Surprise guest

Homedale Postmaster Rob Herndon surprised derby fans who attended the 20th Annual Lions Club Demolition Derby Thursday night by dropping from the sky onto the Owyhee County Rodeo grounds. Approximately 2,500 fans attended the yearly event which Homedale's Larry Corta was crowned champion.

Record-breaking number of demolition cars enter 2002 derby

20th anniversary derby action called best performance ever

This year marked the 20th anniversary of the Lion's Club Demolition Derby and attracted veteran drivers such as Kevin Ensley, Kurt Shanley, Larry Corta, Mike Johnson, Randy Breshears and Matt Freelove. The largest number of demolition cars in the 20-year history of the derby entered for a chance at a $1,500 first place grand prize purse with only one car remaining as the best of the best.

Out of 43 entrants, fourteen-year derby driver Larry Corta walked away with that win by stopping two-time consolation heat winner Randy Breshears in the championship heat. Corta won best looking car, fans' choice in 1997, consolation heat winner of 1996 and second place in 1995.

Seven Chrysler Imperials, called the best derby car made, entered the race this year and three of those finished with a trophy prize. Corta and Breshears both drove 1964

Two petitions being circulated

*One to recall prosecutor;
other to remove speed-bumps*

Prosecutor's recall petition hits a snag

A petition to recall Owyhee County Prosecuting Attorney Ed Yarbrough has hit a snag and has had to begin from scratch in the complicated process of removing the local attorney.

Marsing resident Peggy Tallman and her husband Merrill, initiated the petition in May, stating the prosecutor dismisses and pleads down nearly three fourths of the cases brought before him. The couple quickly collected the necessary 20 names needed to initiate the petition and turned them into Owyhee County Clerk Cindi Eaton. That is where Tallman says the trouble began.

Tallman submitted the petition on May 15 with 20 signatures. Two of the signatures were disqualified, but she returned with two more names on May 16 to complete the initial petition.

"We felt like we had been sluggish," Tallman said last week. "I went up to Murphy and turned in the original 20 signatures. Cindi accepted them, notarized them, and said we had 60 days to get the remaining names in for the final petition. I asked her if we needed to

Speed bumps

Citizens petition for speed-bump removal

Twenty residents on South First Street West and Kansas Avenue in Homedale petitioned the Homedale City Council in May, 2001 for speed bumps to slow drivers down after sporting events at Sundance Park. Tonight (Wednesday) nearly 70 residents will ask the Homedale City Council to remove the speed bumps, which most local residents have seen motorists veering around.

Four speed bumps were installed last year and city maintenance workers increased the size of the bumps in August after Homedale Mayor Harold Puri witnessed speeders still on the road.

Scorched

The blackened remains of a truck and a few pine sections of a bed was all that thieves left behind after someone stole the truck loaded with hand made pine furniture from Authentic's of Idaho, Inc. in Marsing.

Criminals sought in pine furniture crime spree

Culprits in the theft of nearly $40,000 in pine furniture and the grand theft of a nearly $40,000 truck are being sought by law enforcement officers in three states and the Federal Bureau of Investigation for Indian Affairs.

In the early morning hours of June 27, thieves stole a 1989 truck loaded with hand made pine furniture from the Authentics of Idaho, Inc. factory in Marsing. The culprits traveled to outside of McDermott Nevada, apparently unloaded the furniture into another truck and set the truck on fire.

"I got a call about 5:30 a.m. Friday morning," Paul Silvas, owner of Authentics of Idaho said. "A dispatcher from Malheur County Sheriff's Office said they had my truck outside of McDermott and it was on fire. She said she didn't know where the driver was or if he was ok. I told her there was no way she could have my truck, because two of my trucks were en-route for deliveries and the only one left was parked at my factory in Marsing. She read the license numbers to me and I called my crew chief who looked and found that the truck was gone."

Silvas said the truck had arrived at the plant earlier in the day and some of the furniture had been transferred to another truck for a delivery. But he said there was still nearly $40,000 in furniture remaining in the truck that was stolen.

"I can't believe in a small community like Marsing that someone doesn't know anything about it," Silvas continued. "I would pay anyone $500 for the arrest of who ever did this."

Silvas said he left the factory at about 8 p.m. and his crew chief remained in the building until about 11:30 p.m.

"Who ever it is had to have been watching," Silvas commented. "We had people here up until nearly midnight."

Silvas opened his factory last month and said he still loves the area. He said the crew, who had been working that night, have also worked for him for several years.

