FAIR RUNS THROUGH SATURDAY

HOMEDALE, OWYHEE COUNTY, IDAHO

RODEO DATES: TODAY THROUGH SATURDAY

Plenty to see at 2006 fair

Another Owyhee County Fair and Rodeo week has arrived.

And while some events have started already, things really get rolling today with the first day of popular entertainment, the opening of the commercial building and, of course, the start of the four-day rodeo.

Thousands of fairgoers are expected to descend on Homedale this week. The fair opens at 8 a.m. each day with the commercial building opening at 11 a.m.

"We had some people do some estimates, and they come up with 11,000 over a six-day period, including the campers," fair secretary/manager Teri Nielsen said.

Live entertainment is planned each night in the Tumbleweed

Rodeo gets ready to rock

Nearly 400 competitors will go after a chunk of a $35,000 purse beginning tonight in the annual Owyhee County Rodeo in Homedale.

Performances will be held each night through Saturday.

Gates open daily at 7 p.m. at the rodeo arena, with pre-rodeo events starting at 7:30 p.m.

The Idaho Cowboys Association-sanctioned rodeo action kicks off at 8 nightly.

The Owyhee rodeo is famous for its contests in ranch hand bronc riding, local team roping, junior steer riding, wild cow milking and wild horse racing.

The wild cow milking takes place Friday, and the wild horse race takes place Saturday.

Pre-rodeo events will include mutton bustin' each night, and rodeo secretary Ilene Canning said 4-year-old Marsing resident Lexie Loucks will sing the Star Spangled Banner each night.

Tickets for the covered grandstand are available for $10 at Matteson's Phillips 66 in Homedale. Discount grandstand admission is $8 today and Thursday, but tickets must be purchased in advance.

General admission tickets each night are $8 for adults and $5 for children 12-and-younger.

The (cool) place to be

With temperatures expected to hover in the mid-90s the rest of the week, the covered grandstand at the Owyhee County Fair and Rodeo arena will hold the most popular seats for the four-night run of the 2006 rodeo. Seats in the covered section cost $10 each and are available at Matteson's Phillips 66 in Homedale. Spectators can get $2 off the price of a covered section ticket for performances either tonight or Thursday when they purchase them in advance at Matteson's.

Parade brings out plenty of entries

With a theme like "Rock-a-Doodle-Do" and fair colors like lime-green and sky-blue, there really is no telling what decorations you might see Saturday during the Owyhee County Fair and Rodeo parade.

"It could be roosters. It could be bands. It could be rocks," parade coordinator Mary Tibbett said. "We come up with a lot of things in Owyhee County."

This year's parade will start at 10 a.m. Saturday on 4th Street East.

Paul's Markets founder Paul Zatica is this year's grand marshal.

The route heads south before turning west on to Idaho Avenue. Participants then head north on Third Street West then east onto Owyhee Avenue to wind back toward Homedale High School.

Registration, which is always free, begins at 8:30 a.m., and judging will be held at 9 a.m. Registration for horse-related entries takes place at the Deward Bell Stadium football field. Community floats will be registered in the Homedale High School parking lot. Antique car entries will be taken on Fourth Street East near the Homedale

Electric warehouse, Tibbett said.

Tibbett also said that a color guard from Mountain Home Air Force Base will lead the parade.

"Please remember to tip your hats and salute the gentlemen in uniform," she said.

The fair board and rodeo board sponsor the parade, and cash prizes are available for best automobile, best float and the sweepstakes float for best decoration incorporating the fair's theme. Other prizes include a children's section, youth group contest and buggies and wagons.

Tibbett said this is her eighth year as parade superintendent, and that her staff helps make her most hectic day of the year run smooth.

"I have great, great, faithful volunteers that always help me," she said. "We gather for orange juice, donuts and coffee, and they just go out and do a great job for me."

And the quality of the parade is reflected in the size of the audience that is expected to line the streets again this year.

"The whole county gets involved in this," Tibbett said. "It's been a really good turnout. The crowd is bigger every year."

Theatre, including dances with live bands and a hypnotist each night.

"All we have to do is move the benches, and we have a great dance floor right there," Nielsen said.

Entries for flowers and leafy green vegetables and the A Bountiful Harvest contest will be taken at 8 a.m. today.

Throughout the week, 4-H and FFA members will show their animals in the Livestock Barn and in special events at the Tumbleweed Theatre for small animals, cats and dogs. The fair culminates for those children with the Owyhee County Junior Livestock Sale at noon Saturday in the Livestock Barn.

