believe.

Former Caldwell educator Tom Moore has said for many years that the schools are not primarily educational institutions but political institutions. This latest episode certainly adds to the already sizable body of evidence supporting this fact.

Your fine interview with Mr. Hage further illustrates the danger of a too cozy relationship between government institutions and their willing accomplices in the elite media. We in the local area are lucky to have you, Mr. Aman and the Avalanche, keep up the good work.

With heart, not hate

I take great exception to your remarks about the Homedale Patrons for School Improvement group. As you said in your article you have never attended one of these meetings. Instead you choose to express your opinion based only on hearsay.

As in any group there are many different opinions on how things should be done. This group is no exception to that rule. There are parents who feel their past concerns have not been properly addressed and have come to this group hoping to get some results. There are parents who are mainly here to improve the educational system of Homedale, and there are parents who want to improve communication between all members of this community.

Each of these factions have legitimate arguments and different approaches to solving their concerns. This does not make one group better or worse than the other. What we have is the beginning of communication.

The one thing I have heard over and over again since I moved here and got involved with the school system (when my children started school) is "We can't do that we've never done that before." Well maybe it is time for a change.

Instead of sitting back and labeling this group as a mob, why not join and see for yourself what is happening. As you stated, this group is a small percentage of the parents in this district, so why are you and others so threatened by this. Until you know all the facts on a subject you are only perpetuating the rumors and gossip of someone else. It seems to me that unfounded truths, rumors, and gossip have caused great division in this community over the past few years. Don't you think it is time we stopped gossiping and making innuendoes about things we don't understand.

Call me naive, an eternal optimist or just a fool, but I believe that instead of being suspicious of our neighbors' motives we should reach out our hand to one another, embrace each others' ideas, help lighten each others' load and make Homedale a community with heart not hate.

In the minority

MaryAnn and I took our annual trip to see our state legislature in operation yesterday. One of the bills they passed "is another nail in the coffin of our second amendment rights," to quote one of the legislators, who by the way was in tears at the next seculd committee meeting. So you can see we still have a few good legislators but they are in the minority.

Find God; keep the freedom

Did you know that more than one million people immigrate to America every year and most never become citizens? Their loyalty is not to our country. No one can be in two places at once. And no one can be one hundred percent loyal to two countries at the same time.

The largest immigrant sending nation is Mexico and because most of them refuse to integrate into our culture they expect us to learn their language rather than learn ours. I am not prejudice. I have friends that are Mexican people. But most immigrants lack the life long commitment to America that loyal Americans are raised with from childhood.

However if that doesn't bother you much maybe this will. The flag of red China flies next to the US flag near the Capitol of South Carolina over the Cosco store in Camden. That's the same capitol that banned the confederate flag from being raised. Yet the communist flag that represents slave labor, eight year old children in factories and the murder of its own people flies unmolested. The problem is that we traded the God of Abraham for the god of sex and sex is a pathetic god. Still yet the media continues to molest the people and the people like it. We are losing our sovereignty, our pride, and our security in the name of political correctness while we watch. Find God; keep the freedom.

It makes one wonder

Regarding sewer rate increases, the city says we have a deficiency in sewer revenue. The reason we have a shortfall, according to the city clerk, is that we are using less water, therefore, revenues are down, so they need to raise rates to compensate.

It seems, if memory serves me right, we were asked by the city to try and use less water, to relieve the strain on the city wells.

It makes one wonder.....

Let your children learn from their own mistakes

QUESTION: My children love to do things for themselves, but they make such messes that it's easier for me to do the things for them. I just don't have the patience to see them fumble with stuff. Do you think I'm wrong to step in?

DR. DOBSON: I think you are wrong, even though I understand how you feel. I heard a story about a mother who was sick in bed with the flu. Her darling daughter wanted so much to be a good nurse. She fluffed the pillows and brought a magazine to read. And then she even showed up with a surprise cup of tea.

"Why, you're such a sweetheart," the mother said as she drank the tea. "I didn't know you even knew how to make tea."

"Oh, yes," the little girl replied. "I learned by watching you. I put the tea leaves in the pan, and then I put in the water and boiled it. Then I strained it into a cup. But I couldn't find a strainer, so I used the flyswatter instead."

"You what?" the mother screamed.

The little girl said, "Oh, don't worry, Mom, I didn't use the new flyswatter. I used the old one."