"I know these guys well," Silvas explained. "Some of them I even rent homes to. It looks to me to be an outside job. Someone has been watching the place and knew when no one would be around."

Thieves picked the lock on the truck and 'hot wired' the ignition to get the truck to start. Authorities believe then they traveled to Jordan Valley where they may have gotten gas. The truck was set on fire approximately 10 miles south of McDermott. Silvas said Malheur County, Owyhee County and the FBI for the Indian Reservation are searching for the criminals.

Sunday lightning kills Marsing man

A storm that passed through the Treasure Valley Sunday killed a Marsing man when he was struck by lightning.

An Owyhee County dispatcher said 52 year old Salvador Salgado and a co-worker, Roberto Bernabe, 23, were working in a field in Canyon County off Hoskins Road, when a lightning bolt struck Salgado at about 11:45 a.m.

The duo was working on an irrigation pipe when the storm rolled into the valley. Salgado was killed by the strike. Bernabe was injured in the incident and transported by Access Air to Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise and was later transported to a burn hospital in Utah.

4-H council seeks past photos

The Owyhee County 4-H Council is looking for old photos of past clubs and activities to be used as a special display at this year's fair in August.

This year marks the 100th anniversary of 4-H and the group plan to pay tribute to an organization that is the largest youth serving organization in the world.

Owyhee County Extension 4-H Program Coordinator Tara Rowland said, "if past members have old club scrapbooks or family scrapbooks and would like to submit photos, we can scan them and send the originals back. We would like to ask those who are submitting photos to label them with dates and names whenever possible."

Photos can be sent or dropped off to the extension office in Marsing at P.O. Box 400 Marsing, Idaho 83639, or by e-mail at taraw@uidaho.edu.

They may also be sent to Debbie Ellis at 202 S. 2nd West St. Homedale, Idaho 83628 or to Sue Williams at Rt. 1 Box 1103 Homedale, Idaho 83628.

"We are looking for photos from all over the county and as many years back as possible," Rowland continued.

The group will not be collecting anymore photos after July 31.

wait for the state and she told me ‘no, it is all here’.”

Tallman said Eaton gave her a blank copy of the petition and the group again went to work collecting names throughout Owyhee County. Tallman made several copies of the petition and distributed copies from Bruneau to the Homedale area.

“On June 11 or 12 I received a certified letter from Cindi saying that we had 60 days from that day to get the names,” Tallman explained. “I called her and asked her about the names we had already collected and she told me that they were not any good, that we would have to start over. I told her ‘can’t we do anything about that?’ and she said no the names were no good.”

Tallman said she contacted the state and they also informed her that the names would not be accepted. Earlier this month Tallman called a meeting from everyone who has been involved in the recall to find out if everyone wanted to continue the petition drive or to drop the recall. She said everyone chose to continue.

Eaton said she was unaware of any problems with the petition, but that if any names had been collected before the designated date, they would be disqualified.

“The law says when they turn in the original 20 names we have a time period in which we have to make sure it conforms to the law,” Eaton explained. “They could collect names between June 11 and August 9.”

Eaton said if the group does not have enough names by the deadline, they may opt to file for an extension.

Tallman said she had nearly 200 names, almost half of the needed signatures, when she had to start over. She said there are nearly 40 petitions circulating through Owyhee County for residents to sign. She said the deadline for the petitions is August 9 and the group plans to have copies available at next month’s Owyhee County Fair and Rodeo.

Idaho State Code requires many different steps to recall an elected official. Special rules apply to certain elected officials who are subject to recall and prosecuting attorneys are included.

In Idaho Code section 34-1701, the code states that “a petition for recall of an officer shall be instituted by filing with the appropriate official a verified written petition requesting such recall. The petition shall be filed with the county clerk, and must be signed by registered electors of the county equal in number to twenty percent of the number of electors registered to vote at the last general election held in the county for the election of county officers at which the officer was elected.”

Eaton said the petition would have to contain 499 registered voters signatures as 2,496 abstracted votes were counted for the position of prosecuting attorney on November 7, 2000 when Yarbrough was re-elected to office.

“I thought it had ruined the whole thing,” Tallman explained. “But when we met, everyone really wanted to continue with it.” -CP

✓ Bump

Residents say the traffic on the normally quiet street, increases four to five times when athletic games are held at Sundance Park, which is located near the corner of the adjoining roads.

