Patrons demand answers to school board decisions

Closed door meeting called illegal

Approximately 75 people attended a special meeting of the Homedale School District Thursday night, but most left with no answers to questions they were demanding from the board of trustees. Events of the meeting are now being called illegal by reporters who were removed from the proceedings.

The gathering was called as an executive session meeting after students wrote a letter to the board protesting the non-re-issuance of boys' varsity basketball coach Randy Potter's contract in May. The decision stripped Potter of his final coaching position after his contract as athletic director was not re-issued earlier this year, but most are still unsure if he is the athletic director, or if he is not.

Potter came up against the board in November when they moved to not reissue his athletic director contract, a position he has held for 10 years. In December, the board rescinded the decision if Potter resigned which he did in January. But the board took no action on his resignation.

The consensus in the room when the meeting began was that every person attending would be allowed to remain in the executive session, except members of the press. Board Chairman Benita Miller called the meeting to order at 7 p.m. and asked for a motion to go into executive session. After a unanimous vote, Miller declared the meeting in executive session and requested the door to the room be closed and the session sign be placed on the door. Upon noticing the reporter from The Owyhee Avalanche, she requested the media leave the room.

"You make me sit in the front and I am the only one who has to leave," the reporter commented while leaving the room.

"Sorry about that," Miller responded.

Shortly after the Avalanche reporter removed herself from the meeting, the entire group of patrons also filed out including a reporter from The Idaho Press

Coaching staff dwindles as two more resign

Homedale is on the search this summer for about 18 coaching positions, which have become vacant in the school district from non-re-issued contracts and resignations. During a special meeting of the board of trustees, Tim Fullwood resigned his position as junior varsity basketball coach and another resignation will be addressed later this month as track coach Troy Sullivan calls it quits.

As of Friday, on the varsity teams, eight coaching positions out of 14 total positions are vacant. The district needs a boys' basketball coach, a girls' basketball coach, a golf coach, volleyball coach, track coach, cross country

Pocatello man swims 12 miles to safety on Sheep Creek

A Pocatello man is safe at home this week after being rescued from the mouth of Sheep Creek at the confluence of the Bruneau River. John Looze, 62 and his long time kayaking partner Jeff Doerr, 33 also of Pocatello, were whitewater rafting. Looze in a canoe and Doerr in a kayak, were floating Sheep Creek when Looze's canoe sank.

Looze and Doerr set out for a weekend of floating on Sunday of Memorial Day weekend. The pair put in at Mary's Creek and planned to run the creek to the Bruneau River. The section is 19.3 miles long and the American Whitewater Association says it is considered to be a class II-V+ stretch of white water. But Looze and Doerr are both experienced floaters and Looze said where he lost control was a "no brainer."

"It was a no brainer, little thing," Looze said from home Thursday. "Sheep Creek is a difficult creek, I know that. I have talked to people who have run it. It was pretty much what was expected. It was beautiful as I expected. The cliffs were magnificent."

Looze said he and Doerr floated most of the day Sunday, and Monday morning they set off just below Mary's Creek and headed for the Bruneau River. He said that is when the trip turned for the worse.

"There was a place where the creek was about 30 feet wide," Looze explained. "It was straight up on either side just like someone had taken a chainsaw and cut it out in the rocks. Some rocks had fallen in and formed a ledge. On the right side of the ledge there was a chute. It was no big deal. I hit the shoot and a little current came from the left and pushed my bow into the cliff wall and a hunk of cliff caught my bow. It was long enough to swing my stern around and fall into that slot. I stayed on it and stood up and tried to push the stern down and it would not go down. The current caught it and it just filled up like a bucket."

Looze said Doerr got caught in the chute much the same as Looze did, but his rounded bow did not get caught. Looze lost his canoe and all of his equipment but he was able to obtain a floatation airbag

Rescued

John Looze of Pocatello smiles after being rescued by helicopter at the confluence of Sheep Creek and the Bruneau River last week as he sits behind Owyhee County special deputy Mark Jarratt. Looze lost his canoe and all of his gear while floating the creek on Monday and swam 12 miles in the creek before rescuers could be called for help.

Early pioneer remembered during Memorial Day gathering

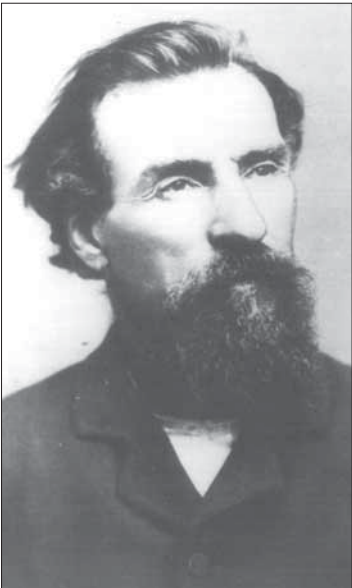

by Laurie Boston

A piece of history was recalled as over fifty members of Charles Christopher Johnston’s extended family gathered together at the Reynolds Creek Cemetery, on May 29, to celebrate the life of this early Owyhee County pioneer.

