Drug lab explodes, woman burned extensively

Busted

Owyhee County Chief Deputy Dick Freund and Sgt. Jim Bish prepare Marsing resident Trent Mitchell before he is transported to a local hospital.

Trent Mitchell charged with assault and four counts of felony child endangerment.

A Marsing woman was seriously injured and her husband was taken to jail when a meth lab exploded in their home Thursday morning. The woman's four children and her husband were home at the time of the explosion, but her children were unharmed.

The Marsing Fire Department was dispatched to the home on 1st Street South at approximately 7:45 a.m. for a structure fire. Fire fighters entered the home and contained the blaze as local EMTs prepared Shelley Gwen Mitchell, 28, for transport to a waiting air ambulance. Fire fighters discovered the lab and some became slightly ill from the fumes. They were treated at the scene for possible contamination of the drug.

Owyhee Initiative proposal nearing completion

A proposal to resolve land use conflicts in Owyhee County is nearing completion, according to Fred Grant, counsel and coordinator of the group.

The work group has been meeting to attempt to resolve the conflicts over management and designations of use areas of federal lands within the county for over two years now, and it appears a solution is near.

The group, comprised of a dozen members representing a diversified cross-section of interests, ranging from environmentalists, ranchers, sportsmen and recreationists, has reached an unofficial draft of settlements, to which nine of the ten voting members seem to agree. However, it's still too early to say it's a "done deal", since membership has not formally endorsed it yet.

County officials formed the group shortly after President Bill Clinton left office. The county escaped having millions of acres locked up as wilderness by an-almost stroke of the pen. The papers authorizing millions of acres as wilderness was on Clinton's desk minutes before he left office, but was not signed. To keep the proposal from being made at some future date, the commissioners took positive action to reach some reasonable compromise and present it to congress. Hence the Initiative group was formed.

The goal of the Owyhee Initiative has been set as:

"To develop and implement a landscape-scale program in Owyhee County that preserves the natural processes that create and maintain a functioning unfragmented landscape supporting and sustaining a flourishing community of Human, plant and animal life, that provides for economically stability by preserving livestock grazing as an economically viable use, and that provides for protection of cultural resources."

The group is comprised of the following: Cindy Bachman, rancher; Lou Lunte, Nature Conservancy; Inez Jaca, rancher; Crag Gehrke, Wilderness Society; Sandra Mitchell, Idaho Snowmobile Association; Grant Simonds, Idaho Outfitters and Guides; Roger Singer, Sierra Club; Ted Hoffman, Owyhee Borderlands Trust; John McCarthy Idaho Conservation League; Chad Gibson, Owyhee Cattlemen's Association; Bruce Wong, U.S. Air Force; and as a non-voting member, Howard Hedrick, BLM.

Homecoming days to be held in Grand View this weekend

Grand View volunteers have spent most of the year planning the city's biggest fundraising event and this weekend it will all come together for the annual "Homecoming Days" celebration sponsored by the Grand View Chamber of Commerce.

Homecoming Days is put together entirely by volunteers and is one of the ways many of the non-profit organizations earn money. The event will begin Friday night and will run through Sunday morning with a huge variety of activities planned through out the weekend.

The volunteer fire department will host a pit barbecue at Lions Park on Friday beginning at 6 p.m. Exhibits will be on display at the school and participants can sign-up for Saturday's free events.

On Saturday morning, the annual parade will kick off the day's events with lineup for the parade at 9 a.m. at the Legion Hall. The parade will begin at 10 a.m. and a community water fight will immediately follow the parade. Coordinators said participants of the water fight will need to bring "water weapons" and refill barrels will be provided.

The free events begin in the park and on the stage at noon with a melon seed spitting contest, rocket race, bubble blowing contest, butterfly contest, pie eating contest, three-legged race, sack race, water balloon toss and many other activities.

Participants will need to sign-in for the softball tournament, mud volleyball tournament, three on three-hoop shoot, pass, punt and kick contest, and for the tug of war. Times and places of the events will be posted.

Vendors will be available for the Boise Avenue Market Place on Main Street and will feature a wide variety of collectibles.

A hole in one golf contest will be held near Main Street over the Snake River. The first person who can hit a golf ball with a golf club into a bucket placed over the river will be the winner of a $5,000 prize. Coordinators said the event has become a favorite among avid golfers and those who have never swung a club.

Pie, cake, and ice cream will be served at the Rimrock Senior Citizens Center and the Senior

The scene
A stove and the wall of a kitchen in a home in Marsing were brunt when a meth lab exploded, seriously injuring a woman. Shelly Mitchell and her husband Trent Mitchell were in the home with their four small children. Mitchell is in critical condition in a Utah burn center and her husband was arrested. The children were uninjured in the incident.

percent of her body. She was transported to a Boise hospital by air ambulance, and later transferred to a burn unit in a hospital in Salt Lake City, Utah. Her husband, Trent Mitchell, 32, was taken to Mercy Medical Center in Nampa where he was admitted into the intensive care unit for smoke inhalation. He was released and then taken to the county jail on Friday morning where he was charged with assault and four counts of felony child endangerment. Chief Deputy Dick Freund said Friday that drug charges are pending. The couple's four boys – 3-month old twins, a three-year old and a four year old – were placed in imminent danger and turned over to the Department of Health and Welfare. Freund said the boys were taken to a local hospital where they were decontaminated and checked for injuries. He said the boys were later released to family members. “Mercy Medical Center was just wonderful,” Freund said. “They knew what to do and they did it. They treated the kids and the family with the utmost respect. They had social workers waiting, nurses and people coming down to see the kids.”

Taking precautions

Four children were in the home when an apparent meth lab exploded injuring Shelley Mitchell. The children and the firemen involved were unharmed in the fire.

Freund said a small quantity of meth was found in the home as well as the chemicals and necessary paraphernalia normally used in methamphetamine production. He said someone was definitely manufacturing meth when the explosion happened. “We have not been able to get any information on Shelley,” Freund said. “Depending on her condition, drug charges are pending.”