Nearly 90 residents live on the two roadways and as of last Tuesday, 65 of them had signed the petition.

The petition states: “we the undersigned are requesting that the four speed bumps located on Kansas Avenue and South 1st St. West be removed. We as the residents in this neighborhood find the speed bumps punish us who live here and have to navigate these obstacles every time we travel to and from our homes, businesses, or jobs in our vehicles. Along with diminishing the quality of our lives, there are those among us who have medical and health related issues whereby pain is generated and or exacerbated each time these abrupt, overly large obstacles in the road are traversed.”

The petition continues to state that as parents and grandparents, “who don’t expect a whole neighborhood to be punished because the children we’re supervising might like to play in the public thoroughfares.”

The residents are asking the council to post speed limit signs and/or a “children at play” sign on Kansas as well as “stronger” police presence patrolling the area when special events are scheduled at Sundance Park.

“If our goal was to slow down the determined, persistent speeders, it is not being attained as we are aware of reports that the faster you go, the less effect the speed bumps have,” the petition states. “There are many of us who at first thought the speed bumps might be a good idea, but now feel differently after enduring them for the past several months, finding them to be a greater aggravation than ever anticipated, especially when the size was substantially increased.” -CP

BLM schedules meetings to discuss RMP plans

A public meeting to discuss issues raised during earlier "scoping" hearings on two of the Bureau of Land Management's long-range resource management plan proposals will be held July 11 at the Rimrock Jr./Sr. High School on Highway 78, 10 miles east of Bruneau from 6-9:00 p.m.

The BLM is preparing two resource management plans, one for the Snake River Birds of Prey National Conservation Area, and the other for the Bruneau Planning Area. The plans will be the basic blueprint for land use decisions in those areas for the next 20 years. The area involved is a huge portion of southern Idaho running from roughly Kuna to Mountain Home and south covering a large portion of northeast Owyhee County.

The BLM held six public meetings from November 2001 to January 2002 to seek public comment on issues that need to be addressed by the management plans. More than

1,000 comments were received that the BLM said "reflected an active interest in both planning areas as well as a significant knowledge about the natural resources and the management of those lands."

The comments will be used to help develop the eventual long-range management plans for those areas.

At next week's meetings the BLM will present to the public the issues generated by those earlier hearings and discuss how to increase public input and "long-term ownership in the decisions that result from the plans."

Arthritis Pain Mystery Solved

Horse Liniment is the secret!

Ocala, FL. -- An ingredient used to treat inflammation in thoroughbred racehorse legs, is now recognized as safe and effective for human use. The ingredient has been formulated into a product called ARTH-Rx™ and comes in a strength designed for humans. Researchers are excited and say the formula can relieve arthritis pain for millions.

Developed by the Phillips Gulf Corporation, ARTH-Rx is a breakthrough in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis, backache and more.

Scientists suggest that ARTH-Rx works by intercepting the pain messenger substance that sends pain signals to the brain. Although the mechanism is not totally clear, pain is relieved in the affected area because the pain signal actually disappears.

ARTH-Rx is the only product on the market with Neurocaine and is available in a convenient, pleasant scented roll-on applicator without a prescription. According to a spokesperson for the company, ARTH-Rx is available in pharmacies, nutrition stores, and even some feed stores. ARTH-Rx can also be ordered by calling 1-800-729-8446. www.hcdsales.com © 2000 PGC

Obituary

Marjorie Lucille Wallin

Marjorie Lucille Wallin, 82, died July 1, 2002, in a local care center in Homedale, Idaho. She was born July 31, 1919, to Robert F. Austin and Mary E. Brasch Austin in Chiles Valley, California. Marjorie was preceded in death by her brother, Art Austin, and her husband Marvin L. Wallin.

Marjorie has been a longtime resident of Napa, California and was retired from the Napa State Hospital where she worked for many years.

She is survived by her son, Marvin and wife Paulette of Marsing, Idaho and daughter Mary Nixdorf of Sacramento, California. She is also survived by nine grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

A graveside service will be held on Thursday, July 11, 2002 at 10:00 a.m. at Liberty Cemetery in Petaluma, California.

Buckaroo Jamboree to be held Saturday

The 16th annual Buckaroo Jamboree will be held Saturday, July 13, in Homedale at the Owyhee County Fairgrounds with registration at 8 a.m. and the show beginning at 8:30 a.m. This horse show divides the young horsemen into four groups by experience level rather than by age. Classes offered will be Showmanship, Western Equitation, Bareback Equitation, Trail, Reining, and Western Riding. This year, the show will pilot a new class called “Ponies and Parents” and will be an equitation class that is walk-trot only for young children on ponies and those who need parental assistance in the ring. There is no age limit, but a parent must register all children and sign a release for the show.