Other contests this week include:

- A cow pie eating contest at 7 p.m. today inside the Livestock Barn. There are categories for children 8 years old and younger, ages 9-14 and 15 and older.

- The Veggie People Making at noon Thursday.

- The milk drinking contest at 7 p.m. Thursday inside the Livestock Barn. It has the same age groups as the cow pie eating contest.

- A pie-baking contest at 11 a.m. Friday on the Tumbleweed Theatre stage. Contestants must bring their pies — already cooled — to the stage between 10 a.m. and 10:45 a.m.

- Pedal Tractor Pull for children ages 5-11 at 2 p.m. Friday at the Tumbleweed Theatre.

- Rain For Rent siphon tube-setting contest at 4 p.m. Friday behind the National Guard armory.

- Roping contest at 7 p.m. Friday in the Livestock Barn. It's open to ages 9 and older.

For complete guidelines for all contests, pick up a fair book at the offices of The Owyhee Avalanche, the fair office or the post offices in Marsing and Homedale.

"We have some cool things that are uniquely Owyhee County," Nielsen said.

Slash T Rodeo Co. fuels rodeo action again

Gooding family business celebrates 25 years of supplying stock for rodeos

The Gooding-based Slash T Rodeo Co., has been providing stock for rodeos throughout the West — including this year's Owyhee County Fair and Rodeo — for 25 years.

But Juanita and Pat O'Maley — the Slash T company's owners and operators — do more for the sport of rodeo than supply bulls and bucking horses. The O'Maleys are strong supporters of rodeo from every angle.

Last month's Daniel Dopps Memorial Rodeo at Optimist Park in Mountain Home was the product of the family's desire to place a rodeo in that community.

"Because we were good friends with Daniel Dopps and his family, we asked them if they would be interested in doing a memorial rodeo in memory of Daniel," Juanita O'Maley wrote in an e-mail.

The Dopps rodeo, a Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association event held July 14-15, emerged from a conversation with Todd McCurry from the Mountain Home Auto Ranch car dealership during a meeting at a Chinese restaurant in Mountain Home. The rodeo honored the memory of the young bull rider who died from injuries suffered at a Grace rodeo last year — one week before the Owyhee rodeo.

In addition to celebrating 25 years in the rodeo stock business, the O'Maleys recently marked their 40th wedding anniversary at — where else? — a rodeo in Glens Ferry. Their daughter, Patti, helps coordinate company stock at rodeos, too.

Pat O'Maley is no stranger to the business end of a bull, either. He won Idaho Cowboys Association bull riding championships in 1977 and 1971. Juanita and Pat won the ICA's Ivin Pollard Award in 1996 and 1995, respectively.

Slash T animals to look for at the Owyhee County Rodeo beginning tonight include Oreo, a belted black and white bull that has been to the National Finals Rodeo and weighs in at more than a ton.

Snake Eater also makes an appearance. This bull scored 95 points to win highest-marked ride of the round with Terry Don West hanging on at the 2003 NFR.

Bucking stock Tall Timber, Pay Day, Strawberry Roan, Desperado and Northern Lights will be doing their stuff at the Owyhee Rodeo, too, either bucking off riders or taking them to the pay window.

Slash T has a long list of top bucking animals. A lot of bucking stock has been born into the O'Maleys' "Born to Buck" program, and the animals are doing a super job bucking, Juanita says. One such horse from that program is Ringtail, a 20-year-old horse that also has mothered other great bucking stock as Gone Wild.

The company had stock at Red Lodge, Mont., and will be traveling to Barstow, Calif., later in September. Other rodeos for which the Idaho company has provided stock include the ICA Finals at the Idaho Center in Nampa, the Dodge Circuit Finals Rodeo in Pocatello, the Wrangler National Finals Rodeo in Las Vegas and the Wilderness Circuit Finals in Ogden, Utah.

Homedale photographer puts rodeo in focus

Jordan Valley native uses camera to continue his relationship with sport

The West runs thick in Bill Bruce's blood, and — as expected — so does family.

So when Bruce walked away from the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association rodeo circuit to raise his family, he had to find another outlet for his passion for ropin' and ridin'.

Call it zoomin' and snappin'.

"My kids were competing in rodeo, and I started taking pictures of them and it just kind of developed," said Bruce, who lives off U.S. Highway 95 between Homedale and Marsing.

What started as a way to fill the family photo album has turned into a business that Bruce loves.

He has been clicking photos at the Owyhee County Rodeo since 2000, one year after he started rodeo and western photography as a profession.

