Farm Days come to Marsing

The Vision Bible Church in Marsing has planned a Family Farm Day to honor local farming families and to assist in raising money for the Church's youth center and children's programs. The event will also honor a local family as farmer of the year.

Activities will be held on Sept. 23, 24 and 25 at the church located at 221 W. Main in Marsing. Friday will begin with a free ice cream social and auction preview at 6 p.m. as well as a western music and dance on Saturday.

Saturday events will run throughout the day with a pig barbecue at 5 p.m. followed by

Homedale PD hunts man on drug charges

Homedale Police is still searching for a local man after a large amount of drugs were discovered in a vehicle he crashed after a short chase last week.

Antonio Zarrate, 32, led officers through a residential area at excessive speeds and with disregard for stop signs in Homedale just after 3 p.m. on Sept. 13. He attempted to elude officers in an alley between Washington Avenue and Montana Avenue, but slammed into a fence and shed. Homedale Police Chief Jeff Eidemiller said the suspect immediately left the vehicle and the pursuit began on foot.

Illegal find

Two thousand marijuana plants were found in a remote area of the Owyhee foothills near Marsing in July, and last week Malheur County Sheriff's deputies converged on several marijuana gardens and retrieved thousands of mature plants.

Operation Prairie Dog nets thousands of pot plants

Recent raid in Owyhee turns up 6,000 plants, too

Nearly 20,000 marijuana plants have been seized during a multi-agency operation that included several of the state's sheriff's offices and months of investigations.

Last week, about 11,000 plants were removed from steep canyons of Malheur County in what is being called Operation Prairie Dog. In Owyhee County, in July, about 6,000 plants were seized from a canyon south of Marsing. The total seizure is said to have a street value of more than $30 million.

Nearly a year ago, 2,000 plants were discovered near Banks, and five Marsing men were arrested in connection with the incident.

A spokesman from Idaho State Police, who declined give his name, said the incidents cannot be connected at this time. He said if the state could have made a connection they would have linked them, but at this time little evidence had been retrieved from the Owyhee County site. He said it seems the garden had been recently abandoned.

The ISP representative said at this time the agency does not know if the Oregon bust was connected to the plant discovery in Banks.

"The plants in July were located in the foothills south of Marsing," Owyhee County Sheriff Gary Aman said. "We will be comparing our suspects with their arrestees and fingerprints as well as other evidence that was found at the scene to confirm a connection, but at this time we have no confirmation."

"We have seen an increase in undercover pot gardens throughout several states in the Northwest. It would lead a person to believe that most are connected, but at this time we cannot connect the three incidents."

Aman said the growers cultivate the plants with watering systems while living on the plots of land.

School board, city approve SRO contract

The Homedale School Board approved a contract with the City of Homedale to provide a school resource officer to the district for $14,500 per year. The decision was made during the Sept. 12 school board meeting. Wednesday evening, the city council also accepted the contract.

The contract calls for a police officer to provide law enforcement services to the district on all three campuses, athletic complexes and school properties for one year. The officer will work with district personnel to provide alcohol and drug education, maintaining a safe campus environment, serve as a law enforcement problem-solving resource person and provide appropriate response regarding on-campus or school-related criminal activity.

The district has agreed to pay the city based on an hourly rate equivalent to the cost of wages and benefits the officer earns but not less than $14,500 for the year.

Police Chief Jeff Eidemiller said a current officer would be put into the position, but an additional officer is being interviewed for the department. The city also is interviewing an additional officer to replace Jamie Austin, who resigned last month. That hire will bring the city police force to six officers, instead of five as in years past.

Board forms policy review committee

Homedale Superintendent Tim Rosandick announced during last week’s school board meeting that a policy review committee has been formed to review past policies and he would have recommendations on policies in the coming months.

The first meeting was held on Sept. 1 and those attending were Kurt Shanley, representing the trustees, Tim Quintana, a parent, Carri Lauson, a classified employee, Shannon Johnson a certified employee of the district, Benita Miller, a patron and past board member, Keith Field who is representing the administrators and Rosandick. He said the group would meet twice a month and they have a lot of work to do.

“We will meet through December because we have a whole lot of work to do,” Rosandick said. “In fact we are bringing forward later one revision that we were able to clear from our previous meeting. The policy book needs to be revised almost in its entirety. This group has its work cut out for them and I am grateful to them for the work they will do.”

Livestock sale shatters records

This year’s Owyhee County Junior Livestock Sale grossed $121,425 from the sale of 4-H and FFA beef, sheep and swine.

The amount is the second-highest gross sales since before 1991 when records first were kept and the final amount after additions is the highest amount ever recorded by the Owyhee County Extension Office.

Owyhee County Extension Agent Scott Jensen said the total is $4,206 higher than last year for nearly the same number of animals. This year 142 animals were sold.

Average beef was sold for $1,635, swine averaged $716 and sheep averaged $599. A total of $31,000 was distributed to all 142 children selling.

Garrett, Miyasako reign at Homedale

Homecoming at Homedale High School recalled the past and looked to the future last week.

On the same night that Trojans football fans honored former football coach Deward Bell, Homedale crowned Hailee Garrett homecoming queen and Stuart Miyasako homecoming king.

In pregame ceremonies, Garrett and Miyasako were announced as homecoming royalty, but you wouldn’t have guessed it by their reactions.

“It caught me by surprise,” said Miyasako, who looked stunned when his name was called. “I wasn’t listening when they told us what to do if we won.”

Miyasako is the son of Randy and Chris Miyasako. He has a busy year, including serving as governor at Boys State and as student body president at Homedale.

Garrett was part of the homecoming court as a freshman, and now she returns as queen.

“I think I’ll support my town really well as queen,” said Garrett, who also is a member of the Trojans’ varsity volleyball team.

The daughter of Gregg and Randee Garrett, Hailee Garrett gave a little shrug and a small smile when she was announced.

Garrett beat out Breann Rodriguez, daughter of Joe and Rhonda Rodriguez, and Karina Aguilera, daughter of Ventura and Maria, for the crown.

Miyasako’s competition came from Tyler Christofferson (Dean and Deborah, parents) and Tyler Leslie (Greg and Mary).

The class attendants were Emily Verwer and Travis McRae (juniors), Kelsey Silva and Daniel Valadez (sophomores) and Chalsea Hicks and Trevor Meligan (freshmen).

The junior class cleaned up in class competitions during homecoming, winning the overall championship.

The championship run for the Class of 2007 was locked up with the best float in Friday’s homecoming parade. The float carrying the theme, “Wipe the Pilgrims,” featured an outhouse and a giant toilet paper roll.

The juniors also won dress-up competitions for pajama day and collared shirt day.

Oh, and the juniors were champions of Wednesday’s boys tug of war competition.