Concessions will be available on the grounds.

Cost for the show is $15 per child for the day if preregistered to Ann Rutan at (208) 583-2482 by July 12 or $20 for the day if registered at the gate. Individually, the classes are $5 each. Family and Cloverbud discounts are available. Prizes will be rosette ribbons for first and second in each class, and each child will receive recognition and a reward after each class.

The Buckaroo Jamboree is used by the local 4-H Horse Clubs to prepare their members for the Owyhee County Fair, which will be held August 5 and 6 in Homedale, but it is an open show and all children are welcome to participate.

Local church plans “bug safari”

The Homedale Friends Church is planning a bug safari and is inviting local children to attend July 15 through the 19th.

“Our safari program will provide fun, memorable Bible learning activities for kids ages three through completion of the fifth grade,” organizer Randee Garrett said. “Each day kids will sing catchy songs, play teamwork building games, nibble tasty treats from picnic place, experience Bible adventures and create Bible point crafts they will take home and play with all summer.”

Garrett said bug safari is a way for kids to “catch the buzz about God’s love” as the groups study David in the Bible and some of the Psalms he wrote.

Parents will be invited to attend a “firefly finale” during the final 30 minutes of each day to help celebrate what the children have learned.

“Explorers will meet each day at the Homedale Friends Church from 9 a.m. until noon,” Garrett explained. “Registration is at 8:30 a.m. on July 15th and the fee is $5..”

Hundreds of new laws officially on the books

For better or worse, Idahoans now have 275 new laws as of Monday, July 1.

The following are some of the new laws, passed by the legislature during the 2002 session and signed into law by Governor Dirk Kempthorne:

House Bill 480†— It is now a felony for anyone to take a pin number or an ATM card without the owner's consent.

House Bill 483 —

It is now a felony to water down a drug so it no longer meets the purity level on the label.

Senate Bill 1332 - Anyone found to be interfering with agricultural research, by destroying property, trespassing or manipulating research, will now be charged with a felony.

House Bill 564 — Anyone caught stealing anhydrous ammonia (used in the production of methamphetamine) will be charged with a felony crime of grand theft.

Senate Bill 1451 — It is now a crime to intentionally destroy a telecommunication line.

The reason for this law is reportedly because it is common for a domestic batterer to rip a phone line from a wall when the victim attempts to call for help.

A first offense of this nature will result in a misdemeanor, while a second offense is a felony with punishment of up to five years in prison.

House Bill 620 — Vehicular manslaughter now has increased fines and sentencing.

Senate Bill 1344 — Idaho's criminal code for murder, manslaughter and aggravated battery has been expanded to include the fetus or embryo of a pregnant woman.

The bill was passed after an Idaho man reportedly threw a woman to the ground and repeatedly kicked her in the stomach, causing the death of her unborn child. The man was charged with misdemeanor battery.

Senate Bill 1357 — Price gouging will not be allowed for fuel, food, medicine and water in times of declared state or national emergencies.

House Bill 643 — Everyone selling a motor vehicle who knows that the air bag does no work is now required to reveal that fact to the buyer.

House Bill 467 — Emergency response entities, counties and the Idaho State Search and Rescue Fund will now be able to obtain reimbursement for expenses of emergency responses for persons who deliberately enter areas closed to the public and then need rescuing.

The law only applies to adults and is capped at $5,000. Insurance companies will not be required to cover such person's liability.

Grab-and-Go travel food

Dear Betty,

We have a family vacation coming up, and I know we won't be served a meal on the plane. Do you have any ideas for food that's tasty but easy to carry?

Lander, Wyo.

'Tis the season to travel, whether by plane, train or minivan. Give these grab-and-go ideas a try when you head out on your summer excursion. Some can be kept at room temp for a few hours, but pack foods with meat, cheese or yogurt in a small cooler or insulated lunch tote.

Banana wraps. Spread a white or whole-wheat tortilla with peanut butter. Arrange banana slices on the peanut butter, then roll and wrap the tortilla.

Apple stacks. Core an apple, then cut crosswise into thin slices. Spread a slice with flavored cream cheese or spreadable cheese, top with another slice. Spread more cheese and top with a final apple slice.