The sheriff's office, volunteer firefighters, EMTs, posse members, and detectives from the Idaho State Police and the HAZMAT team spent most of the day at the house near the community center cleaning up. Sheriff Gary Aman said when Shelley was found, it looked as though she had been standing over the lab when it exploded.

“She is pretty seriously hurt,” Aman said. “It is a very sad situation. Those four kids will pay the highest price for the mistakes of their parents.” Freund said another man was in the home at the time of, or right before, the explosion. But he fled the scene in Trent's pickup truck before officers arrived. Dennis Bernard of Caldwell had been located late Thursday and detained for questioning. He said Bernard had not been arrested, but an investigation is continuing. Trent was also charged with assault on a police officer for commanding his pit bull dog to attack officers as they were arresting Trent.

Engineer reports on city water projects

The City of Homedale will build its new water reservoir on property located within the city's impact area, Homedale City Engineer and City Public Works Bob Walker told the council last week.

"The good news on the reservoir is that in reviewing the City of Homedale Impact Area as defined by Judge Stephen Drescher on Oct. 9, 1996, the new reservoir site is within the City's area of impact and consequently site approval is under the control of the city," Walker told the council. "Even though this is under our control, I still recommend that we work with the neighbors on landscaping and color issues. We have not heard anything from the neighbors or Rick Kushlan on this subject since the council meeting that was attended by the neighbors in early June."

The old reservoir has been decaying over the years and frequently leaks. The city is funding the project as part of an EPA grant for all phases of the water system including the new well in Canyon County.

The grant was approved for $456,989 and the city has exceeded that amount with a match of $473,500. Homedale City Clerk Pam Dugger said bids for the reservoir would be announced at the end of August.

Walker continued to tell the council that he met with the Gem Irrigation District to request approval for discharging any emergency overflow from the new reservoir into the Patch Canal. He said the irrigation district rejected the proposal.

"We will now have to discharge into Succor Creek and have a couple of options available to do this," Walker told the council. "The best option appears to be the utilization of an existing six inch PVC pipe installed by Marion Vance from the intersection of State Highway 19 and the Patch Canal southeasterly under the highway to Succor Creek. We should know if this is feasible by next week."

Teen killed in ATV accident

A teenage girl from Omaha, Nebraska was killed in an ATV accident on South Mountain Road near Jordan Valley Saturday afternoon.

Megan Scott, 15, was a passenger on the ATV behind her friend Melissa Mesenbrink, 16, also from Omaha who was driving the vehicle when she took a corner too fast and lost control of the vehicle. A spokesperson from the sheriff's office said the call for help came in at approximately 12:58 p.m., but the accident happened at about noon.

"The girls were apparently visiting Melissa's father who lives in the area," a dispatcher said Monday. "The vehicle went off of the road and flipped over in a creek. Megan was pinned under the vehicle."

The dispatcher said Melissa walked nearly a quarter of a mile before she could find someone to assist her and Megan.

"A man and a woman went back to the scene and Jordan Valley ambulance was dispatched to the scene," the spokesman explained.

Coroner Harvey Grimme said neither girl was wearing a helmet, adding that a helmet could have made the difference.

"She died from head injuries received from the accident," Grimme said. "A helmet would have helped depending on the helmet. If it was just a top helmet it would not have helped, but if she had been wearing a full helmet, I am sure it would have helped."

Melissa was treated for her injuries and released.

Joint Committee raises irrigation allotments

South Board of Control Manager Rex Barrie said Wednesday that the Joint Committee for irrigation re-evaluated the reservoir storage levels and voted to increase the irrigation allotment to 2.75-acre feet per acre.

In April, the committee allowed 1.3-acre feet per acre, but raised the allotment to 1.8 when the season began later in April. In May the committee again raised the allotment to 2.2-acre feet per acre.

Marsing all-class picnic planned

The Marsing school's annual alumni potluck picnic will be held at the Marsing City Park at 1 p.m. on August 3.

Alumni are asked to bring a table service an lawn chairs. For more information call Venet Larsen at 455-4490.

Councilman reports on courtroom remodeling

Homedale Councilman Kevin Barlow told the council during a meeting last month that the remodeling of the district courtroom in Homedale would cost approximately 35 to 40 thousand dollars in which the county planned to share half of the expense with the city. But after last week's council meeting, the city may be half of its half short.

Barlow has been working with County Commissioner Hal Tolmie in the preliminary plans to remodel the courtroom, an effort that has been in the works for several years.

In 2001, the county commissioners met with a member of the city council and approved giving the city $15,000 for the remodel. It was stipulated at the time that the city would be required to submit an itemized cost list to the commissioners within 120 days or the board would withdraw its offer. Thursday County Clerk Charlotte Sherburn said nothing had ever been submitted. Sherburn said Friday that she could not find any minutes that the commissioners had voted again to give the city money for the remodeling.

Tolmie and Barlow have been working together since April to gather information on the cost of remodeling the courtroom and Tolmie told the council that the county would pay of the cost for the renovation but during last week's council meeting, City Clerk Pam Dugger told the council that only $7,500 was tentatively budgeted for the 2003-2004 fiscal year to cover the renovation.

"With the agreed upon line item cuts, I was able to balance the fund with a $19,103 contingency, leave in the Marque at $4,000, set aside $7,500 toward the courtroom should you decide you want to proceed, fund the library request for $6,000, parks for $18,000 and irrigation with $2,500," Dugger told the council Wednesday. "All changes requested were made to the police department. General fund is balanced with built in room for emergencies."

Missing persons system added to sheriff's office

Sharing information about a missing or wanted person will be a little easier in the future since a new "Locator" system was added to the county law enforcement office last week.

Locator, also known as the "Lost Child Alert Technology Resource" is a template-based software application used to enable individual law enforcement agencies to instantly create many different types of posters for immediate distribution. It also allows officers to e-mail the posters to any law enforcement agency in the world and to the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children.

Owyhee County Sheriff Gary Aman said the system nearly needed to be used for the first time over the 4th of July weekend when a child reported that a man had tried to abduct her from the CJ Strike area. The child was able to escape from the scene. Aman said since adding the system to his department, searching for lost or abducted children, or adults, will be easier.