The seniors repeated as powder puff football champs, while the freshmen won the girls tug of war.

Sunset residents tackle water issue

For about five years, the residents of Sunset Ranch Subdivision have been battling developers, county, state and federal government over unacceptable water from a community well located on the property on Northside Road near Homedale. The residents of the community took the matter into their own hands and this summer, every home now has “clean” water coming from the taps.

In 1998, the homeowners of the community were told they could not drink the water that came from a well to each of the homes in the subdivision because of high levels of nitrate and arsenic. Subdivision resident Sandy Kamp took the issue into her own hands and now each home in the subdivision has drinkable, clean water.

Gary Hartwig, who is the son of Sandy’s husband, Richard Hartwig, owned the property in 1998. He sold the property and over the years it changed hands several times until Owyhee County took possession because of back taxes. A large amount of money was also owed on irrigation taxes. But no bids were entered when the county auctioned off the site last year. Several weeks later, a developer offered county commissioner Hal Tolmie $100 for the property and it sold.

But the developer didn’t hang on to the property very long.

“When he came out here and looked and saw that it did not look like what he thought it would look like, he wanted to get rid of it fast,” Kamp said from her home last week. “He told us that he would give it to us and we as homeowners bought it back from him for the $100 he had into it.”

But just owning the property still did not fix the community’s water problems. That’s when Kamp went to work to find out what rights the homeowners actually had.

“The second development owner, Steven Gregory, got together with Sandy Hemingway from DEQ (Department of Environmental Quality), and they started a process to get

Contamination-free water

Sandy Kamp pours herself a glass of water from her kitchen faucet, something she has only recently been able to do. The subdivision Kamp lives in has been dealing with contaminated water from its community well for several years. Recently the community was chosen to receive filtering systems as part of a demonstration study.

us started as a demonstration study site funded by the US EPA (United States Environmental Protection Agency),” Kamp said. “The study was for point-of-use major decontamination. Our contamination was arsenic and nitrates. We were approved for the second around study.”

Kamp said each home received a reverse osmosis filtering system. She said the department put out the project to bid and two vendors sent in bids. The bid was originally for a centralized system at the well, but because of back irrigation taxes and county taxes the systems were installed in each home.

Kenitico took the bid, but the homeowners association could not afford to pay for the maintenance costs for a centralized system, which would have been about $125 per month per homeowner. Kamp said the company revised its bid to include a water softener for each home that did not have one and a reverse osmosis, which DEQ required to be the same in each home for the study. Now nine homes are involved in the study.

“Those of us who had a Culligan system had to be changed to Kenitico,” Kamp said. “They were put in by the end of June, and it has been very good. The testing, salt for the softeners, training to take arsenic samples and everything is paid for. Last August, the homeowners paid for the testing of arsenic, chloroform and nitrates and virtually all of the contaminants were gone.

“We, as homeowners, for our part of the project have to be willing to give the man hours, or woman hours as it may be, to go to each home each month and test the reverse osmosis, the softener and at the well head.”

Richard Hartwig said his wife had run into some opposition in her trek to solve a community problem, but it didn’t slow her down. He said she kept searching until she found someone to help them.

“The IDEQ has been our stumbling block,” Kamp said. “It has gone to the compliance group and one of those people, Steve Stouffer, he has been very supportive. I think most of them would like to get rid of us like a problem child. Monte Marcus commented that if they said that point-of-use is OK to take these contaminants out, we would be the first, and the last, place in the state of Idaho to ever get this project.”

Kamp said the homeowners have agreed that the subdivision would not grow any larger than it is now because of the water problems. She said no one else would be added to the well.

The community is nearly the first in its kind in Idaho, Kamp said. She said the dues and leasing extra property has helped them pay for their taxes and additional upkeep to the 100-plus acres.

“We are a community here,” Kamp said. “We are very close and help each other. We have many people with different talents, and we bring those talents together to keep this community operating. It is wonderful, and now it is clean.”

Chadez, Villa crowned at Marsing High

Rain did not dampen the thrill of being crowned homecoming king and queen Friday evening as a parade of royalty was driven into a very wet Marsing football field Friday evening. Breeana Chadez shined, and shivered, as a crown was placed on her head announcing her as this year’s queen.

Chadez and Ernesto Villa were crowned homecoming royalty prior to the homecoming football game against Glens Ferry. Chadez, the daughter of Dwayne and Kathy Chadez, stood under an umbrella, but didn’t seem to mind the rain and cold as the crown was placed and Villa was draped with the royalty robe. Villa is the son of Olivia Villa of Marsing.

The crowning came after a week of homecoming activities, which included games, competitions and a parade on Friday afternoon. Chadez defeated Autumn Shippy, Nichole Gelinaz, Angela Martinez and Mary Jo Usabel for the crown. Villa won over king candidates Perry Gibson, Trent Lootens, Jamison Price, and Dan Daniels.

Junior attendants were Alicia Ponce and Jonathan Cossel, sophomore attendants were Ethan Sauer and Aimee Molvig and freshman attendants were Jose Paramo and Dixie Kent. Paramo and Kent won the title as prince and princess.

This year’s homecoming theme was decades, and students dressed up in a variety of attire throughout the week. The senior class adorned their float with a 1960s setting. The juniors decorated to the 1970s, sophomores to the 1980s and the freshmen dressed their float to the 1990s.

The seniors won most events through the week including the powder puff football game, volleyball and dodge ball. On Friday, a lip-sync competition was held and the senior dressed up to sing and dance to the 1970s favorite “YMCA.” The student council paid $200 to the class for earning the most points from the week’s activities.

Canine search

Nampa Police search dog Boscoe searches a vehicle involved in an accident in Homedale last week. Boscoe and officers recovered about an ounce of methamphetamine and are still searching for the suspect.

Paraphernalia

Homedale Police Chief Jeff Eidemiller and officer Ian Takashige remove a “crack pipe” from a vehicle last week.

Chase

Canyon County Narcotics Unit was called to the scene and searched the vehicle with a drug dog, Bosco. The dog discovered a large bag of what was later determined to be methamphetamine in the vehicle as well as a “crack pipe” made out of a plastic pop bottle. On Wednesday, officers obtained permission to search the vehicle again, but nothing more was found.

Currently Zarrate is being sought for possession of a controlled substance, possession of drug paraphernalia, obstruct and delay and eluding a police officer. He possibly could be charged with possession with intent to sell or trafficking because of the amount of narcotics found in the vehicle.

Eidemiller said anyone who has seen Zarrate or know of his whereabouts needs to call the Homedale Police Department at 337-4642 or the Owyhee County Sheriff’s Office at 495-1154.

Plants

Then they harvest the mature plants. He said someone had been living on the plot located near Marsing, but no one was located at the time of the seizure.