Although, Charles died in 1916, his grave was never marked with a head stone. Nick Ihli of the Owyhee Pioneer Cemetery District, approached Kenny and Betty Johnston Jessen of Nampa, great-grandchildren of Charles, and encouraged them to rectify this oversight. Kenny and Betty then recruited Craig and Sandy Curtis, also great-grandchildren, to assist in coordinating the project. Together, contributions were collected from four living grand children and 13 great-grandchildren, and headstones were purchased for Charles and two of his grandchildren that were placed to rest next to him.

Surrounding the new headstone, family members encompassing four generations, honored the memory of Charles with a brief reflection of his life. In festive commemoration, Whitney Uria, his great-great-great granddaughter, captured the spirit of times gone by, with several lively musical selections, played on Charles’ very own violin that has been preserved and kept by family members through the years.

Charles C. Johnston was born in Monroe County, Illinois, February 19, 1830. He and his family crossed the plains to California in a caravan in 1852. In 1863, he left California by horseback and joined a wagon train, headed for Idaho, and eventually, to Silver City, where he was an engineer in the mines. In 1869 he located his ranch in the Reynolds Creek area, where he resided until his death at age 86. He is recognized as one of the first sheep men in Owyhee County. In 1875, he sold his sheep to Robert Noble, another early pioneer. Charles treasured the violin and found much pleasure from playing it. Until 1905, he played for many dances in the mining camps of Silver City and for many other dances in Idaho. He was also a charter member of the Masonic Lodge in Silver City, Cyrus #2. He and his wife, Caroline Peters Johnston, raised five children.

According to his obituary printed in the January 14, 1916 Owyhee Avalanche, “He lived an honorable, upright life, and endeared himself to all who knew him by his kind and loving disposition. Always thoughtful of others, he had a helping hand for friends and spoke ill of no one.”

Family members said that by revisiting Charles C. Johnston’s life, it is apparent that one man can have an impact. “As a steadfast and hardworking man, Charles C. Johnston laid a solid and moral foundation for his offspring to follow and provided a lasting legacy and a rich family heritage, seven generations strong.”

Boise teen steals 100-plus year old headstones

A Boise teen is expected to be summonsed into court for stealing two early day headstones and two footstones from the Pioneer Cemetery in Bruneau. One of the headstones is over 100 years old.

Owyhee County Chief Deputy Dick Freund said the sheriff’s office received a report on May 24 that Boise Police Department had recovered some headstones that were stolen from the cemetery. Deputy Daryl Crandall found that several headstones had been desecrated and some had been stolen.

Boise Police Communications Director Lynn Hightower said the teen is a 16 year-old Borah High School student. She said Boise Police received a tip that the young man had headstones in the back of his pickup. She said the school’s resource officer searched the pickup at Borah High School and found the headstones as well as drug paraphernalia. Hightower said the young man admitted to stealing the stones.

“I am to understand that the headstone taken was from an infant’s grave,” Hightower said. “Basically the young man told us that he and four other students were on a camping trip at C.J. Strike Reservoir. They said that the incident was just a prank.

“Apparently he and some friends went into the cemetery and broke off some headstones and took a couple with them,” Freund said. “We have not issued a summons yet, but he will probably be summonsed into court for grand theft as well as malicious destruction of private property.”

Hightower said she understood that the case may also involve federal authorities because the site is considered historical. Sheriff Gary Aman could not be reached last week for comment as he was out of the county.

Hightower said Boise Police has charged the young man with possession of drug paraphernalia and the theft has been turned over to the Owyhee County Sheriff’s Office.

JV pair charged with neglect of two-year-old child

Two Jordan Valley women are accused of several charges in the neglect of a two-year-old child under their care. Malheur County Under Sheriff Brian Wolfe said Michelle McClanahan, 20 and Dawn Watson, 43 were arrested on May 18 and charged with several counts of assault, criminal mistreatment, first and second degree, child neglect, second degree and recklessly endangering another. A 17-year-old male was also cited with assault in connection with the case several weeks prior to Watson and McClanahan being arrested.

"It started with the young man calling 911 because his mother had kicked him out of the home in Jordan Valley," Wolfe said. "We received a call from him because he had no other place to go, but the things he told us led us to issuing warrants for Watson and McClanahan."

Wolfe said when officers responded to the call, it was discovered from the young man that he had been assaulting a two year-old baby who was living in the home.

"The Department of Human Services was called and with a deputy, they determined that several different assaults had taken place," Wolfe said. "There was evidence of several different assaults on the baby. The investigation continued for several weeks, and the baby was removed from the home. The biological mother was not living in the home and the baby is now in protective custody. The investigation led us to believe that Watson and McClanahan, if not taken part in different assaults or mistreatment, they for sure had knowledge of the male juvenile doing it to the baby and they did not take appropriate steps to prevent that."

