Trojans girls beat Huskies for first victory

Last week's high school girls basketball game between Marsing and Homedale was one for the lost and found file.

After starting the season with four straight losses, the visiting Trojans found the key to victory. Mike Greeley got his first victory as Homedale coach, 43-39, against a Huskies team that lost sight of its team goals.

"We need to run our offense," Marsing coach Don Heller said. "I mean, we went over it: Make good cuts. Make good passes. Look for the skip pass."

The Huskies fell to 1-2 with their second straight loss, while Homedale moved to 1-4.

Marsing used its trademark pressure defense to cause a slew of turnovers in the half, but the Huskies were unable to capitalize on the numerous steals and left the door cracked for Homedale and Cheyanne Andrade.

The 5-foot-10 senior emerged in the third quarter as the Trojans turned the tide with a little help from the Huskies' ongoing ball-handling woes.

"Our last two practices, we've spent a third of it going over skip passes and reversing the ball, and we were just throwing it everywhere," Heller said. Marsing committed seven of its 18 turnovers in the third quarter.

Marsing gave the ball away twice in the first 90 seconds after halftime, and Andrade scored half of her game-high 14 points as Homedale sprinted out of the third quarter on a 17-4 run and with a 35-27 edge.

"It was a supreme effort on the girls' part tonight," Greeley said. "It was one of the best games they've played this season."

Faith Brasher converted a three-point play after Homedale broke Marsing's press for a 29-27 lead with 3 minutes, 51 seconds left in the third quarter. It was the first lead for the Trojans since the 1:28 mark of the opening quarter when Hailee Garrett hit consecutive 3-point goals for an 8-6 lead.

Homedale boys seek leadership

The Homedale High School boys basketball team is facing a challenging season, to say the least.

Gone are All-State player Nick Williams — redshirting at Treasure Valley Community College — and Bret Hopkins — who transferred to Caldwell and likely will start for the Cougars' basketball team.

But balancing the loss at the guard position is the coveted combination of size and speed in the Trojans' bigger men.

And that could make Brad Hill's first season at the helm a little easier than originally anticipated.

"I believe our team size and athleticism is a strength," the coach said. "I believe we can get out and run the floor and take advantage of our big kids' speed."

Ryan Rupp, a 6-foot-3 senior forward, will spearhead the speedy attack in the Trojans' frontcourt.

"Ryan is an excellent athlete who can run the floor and rebound," Hill said. "He is an intense competitor who plays extremely hard."

Adding to the athleticism of the frontcourt are the likes of center Garrett Sweet, a 6-5 center who led the Snake River Valley conference in receiving yards as a wide-out during the football season, and senior forward Erik Corbett.

"Erik is an intelligent player who can play a number of positions," Hill said. "He is a good ball-handler, which gives us a lot of flexibility."

Hill says 6-2 junior swingman Matt Holloway could be another key to the size and quickness advantage the new coach hopes to exploit.

With the likes of Hopkins and Williams both departed, versatility may be what the Trojans need if they hope to play to the potential of last year's 17-7 squad.

Big things expected

Marsing High School junior Shea McClellin dribbles during a drill at practice last week. McClellin was the Huskies' leading scorer last year, and coach Brian Thompson anticipates the same this season.

Marsing muscles into year

If recent history is any indication, the Marsing High School boys basketball team could be poised for a breakout performance this season.

As he enters his third season as leader of the Huskies' pack, coach Brian Thompson sees a roster peppered with bodies that easily could help Marsing crash through any barriers. And, if the team continues its trend of doubling win totals every year under Thompson, Marsing could be looking at a 20-win season.

"The outlook for the season is to improve from last year and accomplish something that has not happened at Marsing for the boys basketball team for a long time," Thompson said.

"And that is be on top."

The Huskies were 11-12 a year ago after winning half as many games during Thompson's first

Adrian rakes in OOL grid honors

Five Adrian High School players were placed on the All-Old Oregon League team this year, but Gene Mills thinks the Antelopes were short-changed.

Senior Harley Gordon was a two-way pick for the second team as a center and defensive tackle, but Mills — the Antelopes’ second-year coach — believes Adrian’s remoteness in the league diminished Gordon’s chances of a rightful spot on the first team.