The street value of a mature marijuana plant is about $2,000, Aman said. He said each plant seized is considered capable of being mature, bringing the total amount to $12 million from Owyhee County alone. Thursday morning, Malheur County Sheriff Andy Bentz said he estimated that by the end of Thursday, more than 11,000 plants would be removed in the most recent raid.

five suspects and three weapons. The men were turned over to the federal Immigration and Customs Enforcement Department. Bentz said four adults and one juvenile were taken into custody. It was believed that the suspects are Mexican nationals.

“The people will be charged, but it will be done federally,” Bentz said Thursday morning. “We arrested five out of the gardens and expect more in the coming days.”

This is the third marijuana farm in the area found within the last year in Malheur County, but the fifth sizable grow found in southwest Idaho and southeast Oregon.

Aman said the plants his department recovered are still locked up as evidence.

“The people out hunting or camping or whatever need to keep their eyes open,” Aman said. “We had assistance from Idaho State Police, posse members and BLM (Bureau of Land Management) in July. It took most of one day to remove all the plants we discovered. It is the same group of people we have been involved with assisting other counties because a lot of the people involved are from Owyhee County. It has been ongoing since about 1997. It is getting to be very common, and the counties they grow in are perfect conditions for how they are doing it.”

Last October, officials from four state and county agencies found a marijuana garden in the Soda Creek area about 21 miles north of Huntington along Snake River Road. More than 5,300 plants carrying a street value of close to $10 million were seized.

In September 2004, officers hauled out more than 2,500 marijuana plants from the Morgan Creek area, about 10 miles north of Huntington, and removed more than 2,000 plants from a remote area near Banks.

“It would be premature to make any connections between previous investigations,” Bentz said. “We really don’t know who is responsible for these grows, and determining that is going to take some time.”

Aman said the marijuana gardens are professionally camouflaged to deter detection from the air and ground. He said they are being spread out over four states and people are living on the plots.

During last week’s massive raid in Malheur County, police found

The plants were watered through a spring-fed gravity system with hoses leading to each plant. Police said the growers had tent camps hidden at several sites and appeared to be living at the grow sites.

Love for the ages

Couple reunites, marries after 50 years

Circumstances kept them apart for more than 50 years, but persistence — and a private investigator — reunited Mary Jo Morrison and James Andrews and in the process rekindled a first love.

When Mary Jo and James wed Sept. 3 at the Homedale Senior Citizens Center, the ceremony capped a three-month courtship that actually was decades in the making.

"She was my first love, and I just had to find her," James said.

Finding Mary Jo began in August of last year when James' wife of more than 45 years, Harriet, passed away. He hadn't seen Mary Jo since 1959 when she moved with her first husband, Walter Wass, from Arizona to Homedale.

James hired a private investigator in Arizona, where he was living in the Phoenix suburb of Buckeye. Then one day he was doing some research of his own on the Internet when he came across the death certificate of Mary Jo's husband on the Internet. He hired a private investigator in Idaho, and four days later he located Mary Jo.

Or, more accurately, Mary's Jo's daughter, Mary Fernandez, whom he called. But Fernandez had never heard of a James Andrews, so she called her mother to be sure.

"That was a long time ago," Mary Jo told her daughter.

Still, James and Mary Jo were able to talk on the phone in June.

"It couldn't believe it. It was a complete shock," she said of the first phone call. "He sounded the same as he sounded 50 years ago."

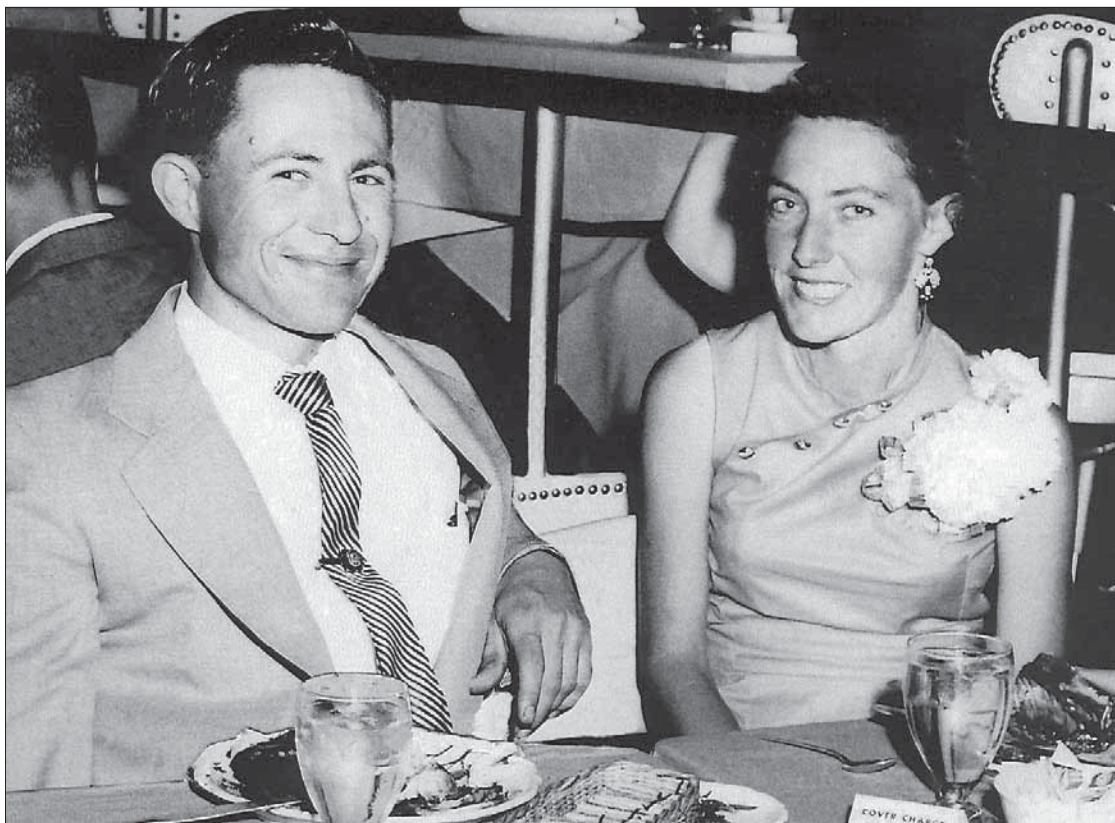

Hours later, he called her again — from the Boise airport.

"I yelled at him for not giving me a little bit of time to get used to the idea," Mary Jo said with a smile.

"I had planned on driving up in the next week, but I couldn't wait any longer," James said.

He proposed to her the first day he was in Idaho. It took Mary Jo nearly two months to say, "Yes," but deep down she knew the answer within a week of the reunion.