Wolfe said the juvenile male is under house arrest and McClanahan and Watson have been released on their own recognizance. He said they would appear again in court on June 16.

School Board appoints Turner's replacement

The Bruneau-Grand View School Board appointed a new member last week who will replace recently recalled trustee Russ Turner. Stacey Buckingham from Bruneau was sworn into office during a regular meeting.

Buckingham was among three candidates for the zone I trustee seat. Sid Erwin, former Owyhee County Planning and Zoning commissioner and Erwin's son Russ Erwin also spoke to the board as possibilities.

In a letter submitted to the board, Buckingham said he had attended Bruneau Elementary School for six years and graduated from Rimrock Senior High School in 1986. He said his experiences as a child and a young adult in the Bruneau-Grand View School District was a positive experience. He said he wanted to serve as a trustee to represent the people, his community, school and the impacts they have on children.

"I will listen to what the people and children have to say, keep the business as simple as possible and treat people in a respectful and professional way," Buckingham said.

Buckingham told the board that after he graduated high school, he moved to Southern California for six years. He said he worked building custom homes for nearly two years and for a grading and paving company. He said he started his career shoveling dirt off curbs and gutters and ended by managing the entire grading operation and overseeing as many as 25 employees and completing about $8 million each year in contracts.

"Since moving home 15 years ago, I have started a successful construction company that is based in Bruneau," Buckingham continued. "I am a member of the Bruneau Water Board, and a member of the volunteer fire department. As a family, we support and attend many community functions. My wife Kelli and I have two children in the school district and another entering in a few years. The education and the well being of our children is our top priority."

Buckingham was nominated by trustee Dixie Black.

Meeting

Tribune. Now editors from the Tribune are saying that their attorney agrees that either all of the public is excluded, or all of the public is included.

But most of the people attending were obviously angry about the decision. Nearly every person this reporter spoke to agreed that they would have been allowed to remain in the executive session if the board's decision had not been questioned.

"She (Miller) asked the reporter from the Tribune who he was," patron Susan Vanderhoff said while waiting out the nearly three hour executive session. "If he had not said anything, we would have all been able to stay in there. Yes it upsets me. They are listening to the statements of a kid who is home schooled and were going to hear from a kid who isn't even in our district."

Many people reported that two athletes from the "pro" side and two from the "con" side of the Potter issue were allowed to testify in the secret meeting. Newly hired Superintendent Tim Rosandick, newly elected trustee Kevin Miyasako, the board, Superintendent Bob Lisonbee and Assistant District Clerk Faith Olsen were also allowed to remain in the meeting.

Last month, the board did not reissue Potter's contract as coach. This decision comes on the heels of the board removing, and then rescinding a decision to not renew, Potter's athletic director contract. Potter also teaches business education and his teaching contract remains intact at this time. But as most attending reported, removing Potter as a teacher is much more difficult then removing him as a coach.

Now patrons want to know why Potter has not been re-contracted and also why so many other coaches are leaving and are not having their contracts reissued.

"We just want to know why and they keep telling us they can not talk about personnel issues," Vanderhoff, whose husband and son were chosen to speak to the board on the "pro" Potter side, said. "We read in the papers about the city clerk who has been accused of things she has done and exactly what she is accused of doing, but we as parents can not be told why a coach is not good enough to be an athletic director or to coach our children in a sport he has coached for so many years. Why is Randy's is so secret that no one can know about it? It does not make sense."

Potter, after being notified that his athletic director contract was not going to be reissued, requested a public hearing appealing the decision stating he would not submit to an executive session hearing. Potter has stated that his request was denied by the board. Last week, he was notified by letter that his basketball contract was not re-issued because he does not have "a positive relationship with the board."

"They are letting an athlete who does not even attend our school represent the negative side of this," Vanderhoff said. "He is home schooled, does not attend our school, but he is allowed to voice an opinion about our school."

Brett Hopkins was allowed to stay in the meeting until patrons told the board that the young man had transferred to a Caldwell school and no longer attended Homedale High. They also stated that Hopkins does not even live in the district. The board removed Hopkins from the meeting.

"We are here to support Randy," Vanderhoff said. "We feel it is wrong. Totally wrong what they are doing. They have not given us a reason. We only know that they have removed him as coach, which has totally ruined the summer program. My son is saying he won't even play now. They have just totally ruined the whole team."

"If they give us a reason, we might be able to accept that," one man who requested to remain anonymous stated. "But they won't even consider telling us why. How do you replace 17 positions? How can they hire coaches when there are no teaching positions to go with them?"

"What is so secretive that they cannot give us a reason?" Vanderhoff said. "Has he hurt a child? Did he dress wrong one day? Did he part his hair wrong one day? Give us a reason. We are these children's parents. Tell us what he has done."

Lisonbee said following the meeting that a decision would not be made until Potter had a chance to request an informal hearing, a request Potter made but was denied after losing his AD contract. Potter said he would again request a hearing but said again he would not agree to an executive session meeting with the board. He said if the decision was left to him, the meeting would be aired in the public.