“I was disappointed for Harley,” Mills said. “He should have been first team. He’s one of the top three linemen in the league, and I think there’s a northern bias and our kids don’t get the respect they deserve.”

Mills said the Antelopes averaged about 6 yards per rush this season, and as the team’s center, Gordon was crucial in the success of the ground game.

“He’s just a dynamite kid,” Mills said.

The Antelopes, who were 6-4 and reached the state playoffs for the first time since 1990, did have three first-team nominations.

“I was real happy with the way (the season) went overall for the “Schumacher is an excellent kicker — maybe a college-caliber kicker,” Mills said, adding that a kicking coach in California could be retained to help sharpen Schumacher’s skills and solidify his chances of nailing a college scholarship.

and he’s just a fine football player,” Mills said.

“If I had to pick an MVP for the team, it would be Chris.”

Senior cornerback Brett Buchholz was the other first-team selection for Adrian.

“Brett is a very good defensive back,” Mills said. “Brett got the respect he was due there. He’s an excellent tackler and a great pass defender.”

Sophomore Aaron Langley made the second team as a safety.

Derek Rios, a junior running back, was placed on the honorable mention list.

“I’m real proud of Derek,” Mills said. “He ran the ball extremely hard and blocked well. He did a really nice job.

“And he’s a junior, so it’s nice to have him coming back.”

Soph shines for Antelopes volleyball

Adrian High School volleyball player Paige Branstiter capped her sophomore season with an all-state tournament squad first-team selection.

She was also a first-team All-Old Oregon League pick and a first-team selection for the All-District Four team.

Branstiter was joined on the All-OOL team by juniors Sarah McPeak (second team) and Ryann Bowns (honorable mention).

Coach Aimee Goss’ team finished third at the district tournament and won the event’s sportsmanship award.

Trojans help West win Shrine Game

West 22, East 21

"They've always been one of our big rivals," Andrade said. "It's just nice to come out with a win against them."

Three of Andrade's four rebounds came on the defensive glass as Homedale out-boarded Marsing 27-19, including a 2-to-1 edge on the Huskies' backboards.

"Rebounding won the game for us tonight," Greeley said.

Homedale's Hailey Hall led the effort with a game-high 10 rebounds. Marsing's MJ Usabel led her squad with eight rebounds, including five on Homedale's end. But the 5-10 senior post missed her first seven shots and was held to four points on 1-for-9 shooting.

Marsing's passing decisions and shot selection deteriorated in the second half, giving Homedale the momentum needed to come back.

The Huskies struggled from the floor, shooting 27.8 percent (15-for-54), but no dry spell was as detrimental as the one in the game's final three minutes.

Angela Martinez fed Samantha Wilson for a jumper in the key with 3:16 left to pull Marsing within three points, 40-37, but the Huskies began taking poor shots again and wouldn't hit another field goal.

After Usabel drained a pair of foul shots for a 43-39 score with 23.2 seconds left, the Huskies got the ball back when Garrett dribbled the ball out of bounds off her foot. But Martinez's layup attempt was thrown too hard off the backboard, and Marsing's final chance was snuffed out.

"Not very smart," Heller said of his team's shot selection. "It was ridiculous that we didn't run our offense."

While the Huskies struggled from the floor, Homedale got a near-perfect performance from Andrade (5-for-7, 71.4 percent) and some crucial play from reserves Michelle Uria and Sarah Cline when Greeley was trying to rest his starters.

Uria's strong jump shot capped the third-quarter scoring for the Trojans.

"We had two subs off the bench that were huge for us," Greeley said.

Homedale JV clubs take two in Marsing

The Homedale High School junior varsity A girls basketball team collected its fourth consecutive victory Nov. 22 with a 51-28 victory over host Marsing.

Freshmen Mikal Mackenzie and Kendall Rupp scored eight points apiece for the Trojans.

Sophomore CC Zanardi was 5-for-6 from the foul line and finished with a game-high nine points for Marsing. Husky teammates Amanda Staudenmier and Liz Mandujano chipped in six points each.