So did her children. Mary Jo says they started planning the wedding as soon as James set foot

James and Mary Jo, 1954

James and Mary Jo, 2005

The happy newlyweds revisit the Homedale Senior Center, where they were married on Sept. 3.

in Idaho.

And when did James know he was going to pop the question to a woman he had first met in 1949 and hadn't dated for about 53 years?

"Before I ever found her," he said. "I've been in love with her most of my life."

"I still love her as much as I always have," James said. "It was love at first sight."

That was in Litchfield, Ariz., in 1949. James was in high school; Mary Jo Haynes was an eighth-grader visiting her friend, who happened to be Andrews' sister.

There was one small problem, Mary Jo's father, who worked on the same farm as his daughter's beau, didn't like James.

The couple dated until 1950, when James entered the service and became part of the 187th paratroopers. Life in the service took him to Fort Campbell, Ky., and Fort Benning, Ga., and eventually to Korea.

"I wrote to her every week, and she wrote back all the time," James said.

They were secretly engaged — until James read a letter he had received in Korea one day.

Mary Jo's father had arranged a marriage for her.

"It floored me," James said.

Mary Jo and James remained friends after her marriage to Walter Wass in 1952, but lost contact when the Wasses moved to Homedale in 1959. James married Harriet in 1959.

One of the memories both had held on to, though, was a photo taken at the KO KO Theatre Restaurant in Phoenix in 1954.

"Every time my wife would go through our photo album and saw that photo, she said, 'That's the only one I'm jealous of,'" James said.

Mary Jo was married to Wass until 1969 then wed Orville Morrison, who died in 1979.

Like James, she never forgot that first love. She enlisted the help of her son-in-law, Peter Apel, to search for James in Phoenix at one time. But James had moved to Kentucky by then.

But fate continued to keep them apart until James began his quest to find her last year.

And now they have picked up where they left off a half-century ago.

"It doesn't really seem that we've really been apart that long," Mary Jo said. "I love him. I'm glad he found me."

HHS grad night meeting planned

An organizational meeting for the Homedale High School all-night drug-free graduation party for the Class of 2006 will be held Sept. 26 in the high school cafeteria.

Any parents of high school seniors interested in helping organize the graduation party should attend the 7 p.m. meeting.

For more information, call Jaleene Bruce at 337-4831 or Sondra Cline 337-4743.

After-school club to start at church

Christian Life Club (CLC), a non-denominational youth group, will begin Wednesday, Oct. 5, at Homedale Friends Church.

The Bible-based after-school club will meet from 3:15 p.m. to 4:45 p.m. every Wednesday at the church at 301 W. Montana. All children from kindergarten through sixth grade are welcome.

The club plays games, learns memory verses and listens to Bible stories. Snacks will be served.

For more information on the club, call the church at 337-3464 or Mary Sonke at 337-4757.

Fund established for ex-Homedale man

A benevolent bank account has been set up for a former Homedale man who has been diagnosed with ALS, Amyotrophic lateral sclerosis and is now wheelchair bound. An account has been set up in Steve Carson's name to help with the purchase of a used van with a lift.

Family friend Don Frank said the van will be used to help transport Carson from place to place and all donations would be greatly appreciated.

To make a donation, go to any US Bank branch and deposit into the account for Steve Carson. Donations may also be sent to US Bank, 10451 Overland Road, Boise Idaho 83709.

Former BLM manager to receive award

The Public Lands Foundation (PLF) at its annual meeting Friday in Phoenix will present the Outstanding Lifetime Service Award posthumously to Ed Booker, former Boise District Manager for the Bureau of Land Management (BLM).

Booker's dedicated public service for more than 30 years has resulted in many achievements affecting not only the BLM, but also the people of Idaho. The highlight of Ed Booker's career with BLM was his leadership in the establishment of the Snake River Birds of Prey National Conservation Area in southwest Idaho. This unique area along the Snake River is recognized worldwide for its nesting habitat for many birds of prey. The Secretary of the Interior dedicated the area to the memory of Ed. His vision and efforts also led to the establishment of the eastern Oregon. "Vale Project" at Vale, Oregon, a massive public land treatment project.

Foundation President George Lea will present the award to members of Ed's family, recognizing him for his dominance in solving many public land management problems.

The Outstanding Lifetime Service Award is given annually to former BLM employees who have demonstrated a lifetime of significant public service and dedication to the public lands.

HAVE TOOLS - WILL TRAVEL

And the winner is...

Lewis Rutan draws the lucky winner of Owyhee Cattlemen's Heritage Foundation truck drawing held during the Bruneau Rodeo last weekend. The truck winner was Laurie Smith of Melba and the second-chance drawing of a half a beef went to Tim Hollinger of Hansen. All 500 tickets were sold prior to the drawing. Coordinators thanked Paul Nettleton for handling all of the mail, Joe Aman for the flyers and support, Todd McCurry and Mountain Home Auto for their great support every time they are ask. Grubbrothers Signs in Mountain Home for the magnetic signs and Greenfields Meats for the half of beef. Organizers also thanked everyone who bought a ticket to support the Owyhee Cattlemen's and the Heritage Foundation.

Jordan Valley undergoes makeover

by Hayley Johnson

If you have driven through Jordan Valley lately, you'll have noticed some big changes. You'll not longer see a sleepy little town with faded crosswalks, shabby streets and random traffic.

Instead, you will be greeted by a flagger with a stop sign. Among the changes you'll see as you wait: fresh pavement, newly painted lines, and orderly sidewalks. These differences may seem sudden, but they've been in the works for a while.

The plan to add sidewalks to Jordan Valley began in 1993, when the state offered a grant of about $120,000. Work on the project didn't begin until this summer and could be completed next month. When finished, Jordan Valley will have new sidewalks, tree planters, brick pavers and lights.

These changes are not only skin-deep: there's a new water system, too.

There are plans to build an airstrip in Jordan Valley as well. It will be located about two miles out of town on the north side of the highway, just past Dinwitty

Putting on a new look

A work crew applies new asphalt on a parking lot in Jordan Valley. The project is just one of many that the small Oregon town is undergoing.

Road. The airstrip would complete plans for both the federal and state departments of aviation.

According to the state, this part of Oregon sorely needs a public airstrip. Construction would be funded by the federal government.

The city council has narrowed the original 10 potential sites down to one, and WH Pacific has performed the necessary environmental assessments. But work cannot begin until the plans have been completed.

Construction will take a couple years.

"The city of Jordan Valley is moving forward," Jordan Valley mayor Jake Roe said. "We have done a lot to beautify the town and businesses have been working right along with the highway to help as well."

Lending a helping hand

Sixth-grade students Zach and Dillon Lowder placed a donation can in Paul's Market last week to help raise money for areas affected by Hurricane Katrina. The Lowders said their class hopes to raise several thousand dollars by the end of the month at which time they will turn the funds over to the Red Cross. Cans are located in several businesses in Homedale and at City Hall.