"These people are here to support me," Potter said. "About 95 percent of the community is supporting me. They and I deserve to know what is going on."

coach, tennis coach and athletic director. District Assistant Clerk Faith Olsen said last week that the assistant coaches contracts were technically expired in May, but the coaches are paid through the end of the year. She said that as of Friday, none of the assistant coaching contracts have been re-issued by the board of trustees.

Basketball coach and athletic director Randy Potter's contracts were not re-issued, girls basketball coach Mark Weekes resigned earlier this year, golf coach Michael Williams will not be returning, volleyball coach Jim Smyth's contract was not re-issued and Smyth said he has no plans to return as the tennis coach. Track and cross country coach Troy Sullivan plans to resign during June's board meeting stating another job opportunity will take him to Caldwell. Olsen said Sullivan has not officially resigned, but he sent The Owyhee Avalanche an e-mail stating that he will be leaving the positions as well as his teaching position.

"I will be leaving HHS this spring and teaching and coaching in Caldwell," Sullivan wrote. "Thanks for your coverage of our kids over the years. I leave with many memories of great kids and people. I greatly appreciate the support I have received from people for the past 21 years. It was a privilege to work for the Homedale School District."

On the district's web site, a notice of vacancies states that the district is seeking a primary teacher, a high school counselor, a high school English and math teacher and several coaching positions.

Smyth did not hold a teaching position at the school, but has taught tennis for 19 years. He served as head volleyball coach for three years. Smyth's daughter Kelly was the assistant coach with her father on both teams.

from his canoe and floated on it through much of the rest of the trip, which was mostly swimming.

"In some places it was shallow and I could walk, some places I could swim and in some I could walk the bank," Looze said. "In some places Jeff could even pull me down stream. Some places I could put my feet down and give us a push, but mostly I had to drag my feet to steer myself."

Looze said the incident is not the first time he has had a close call, he said several years ago he had to climb out of a creek with all of his gear. Looze said this trip is the first time he has lost his boat.

"I have a spare and I can outfit it, but I don't know," Looze said. "I am supposed to go on a trip next week, but I don't know if I will make that trip or not."

Looze said he only suffered bruises in the incident, but he jokingly said his ego was shattered.

"I have bruises from top to bottom," Looze said Wednesday. "Something that seemed so easy turned into a nightmare. Guess you can never tell."

Freund said Doerr left Looze at the confluence of Sheep Creek and kayaked to the take out on the Bruneau River where his vehicle was parked. He then drove to Mountain Home to call for help. Crew Concepts Inc. was contacted and a helicopter was sent to help. Special Deputy Mark Jarratt was picked up in Murphy and the team flew to the GPS coordinates provided by Doerr. Looze was located, retrieved and returned to Murphy safely.

As for Sheep Creek and Owyhee County, Looze said he plans to be back. He said he rates the creek as a four with two class five rapids. He said the section he lost his canoe in he would classify as a class three rapid.

"I can't thank Jeff enough," Looze continued. "It is an honor to float with him. If it weren't for Jeff it would have been a much rougher trip. The sheriff's office was awesome to me. I was amazed at the pilot and how he maneuvered that helicopter in to get me. The deputy seemed a bit concerned that I took a canoe on it, but they were very professional and good to me."

Looze said he encountered several rattlesnakes along his trip. He said he is grateful for the effort everyone put into helping him.

The American White Water Association says that Mary's Creek, to Sheep Creek is a stretch of whitewater with medium difficulty. They estimate that this part of the river is good for those with some whitewater experience.

A memorial will be put for her in the old Jarbidge cemetery. ## Jordan Valley FFA Chapter update

by Nickie Naegle

On May 19th, 20th and 21st all of the members from both FFA and 4-H who are taking sheep to the Malheur County Fair, met at Jordan Valley, Ontario, Adrian and Vale to tag and weigh their projects. Megan Mackenzie, Annie Mackenzie, Elisa Eiguren, Annie Eiguren, Kaine Baptist, Jacob Rothgeb and Nickie Naegle each tagged a project.

On Saturday May 21st the Jordan Valley FFA chapter hosted their annual Rodeo breakfast. Members attending said business was fast and steady from the time the griddles were hot.

“After we took out money for expenses, we made enough from the breakfast to support our travel fund for the summer and fall FFA events we will be attending,” members said.

Upcoming summer events for the chapter include FFA leadership camp in Cove on the 9th and 10th of June, Officers retreat and the Malheur County Fair the first week in August.

“It would not have been possible for the chapter to do so well if we hadn’t had the help of the hungry people of the rodeo, the supporters of the chapter in Jordan Valley and everyone who helped.”

Outpost Days raises over $20,000 for museum activities

The Owyhee County Historical Society and members of the county museum raised over $20,000, before expenses, during last weekend's annual Outpost Days in Murphy. Records were broken in most every activity including attendance and the annual auction.