Marsing turned things around in the second half, but were unable to overcome a slow start to its rematch with the Trojans.

"The first half we came out very passive, and the second half we were more aggressive," Marsing coach Wendy Heller said.

Kayla Stahle grabbed 11 rebounds for the Huskies. She added six steals and an assist.

Teammates Bianca Mascorro and Catriona Rost led the scoring with seven points apiece. They also helped on the defensive end of the floor with Rost grabbing seven steals and Mascorro swiping three.

"We pressed in the second half, and that helped us get steals and decrease Homeedale's scoring opportunities."

Coaches honor JV fall athletes

by Chelicy Payne, JVHS
Jordan Valley High School handed out its fall sports awards with a Nov. 22 event featuring players and coaches from the Mustangs' volleyball and football teams.
The players also presented their coaches with gifts as thanks for an awesome year.
Football coach Jeremy Chamberlain gave many speeches before handing out much-deserved award for the team's hard work.
For TRICO All-League:
Linebacker: First team, Jerry Wroten; second team, Frank Beckwith. Defensive back: Secoond team, Alek Quintero. Guard: Second team, Quirt Cornett. Center: Honorable mention, Paul McKay. End/receiver: Honorable mention, Tim Eiguren. Quarterback: Honorable mention, Quintero. Running backs: Second team, Frank Beckwith; honorable mention, Jerry Wroten.

Chamberlain also handed out awards that were decided by the players and coaches:
Most Valuable Player — Wroten. Defensive Player of the Year — Cornett, Offensive Player of the Year — Beckwith. Will to Win Most Inspirational — McKay. Coaches' Award — Eiguren.
Jordan Valley's varsity volleyball team was honored for its season as well.
Lauren Cuvelier (first team) and Angela Larsen (second team) were named the all-tournament team at the 1A Oregon state tournament where the Mustangs finished second.
TRIICO All-League:
First team — Cuvelier and Bailey Kershner. Second team — Michelle Baltzor and Michelle Elsner. Honorable Mention — Breann Hipwell.
Coach Jacques Naegle also handed out team awards, voted on by the players: Most Promising Player — Kelsey Prescott; Most Improved Players — Cassia Trautman and Chelicy Payne. Defensive Players of the Year — Hayley Johnson and Lacey Kershner. The coaches' award was given to the entire team.

The junior varsity volleyball players were honored by their coach for an awesome, undefeated season: Most Improved — Sequoi Trautman and Jessie White. Most Valuable Player — Dinah Powers and Kayla Cuvelier. Coach's Award — Beth Dowell. Most Hustle — Tina Stanford and Emma Johnson. Most Promising — Athena Beckwith and Nickie Naegle.

Raiders' Jones opens 25th year on the sidelines

Rebounding is name of game for Rimrock

Gary Jones has been coaching high school basketball long enough to know what it takes to succeed on the court.
And for the 2005-06 season, the veteran Rimrock High School boys coach has a nice nucleus of seniors to broadcast that recipe for success to the underclassmen.
"Team together, defend and rebound," Jones wrote as his team's philosophy. "If we do those three things, everything else will take care of itself and we will be competitive."
Jones opens his 25th season as Rimrock head coach tonight on the road against Owyhee, Nev.
His 2005-06 team has a lack of height, but don't let that fool you. The coach says Rimrock will be a strong rebounding team despite having just four players standing 6 feet or taller.
Marco Jacobo, a 5-foot-10 senior forward/center could be a key in making Jones' assessment ring true. The coach says Jacobo is a strong rebounder and defender.
Riley Timmons, a 5-10 junior forward/center, is another player returning from last year's 6-18 squad who could provide rebounding muscle for the Raiders.
Jacobo is one of the tallest seniors on the team. Anthony Hofer, a senior forward who quarterbacked the Raiders football team in the fall, is the tallest upperclassman at 6 feet. But the Raiders have only two players taller than him — 6-1 junior forward Michael Myers and 6-4 junior forward/center Stephen Campbell.