"On Saturday we had a 12 year old little girl walking to the bathrooms near Black Sands at Strike and she said a man in a van told her to get in his van," Aman said. "She told them 'no' and started running. We sent out an attempt to locate throughout the state of Idaho and several vehicles matching the description were stopped but no one stopped was found to be the right person."

Chief Deputy Dick Freund, who handles most of the child abduction cases for the county, said Monday that the system will be a huge help in cases on which he works.

The officer scans a photograph of the missing or wanted person and develops a poster with information about the person. The program automatically sends a copy of every missing child poster to the Missing Children Clearinghouse in the state. The user may then send the poster to agencies he selects through e-mail or to any receivable device such as a pager or cellular phone. The receiving agency can then download the poster and print it for their area.

Council to hold town meeting on sewer bond election

Members of the Marsing City Council will hold a town meeting to give residents an opportunity to voice their support or concerns over an additional sewer bond election the city will hold in August. Due to a mistake in expense amounts, a bond passed in the city last year did not raise enough funds to upgrade the sewer system and an additional bond will need to be passed to improve its deteriorating lagoon system.

The town hall meeting will be held at the Marsing Community Center at 7 p.m. on Monday and engineers, council persons and the city's attorney will be on hand to explain exactly what the city intends to do.

A letter from the city will be sent to residents in the city and says the project consists of four main components; rehabilitation and reline the sanitary sewer lagoons, install a new sanitary sewer lift station, clean, inventory and evaluate the condition of the existing sewer pipe and install new aerators in the lagoons.

"In summary, the approximate funding available to the City of Marsing to complete the project was $325,000," the letter states.

Two qualified bids were received to complete the construction items in the amount of $520,303.86 and $444,265.78. Well above the original bond. The council states in its letter that the reason for the funding shortfall is due to "low initial estimate of costs to complete the construction, the initial estimate was made in 1998 and fuel and insurance costs are now substantially higher and because the disposal of the sludge waste from the lagoons was not figured into the original 325K estimate."

The city will ask voters to pass a $324,000 bond to be able to complete the project, which equates to an average increase of about $4.15 per month based on amount of usage. About 40 percent of the increase will be a "cost increase attributed to higher system expenses and would be incorporated into the basic sewer rate independent of the rehabilitation project." The rest of the increase at about $2.50 per month will be used to service the bond debt.

"While no one likes to raise rates for basic services, these repairs need to be completed to allow the City of Marsing to continue to effectively treat the sewage, and not exceed the discharge limits established by the EPA," the letter continues. "In the event the City of Marsing is prohibited from discharging into the Snake River in the future, all of the repairs and work done under this project will help facilitate the transition to a different type of sewage treatment, like land application."

The bond election is scheduled for August 5.

Homedale man arrested in hotel raid

A multi-agency raid ended with three arrests and took several ounces of methamphetamine and several guns off the streets of Meridian.

Kristian Castro, 27 of Homedale was reportedly selling meth from a hotel room in Meridian last week. During the raid, according to sources, two of Castro’s “buddies” arrived at the room and they were arrested as well.

Owyhee County Deputy Jim Bish said Friday that Hector Rodriquez and David Mendoza, both of Caldwell were also arrested and found to have several ounces of meth, large quantities of money and guns.

“Castro was selling drugs out of a hotel in Meridian,” Bish said. “He was confronted there and arrested with about an eight ball of meth and $3,000 in cash. He had an associate that arrived and was taken into custody as well with a quarter pound of meth, and a 9mm handgun. A third guy arrived and he was detained. He had just over a ounce of meth, a small amount of marijuana and $1,100 in cash. He was also found with a 22 caliber handgun.”

Bish said Castro has been a “person of interest” for several years and a search of his grandmother’s home in Homedale had been conducted last year. Castro was not found at that time.

The men are being held at the Ada County Jail while drug related charges are pending.

Kenneth J. Rowland was born on the family ranch in Recluse, Wyoming Jan 10, 1921, a son with six siblings of Mae and Peter Rowland. Fine art and buckaroo gear opens at Jordan Valley museum

The first Fine Art and Buckaroo-gear Show, sponsored and promoted by Jordan Valley-Owyhee Heritage Council (JVOHC) has opened, through July 31, 2003 in unique format, in a renovated store front on Iturri Boulevard in Jordan Valley, OR. The recently renewed building beside J.V. Club and Caf  has become "Jordan Valley-Owyhee County now and then Museum and Gallery."

The current art and gear collection is showcased in brightly-lighted window/shadow boxes, seven days a week, twenty-four hours a day, for easy viewing by occupants of some 2,000 vehicles passing by the building daily.

This initial show, in what is to become a series of shows throughout the year, includes bronze sculptures by Carl F. Hammond, (Burns, OR); saddles/buckaroo-gear by Skeeter Clark, (Jordan Valley, OR); photography by Pam White, (Jordan Valley, OR), W.T. Bruce, (Homedale, ID), and Marie Clayton, (Jordan Valley, OR); buckaroo chinks and chaps by Mark Gage, (Jordan Valley, OR); oil and pastel paintings of Joan E. Daynes, (Jordan Valley, OR); braided rawhide by Dan Fowler, (Crane, OR); horsehair mecates by Frankie Dougal, (Jordan Valley, OR) and Helen Hammond, (Burns, OR); watercolor paintings and drawings by Daryl Reed, (Homedale, ID); silver and buckaroo gear by Leon Gage, (Jordan Valley, OR).

Spokesperson Linda Davies Gage explains, "These fine-art and buckaroo-gear shows are intended to serve dual purposes: To display and sell quality fine art and gear on behalf of the artists and gear-makers, and to offer a visual treat and cultural edification for visitors to the 'Jordan Valley-Owyhee now and then Museum and Gallery.' Our aim is to provide increased exposure for the art and gear, and to better inform the general public as to the quality and variety of fine art and folk art available in the Great Basin."