Coordinator Debra Lindner said Monday that the groups are ecstatic about the preliminary totals.

The quilt, called the Owyhee Round-Up, was created, hand quilted and donated by Charlene Doyle of Murphy Hot Springs. A man from Meridian won it. Over $3,300 was raised in ticket sales.

Tiana Lutz of Guffy won this year's annual horney toad race on Sunday afternoon. She won with toad Prudence.

Over $7,000 was raised in the auction, which Lindner said was also record breaking. An afghan made by Charlene Nettleton was sold to Jim McGill for $375 and donated it back to the auction to be sold again. Bob O'Malley then purchased the afghan $275 and also donated it back to be sold a third time. McGill again purchased the afghan for $300 and presented it to O'Malley as a gift. A Murphy Valley Church birdhouse made by Leta Hoagland sold for $650. Two prime rib dinners at the Blue Canoe sold for $200.

"It was fantastic," Lindner said. "It was beyond our expectations. We are so grateful for the turnout and the generous people who want to support the museum in our effort to finish the museum."

Open letter from new superintendent

On July 1, 2005, I will become the Homedale School District's new superintendent. On the eve of that event, I want to publicly thank the Homedale community for affording me the opportunity to serve the educational needs of your children.

Since my appointment in March, I have been made to feel very welcome and have been the recipient of many encouraging words and deeds. I am particularly grateful to your current superintendent, Mr. Bob Lisonbee. He has been most helpful in making my transition to Homedale a smooth one. I wish Bob an enjoyable and rewarding retirement.

Over the past several weeks I have had the opportunity to meet most of the Homedale administration, faculty and staff. I am impressed by their skills, enthusiasm and dedication. I look forward to working with this outstanding group of educators.

Because of the many affirmative experiences I have had thus far in Homedale, my resolve to have a positive impact on the lives of Homedale students and their families has been strengthened even further. However, my enthusiasm and excitement is tempered with this irrefutable reality: If I am to earn your continued support, I must get results.

And I know that I cannot do this alone.

High performing school districts, where kids excel in the classroom, in sports, and in the concert hall, do not become a reality through the work of one person. It takes the combined and unified efforts of the entire educational community—trustees, administrators, teachers, support personnel, parents, and students. For generations, members of the Homedale community have demonstrated their ability to be unified, to pull together, to roll up their shirtsleeves, and to work together for the benefit of their children. The most recent example of Homedale's willingness to invest in their children's education was the passage in May of a 10-year plant facility levy. Thank you, voters. You can be assured that the proceeds of this levy will be put in good and wise use so that your children have a first-class learning environment.

So, I am excited to be able to serve the Homedale community and I want to thank you for giving me this opportunity. I want to assure all of you that you will be proud of the school system that serves your children.

Tim Rosandick

Shame on you for assuming!

On June 1, 2005 a letter to the editor was written about the Homedale Park and Recreation Department and a certain U-12 coach hand picking his team. You say shame on the Homedale Park and Rec, we say shame on you for just assuming! One conversation with a board member may have given you some insight.

There were no prejudices or favoritism while the coaches made up their rosters for this year's season. The fact is the Homedale Park and Recreation Board had agreed prior to the season, to follow the same draft procedures as the Vallivue District.

In any age group a returning coach has first pick to keep any of his original players from his previous year. At that point, any new coach within the same age group is allowed to pick the same number of players, then they proceed to pick one at a time until their roster is full. For example, the returning 'Coach A' picks five of the players he had last year; 'Coach B' then will chooses five players. Now that each coach has five players they begin choosing a player one at a time. There was neither 'In-Group' nor a 'Rest of Us Group.'

It is unfortunate however, that there is teasing going on between Homedale's two U-12 girls teams and the Homedale Park and Recreation Department will have No Tolerance approach to this. As with any kids sports program you will have rivalries, but this disrespectful teasing will be brought to both coaches attention. The Homedale Park and Recreation Department's goal is to ensure all children involved have a fun and memorable season.

Susan Mansidor,
Homedale Park and Recreation, board secretary

Why not take time this summer to establish smart lifestyle habits your kids will have for life?

THE MORNING STAR MILL has kept up its regular lick for nearly three weeks on Oro Fino ore, with results entirely satisfactory to the Superintendent and Trustees. The Company is sinking a shaft down from the lower level to increase the facilities for mining. This shaft is down about twelve feet, and already shows ore yellow with gold. One piece of several pounds weight which recently came from the shaft is good to behold, and the fact that it is broken out of a mass and the gold so abundant in every part, is proof that the surrounding ore is equally valuable. A complete settlement of all accounts against the company will be made this month, and that without any assessment on the stock. Viewing the fact that the mill and mine had to be started up after over eight months idleness and the cost that is unavoidable in doing so, is the very best evidence that the managers are making a prosperous beginning. The condition of the mine is such that ore cannot be taken out to advantage until the new shaft reaches a depth sufficient to start new slopes. Parties abroad who have pronounced this mine a failure will be obliged to take back such assertions. The ledge is large and rich, and can and will be opened in a couple of months so as to enable the company to supply one hundred stamps. At least, there is all the proof in sight that can be desired by any reasonable man.