County youth learn teaching and decision-making skills

Jessica Elsberry-Salove of Marsing and Elizabeth McShane of Caldwell joined youth from across the nation in acquiring knowledge and skills as a teacher and trainer during the Life Rocks! training workshop held Aug. 7-10 in Jackson, Miss. The event was sponsored by the Mississippi State University Extension Service and National 4-H Council.

During the training, teams of youth and adults participated in workshops that included decision-making, identifying risks, stress management and youth-adult partnerships. Marsing Elementary is providing the same training for area youth in Owyhee County. The programs teach life skills such as critical thinking and communication as well as ways to avoid peer pressure.

The Mississippi conference was the first to roll-out the new Life Rocks! curriculum, which targets the area of making wise choices through a youth-adult partnership. Research indicates that youth who have positive social skills and competencies are more likely to be successful in their local communities.

The Life Rocks! training workshop was designed to help teens gain teaching skills through a train-the-trainer model. The program unites youth and adults to develop strategies that prepare youth to make healthy choices.

Owyhee FFA member vies for national award

This has been a highly successful year for Daniel Richards of Reynolds Creek.

The son of past Owyhee Cattlemen's Association president Tony Richards and Brenda Richards, Daniel was notified last month that he is one of four finalists for the national FFA Diversified Livestock Production — Entrepreneurship Proficiency award.

"Daniel is an awesome kid. He's real self-motivated," Melba FFA chapter advisor Ray Shirts said. "He's a top student and a top athlete and a hard worker."

The winner will be announced at the national FFA convention in Louisville, Ky., on Oct. 28. All four finalists have the opportunity to apply for a two-week exchange program in Costa Rica, and Daniel Richards has applied for that experience.

Award winner

Reynolds Creek resident Daniel Richards has won several awards from FFA this year. Now the Melba High School graduate is eligible for the national livestock proficiency honor.

According to Melba FFA advisor Ray Shirts, Daniel Richards is the first Melba member to be named a national finalist for the award. The Melba chapter has been in operation since 1930.

"It's a pretty neat and pretty prestigious award," Shirts said.

Richards, 18, has been active in FFA for five years.

The Melba High School graduate's road to the national finals began when he won the Idaho proficiency award. He also was named the FFA Star Farmer when his project of range cattle, horses and swine was deemed the best overall project in Idaho. Richards has 36 head of cattle, three brood mares and 12 colts and a market hog.

"His is a substantial project," Shirts said. "He has one of the largest agricultural projects in the United States in this program."

The significance of winning the entrepreneurship award is Richards owns the stock and he is responsible for the management of the operation. He had to keep detailed and accurate records of the project and submit a 20-page application to the national FFA. Other requirements for the program included undergoing interviews to evaluate his knowledge of agriculture and his involvement in the project.

Richards was awarded a $100 check for winning the state diversified livestock proficiency award. He earned a plaque and $250 for being a national finalist, and is now in the running for another plaque and $250 if he wins the national award.

As the state FFA Star Farmer, Richards was given a $300 during the state convention.

Richards also was one of two Melba FFA members to be awarded at $300 Western Dairy Farmers Promotion Association, John Elway-Melba FFA scholarship. Russell Dygert also won that award.

The John Elway-Melba FFA scholarship fund is a national award set up in memory of the Melba FFA members who died in a 1987 plane crash. Scholarship winners are chosen based on their academic record, involvement in school and community activities, supervised agricultural experience (SAE) program and future goals.

Shirts said Richards is on scholarship in the pre-veterinarian program at the College of Southern Idaho, and he has been accepted to continue his education at the University of Idaho and he hopes to complete his education at Washington State.

"He wants to be a vet and then come back later and run his own ranch," Shirts said.

Homedale boy finishes seventh in FFA competition

Daniel Proferes, a freshman at Homedale High School, recently showed animals at the Western Idaho Fair as part of the Super Round Robin contest for small animals.

The small animals division includes rabbits, chickens, turkeys, guinea pigs and more. Proferes finished seventh at the fair in his first year showing in FFA competition.

“Daniel is a very, very determined young man,” Homedale FFA Chapter advisor Lori Harrison said. “He just found a niche that he excelled in.”

Proferes represented Owyhee County and the Homedale FFA Chapter during the Aug. 27 contest. After winning grand champion for poultry at the Owyhee County Fair, he qualified for the regional fair by winning Owyhee’s round robin competition.

The 14-year-old Proferes is the son of Gayle Strack. His stepfather, Danny Martin, is the man who got Proferes started in FFA.

Proferes raised 10 turkeys

Daniel Proferes

this year, and they are for sale at his home on Allendale Road, located above Garrett Packing Shed. Harrison said his project is to raise organic fresh turkeys for Thanksgiving dinners. Contact him at 337-6161.

This is the second year of the current Homedale FFA chapter.

Marsing FFA news

by Jason Nettleton,
Marsing FFA Advisor

The chapter has been pulling all the activities together for the year. Getting all the members on-board for the year. We’ve all worked hard to plan a great year out and hope that all goes as planned.

Wednesday, the chapter will hold its annual FFA barbecue. Advisor Nettleton will barbecue pork loin and those attending can meet the new officers and other members. The barbecue will begin at 7 p.m.

Congratulations to the 2005-06 Agriculture Fabrications Class. The project they constructed was exhibited at the Canyon County Fair, Owyhee County Fair and The Western Idaho Fair (WIF). While the WIF was the only fair to have a competition the trailer to top honors with Grand Prize Agriculture Mechanics. Good Job Guys, you can be very proud of your work.

On Sept 19th the chapter was again asked back to help out at the Treasure Valley Wool and Lamb Festival at the Ste. Chapelle Winery. This was a great opportunity for the chapter members to make a little money for their trips and FFA activities while also helping out a great event. Members help set up pens and displays, managed the trashcans, operated the FFA Coke booth and then helped put it all away. This year brought a wonderful sunny Sunday, nearly 400 showed up for this event highlighting the sheep industry in the Treasure Valley.

The botany class has been working hard to get the greenhouse ready for the year ahead. They took everything out of the greenhouse to get started over. Clear down to the gravel. The plants, flowers, tables and even the ground cloth came out. They leveled out the gravel, washed it all down with bromine, bleach for greenhouses, put the tables back, and then neatly arranged the plants all back in place. They even took all the sprinkler and drippers down to soak them in Lime Away to remove the mineral deposits. Everything is all cleaned up and washed down. Looks good to get started into the study of now.

We even planted a row of poplar trees on the outside of the community garden to serve as a windbreak and also improve the look around the garden.

We are planning on going to BSU’s Horticulture Program again this year for a propagation workshop. This is always a great opportunity to collect some great plant material and see a college level program. We will also be meeting with Cheryl Korn for information on the BSU Tech Prep. Program available to our students.