Gage described the variety of items highlighted in this show, hand-engraved buckaroo-style silver bits and spurs sparkling beside oil and pastel paintings; humorous drawings and watercolor paintings hanging above finely-braided rawhide bosals, reins and romals; hand-twisted horse-hair mecates sharing easels with photographic fine art images; bronze sculptures and hand-crafted buckaroo chinks vying for visual dominance of the spaces."

Report to the Owyhee County Commissioners on Status of Owyhee Initiative

By Fred Grant

The Work Group is nearing completion of a proposal which it can present to you as suggested means for reaching the goals you set for resolving land use conflicts in the County in order to protect the economic stability of the County and preserve the health of the natural resources of the County. The Group should be able to present a package which meets your goals, so that you can make a presentation to Senator Crapo by Fall.

The resolution of the long standing land use conflicts involves settlement. And, settlement means that neither side of the issues gets everything it wants. Each side must give some in order to gain the elements important to their interest. The ranching interests seek such settlement, through the Initiative, in order to protect against repeated lawsuits in which hundreds of thousands of dollars are wasted, and in order to prevent continued arbitrary grazing restrictions which threaten continued ranching operations.

In recent weeks, vocal opponents of the Initiative effort have stepped up their activities. Most of that opposition comes from the anti-grazing forces who oppose all livestock grazing on federal lands. The stepped up efforts by the supporters of Jon Marvel and Katie Fite make it appear that the Work Group is reaching conclusions favorable to the County and its ranching communities.

When you announced the Initiative, the County had just barely escaped the simple presidential pen strokes which would have converted over half the County into a national monument which would severely limit all use of the natural resources on millions of acres. Management of such monument would have been totally within the control of the BLM, with no congressional involvement. Over 68 ranching families in the Owyhee Resource Area faced grazing restrictions from arbitrary BLM terms and conditions which threatened their ability to continue in business. Ranchers in the Grandview-Bruneau area faced development of a Resource Management Plan which would form the base for the same restrictive type management. All ranchers involved with the Wilderness Study Areas were hamstrung by the BLM policy which prevented range improvements necessary for the health of the resource and for the economic health of the ranching families.

The members of the Work Group representing ranchers, landowners and the County—Chad Gibson, Inez Jaca, Cindy Bachman, Ted Hoffman, Brenda Richards and Frank Bachman—have set several objectives as necessary to resolve the issues in favor of ranchers and the economy of the County. They are: (1) establishment of an objective review of proposed BLM decisions by natural resource experts before the release of such decisions; (2) release of all wilderness study areas not designated as wilderness to multiple uses; (3) establishment of an inventory of management practices needed by the ranchers affected by wilderness designation so that those practices can be protected by Congress; (4) establishment of a research center which can provide and coordinate research regarding status of species so that decisions for listings and protection are not made for political reasons in the absence of reliable research; and (5) management of off road vehicles to prevent further destruction such as has occurred at Heminway Butte.

As to all those objectives, at least 9 of the 10 voting members are in support of concepts which would provide what the landowners and County need. As to some of the objectives, all 10 have expressed support for the necessary concepts.

The part of the settlement which favors the conservation groups is the designation of wilderness in critical landscape areas and the research center which would promote continued projects for protecting the health of the natural resources in the county. Recreation users are concerned about public access to traditional hunting and fishing and camping areas in the wilderness designations. The Work

Group is in the final stages of the process of assuring critical access points. Motorized recreation users are interested in developing maintenance and other trail programs to provide quality recreation opportunities in areas where use of motorized vehicles is lawful. A subcommittee of the Work is in the final stages of developing a recreation management portion of the package.

The near unanimous position on concepts at this point indicates that a successful settlement of conflicts is near. That the tentatively developed package provides protection for the key elements needed by all but one of the members of the Work Group.

As to the first objective specified, the objective review of BLM decisions prior to their issuance, 9 of the voting members, and at times all 10, have supported the concept. Details as to the drafting of this objective as well as others are still being worked out. But, it appears that agreement will be soon reached on a concept which calls for establishment of a panel of qualified experts in natural resource management. If a rancher, or any person interested in a grazing decision, requests an objective review of an expected BLM decision, three members of that panel will be selected to conduct a review to determine whether the BLM has used sound scientific evidence and techniques in reaching its decision. If the BLM does not follow the recommendation of the panel of experts, the expert recommendation becomes part of any administrative appeal record which is reviewed by the administrative judge. Currently, discussions are underway with the University of Idaho for participation in the selection process of experts.

The Work Group members are currently involved in trying to determine how the objective review process could be used with regard to other multiple uses which are not governed by the grazing regulations.

As to the second objective, all members support release back to multiple use management of those wilderness study areas not designated for wilderness. The question now being resolved is the nature of the release language which should be recommended. One concept of language appears to have the support of 9 members at this point. By that language Congress would simply say that there has been enough study, and the wilderness study areas not designated are released for multiple use management.

As to the third objective, a cross section of conservation and landowner representatives have met with the ranchers who would be affected by wilderness designations to determine what management activities would be necessary to continue the viability of their use of wilderness areas for grazing. The inventory is still being worked on, and methods of assuring that the necessary activities will be protected are being researched.

As to the fourth objective, the concept of the research center is assured, and details as to its operation are being worked on.

As to the fifth objective, some elements of a management plan have been tentatively agreed to: limiting off road vehicles to lawful trails, providing adequate management and signing of trails, and providing for enforcement of the management program. It appears that there is also tentative agreement on some form of financial assistance to the Sheriff to provide for search and rescue costs which are now borne by the county's taxpayers, and to provide for enforcement through a contractual cooperation agreement between the Sheriff and the BLM.

The near unanimity of the Work Group on these points of critical interest to the County and landowners demonstrates that the Group has walked an important middle road necessary if conflicts are to be resolved.

As to the detractors. Some say there is "too much wilderness" being considered. But, as to such detractors, I recommend that you ask "too much" as compared to what. As compared to the millions of acres which would have been set aside in a monument designation, and which could again be set aside in a future administration if the Initiative does not become law? As compared to the fact that the acres currently projected as wilderness designation represent areas in which the ranchers and landowners involved prefer wilderness and congressional protection of economic interests in the wilderness to the arbitrary management by the BLM which now exists in those areas? Other than the wilderness originally proposed by the Owyhee Cattleman's Association, and now accepted by the motorized vehicle representative, the only other acres which are being discussed are those in which landowners have voluntarily entered into the discussions. Is it "too much" for motorized vehicles, when they cannot lawfully be operated in the areas now, and when the designation will mean the release of wilderness study areas for multiple uses including recreation?