Ham and cheese sticks. Cut ham and cheese into narrow sticks. Pack a small container of Dijon or sweet-and-spicy mustard for dipping.

Travel burrito. Layer refried beans, grated cheese and salsa on a tortilla. Sprinkle with chili powder, then roll and wrap.

Grown-up PB&J. Mix a pinch of ground mustard and a spoonful of apricot preserves with peanut butter. Spread on one-half of a toasted cinnamon-raisin bagel. Top with the other half.

Berry kabobs. Thread strawberries on a small wooden skewer. Take along French vanilla yogurt or a chocolate pudding cup for dipping.

Dear Betty,

We've had a couple of power outages during thunderstorms this summer. Do I need to worry about the food in the refrigerator and freezer?

Duncan, Okla.

The answer is "yes" and "yes." Without power, the fridge will keep your food cool for four to six hours. Avoid opening the door and letting the cool air out. If the power is going to be out longer, use coolers to tote the food to a working refrigerator. The food in your freezer—if it's closed and fully loaded—usually will stay frozen two days. You can safely refreeze food that contains ice crystals or is frozen in the center. If food has thawed, but is still cold (about refrigerator temperature), go ahead and cook, then refreeze. Food that's warmer than 40 degrees should be thrown out.

Betty Crocker

What a Great Idea: Take a packet of premoistened towelettes, or dampen paper towels, and put them in a zippered plastic bag for freshening up after on-the-go meals.

Fire season
A map from the Eastern Great Basin Predictive Service shows the fire danger levels for the southern section of Idaho and in Utah. Above normal temperatures will increase the danger of range fires throughout the region.

Lightning ignites Guff fire

An early morning lightning storm ignited several fires throughout Owyhee County and the Treasure Valley Monday.

Bureau of Land Management Fire Specialist Randy Eardle said Monday that four new fires were reported in the area, but the only fire not contained was what the BLM called the Guff fire near Murphy.

Eardle said the fire began at approximately 1:30 a.m. Monday and had burned nearly 300 acres by daylight. He said the fire had not been controlled but crews hoped to contain the blaze by mid afternoon.

“We had four fires reported during the night,” Eardle said Monday. “Two near Emmett, one north of Marsing, the Dill Pickle fire and the Guff (Con Shea) fire in Owyhee County. We have some things in our favor with this fire since the temperature is not supposed to be as hot today as it is the rest of the week. We should be able to get a handle on this fire by mid afternoon. It was also a dry spring and we do not have a lot of tall grass out there to keep it going.”

Eardle said that the BLM has not enforced any restrictions to the area yet, but he said he would like to remind people to be careful of fires, as the area is dry.

A report released from the Eastern Great Basin Fire Interagency said with above average temperatures in the region, the fire season has only begun.

July outlooks suggest above normal temperatures for the area and the trend is predicted to continue through September.

Fire potential for the region is above normal for virtually the entire area. The northern half of Utah and southern Idaho are at above normal fire potential as fuels quickly dry from the hot conditions and the lack of precipitation. Thousand hour fuels are in the 6 to 13 percent range.

This week’s weather outlook shows a Southwest flow that will persist over the area through Friday resulting in breezy, warm, and dry conditions.

Hot weather with light winds will develop over the weekend as strong high-pressure anchors over the Rockies. Record heat and isolated mountain thunderstorms are possible next week as the high-pressure ridge centers itself directly over the area. -CP

Marsing celebrates 4th of July with fireworks, car show and barbecue

Several hundred people attended last week’s Jenny Haken Memorial 4th of July celebration in Marsing which included a doodle-bug race, barbecue, fire works display and a car show.

The celebration was dedicated to the town’s late mayor, Jenny Haken, who died from cancer earlier this year.

Bill Hulsey, from Klammath Falls, Oregon took first place in the annual doodle bug race held in the city park and won $500.

Two Marsing residents took the second and third place prizes, Denise Finley in second place and Mike Weems in third place. Finley won $250 and Weems won $100.

From 7 until 10:30 p.m. Donna and Jim Huntley and Woody Purdom’s band entertained patrons at the Marsing Island Park with live music. Patriotic sounds were played throughout the evening with music provided by Marsing City Councilwoman Carol Edwards.

On Thursday nearly 20 antique cars attended the 10th Annual Andy’s Car Show and potluck dinner held at Marsing Island Park. Results of the show were unavailable at press time.