Well, when kids try their hardest and they get it all wrong in spite of themselves, what's a parent to do? What mothers and fathers often do is prevent their children from carrying any responsibility that could result in a mess or a mistake. It's just easier to do everything for them than to clean up afterward. But I urge parents not to fall into that trap.

Your child needs her mistakes. That's how she learns. So go along with the game every now and then — even if the tea you drink tastes a little strange.

QUESTION: Isn't it our goal to produce children with self-discipline and self-reliance? If so, how does your approach to external discipline imposed by parents get translated into internal control?

DR. DOBSON: There are many authorities who suggest that parents take a passive approach to their children for the reason implied by your question: They want their kids to discipline themselves. But since young people lack the maturity to generate that self-control, they stumble through childhood without experiencing either internal or external discipline.

Thus, they enter adult life having never completed an unpleasant assignment, or accepted an order that they disliked, or yielded to the leadership of their elders. Can we expect such a person to exercise self-discipline in young adulthood? I think not. That individual doesn't even know the meaning of the words.

My belief is that parents should introduce their children to discipline and self-control by any reasonable means available, including the use of external influences when they are young. By being required to behave responsibly, they gain valuable experience in controlling their own impulses and resources. Then as they grow into the teen years, responsibility is transferred year by year from the shoulders of the parents directly to the children. They no longer are required to do what they have learned during earlier years, in the hope that they will want to function on their own initiative.

To illustrate, a boy should be required to keep his room relatively neat when he is young. Then somewhere during the mid-teens, his own self-discipline should take over and provide the motivation to continue the task. If it does not, the parent should close the door and let him live in a dump, if that is his choice.

In short, self-discipline does not come automatically to those who have never experienced it. Self-control must be learned, and it must be taught.

Mr. Harty will make a recommendation to the BLM on the process used in coordinating with the County, other agencies, the permittees and public. The Board outlined problems encountered in contacts with the BLM. Other interviews have been held with the permittees. Mr. Harty stated that he will send the County copy of his report to the BLM.

Jack Hughes discussed Givens Road with the Board. He stated that he was promised an access to his property but upon further investigation he discovered that the route offered to him was not owned by the party offering the exchange. He has been entering his property using Givens Road but that way has been barricaded and his property will be landlocked. The Board directed the matter be examined along with the research on Strodes Basin.

Fred Roberts requested direction from the Board on amending an existing subdivision plat. The Board directed Mr. Roberts to file a petition for amending the subdivision plat. Mr.

Robert's petition should contain the following information:

- 1) A copy of the legal description of the plat, road or easement to be vacated.
- 2) A copy of a map, record of survey, site plan or sketch of the plat, road, or easement to be vacated.
- 3) A copy of the newspaper notification and a list of the property owners who are within 300 feet of the plat, road or easement to be vacated or those who use or would be affected by the vacation.

Owyhee County Sage Grouse Local Working Group Chairman John Romero reported to the Board that funding would be made available to the local group if the Board approved acceptance of the money. The Board made no decision at this time. Mr. Romero reported that the BLM is using an internal draft document of Sage Grouse Guidelines for accessing grazing allotments. The predator study conducted through the Fish and Game will be conducted in Cow Creek and Grasmere areas. Studies show that sage grouse is stable in the Owyhee County areas but the BLM continues to cut grazing in the allotments designated as sage grouse habitat areas.

The Board received a report that a water bill with a substantial amount owing has not been paid, no arrangements have been made for payment and the party has not appeared before the Board with an explanation. The Board will request assistance from the Prosecutor on the course of action to take.

Review of Crossview Subdivision was recessed to March 11, 2002.

There being no further business, the Board adjourned. Signed this 11th day of March 2002.

answered and no one was injured. God bless you all. Peggy Jackson

Our family would like to thank everyone for coming out Saturday to support Cameron.

The benefit was wonderful and it is so nice to know that so many people care.

A special thanks to Joyce Wright and Deann Thatcher for organizing the benefit and to the many others who helped out with the food booths, games, yard sale tables, and the auction, etc. There were many wonderful items that were donated for the auction. A big thank you to those who donated and also to the band The Good Ol' Boys for the wonderful music that was provided for the dance.

Homedale may be a small town but the people here sure have a big heart and we're glad to be a part of this community.