Fabrications have been participating in mini-workshops to learn and demonstrate the different pieces of equipment. They are currently working on various projects for the school and for the Ag Dept.

Ag Mech. is working on PVC and copper pipe construction after just finishing a measuring unit. Planning to head into tool gauge construction and then on to tool sharpening.

Ag Ed. is working their way through the history of the FFA, as well as learning Cheese Identification and egg evaluation. This week should bring on milk defects and poultry grading. All of this is in preparation for the BVD Dairy Foods CDE at Melba.

Domestic dispute lands couple behind bars

A domestic dispute that started out uneventful ended up with a couple behind bars on several felony and misdemeanor charges on Sept. 13.

Amy Peterson, 30, was arrested for misdemeanor domestic battery and attempted arson, a felony. Richard Gardner, 32, was arrested for misdemeanor domestic battery, felon in possession of a firearm, a felony and grand theft by possession, also a felony. Owyhee County Sheriff Gary Aman said additional charges could be pending.

On Sept. 13, Deputy Chris Even was dispatched to the couple’s home on Hardtrigger Road in the county for a civil standby so Peterson could retrieve her belongings as she was moving out of the house. Aman said when Even arrived, he noticed the house was scorched like it had been burned recently.

“He inquired about the fire to the home and was informed that Peterson had tried to set the house on fire because she was moving out,” Aman said. “She told my deputy, that the couple had agreed that if they ever broke up they would burn everything down so they would not have any memories in it. So we arrested her.”

Aman said that while being arrested Peterson told the deputy that Gardner was in possession of a stolen motorcycle. When he checked the home, he found a 2003 Harley-Davidson anniversary edition motorcycle that was confirmed stolen from Canyon County. The bike reportedly is worth about $18,000.

Learning ‘The Business’

Cub Scouts ready to begin a new year

Cub Scout Pack 225 is holding regular meetings at the Marsing American Legion Hall. The Pack meets at 6:30 p.m. every Monday. Boys in first grade through fifth grade are encouraged to attend with their parents to learn more about Scouts and the many events that will occur throughout the year. “Scouting is a great experience for boys,” Cub master Bryan Yiengst said. “We will be registering boys at the meetings, and financial scholarships are available.” Registration is $10.

The Boy Scouts of America is the nation’s foremost youth program of character development and values-based leadership training. The program also teaches the scouts the importance of citizenship, service and leadership.

For more information, contact Yiengst at 896-5205 or Jim Briggs at 896-4574.

Homedale man lands in hospital after eating meth

A Homedale man was hospitalized Sunday after swallowing methamphetamine as a Homedale officer was initiating a traffic stop. Police Chief Jeff Eidemiller said Brian McRoberts, 31 was arrested and taken to Nampa Police Department for drug testing when he collapsed and was taken to a Nampa hospital where he was in the critical care unit.

Eidemiller said his department received a report of a possible drunk driver at TC’s in Homedale. He said when his officer, Steven Westerberg, initiated a traffic stop on McRoberts, he reportedly swallowed the drugs.

“He reported to us that he swallowed about an ounce of methamphetamine, but that is a very large amount,” Eidemiller said. “We transported him to Nampa for a drug evaluation when he collapsed.”

Eidemiller said McRoberts has an extensive history of drug abuse and was on probation at the time of his arrest. A jailer at the Owyhee County Sheriff’s Office said McRoberts had just been released from Murphy last week.

The chief said McRoberts was still listed in critical condition Sunday night, but when he is released he will face drug charges and traffic citations.

Three Creek

by Lola Blossom

Three Creek school started Aug. 29 with only four pupils. Mrs. Boss, the teacher, says they are awesome.

Mrs. Boss had a wonderful summer vacation. She flew to Boston, Mass., and toured it one day. Then she took a cruise ship to Bar Harbor, Maine, then Halifax, Nova Scotia, Sidney and other Canadian highlights.

Her four pupils had fun summer vacations.

Diana Louisa Gonzalez got to go to Mexico. Kacey Crafton, a seventh-grader, went to Bible and summer camp and enjoyed being at Three Creek. Beau Boss, a fourth-grader, got to go to Montana and see his dad and twin brothers. Jessica Gonzalez, a sixth-grader, went to Mexico to see her family. The Weekes kids are going to school at Castleford, so they can be in sports. Loretta Weekes is working at a store in Castleford. Paulette Elsner is teaching sixth grade at Castleford.

The school has had two marvelous and informative assemblies already. On Aug. 29, the BLM visited and told them how to use fire extinguishers and about fires. On Sept. 6, Wayne Moberg, who is a Shriner, presented a program on burn safety. The Shriners have 23 orthopedic hospitals and four burn hospitals in North America. The kids would again be happy to get box tops and aluminum cans.

Jennifer Swan, daughter of Rebecca Swan Prescott and the late George Swan, and Justin Frank, son of Stan and Val Frank of Sterling, Colo., were married Aug. 27 in Westminster, Colo. A reception was held Sept. 3 at the Prescott home in Twin Falls.

Jennifer is a graduate of the College of Southern Idaho. She is owner/director of Dance Dynamica in Johnstown, Colo.

Justin is a graduate of CSI and Westwood College of Technology in Denver. He is employed at IBM in Boulder, Colo.

JV 14-year-old kills a big horn

by Michelle Elsner

A battle for bragging rights has broken out in the Fillmore household in Jordan Valley, Ore. Father and son pulled off the rare feat of drawing big horn sheep hunting tags and bagging a trophy. Now the son, 14-year-old Zac Fillmore, can tell anyone who'll listen that the ram he shot this year is bigger than the one harvested by his father, Clint, nine years ago.

Zac shot a big horn sheep with a composite score of 164, on Sept. 6, the opening day of season. So far this ram is the largest ram harvested in the area this year. The sheep was taken during the evening from the Steens Mountains side of the Sheepheads in Oregon.

Clint drew a tag in 1996 and shot a ram slightly smaller than the one taken by Zac. Clint shot his ram at Leslie Gulch.

It's rare enough that one person draws a ram tag. On average, one out of every 250 tag applicants will be lucky enough to ever win a draw. And the Fillmore family was fortunate enough to get two tags in the span of a decade.

While Zac can brag that he has bagged a larger sheep than his father, he still had to use Clint's .270 to take the animal at Sheepheads in a draw upon a ridge. Zac showed off his excellent marksmanship, claiming the ram with a bullet right through the heart.

All in the family

Zac Fillmore, right, poses with his father, Clint, and the big horn sheep that Zac shot on Sept. 6. It was the second ram the Fillmore family had bagged since 1996.