His ranch is pleasantly situated, just a nice drive out of town, and offers unrivaled attractions to pleasure seekers. By our sporting community, the race-course will be appreciated. Instead of going to church on Sunday they fish for trout, of which the limped stream of the surrounding country offer an abundance. The more piously inclined of Flintites contemplate converting the Iowa mill into a church. An extension of the cupola would make quite a respectable steeple. The whistle would answer the purpose of a bell to call the people to worship, and the engine might do to furnish an organ with air, while a rousing fire in the furnace would forcibly remind the congregation of the seething, burning, brimstone lake.THE CROPS.– The farmers of Jordan Valley have commenced cutting their hay. Reynolds’ Creek affords our market an abundance of radishes, onion, lettuce, etc.THE FOURTH IN FLINT.– Our Flint neighbors have a magnificent flag-staff on the conspicous point between Oro and Owyhee Cities. A bouquet of wild flowers will be hoisted to-day and Cap. Drew will deliver an oration, after which all hands will come over here and remain till after the ball.THE FLINT ROAD.– Jake Brinkerhoff and Co. are now making daily trips with their stage to Flint. There is snow yet on the summit for a short distance, but it is fast disappearing, and Minear has men at work repairing the road and putting it in good order.NEW LODGING ROOM– D. J. Wilmans advertises to-day that he has opened his new lodging house, on Jordan St. He has rooms neatly furnished, with single and double beds, which he will rent by the day, week or month. On the edge of common sense

Baxter Black, DVM

The dog's column

(NOTE: On occasion Baxter's dogs take over his column. Yes, they can type. 60 words a minute, give or take a minute, and use the spell checker.)

By the way of introduction, let me say that I, Pancho Villa de Perro Valiente, am the new head of Ranch Security at the Black Rancho on Red Chile Road. I come from a long line of Australian Shepherd cowedogs and I am assisted by Hattie, hoof eater and Blue Heeler cross. You may be under the illusion that B. Black, cowboy poet is an expert at ranching, an accomplished veterinarian and an equestrian authority. It is only true in the sense that the Montreal Expos claim to be a professional baseball team and that Cuba is considered a super power.

I admit Hattie and I like it when he shoes the horses. Lots of good nibblin's. Normally you wouldn't associate so much blood with farriery but 'cut to the quick' Black likes to get his money's worth. He only shoes his horses, not other peoples'. It is a practical decision, most people can't afford to have†'em lame that long.

We go with him to check the cows...15 head in two sections. You'd think after four years of checkin' the same arroyos and mesquite thickets he'd know where to look. No way, he wakes up in a new world every day. It's easier to follow the migration path of the bovine lungworm than to stay with him on a circle. And since he can't tell the cows apart he counts the same one three or four times. Management material, he ain't.

He and Francisco went to Gerald's brandin' last month, wouldn't let us go, the rat bag. Francisco told us later Gerald let him drag calves to the fire. I said, sarcastically, "you mean 'calf' to the fire." Francisco said, "No, calves. He caught two, at the same time. One around the neck and the other around the front foot." Not bad for an hour's work.

One of the highlights of bein' Bumbling Black's dogs is the leftovers; quail innards, calf testicles, hoof trimmings, lizard tails, snake heads, cow horns, goldfish (from his tank maintenance program), and molasses from the tub feeder.

As to his veterinary skills, I am thankful that he takes me and Hattie to Dr. Leverance. Hattie got snakebit again and I ate a box of D-Con... I know, but I just can't resist. She's saved us both more than once. Dr. "Ha Ha"

Black did treat Chaco, his left-handed rope horse. He mostly did nuthin' so Chaco got well in spite of him.

It's not a bad life out here in rough country. We spend alot of quality time keepin' the birds off the bird feeder, barkin' at the coyotes and javelina or just trackin' ol Bax around the place. Talk about a migrating lungworm, he's got unfinished projects scattered from the water trap to the sand pile. Never gets anything finished. Right now he's replanting some Bougainvillea in front of his shop. Poor fool. Oh, well. It'll only take me five minutes to dig'em up again.