One of the anti-grazing detractors has been quoted as saying that the proposal now under discussion gives the County too much control. The proposal as it now stands provides for local government participation in all future land use decisions, and that is exactly what Congress has mandated in the Federal Policy and Management Act.

Another complaint by the anti-grazing interests is that the process has been "secret", not open to the public. Every meeting of the Work Group has been an open, public meeting. Every meeting of the subcommittees has been open. Some of the detractors have attended some meetings, but have not shown the stamina to hang in there with the members of the Work Group who have spent literally hundreds of hours in meetings, working out settlement agreements. The Subcommittees have reached out to other organizations and individuals to involve them in discussing issues of access points, the necessity of grazing management activities, and other issues related directly to resolve the conflicts which have existed for two decades. One individual from the motorized recreation groups, Dick Trudeau, has been invaluable in assisting the identification of critical access areas.

I believe that the package which is nearing completion will provide you with a proposal which will assure against future attempts to create a monument, locking up most of the County, will assure that there will be an objective means for reviewing arbitrariness on the part of BLM personnel, will assure a well defined recreation presence in the County, will provide assistance to the Sheriff in law enforcement efforts, and will serve well protection of the traditional ranching economy of the County.

Williams is winner at track meet

Homedale’s Colleen Williams won the 100 and 400 meter hurdle events Saturday, while Den Stagmeyer of Twin Falls and James Jackson of Cedar City, Utah set stadium records to top the Utah-Idaho A-A-U Junior Olympics track meet in Twin Falls.

Williams’ wins, in 15.1 and 70.4 seconds respectively, came in her first competition since sustaining a hair stress fracture in her leg last spring. The injury cost Williams, considered to be Idaho’s fastest woman hurdler, a chance to defend her two-time state title in the 110 meter hurdles.

County-wide support urged for highway bond issue here

Senator Adam “Ted” Blackstock and Wm. Weldon, the president of the Chamber of Commerce of Marsing, have made a statement urging Owyhee county residents to support the bond issue proposal to construct and oil 82 miles of the county road between Marsing and Indian Cove.

Mr. Blackstock said the “present day economy depends on good roads to get produce to market. This is our one chance to get a road that will put our farmers and stockmen on an equal basis with other communities.”

Mr. Weldon states, “I feel the proposed hiway from Marsing to Indian Cove would be a very worthwhile undertaking in that it would bring the people and business of our county closer together.”

The proposed highway would cost in the neighborhood of $1,350,000 and would be paid for by matching monies with state and federal funds, $800,000 of which is presently available for this project. The bond issue proposes that the county be bonded in the amount of $500,000 to construct this road.

Homedale Chamber of Commerce backs bond issue

The Homedale Chamber of Commerce had a dinner meeting Tuesday evening at 7:30 at the Tango Club. During the business session, the Marsing-Indian Cove highway bond issue was discussed and the Chamber went on record as being in favor of the issue. The chamber of commerce urges all voters to back the issue and vote it in.

To help the people know and understand the road issue, a meeting, open to the public, will be held at a time and place to be announced in next week’s issue of The Chronicle. At that time the road and its construction will be discussed in full by members of the Owyhee county commissioners and engineers from the State Highway Department.

BPW backs hiway bond issue

The Business and Professional Women’s Club has agreed unanimously in favor of the Marsing-Indian Cove Highway, to be voted on at the coming bond election, July 28th. President Dee Basabe urges everyone to vote at the bond election, because, she says, “Homedale and its surrounding community will greatly benefit from this project.” She further urges, in behalf of the club, all the women to vote in the election, not just the professional women alone.

New teacher for fall term

Edward B. Russell has been added to the Homedale teaching staff for the coming year. Mr. Russell received his masters degree from the University of Idaho and has had seven years teaching experience. He will teach the 8th grade and coach junior high athletics. Mr. Russell is married and has two daughters. His wife teaches at Caldwell junior high and they will make their home in Caldwell.

Nampa defeats Homedale 3-0

Homedale suffered its 3rd loss in Border League play Tuesday night at the hands of the Nampa Clippers, despite the fact that Homedale made 4 double plays. Nampa scored their first score in the 5th inning on a double by Johnson and a single by Haines. Two more runs were scored in the 8th inning when Thomas was hit by a pitched ball. Weigle doubled and Peppy singled.

FISHING. Our community is seized with a fishing mania at present. Trout fishing is rare sport. Some go to Reynolds Creek, some to Trout Creek, some to the Lakes on Cow Creek and some to the brooks beyond Flint. We had some notion of going to the latter place, but it’s no use now, we couldn’t get a bite, for the reason that Jack McQuaid, Bill Gabriel and Dave Jackson bought up all the fishing tackle in town and went out there with a pack train yesterday and they wont leave a fish. Let us have a fish law passed next Legislature providing against such indiscriminate fish slaughter.

SAMUEL LOCKHART, whose demise we announce this morning died from the effects of a bullet wound received in his left arm on Apr. 1st, at the time Marion More was killed and others wounded. Mr. Lockhart’s arm was amputated and strong hopes of his recovery were entertained, but always having been accustomed to an active outdoor life, confinement in bed caused rheumatism to set in and after suffering much pain he departed this life on Monday morning last.

DRUGS. Jos. A. Rupert is just receiving the largest and best selected stock of drugs and medicines ever brought into Idaho Territory. Also, all kinds of chemicals for quartz-mills, wallpaper of various kinds, paints, oils, and c. If you want anything kept by druggists anywhere, call on Rupert.

THE PAUPER. Work has been resumed on the Pauper. The shaft has been cleared of the water which had accumulated by the melting of the snows. The Pauper is a promising mine and we understand will be thoroughly prospected this Summer.