JORDAN STREET has been the scene of some curious amusement since last Saturday. There is a stable down there that will be better known to many hereafter than the one of Bethlehem, to which, by the aid of a star, several wise men were directed several years since. Mars has reigned over the stable on Jordan Street – two parties laying claim to it with shotguns. Through strategy and whisky the honors of possession have been easy – the parties enjoying it alternately between drinks. How long this dog-in-the-manger affair will last, it is impossible to say. Something amusing in the legal way has already occurred – in fact, some of the officers of the law have themselves been arrested among other things, and a Justice of the Peace interpreted the statute to a couple of lawyers about in this wise: Now, a person would naturally suppose that this section means something of that sort, &c., showing much positive learning and judgment; while attorneys likened each other and the Court to various things ridiculous. There was no Sheriff or Constable in attendance – the prisoner under arrest having searched high and low for the constable, who had lost himself and gone to sleep. The Police Courts of Owyhee sustain their reputation for originality, and, owing to a scarcity of other amusements, the community should feel thankful for incidents I like these.

THE CRICKETS may be expected about the next warm spell, so we are informed by men who are compelled to watch their coming. They has arrived to within a short distance of Lockwood’s Ranch, Jordan Valley, last week; the forces covered the ground about four miles in width, exclusive of skirmishers and rear guard. The ranchers were snuffing the battle not far off, but whether they can save their greens during the fight is the question.

Everything of general importance pertaining to crickets – their origin, life and social habits, should be made public. Contributions (enclosing stamps, &c.) addressed to Bilkus will receive special attention.

THE PUFF. On Tuesday last, as the workmen were engaged in shingling a house just being erected in Oro by Mr. Hill for a blacksmith shop, a server puff of wind came and blew it down with a terrible crash. There were four men at the time on the roof and two inside, but strange to say no one was seriously hurt. Mr. Hill has his wrist slightly sprained. One man who was on the roof said he remained there until it struck the ground and then quietly stepped off, while others in a greater hurry jumped off when it first started. Some horsemen who were fast approaching were the worst scared individuals ever seen in Oro.

FLINT. Mr. Black’s mill has been stopped some time on account of not having enough draft to his smoke stack. He has now about completed a wooden flue, running to the top of an adjacent hill, some two hundred feet in height, which it is believed will obviate the difficulty. The mill will be running again in a few days with better prospects of its continuing. Five new houses are under way in Oro and several business places in Owyhee. Gen. McQueen is preparing by ditching, grading &c., for extensive operation between the two places. The finest body of ore ever struck in the country is now being taken out of the Leviathan.

SHINGLES. The best quality of this article we have ever seen in the Territory, was shown us this week by Mr. R. H. Brown, of the firm of Abbott & Brown. They have just put in operation a new machine at the Reynolds Creek Sawmill, which turns out shingles perfectly smooth and of even thickness. They have plenty of timber free of knots and straight grained. Parties in want of shingle swill consult their own interests by calling on R. H. Brown in Silver City. They are also prepared to supply lumber of all dimensions on the most reasonable terms.

JUDGE WATSON’S cabin in Flint District, was sacked by Indians one night last week. The cabin is in plain view of many others, yet the bold depredators broke in and secured a six shooting rifle and some other property. The next day (we believe) about noon, a Spencer’s rifle and other traps were stolen from a cosplit while the men were gone to dinner a few roads away. The tracks were measured and fond to correspond with the length attributed to those of Bigfoot, and he is believed to have been there.

GOVERNMENT CONTRACTS at Camp Lyon and Three Forks of the Owyhee and C. F. Smith were let last week at very low figures. Grain is to be delivered at Camp Lyon for $5.19 per hundred pounds; hay $24 per ton, and wood at $9 per cord. We understand the contracts at Camp Smith for hay and grain rated lower, and the general belief is that fortunes will not be realized by the contractors.

EASTERN TO MAY 31. Gen. Grant anticipates a general Indian war. A fort Kearny dispatch dated May 29th, says the Indian war on the Platte route has fairly begun. Ranches are burnt, stock stolen and settlers killed daily. Gen. Smith has bone to Fort Phil. Kearney, whither troops are being forwarded. Troops also go to Laramie. Detachments are stationed on the route for protection. Citizens have been killed lately along Lodge Pole Creek, near Fort Sedgwick. An Omaha special dispatch says two trains were lately attacked by Indians east of Julesburg. All the stock was stolen. Nobody killed. John West, formerly of Wells, Fargo & Co., and John Penders were killed near Big Laramie Station. President Johnson will visit Raleigh. Ben Wade and ten Senators are making a tour into Nebraska on the Pacific Railroad and to hunt buffaloes. The President will not interfere with Gen. Sheridan in Louisiana, and Gen. Thomas recommends no Executive interference in Tennessee unless asked to do so by the Governor. The Japanese have bought the ram Stonewell and Russia has purchased another iron-clad. G. W. Gayle, who offered a reward for the assassination of Lincoln, has been pardoned by President Johnson. It is reported that the President and Horace Greeley have each written letters to Breckinridge inviting him to return. The Fenians are reported more than usually active.