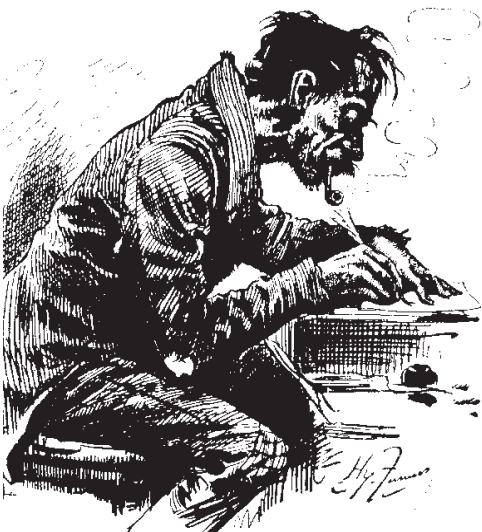

That's it for now. Vaya con huesos,
Pancho Villa and Hattie

The governors of western states, at a meeting in Phoenix, "launched a broadside against environmentalists" for their constant lawsuits aimed at obstructing proper forest management. Arizona Governor Jane Hull blasted know-nothing Easterners, saying; "the policies that are coming from the East Coast, that are coming from the environmentalists, that say we don't need to log, we don't need to thin our forests are absolutely ridiculous. Nobody on the East Coast knows how to manage these fires, and I, for one, have had it." Sandy Bahr, Sierra Club spokeswoman, claims the governors are all wet and has urged the U.S. Forest Service to stop subsidizing logging and instead invest in fire prevention through thinning the forests near communities. "There is no way to avoid fire in the forest," said Bahr. John Horning of Forest Guardians said; "It's predictable but also irresponsible to lay the blame of 100 years of fire suppression and logging and overgrazing at the feet of the environmental community." He then criticized people who build homes in fire-prone areas saying: "[T]here are some places where people just shouldn't be building homes." But Forest Guardians admit they would support forest thinning so long as it does not benefit commercial loggers and is done with solar-powered chainsaws. Have you noticed there has not been one word of concern expressed from the media or environmentalists about the loss of habitat and life of the forest creatures that these hypocritical groups claim to defend?

Summary Judgement

Wrong-headedness, not head cases, kills forests

By William Perry Pendley,
President, Mountain States Legal Foundation

When the Hayman Fire, the largest wildfire in Colorado history, first began, the smoke billowed over my office in southwestern Denver. Outside, I could smell the fumes from flames fifty miles away. Worst yet, I could see the ash in the air!†The night before, as my wife and I stood on our deck in the foothills west of†Denver, we had smelled smoke and feared that a fire was nearby. It wasn't; what†we smelled were the beginnings of the Coal Seam Fire some 110 miles west in†Glenwood Springs. A few days later, when I called a sheep rancher in Bayfield, I†was told he had gone to protect his flock; the Missionary Ridge Fire was out of control near his grazing allotment. Then, one of my attorneys was summoned home; the Hayman Fire was wildly out of control, moving much too fast toward Denver's southwestern suburbs.

My attorney was not the only one trying to figure out what he should load into his car if the reverse 911 system rang his phone and he heard the recorded†message every westerner fears: "GET OUT!" Today the most frequent topic of conversation in the rural west is what to take and what to leave behind if and†when the fires come. Storage facilities anywhere near timber country are quickly†filling up as home owners realize that all that they value will not fit in their cars, fully loaded with gas and backed into their garages or up their driveways.

Westerners are doing something else. The hills are alive with the sounds of chain†saws as landowners cut away low lying branches and fell dead trees and the roar†of mowers as owners cut bone dry native grasses. Those with trucks are loading†them with raked up pine cones, needles, and the other slash that usually dots the†landscape and hauling them off to county collection points. Those without trucks†or friends from whom to borrow them are bagging up the debris and stacking the porcupine-looking bundles at their front gates.

There is some great irony in what these homeowners are doing. Because, for years and years, their neighbors have refused to do what everyone knows must be done to limit the destructive force of wildfires. No, it is not their human neighbors who have failed to perform this essential task; it is their federal government neighbors, that is land management agencies like the National Park Service, the U.S. Forest Service, and the Bureau of Land Management.

But the federal agencies have had help. As one Forest Service official said amidst the national disaster that is Arizona's wildfires, "It only takes one person with a†stamp to throw a wrench into the works [of thinning the forest]." So, armed with hundreds of millions of dollars in annual donations, environmental groups have bought stamps and lawyers to file appeals and lawsuits to halt the pursuit of forest health on our nation's public lands. Remarkably, the environmental groups that have prevented the type of prudent forestry practices that would enhance, if not ensure, forest health disclaim responsibility. As one environmental group representative testified recently before Congress, "Hey man, it's not us, it's the†weather!"