"It's just kind of being a part of it and everything," Bruce said of the draw of photography. "Being out in the arena and seeing the people you like to be around.

"When you get a good picture, it's like a good ride. You have to be in time with (the action) just like you would have to be in time with a horse. It's a good feeling."

Bruce has had plenty of opportunities to get that feeling since he began shooting rodeos in 1999.

He estimates he rolls up between 15,000 and 20,000 miles to visit about 50 rodeos each year, including the big ones like the Snake River Stampede in Nampa and the Caldwell Night Rodeo and Oregon's Pendleton Roundup.

Of all the shows to which he has put a flash, Bruce says he likes the Big Loop in Jordan Valley the best.

"I grew up there, and it's kind of a unique rodeo," he said.

His nephew, Josh Bruce, still calls Jordan Valley home and often rodeos on the Idaho Cowboys Association circuit, on which this week's Owyhee County Rodeo is a stop.

Bill Bruce made the jump in technology at the start of this season, acquiring a Nikon digital camera for his work.

That probably won't make the job of shooting inside the arena at Homedale any easier, though.

"Homedale is really, really tough to shoot because it gets dusty," Bruce said. "It's always a challenge."

He also photographs other Western events, including brandings, which he does from horseback. He has traveled to Australia and Canada to document horse trainer Ray Hunt's clinics.

Bruce has known horseback and rodeo all his life. His father, Cecil, supplied rodeo stock from his ranch on Mann Creek north of Weiser in the 1930s and 1940s.

Bill Bruce was born in 1959, the youngest of six children, and embarked on a rodeo career at an early age. He started in junior steer riding and worked his up to the ICA and PRCA.

He attended Treasure Valley Community College on a rodeo scholarship. His specialty was saddle bronc.

Bruce built an arena near the house he shares with his wife, Jaleene, and that arena serves as a practice grounds for area high school rodeo athletes. Bryan Martinat of Homedale High School used the arena to hone saddle bronc skills that carried him to a 12th-place finish in last month's National High School Finals Rodeo.

"My favorite rodeo event to shoot is the high school rodeo," Bruce said. "I like being around the kids and helping them and seeing them do good and watching them grow.

"There are kids that I was taking photos of in high school that are in the PBR (Professional Bull Riders) and PRCA now."

And chances are more cowboys will emerge as Bruce continues to fire his shutter.

"My goal is to be a part of rodeo the rest of my life," he said.

Owyhee County Rodeo revisited

Under his WT Bruce Photography banner, Homedale resident Bill Bruce has been photographing dozens of rodeos each year since 1999. In 2000, he began shooting images of the Owyhee County Rodeo, from which these two action shots emerged. Bruce grew up in Jordan Valley and competed in saddle bronc on the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association for a few years. Photos by WT Bruce Photography

Owyhee Rodeo Board updates stock-holding area at arena

Members of the Owyhee County Rodeo Board spent a few work nights down at the rodeo arena during the heat wave in July making sure that the show will go off without a hitch this week.

The rodeo board and fair board financed the purchase of new rodeo panels for the loading pens outside the arena. Rodeo board members installed the green and brown panels in the weeks before the rodeo.

Rodeo board member Mike Matteson said the entire staging area for the rough stock animals has been revamped.

Rob Black, family ride on after tragedy

Owyhee native, relatives return for another Owyhee rodeo

The Owyhee County Rodeo always has been a special time for Rob Black.

"It really is because it is one of the first ones I ever went to as a kid," he said. "We were from Bruneau, it was the county fair and it was one of the first rodeos I ever entered."

This year, the rodeo where the Owyhee County native cut his teeth holds even more meaning as the Black family continues to compete only weeks after the tragic death of his son, Blaise.

"It's always one of my favorite rodeos because it's one of the best ones of the year," Rob Black said. "In the last five or six years, Blaise and I both placed at it really well. I won all-around a couple times."

Blaise, who can be considered the catalyst for his father's return to the rodeo circuit about eight years ago, died in an industrial accident in New Plymouth on July 7.

The Black family — Rob's wife, Mikal, and daughters, Lindsay Marie and Marissa, and Blaise's wife, Lindsay Lee — returned to the rodeo soon after Blaise's funeral.

They're a rodeo family. It's what rodeo families do.

"It'll be very special, of course," Rob said of the Owyhee rodeo. "One of the big reasons is we always went as a family anyway, and it seems like now — the weekend after Blaise's funeral — the girls all wanted to go to rodeos that we were entered in."