Myers didn't play organized basketball last year, according to Jones, but he has a good shot.
The fact that Myers and Campbell are both newcomers to the varsity program points out another Rimrock weakness — team depth. But the "team together" mentality could go a long way toward making up for that shortcoming.
"We will play hard, have fun and get better through the course of this season," Jones said.
Joining Hofer, Timmons and Jacobo as returners to the Rimrock varsity roster are Blake Welsh (5-6, senior, guard), German Granados (5-10, senior, guard/forward), Wes Aquiso (5-9, senior, guard) and Logan Thomas (5-10, sophomore, guard).
Hard-working Bobby Jackson (6-0, junior, forward) is one of three newcomers for the Raiders. Jones likes his work ethic, but admits he needs to work on his ball handling.
Ball handling is a recurring theme in Jones' scouting report for his squad, but so is a great shooting touch.
Welsh and Thomas could spark the outside shooting game, while Hofer possesses the post moves necessary to anchor an inside offense.
Jones looks to the season with optimism after two consecutive losing seasons. And he thinks the team will be right where it needs to be when February rolls around.
"Barring any injuries, we should be playing our best basketball and be very competitive down the stretch run at district tournament time," Jones said.

JV girls shift gears

by Chelicy Payne, JVHS

In the hustle and bustle of the Christmas season, some Jordan Valley High School athletes have more than their grades and homework to worry about. It's also the start of girls basketball season and grueling practices.

But, even though the running may seem too much right now, as the players get into shape, the workouts probably won't even be noticed.

Primarily because the Mustangs' volleyball team reached the Oregon state tournament this year, the Jordan Valley varsity and junior varsity basketball teams were already picked before the start of preseason practice.

Girls basketball coach Jeremy Chamberlain used knowledge from early practices to shape his varsity roster, and he knew something about the talent his team would have because of summer camps and his experience as coach last season.

"I'm really looking forward to this season. It will be fun and exciting," Chamberlain said. "We have a lot of returning player,s and I'm looking forward to that.

"We haven't had so many practices, so at the beginning of the season we'll rely on defense to get us through. But overall I believe that it's going to be a lot of fun."

The Mustangs have a lot of returning players this year, and also a lot of freshmen to add to the team.

Returning varsity players include Lauren Cuvelier, Cassia Trautman, Bailey Kershner, Breann Hipwell, Michelle Elsner, Lacey Kershner and Angela Larsen. There are a couple of newcomers, including Dinah Powers and Megan Mackenzie.

The junior varsity right now consists of Beth Dowell, Chelicy Payne, Shantel Gleason, Luisa Lowry, Sequoi Troutman, Kelsey Prescott, Annie Mackenzie, Jessie White, Athena Beckwith, Elisa Eiguren and freshmen Kayla Cuvilier, Emma Johnson, Catie Kershner, and Nickie Naegle.

The JV is being coached by Doug Rutan this year.

"The girls this year look extremely promising," Rutan said. "They have a lot of potential and with extra work and a little conditioning we should have a very successful year."

The Mustangs began the season Tuesday with a non-conference road game against Greenleaf Friends Academy.

Jordan Valley is scheduled to compete in the Adrian Tip-Off Tournament on Friday and Saturday in the Adrian Tip-Off Tournament.

Mustangs put young team on the court

by Alek Quintero

The Jordan Valley High School boys are done with football, so they're putting the helmets away and picking up the basketball sneakers. The Mustangs have 11 athletes going out for basketball, and the team will have a young look with five freshmen, four sophomores, one junior and one senior.

"Our goal this year is to improve in every game throughout the year," Jordan Valley head coach Ted Doramus said. "Everyone is looking forward to this season, even though it will be tough."

The Mustangs are only returning three players from last year, including junior Jerry Wroten and sophomores Tim Eiguren and Carlen Hipwell. Wroten is expected to bring his guard skills to the team as he did last year. He is expected to provide team leadership as well. Eiguren and Hipwell are expected to bring their ball-handling skills and shooting ability.