A COZY ROOM, with neat side bar and other fixing, has been fitted up next door below Miner’s Hotel office, for the accommodation of those who want a nice cigar or refreshing beverage. This office acknowledges the receipt of favors.

SHOOTING GALLERY. Big Mick has his shooting gallery in operation now. Call in and see if you can hit the center, it is pleasant pastime.

THE ORO FINO. The Oro Fino steam hoisting works recently put in operation on the mine work splendidly. The shafts and drifts were all filled with water, which would be got rid of last evening. Joe Low, an able and experienced mining superintendent from Virginia, Nev., has taken charge of the mine. We understand that a large force of laborers will be put to work immediately to take out ore.

JACOB WESTENFEILDTER died yesterday morning from the effects of wounds received in the shooting affray between himself and Andy Schrader on the evening of the 6th. As far as we can learn Schrader was justifiable.

THE WEATHER during the past week has been changeable, some days hot and sultry and others cold enough for an overcoat.

COMING. Quite a number of large trains passed through town during the week. Hawkins and Bro’s ox-train, loaded for Owyhee, Dan Rathburn and others. Dan’s mule teams were loaded with the hoisting-works and steam pumps for the War Eagle Tunnel Company in Owyhee. Our roads are in good condition.

CAUGHT. Rufus Swett, whom we mentioned last week as having killed Dr. Gray at Marysville, California, and for whom $750 reward was offered, has since been arrested.

Vinaigrette: when oil and vinegar mix

Dear Betty,
I hear a lot about vinaigrette, but I’m not sure what it is. Can you help?
Melvin, Ill.

Oil and vinegar do mix, to create vinaigrette. It’s one of the simplest salad dressings, just oil, vinegar, salt and pepper and maybe a pinch of dry mustard or chopped herbs.

To make a basic vinaigrette, combine two parts oil with one part vinegar, a dash of salt and pepper and a dollop of Dijon or a little dry mustard in a small covered container. Make sure the cover is on tight then shake until the ingredients are blended. Voila, vinaigrette!

But that’s just for starters. Play around with these basic ingredients to make a sweet, mild dressing for fresh fruit salad or a rich, zesty marinade for pork chops. Try using different:

Oils-olive, walnut or sesame. Vinegars-balsamic, raspberry, tarragon, red or whit wine or seasoned rice. Seasonings-garlic, chili powder or cumin; fresh or dried herbs such as thyme, rosemary, tarragon or basil; celery, poppy or sesame seeds; prepared mustards from Dijon to honey to German; finely chopped green onions; a dash of sugar for sweetness or a spoonful of horseradish for zest. Fruits-a squeeze of lemon, lime or grapefruit juice adds a touch of tartness, while a puree of raspberries, blackberries or strawberries creates a sweet vinaigrette for marinades or fruit salad.

Drizzle vinaigrette over mixed greens or pasta salad, grilled vegetables or sliced boiled potatoes, fruit wedges or garden-fresh tomato slices. Use some of it as a marinade for grilling and the rest as a sauce for the cooked meat.

Oil and vinegar do mix, but just for a while. You’ll have to shake the container of dressing to keep the ingredients mixed.

Dear Betty,
What’s the difference between cider vinegar and white vinegar?
Douglas, Ga.

The difference is all in the basic ingredients. Golden-brown cider vinegar is made from fermented apple cider and has a tangy, fruity taste. White vinegar is distilled from a grain-alcohol mixture and is slightly harsher tasting. Although the flavors are a little different, you can use them interchangeably in recipes.

But there’s a whole host of other vinegars as well: balsamic, an Italian vinegar ages in barrels; red or whit wine vinegars; rice wine vinegar made from fermented rice and perfect for Asian dishes; and berry, herbed and pepper vinegars. All add distinctive flavor and punch to your salad dressings, sauces and marinades.

Kenny Harper from Shoo-Fly won the event.

The club also met on June 29th at the fairgrounds to paint the outside wall and bleachers. It was the club's community service project. A barbecue followed.

County granted emergency haying and grazing rights

Twenty Idaho counties have been granted emergency haying and grazing rights on land designated under the Conservation Reserve Program.

The program gives a yearly rental payment and cost sharing to farmers and ranchers who plant permanent vegetation on highly erodible land.

The vegetation — meant to stem soil erosion — can be used for haying or grazing as long as it is under contract. Contracts can run from ten to 15 years.

Bannock, Bingham, Lincoln, Blaine, Bonneville, Bear Lake, Caribou, Cassia, Jefferson, Clark, Franklin, Fremont, Jerome, Lemhi, North Custer, Minidoka, Oneida, Owyhee, Teton and Twin Falls counties are part of the emergency announcement.

Haying is authorized from until October first. Grazing is authorized until December first. Officials announced the emergency rights on Tuesday.

You can bet your boots ...

You can bet your boots that if a private citizen made a proposal to do what the city is doing, the application would be denied without hesitation. The city is putting a 65-foot high tank in a residential subdivision. At its most recent meeting, the Homedale City Council was told the city will build its new water tower on ground within the city impact area, and that's good news, the report says, because the site approval is under control of the city.

Homedale needs a new water storage facility. For years we've been told of dangers to water shortages, and fears that existing wells were apt to fail. The latter has happened. The city bought several acres of land in Canyon County, drilled a new well, and ran water lines to the city. We are told we now have an adequate source of water.

Now, what we need is a new storage reservoir. The old tank is decaying, and leaks. (Remember the debate with the experts when they built the wooden tank? Recall, if you will, all the promise the wooden tank would last about half of eternity? So much for the experts' opinions.)

I've heard no one arguing that we don't need a new tank. The issue is where to locate it. More exactly, the right to locate it where the city wants it.

The chosen site is within the city impact area. It is on a lot the city itself has zoned residential. Obviously, the city can apply to the planning and zoning commission for a Special Use Permit. But it certainly appears the city fathers do not plan to do so. We've been told the council thinks they're exempt from the zoning restrictions. They're not, under the law. The city could have exempted utilities within its ordinance, but it wasn't done. Contary to the belief of some, state law does not exempt "utilities" from zoning ordinances.