Clint scouted 45 rams to find the perfect one. Clint and Zac were joined on the hunt with Winnemucca, Nev., men Jim Billings, a magazine writer, and his friend, Todd.

Zac showed off the patience a hunter needs to bag the animal he wants. He had two chances during the day to bring down a ram. The first ram he hunted was smaller than what he was looking for. As the day passed and many miles were covered, he was able to find the ram he wanted.

The 9-year-old animal was taken to Burns, Ore., to be properly measured and weighed.

"We harvested the meat, and I plan to mount my sheep and hang it next to my dad's, so I can tell him every day that mine is bigger than his," Zac said with a smile.

JV students take in Shakespeare play

by Alek Quintero

To be or not to be? This is what the students were saying, after seeing an amazing Shakespeare play, the Works of Shakespeare (abridged), put on by the Idaho Shakespeare Festival. The entire junior high and high school from Jordan Valley attended the performance on the 13th of September, along with other students from across the state of Idaho, including Homedale.

The play was a combination of all 37 plays that Shakespeare had written in his career. The play ranged from comedies to tragedies and everything in between. It was a compilation of original Shakespeare with a modern twist. Most people wouldn't think that McDonalds, or Burger King could be thrown into Shakespeare, or even star wars, but the talented actors at the Idaho Shakespeare festival made it happen.

After the play the students had the opportunity to ask the cast questions one-on-one. The actors of the play tried to get across just how important Shakespeare is in literature. Since the entire cast had taken college courses in classic literature they had a deep understanding for Shakespeare, and tried to pass that understanding across to their young audience.

They also had a great influence on those audience members who dream of becoming actors. Who knows, maybe someday local students will be performing at the Shakespeare Festival.

Extension offers body image class

The University of Idaho will offer a six-week "insightful and live changing" program called Steps to a New You beginning next month. The program focuses on weight to health, coping with emotions without using food, honoring your hunger with gentle nutrition, enjoying physical activity every day, respecting body size diversity and setting individual and group activity goals.

The classes will be taught by Joey Peutz from Canyon County extension and Marsha Lockard from the Owyhee County Extension Office. The classes, which begin Oct. 4, will be held from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Tuesdays at Canyon County Extension Office.

Applicants must pre-register by Sept. 30. The cost is $25.

For more information, call Peutz at 459-6003 or 896-4104.

Prune shipping halted as market fades this week

A falling market brought prune shipping to a virtual stand still at Homedale packing sheds this week.

The J. C. Watson company will discontinue their prune run Friday and will not resume unless the price comes up, Fred Cawdery stated. They will start packing plums the latter part of next week.

Approximately 55 cars of prunes will have been shipped from Watsons when they finish tomorrow. The top price was 60 cents net to the grower per basket on those shipped, although half went for 55 cents net to the grower.

The market now stands at 40 cents net to the grower. There are a lot of prunes still in the orchards, Cawdery said.

Reorganization election at Marsing fails by small vote

A total of 373 votes were cast in the election Tuesday proposing reorganization of the Marsing school district to include surrounding districts in the area.

The proposal failed to gain a two-thirds majority when 224 “yes” votes and 149 “no” votes were cast.

Included in the proposed reorganization were Marsing, Riverside, Knowlton Heights, Sunny Slope and Opaline districts.

Marsing voters approved the plan 131 to 21. Riverside registered 34 for and 37 against; Knowlton Heights, 16 for and 11 against; Sunny Slope, 32 for and 50 against; and Opaline 11 for and 30 against.

Trojans downed by Adrian 7-6 SRV-‘B’ opener

The Homedale Trojans lost a close 7-6 decision to Adrian last Friday night in the opening SRV-B league football game of the season.

Both teams scored in the second quarter with the Adrian Antelopes drawing first blood. Ed Nelson bucked over from the four-yard line to climax a drive that covered 60 yards. Russell Hulse ran for the extra point which was the victory margin.

The Trojans came back after blocking an Adrian punt. Don Tveidt scored on a pitchout around left end. The conversion attempt failed.

News about town

Bob C. Bright who has been employed at Bradley field, Boise, since July 1 has accepted a position as steward on the West Coast airlines. He flew to Seattle last Wednesday and is attending school there a week before starting on the regular flights out of Boise.

Mrs. Lucile Danforth and girls Leonna Lu an Linda Lee and Mrs. Goldie Nash spent Sunday at a birthday dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lannigan, Caldwell, in honor of their son Larry’s birthday.

Mrs. Russ Johnston was hostess to the Monday bridge club. Winner of the prize was Mrs. Russell Immisch.

Vince Moran of Sandsdit, B. C., Canada, arrived last Thursday night at the Frank Moss home to be with his wife and son. Mrs. Moran was dismissed from the St. Luke’s hospital in Boise last Thursday afternoon following a period of observation.

A wiener roast will be held this evening at the Elmer Ross home for Janiene Leslie who will be leaving this week end for Brigham Young University at Provo, Utah. Guests will include employees at the Idaho Power company, Mr. and Mrs. Garland Carson, the Seth Crocketts and the hosts Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Ross and family. Miss Leslie plans to major in business.

Visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cole last week were Mrs. Cole’s sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Schoon from Presho, S. D. They left Monday morning.

RECAPTURED. The character, confined in the Owyhee jail, charged with stealing horses, and of whom we made mention last week as escaping, was recaptured at or near Rattlesnake Station, on the Humboldt Road, about 80 miles distant from this place. Sheriff Springer brought him back on Tuesday evening last. He is again lodged in jail and heavily ironed. Ed. Cage and Stonewall Jackson captured the bird on the road between the Owyhee Ferry and Rattlesnake and took from him a five-shooter with which he was armed. Cage then went ahead and left Stonewall with a double-barreled shot gun and the five-shooter to march the prisoner into Rattlesnake. After Cage got out of sight the captive came near capturing Stonewall. The latter was walking along a few feet behind the former, who pretended to stumble, recovered himself and turned on Stonewall, took the shotgun away from him and broke it, very coolly presenting Stonewall with the stock, retaining the barrels himself, at the same time making a significant shelalah-like flourish with his potion of the gun, said to his captor, “Now you go about your business and leave me alone or I will mash the devil out of you.” Stonewall not fancying that mode of casting out devils, drew his five shooter and fired three shots, one of which passed through the sleeve and grazing the arm of the prisoner, who immediately took to his heels and Stonewall after him. The race continued for a considerable distance, the prisoner outrun his pursuer, and would probably have escaped, but he dashed into a soldier’s camp by the roadside and attempted to mount one of their horses and make off. The “boys in blue” not liking such a proceeding, fired several shots at the runaway, doing him no injury, but having the effect of bringing him to a stand. He was secured once more and brought back on the stage to the Sheep Ranch, where the Sheriff met the part and escorted the desperado back to Silver City.