Jordan Valley newcomers consist of sophomores Josh Terry and Daniel Rothgeb, and five freshman —Alek Quintero, Zac Fillmore, Koehl Trautman, Cole Scown and Quirt Cornett. Terry will provide the Mustangs with some height, while Rothgeb is going to bring his guard skills. Quintero and Scown will assist the team in ball-handling. Fillmore, Trautman and Cornett will provide physical play for the Mustangs in the post.

"This year is more of a rebuilding year," assistant coach Mike Quintero said. "We have a lot of young talent that we can mold into a great team."

The Mustangs began the season Tuesday with a non-conference road game against Greenleaf Friends Academy. Jordan Valley is scheduled to compete in the Adrian Tip-Off Tournament on Friday and Saturday in the Adrian Tip-Off Tournament.

Looking for a shot

Homedale High School basketball player Zach Lootens moves toward the basket against teammate Matt Holloway during practice.

√ Trojans

Picking up the point guard mantle will be Andrew Vanderhoff, a 5-8, 150-pound senior.

"Andrew is an excellent leader who will have to move to the point guard position for us," Hill said. "He is a strong player with a good shooting touch."

Even with a senior coming in to run the point, Hill is concerned about the team's experience at the position overall. But the Trojans could make up for some shortcomings with their shooting.

"We shoot the ball well from mid-range and the free-throw line," Hill said.

Adding depth to the guard position will be first-year varsity player Andrew Davey, a 5-11 senior.

Cory Uria, a 5-11 junior guard, also will be entrusted with some ball-handling responsibilities.

"Cory is a player with good quickness and an improving shot," Hill said.

Two of the most versatile players on the team will be first-year varsity players and cousins Ian Lootens and Zach Lootens.

Both Lootens are seniors. Hill said he didn't expect any dings Zach received in a minor car accident early last week to affect his progress and play on the basketball court.

"Both are good ball-handlers who will provide us much-needed depth at both the forward and guard positions," Hill said.

The first-year coach, who hasn't guided a varsity program in nearly a decade, has enjoyed watching his new charges learn his system and philosophy.

"Slowly the kids are buying into the concept of playing hard, tough and intense defense," the former Kuna girls varsity coach said. "The kids are working extremely hard and are willing to learn."

Hill is an off-campus coach and is coming off a football season in which he helped coach Caldwell — and Hopkins — into the state playoffs. But Hill doesn't sense any resentment from his basketball players.

"I don't believe I could have asked for any better kids," he said. "Everyone at the school and the kids have been understanding and flexible when it comes to me coming from (Caldwell)."

year at the helm in the 2003-04 season.

"The 11-12 was a big improvement from the year before and previous years," Thompson said.

Marsing's trademark this season will be its size and competitiveness. Shea McClellin, a 6-foot-4 junior wing/post, returns as the team's leading scorer from last year and probably one of the best players in the 2A Western Idaho Conference.

McClellin averaged 12 points and 9 rebounds per game as a sophomore, and Thompson says he should be the club's leading scorer again this year.

"I hope Shea will take charge of the team and control what happens on the floor," Thompson said.

With 6-5 junior post Aaron Salvas and 6-3 senior post Chris Covey joining McClellin as returners to the varsity roster and the addition of 6-2 junior Johnathan Cossel, it's easy to understand why Thompson sees team height as a big advantage.

"Aaron will be a big inside influence for us this year," Thompson said. "He will score for us and rebound for us. He has long arms, which will help out defensively."

Covey is the scrapper of the bunch, Thompson said.

"He is the person that will get the loose balls," the coach said.

And providing more muscle on the glass and on defense be senior Ernie Villa, a 6-0 wing/post who is new to the varsity squad.

But for all the team's height and potential to dominate in the paint, Thompson is worried about his team's ability to score when opponents use zone defenses to seal off the inside.

"We do not shoot from the outside very well," Thompson admits.

But there are three newcomers to the team who might turn that around. Senior Brian Smith, a 6-0 wing, junior point guard Troy Dines (5-10) and junior point guard/wing Miguel Quebrado (5-7) all have good touches from the perimeter in Thompson's eyes.

David Marcial, a 5-6 junior point guard and wing, will help distribute the ball with speed and sharp passing.

"Every game we play this year will be challenging," Thompson said. "We will need to be on our 'A' game every night."