There is nothing we can do about the head cases who light fires, like the sad soul who started the Hayman Fire, the sicko who lit more than 15 fires along U.S. 285 south of Denver, or the slack-jawed idiots who keep tossing cigarettes or torching campfires despite warning signs every half mile and acrid smoke billowing overhead. But we can do something about the wrong-headedness that creates as national policy a point of view that wildfires are†"nature's way" and the proper prescription for western forests. That may sound dreamily sensible in a Starbucks in Washington, D.C., but from where I sit amidst the burning forests of Colorado, it is not just insane, it is inhumane.

Accuracy in media

Bad news for the war on terrorism

by Notra Trulock

Al Qaeda won a major battle in the war on terrorism recently. Not on the battlefield but in Washington, where politicians often squander the hard-earned victories of U.S. forces. The defeat received only cursory attention from the media, which is surprising given its appetite for second-guessing any administration once U.S. troops are committed abroad.

The "defeat" stems from the sudden resignation of Army General (ret.) Wayne A. Downing as President Bush's Deputy National Security Advisor for Counter-terrorism. Downing brought years of experience fighting terrorism and a reputation for candor with him when he joined the administration after the September 11 tragedy. His replacement, Air Force General (ret.) John Gordon, comes out of the strategic missile forces, lacks hands-on experience in fighting terrorism, and is a "political general."

Downing rose through the ranks to become the commander of the U.S. Special Operations Command (SOCCOM); he served two combat tours in Vietnam and ran special operations during the Gulf War. Downing was highly respected by his men at SOCCOM; young officers enthusiastically recounted Downing jumping out of airplanes with them or joining their morning runs. After his retirement, he ran an assessment of command mistakes prior to the 1996 Khobar Towers terrorist attack in Saudi Arabia. Downing's report blew the lid off the Air Force's coverup of the failure of the local commander to heed intelligence warnings and beef up security for his men. Nineteen Air Force enlisted men were killed in that attack.

When he came to the White House, the press reported that Downing would "break some china" pushing his initiatives to win the war on terrorism. At the White House announcement of his appointment, Downing said that Americans needed to understand that this war is "going to be a long fight." So why did he suddenly resign? Bush administration spokesmen claim that the general had completed his assignments and was returning to private life. That explanation rings hollow. Are we so well along in defeating terrorism that the President could dispense with Downing's advice and assistance? If so, why does the administration regularly warn the American public of ever more insidious domestic terrorist threats? We have vanquished the Taliban, but if media reports are to be believed al Qaeda is regrouping in Pakistan and elsewhere readying more terrorist attacks on America.

The more likely reason for Downing to leave was his frustration with the White House and President Bush's national security apparatus. The New York Times cited a number of reasons for his departure, including the administration's unwillingness to follow his plan for disposing of Saddam Hussein. The Times reported that he was particularly disgusted with the "begrudging response" from the FBI to his request for intelligence support and with CIA's resistance to some of his counter-terrorism initiatives. Obviously, Downing is not a "yes man" and likely became increasingly marginalized by political operators at the CIA, the FBI and in the White House.

General John A. Gordon will present no such challenge to authority. Gordon earned his stars in a series of political jobs inside the Beltway during the first Bush and then Clinton administration. He is an arms control expert, but his last military position was as George Tenet's CIA Deputy. Gordon's CIA role was to provide intelligence support to Sandy Berger, Clinton's National Security Advisor. Tenet once said of Gordon, "Berger likes him, Gordon tells them what they want to hear." Not exactly a ringing endorsement.

But it gets worse. Gordon retired to become the first chief of the Energy Department's National Nuclear Security Administration, set up in the aftermath of the Department's nuclear espionage scandals. Gordon's tenure at Energy did little to improve Energy's security posture; in fact, he became part of the problem with his defense of the status quo. Recently, one of his Air Force colleagues, a retired major general, resigned in disgust from Gordon's administration. He wrote a scathing e-mail, circulated within the department, criticizing Gordon for his indecisiveness and refusal to make needed reforms. The reforms were bitterly opposed by the labs and their sponsors on Capitol Hill and Gordon apparently had no appetite for rocking the boat.

Historian Eliot A. Cohen has recently published a book entitled Strategic Command, which describes how four great statesmen selected and managed their wartime generals and cabinets. He writes, "It is an easy thing for a politician to find docile, second-rate subordinates who will serve him loyally; it is a far more impressive achievement to mold fractious, ambitious, even disloyal but first-rate subordinates into a winning team." Will someone please send Cohen's book to President Bush...quickly.