J. ROSS BROWNE is in the employ of Government to collect statistics on the mineral resources of the Pacific States and Territories, and recently he was reported in Portland. Idaho is included in his territory and he will not visit it at all, but rely upon others to supply him with data for the required information. He may or may not do the Territory justice by this means, and he may plead in extenuation of faults of omission or commission that his time would not admit a personal tour of exploration all of which may read quite well in a report but will not amount to justice in the premises. He had better omit Idaho in his report than to untruly represent it from any cause. His subordinates in Idaho and one or more sent here, are either interested in certain property, or were toadied round too much by manipulations of fancy mining property. Should Mr. Browne sift the matter down and come near doing Idaho credit, we’ll readily do it to him likewise.

F. P. BENJAMIN, of St. Louis, Mo., has proved himself to be a contracting bilk. He was awarded the contract for carrying the mails from Silver City to Chico, Cal., and from Silver City to Jacksonville, Oregon. The services as per contract should have commenced July 1st, of this year, but he utterly failed, and Postmaster Clemmens has been notified that inasmuch as the contractor failed to comply with his obligations, no service will be performed on those routes until further notice – which means no mails at all on those routes. We can see little public advantage in a mail over the Jacksonville route, but there is much need for one over the route to Chico – which we particularly mentioned a few weeks since. We have had too many wooden contractors on the Chico route, and the Department seems to tolerate them with official complacency.

PILGRIMS and sojourners in Owyhee, who want good board and plenty of it, by the day or week, will never regret procuring it at the Clipper Restaurant kept by Paige & Ramsdell, opposite the “Avalanche office.” Paige is such a “phunny phellow,” too, that he will make you “laugh and grow fat.”

ALL WHO DESIRE to send photographs of themselves to friends in the States, or any other “Faderland,” should go immediately before winter closes in, to Junk & Leslie’s Picture Gallery over Wells, Fargo & Co.’s office. The boys can’t be beat in the picture business, you bet!

WE ARE AGAIN compelled to acknowledge the bountiful generosity of our friend across the way, E. Lobenstien, whom everybody knows by the name of “Red.” Two or three days ago, he provoked a smile from us by presenting us with a lot of the finest peaches and grapes we ever saw in any country. We don’t know whether he gets his fruit on the square or not, but he keeps plenty of the best quality constantly on hand.

ALL WHO WANT to go to Flint just jump aboard of Jake Brinkerhoff & Co’s daily stage; if you want to go anywhere else mount one of their splendid saddle bags, and you will get there in double quick. People who have horses, jackasses, mules or oxen of their own will find it to their advantage to board them at the Silver City Stable, where Brinkerhoff & Co. hold forth.

THE LAST CLEAN UP of the Morning Star mill amounted to $8,500. Seventy tuns of ore were crushes, and much of it was a very poor quality, coming out of parts of the mine where its removal was necessary to make improvements.

AT THE RECENT election in Colorado the entire Republican ticket was elected.

GOVERNOR BALLARD SUSPENDED. President Johnson has preformed this executive feat, and Idaho is once more outraged; not but what the appointee may perform the duties of the office faithfully, but that the Governor who has been tried and found true to every obligation as such has been suspended from office without the least shadow of cause, except that his honesty was a bar to peculation and the schemes of a few bad men. If there is one federal appointee in Idaho who stands clear of event the suspicion of any wrong in office, and is credited by honest men of all parties with being an upright and efficient officer, that one is David W. Ballard. The representations which effected his suspension must have been false or else purely political – unless perchance his integrity alone was an undesirable quality in an Idaho Executive.

Certainly if the Senate is rightly informed in December, the nomination of Isaac L. Gibbs will be rejected and Governor Ballard restored to office.

THE WEATHER has managed to be a fine item this week. Rain began to fall on the night of the 13th and continued with little intermission up to Saturday night, when snow appeared and kept us its appearance quite vigorously until Monday evening. The snow was about three inches deep on the roofs and board coverings at one time, and five inches on War Eagle. It commenced clearing up on Tuesday and at this writing – Friday – the sun is shining clearly and kindly. The snow has all vanished away, except in shaded places on the mountain sides, and the weather moderated down so that the stoves so suddenly put up are not much needed. The storm has given the air a more salubrious temper, and disposed of a superfluous quantity of dust. Walking, riding, teaming and traveling have been made much more comfortable, and the storm did no injury.

THE CLOUD. Capt. Prescott and part are very much elated with the prospect of their ledge, called the Cloud, which we spoke of sometime since as being discovered at Cottonwood, between Flint and this place. At the present depth of working, they inform us that the rich “pay streak” is eighteen inches wide, and judging from samples of the ore shown us, it certainly bears evidence of being one of the good things of this camp.

BEFORE THE OWYHEE COUNTY PLANNING & ZONING COMMISSION

On October 5, 2005, commencing at 10 AM at the Marsing Community Center located at 126 Second Street North, Marsing, Idaho, the Owyhee County Planning and Zoning Commission will hear testimony on a conditional use permit application filed by Team One Ranch for Youth self described as “A Not-for-Profit Organization”.

The project summary filed with the application describes the proposal as: “...to develop a non-profit ranch for youth 12-18 years of age. The Ranch is designed with the goal of meeting all state requirements for becoming a fully-accredited Special Purpose School. The educational program will be designed to complete state requirements for a high school diploma.” Further on the summary states: “The Ranch will accommodate separate categories of youths. One group will fall within guidelines established and overseen by the Department of Juvenile Corrections... Youth ordered by the court to be held for adult criminal proceeding (Idaho Code 20-509) may be eligible for admission to Team One Ranch on a case by case basis. Another category for acceptance will be a fee-based private sector school completely separate from the juvenile facility. This operation will open as a co-educational residential private school with the goal of meeting all state requirements for becoming fully accredited. Students 12-18 will be eligible for admission.”

The proposed school facility and appurtenant structures will be located on approximately 3,000 contiguous acres in the vicinity of the old Poison Creek Stage Station and north to northwest of Poison Creek Road, between Hogg Road and Johnstone Road, south of Homedale in Township 2 North, Range 5 West in portions of Sections 9, 10, 14, 15, 16 and 21. An additional 1,000 acres proposed for use in conjunction with the Poison Creek facility is a ranch located off of Highway 95 west and south of the Rockville intersection in Township 2 South, Range 5 West in portions of Section 5 and Township 1 South, Range 5 West in portions of Sections 30, 31 and 32.

THANK YOU

We want to extend our thanks to our friends for the phone calls, cards, flowers and food at the time of our loss. We appreciate so much the words of encouragement over these last several months. A special thank you to Bishop Fisher for the beautiful service, to the Relief Society and Homedale Senior Citizens for the wonderful meal and to Aaron Times for his support and help at this very difficult time. The Family of Dorrene Packer