By Cable to the 30. – Spanish Government is considering the propositions of abolishing slavery in all Spanish Colonies. The Spanish Pacific fleet is to be increased. The Russian Emperor has gone to Paris, and Bismarck is to accompany the King of Prussia to the same place. The French army is to be reduced.

PROMOTED AND ASSIGNED. The following officers have been recently promoted to the rank named and ordered to report to points, to-wit: First Cavalry: Captain Thomas McGregor, Fort Klamath, Oregon; First Lieutenant Daniel M. Walcott, Company F, Fort Boise, Idaho; First Lieutenant Wm. R. Parnell, Company H, Camp C. F. Smith, Oregon.

Twenty-Third Infantry: First lieutenant John R. Eschenburg, Company D. Camp Warner, Oregon; First Lieutenant Louis R. Stillie, Company E. Camp Three Forks Owyhee, Idaho, and First Lieutenant Joseph L. Jack, Camp Warner, Oregon.

A CALICO BALL is advertised in aid of the City Water Works. As this is no temperance dodge to put down whisky as a common beverage, of course it will be generally attended. We thought it necessary to give this assurance so the proceeds of the Ball might not be small through suspicion or prejudice. Putting out fire is a legitimate use of water, and we are anxious to see it corralled for the purpose. To this end, let every citizen buy a ticket to meet expenses.

THE WEATHER has been “powerfully” disagreeable all week. High cold winds prevailed, while the scene was interposed with a little rain and one good sized snow squall not fully completed yesterday evening. To be continued.

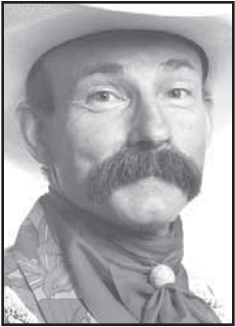

CARPENTERS and blacksmiths have been kept quite busy this week fitting up wagons for hauling quartz and if expectations do not fail, will all be needed within a week or so.

Kentucky Derby long shot

I have been to the Kentucky Derby, years ago...Alysheba won. I read the book Sea Biscuit. I've been to several racetracks and bet on many a horse. But, I usually place the safe bet. $2 on the favorite.

If I had attended the 2005 Kentucky Derby I suspect I would have bet $2 to win on Bellamy Road, the 5-2 favorite; i.e., bet $2 win $5. I might have put a sympathy vote on Bandini who was trained by a University of Arizona trainer. But...would I have put down $2 on a 50-1 long shot named Giacomo? Not unless his groom had kidnapped my blue heeler and threatened to breed her to a Pekingese!

But would I have cheered Giacomo down the home stretch? Would I have shredded my program in the excitement? Would I have felt that primal, goose-bumpy surge well up from deep inside as he crossed the finish line? Would I have experienced innocent, emotional, unprotected, unexpected joy for his success? Absolutely! "Unbelievable," I would repeat, over and over, as they gave ol' FIFTY to ONE the roses. And I'm just an innocent bystander!

The long shot wins. It's the theme of countless books and movies, all of which I like, even if they are predictable; Hoosiers, Rudy, Bad News Bears, Longest Yard, Friday Night Football, Far & Away, Mighty Ducks, Joe Namath and the NY Jets, the U.S. Olympic Hockey Team, Rocky I through V.

We all have our own personal moments of shared accomplishment too, small in the grand scale but still heart-squeezing; the little leaguer who's gone 0 for 13 in 10 games and finally gets a hit, the spontaneous crowd response to the raising of our flag, or the young person we love walking down the aisle at church accepting Christ or getting married.

So when Giacomo, the long shot - the written off- the ignored, thundered out of the shadows and beat the heavy-weights at their own game, every one of us also-rans perked up our ears, gave a thumbs up and said, "Alright!"

We walked 'round a little straighter, heads a little higher, feelin' a little more confidant. It was sweet and lasted for a while. Then came the next race where Giacomo was no longer the underdog, so this time we bet on him. But secretly we held a soft spot in our hearts for the long shot.

A brighter future

The future of the Homedale school district is brighter this week, as the rein of chairwoman Benita Miller winds down. Miller was handily defeated by Kevin Miyasako in the trustee election last month.

Miller really showed her colors last Thursday night, when she arbitrarily denied our reporter access to the meeting. Not only did she violate state laws, but she deprived the community of learning what was going on at a special meeting when she told Avalanche reporter Cheryl Beeson to leave. The meeting was called as an executive session, but everyone was allowed to attend except our reporter. When she learned Idaho Press-Tribune reporter was in attendance, she told him to leave, too. He protested, so Miller told everyone to leave, then called those she wished to speak one at a time.