The city must jump through the hoops of a Special Use Permit just like anyone else. But even then, it must comply with the standards it has imposed on the rest of us subjects.

For instance, the permit would be subject to adequate evidence showing that such use will be designed and constructed to be harmonious and appropriate in appearance with the existing or intended character of the general vicinity... and that it will not result in loss of scenic features.

A special use permit cannot be granted without meeting these criteria. That's right out of the city's own law.

It seems that a 35-foot diameter tank, 65 feet tall, would not be harmonious and appropriate with the residential character of the subdivision, or the subdivision adjacent to it. And such a huge tank would surely interfere with the scenic features of the lots adjacent and near it.

So, hang on to your bootstraps. One shouldn't expect a council that reappoints planning and zoning commissioners who are not eligible to serve, to bother with a minor technicality as its own zoning laws.

Law effective July 1...

The state legislature passed a new law this past session which requires the publication of information on sexual predators. The law went into effect July 1.

The law requires the sheriff publish, for three consecutive weeks, "the name, address, photograph of said person and offense the offender has committed..."

This law is not retroactive. It does not apply to offenders who committed the offense prior to July 1.

Consequently, we will not be publishing the list of prior offenders.

Pet guardians

San Francisco recently joined Boulder, CO, Hollywood, CA, Berkeley, CA and a few other helium-rich communities by outlawing ownership of pets. No, you can still have pets, you just can't own them. These cities proclaim that pets are not property, owners are now considered pet guardians.

The first word that came to my mind is LAWYERS! I can see them lining up now: "Your honor, my client Spot is suing his guardian, Mr. Jones, for cruel and unusual punishment. Once a year he is placed in a portable pet container and hauled to the veterinarian to have his anal glands expressed. It is humiliating, done without his permission and results in the post expression blues. "Expert testimony will be furnished by Daffy Duck and a renowned pet psychic who will translate for both. We are asking for a year's supply of Kibbles and Duck Chow for pain and suffering and $250,000 in expert and legal fees."

Who should be entitled to decide if a pet, wait a minute...maybe even the word pet should be outlawed, as well, in lieu of companion, sidekick, rug peer, couch scratcher, hair shedder, leg hu...the word pet implies that the guardian is superior to the animal. As I was saying, who should be entitled to decide if Fluffy or Fido has reason to sue. How 'bout the PPP...Pet Protection Police! They would be like social workers except they could arrest the two-legged perpetrator.

Maybe the American Bar Association could actually oversee the PPP. Landmark cases might include: La Ronette de Fluffey vs. Guardian - Poodle sues to prevent poofy hairdos. Luther vs. Guardian - Bloodhound sues for itching due to loose skin. Miss Kitty vs. Berkley - Class-action suit against city for perpetuation of the canine species.

This trend of expanding unreality could lead to laws like the Freedom for Vegetables Act, where permission of the plant must be attained before consumption, or laws that grant anti-moving rights to furniture,†or prohibition of the use of animal names for sports teams, constellations and/or vehicles, jet planes, or streets, i.e., "Navajo tribal member Sam Roanhorse, bullpen backup for Philadelphia Eagles, 1220 Via Coyote, Deerfield, New Hampshire, was arrested for pointing out Pisces while driving his Dodge Ram and simultaneously wearing a salmon-colored sweater, poodle skirt and pigtails. He is being sued by the city of Tofuland, (formerly Foxburro), for violating multiple counts of the animal nomenclature act. He is currently trying to weasel his way out of it."

It's possible he may, where there's a loon and a lawyer, there's a way.

Decreasing invasive species may increase invasive government

by Joseph A. D'Agostino

Human Events columnist Property rights activists are worried that a renewed push to combat non-native “invasive species” could end up granting massive new powers over private land to the federal government.

“This could expand the federal government’s power far beyond what the Endangered Species Act has done,” said R.J. Smith, director of the Center for Private Conservation. “Few people have endangered species on their land. Almost everyone has non-native species.” Smith and other pro-private-property activists are keeping an eye on the Interior Department as it works on a major invasive species control proposal. Smith said environmentalists are trying to use the legitimate problems raised by some non-native species to generate a movement for comprehensive, ESA-like legislation that would empower federal bureaucrats to eradicate whatever non-native species they deemed harmful. “The problem is, none of our people are on the invasive species committees and councils [of the government],” said Smith. “They are all environmentalists. And the radical environmentalists want to eliminate all non-native species from the country. They want to go back to 1492. Some of them want to eliminate state-to-state transfer of species.” Non-native species range from benign plants such as most lawn grasses to true pests such as the snakehead.

On April 23, Congress passed a bill to combat nutria, a rat-like aquatic creature. The Noxious Weed Control Act (S 144), supported by Western ranchers, recently passed the Senate. The House is considering a companion bill. “The definitions of ‘weed’ and ‘harmful’ in these bills is too vague,” said Smith. “Who decides what is a weed?” He said the bills should be amended include compensation for property owners who lose money due to government action. “I am very concerned about the property rights implications of pending legislation addressing so-called ‘invasive species,’” Senate Environment Chairman James Inhofe (R.-Okla.) told HUMAN EVENTS. “First, we should examine existing regulatory authority over this issue to determine how it’s being enforced. Second, bills of this scope and volume deserve close scrutiny because they can easily spiral into a regulatory morass. As the dysfunctional Endangered Species Act has shown, Congress should be very wary of how legislation on invasive species is drafted.”

“In 1973, when the Endangered Species Act was passed, it was viewed as innocuous,” said Ray Arnett, an asparagus farmer in Stockton, Calif., who served as assistant secretary of Interior under President Reagan. “They wanted to save the bald eagle.” “Today, the Endangered Species Act has nothing to do with endangered species,” said Fred Grau, a Pennsylvania farmer who grows a non-native species used in farming corn on hilly land. “It has to do with control of the land and the people.”

A reporter’s view

by Cheryl Beeson

Last week I received several phone calls from parents informing me that I had printed the wrong picture of the girls’ 11-12 year old softball champions for the City of Homedale summer rec. program. After some investigation I have come to the conclusion that the only mistake I made was that I did not have a complete picture of the championship team.

On June 21 the championship playoff game was held at Sundance Park in Homedale. Homedale’s “B” team entered the championship play-off after working their way through six games on the final day and found themselves face to face with the opposing team, Homedale’s “A” team.

Most of the girls on both teams have grown up together, played together, and gone to school together. They know each other’s families, attend churches together and shared gossip of boys together. In the future they will compete on the same teams together and from speaking with the coaches, they are predicted to be an “amazing” team together.

After speaking with the recreation director of the city, coaches of the teams, the city clerk and a few of the girls on the teams, the problem started during the tournament before the final championship game even started.

“The time was getting late. It was nearly nine o’clock before we could even start,” one person told me. “No one knew who would win. Both teams worked very hard to get where they were and both teams are champions in my eyes.”

The final game started and the “B” team, the home team, spent the first four innings down by six runs. But as fate would have it, during the fourth inning, the home team climbed to a 9-7 lead. After a lengthy discussion between the umpires, the coaches and the rec. director, the game was called due to darkness at 9:45 p.m.

The official game rules from the American Softball Association (ASA) state: “when, in sole discretion of the umpire, rain, darkness or another uncontrollable circumstance makes it impossible to play a ‘regulation game,’ and that game has met one of the following criteria to be considered an ‘official game’ it will not be rescheduled if: five innings have been played or four and one-half innings if the home team has scored more runs than their opponents have scored in five innings.”

Homedale’s recreation director confirmed that the city does follow the rules and regulations of the ASA, which would have put the “B” team as the championship team. But those involved said that they had been informed by City Clerk Pam Dugger that in fact, the two teams would have to play the final two innings during the following Tuesday. Neither side can state exactly why an additional game needed to be played. Dugger concluded that since the “B” team did not show up for the continued game, they lost by forfeit.

In my mind and in the minds of many of the parents, coaches and kids involved in the misunderstanding, both teams are champions. Both teams received a trophy. Both teams worked exceptionally hard to make it to the championship game.

The only ones disputing the final game are a few of the parents and the city clerk. Parents who know that their child was a champion the day that they were born.

Don’t let these girls – who will continue to play together in high school sports and on the playgrounds of our community – be pitted against each other to see who is the number one child. They all are.

Champs

This year’s girls’ Snake River softball tournament champs are Homedale’s “A” Team. Backrow, Jeff Lindbloom, Micheal Mckenzie, Haylie FreeLove, Terra Rust, Sierra Abasturi, Katie Lindbloom and Kendall Rupp. Middle row, Chelsea Troxell, Meghan Quintanna, Evelyn Williams and Ashley Tomson. Front row, Ashli Kessler and Cortney Kriznek. Lindbloom coached the team, which won the tournament held at Sundance Park on June 20 and 21st in Homedale.

Champs

This year’s girls’ Snake River softball tournament champs are Homedale “B” Team, Kortney Bahem, Taryn Corta, Angie Cuellar, Samantha Cuellar, Jessica Eubanks, Hannah Gibson, Corey Hall, Kelsey Martinat, Daisy Prado, Eirka Shanley, Kortney Stansell, Carmen Zatica and Jessica Tuttle (not pictured). Shannon and Toby Johnson coached the team, which won the tournament held at Sundance Park on June 20 and 21st in Homedale.

OWYHEE COUNTY RESOLUTION NO. 03-07

WHEREAS by previous directive, the Board has required a review of building permit applications by other departments, and

WHEREAS some of the individual fire districts within the County have adopted procedures which require that access roads to new building sites must be approved by the fire district prior to the commencement of construction and it is also a standard condition imposed upon conditional use permits that the access roads be approved by the local fire district in writing prior to the issuance of a building permit, and

WHEREAS the life of the electrical and plumbing permits issued by the State of Idaho are of such short duration that the requirement of producing those permits with the building permit application places a burden of the applicant because of the costs which be incurred should the State permit expire prior to completion of construction, thus forcing the applicant to pay another fee to the renewal of the State permit,

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that upon the adopting of this Resolution, a procedure for the required documentation and issuance of building permit applications is established as follows:

1. After the receipt of a complete building permit application, a review period of up to seven (7) business days can be used for the purpose of review by the appropriate departments or agencies.
2. Approval of access road dimensions, surface and turn around space must be provided in writing by the fire district in which the building will be constructed prior to the issuance of a building permit.
3. Electrical and plumbing permits must be provided prior to the issuance of a Certificate of Occupancy.

RESOLUTION NO. 03-08 BEFORE THE OWYHEE COUNTY BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS

The Owyhee County Farm Service Agency County Committee requested that the Board of Owyhee County Commissioners consider requesting that the Governor issue a Declaration of Drought Disaster for the County;

In that request, the FSA County Committee pointed out that ranchers are already hauling water because stock ponds in the spring and summer pastures are dry. The Board is aware that water will have to be hauled, and forage losses from lack of irrigation water will required purchase of feed, all of which will severely impact the economic stability of the ranchers and the County. The FSA County Committee also pointed out that those producers dependent upon Owyhee Reservoir for irrigation water are expecting to receive only 50 percent of their normal water allotment. Producers have not planted sugar beets, corn and potatoes because of the water demands of such crops. Economic loss is already being felt, and will become greater.

The Board sent the request to the County's Natural Resources Committee for consideration, and that Committee has endorsed the request;

Good cause appearing, It is hereby resolved that the Board of Owyhee County Commissioners request that Governor Dirk Kempthorne issue a Declaration of Drought Disaster for Owyhee County, and that the United States Department of Agriculture furnish assistance as allowed by law.

OWYHEE COUNTY RESOLUTION NO. 03-10

On July 7, 2003, the Board of Owyhee County Commissioners considered facts and information regarding the continued utility of the public easement, executed between Charles Sewell and Owyhee County and filed on January 25th, 1954 in Book 45 of Deeds page 44 at the Owyhee County Courthouse (hereafter referred to as the easement), which was intended to provide for public use of the Riddle Airport.

In its discussion, the Board determined that the airport has been in such a deteriorated condition for a period of at least twenty years that it has not been useable by the general public.