Miller was quoted as saying she did not want news about the meeting in the paper because "it would make Homedale look bad".

Baloney. She didn't want the meeting covered because it would make HER look bad. Not that she needs any help. She didn't even attend the school graduation. Traditionally, the chairperson hands out the diplomas to the graduates. But not her. (She had just been defeated in the election.) Ric Uria, the only board member in attendance, honored the graduates by performing this ritual. Thanks, Ric.

Miller's arrogance and defiance of Idaho's open meeting law is beyond belief. She's not the queen of an ancient kingdom where she can demand the heads on a platter of some peasant who might cross her. She is a public servant who is supposed to serve the patrons of the district to provide for a high standard of education.

Since Miller's stint on the board, there has been nothing but turmoil and division. Throughout her reign as a trustee, her primary (and possibly only) agenda has been to get rid of athletic director/coach Randy Potter. It's not been one of improving education or even the sports program. It's purely a personal vendetta. Never in the thirty years I've been here has so much animosity and discontent been so rampant in the district. Nor has the community been in such a divisive situation.

Board meetings have been primarily a time to destroy people, almost always about sports and coaches (There are 15-18 openings in the district right now). What happened to academics? What happened to betterment of the district and civility to the staff from the board?

Those board members remaining who are bent on destroying the good in the district should take notice that the community will not tolerate such antics. Their day will come, also.

The bright spot is that we have a replacement for Miller. Miyasako will be a refreshing change for the district. We have a new superintendent who is determined to pull this district up by its bootstraps to once again be one of pride, professionalism, and an example of what a school should be. The future is bright.

Wayne Cornell

Not important ... but possibly of interest

We were visiting a local warehouse store, My mate was off picking up the unimportant stuff -- food, medicine, etc. I was wandering around looking for good deals on essentials -- flat screen TVs, computer accessories and tools.

"Hi, Wayne. How's it going?" said a voice behind me. I turned around. A man and woman about my age were looking at me. Their faces didn't ring any bells.

"You don't remember me, do you?" said the man. He had gray hair, just like mine but he was a little shorter and maybe a little rounder than me.

"Sorry," I mumbled. "I can't place the face."

"I'm Robert. I topped corn one summer on a crew with you."

Suddenly the face did look vaguely familiar. But it went with a slightly-built 17-year-old named Robbie -- someone I had last seen in 1962.

It was the summer before my senior year in high school. I was a member of what was probably one of the least productive corn topping crews ever to enter one of Duane Yamamoto's fields.

Glen and Robbie were members of the crew -- the only ones hailing from a different school and town. Glen was the leader, the guy who always had the cleaver comment or an idea for a joke. Robbie was Glen's shadow -- the one who didn't say a lot but always smiled at his partner's comments

I exchanged pleasantries with Robbie. . er Robert. . and we started comparing notes. His wife, who obviously wasn't into nostalgia, departed with the shopping cart, leaving us to talk.

Our conversation triggered memories I thought were gone forever.

There was the hot day when Glen and Robbie suddenly got a unusual burst of enthusiasm and topped their way out of sight and hearing of the rest of the crew. When we reached the end of our corn rows we found the duo sitting on the ditch bank beside the glass gallon water jug. Somebody was about to quench his thirst when another crew member noted the jug seemed to have more liquid in it than previously and the contents seemed to be a bit cloudy. Glen and Robbie seemed disappointed when nobody took a drink.

But there was a payback day.

We usually ate lunch under the shade trees around Duane's house. One day Duane's teen-age sister, Marsha, was sitting at the kitchen table working on some chore. Glen, who considered himself something of a ladie's man was leaning forward over the table flirting with Marsha. The position of Glen's body made the waist of his jeans stick out in back, creating a gap between the jeans and the top of his underwear. He didn't notice when several unnamed individuals passed behind him and knocked the ashes from cigarettes into the gap in his clothing.

Several minutes passed before Glen suddenly jumped back from the table and started yelling "Oh! OH! OOOH!" While shouting and dancing, he unbuttoned his trousers and pushed them to his knees. This revealed a glowing, growing ring of fire rapidly eating up the rear portion of his shorts. I think the most embarrassing part for Glen was that Marsha laughed too.

Robbie told me after high school he went to work in the sugar plant lab, retiring a couple of years ago after having a valve in his heart replaced. He said Glen graduated and went to Portland to be a machinist. But after a couple of years, he returned home, went to college, got his degree and ended up as an accountant for the state of Idaho.

Forty-three years ago I would have put my money on Glenn and Robbie being candidates for residency at the state penitentiary. Of course, Glen and Robbie might have been making the same predictions about me. It just goes to show a person's youth isn't necessarily an indicator of where he or she will go in life.

Robbie. . er. . Robert and I talked for probably 20 minutes. It was nice to see him. He told me where Glen is living. Maybe I'll call him one of these days and see if he has had any further problems with burning underwear.