"The girls" have been doing quite well in 2006 rodeos. Marissa competed in the National College Finals Rodeo for Montana State University in the spring, and all four placed in breakaway roping during a July 21-22 swing through Idaho Cowboys Association

Former tie down champion honored by ICA

Former Owyhee County resident Blaise Black, shown during the Idaho City rodeo last year, won the 2005 Idaho Cowboys Association tie down roping championship. The 25-year-old Meridian resident died in an industrial accident in New Plymouth last month, and the ICA has named the saddle awarded to its season tie down roping champ in memory of Black. on his relationship with his late son, Blaise rodeos in St. Anthony, Oakley and Carey. Rob said Marissa came out on top in St. Anthony and Carey.

The Black family will be out in force at the Owyhee rodeo. Rob said most of the family is scheduled to compete on the same night this year. Rob is joining his nephew, Mark, in team roping. Rob says his brother, Tim, and nephew Brady also will compete in Homedale. Brady is a Homedale

High School graduate.

Rob and Mark finished second in team roping in St. Anthony and split third and fourth in Glens Ferry on July 28-29. Rob won the tie down roping 18/40 title at St. Anthony. Rob and Mark finished first and second, respectively, in tie down at Glens Ferry.

Rob Black has been a fixture on the ICA circuit stretching back to the late 1970s. He won the circuit's team roping championship with Sam Mackenzie in 1978, and pulled off that feat again 23 years later in 2001 with Blaise. That same year, Rob won his third ICA all around crown with Blaise being named reserve champion.

And Rob insists that the Homedale stop always is a key element to his championship runs.

But if it weren't for Blaise, Rob never may have returned to the rodeo arena after winning the ICA all around in 1980.

"I didn't rodeo for 17 years," Rob said. "Then when Blaise got to high school, we got Blaise a roping horse and I got my knee operated on so I could rodeo again."

Rob and his son periodically partnered in team roping, finishing third at the ICA Finals at Nampa's Idaho Center last October. Blaise won last year's ICA tie down roping title, which Rob had collected in 2000.

The ICA has named the saddle it awards to its season tie down roping champion in honor of Blaise. Rob recently was ranked as high as third in the season standings for the event.

"One of my goals would be to win the year-award, and Homedale is a big part of it,"

Just like rodeo was a big part of Blaise's life and continues to be a focal point for the entire Black family.

"It's just kind of what we did," Rob said of his strong bond with his son. "We worked hard and played hard. All him and I had always really done is worked on business things, cleaning up things — we buy and sell real estate.

"Rodeo was always in there because that's what we do."

Homedale seniors present Buckaroo Breakfast again

The Homedale Senior Citizens Center's annual Buckaroo Breakfast roared out of the chute Tuesday for a five-day run in downtown Homedale. The meal always is held in conjunction with the Owyhee County Fair and Rodeo each August.

The breakfast, which has been a longtime fund-raiser for the center, will be held from 7 a.m. to 10 a.m. today through Saturday in the senior center parking lot at 224 W. Idaho Ave.

The menu includes hotcakes, sausage, eggs and a drink, either coffee, milk or orange drink.

The cost is $5 for adults and $2 for children younger than 12.

Senior center coordinator Shirley McAbee said last week that Just Country, a group of western Treasure Valley musicians, will provide live country-western music each day at breakfast.

Last year's series of breakfasts attracted more than 1,000 diners and raised about $4,000 for the center after expenses, McAbee said.

For more information, call the senior center at (208) 337-3020.

Hypnotist presents encore performances

Treasure Valley hypnotist Greg Hassakis makes a return to the Tumbleweed Theatre this year at the Owyhee County Fair. Hassakis will appear for nightly performances today and Thursday at 9 and Friday at 8 p.m. He has shows at 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. on Saturday. Other events scheduled for the Tumbleweed Theatre include nightly dances. On Wednesday, the Sevy Family Band from Marsing will perform, while another country music band, the Sunset Riders, takes the stage Thursday. Friday, fairgoers can dance to DJ music, and a Saturday country family dance with music from the Howlin' Coyotes also is planned.

Old and new sights

ICA handed out first rodeo titles 50 years ago

Owyhee County has provided great competitors over the years

The Owyhee County Rodeo is one of nearly 60 events sanctioned by the Idaho Cowboys Association during the 2006 rodeo season.

The ICA serves as a sanctioning body for rodeos not only in Idaho, but also in Oregon, Nevada and Washington state. The ICA season will end this year on Oct. 6-7 with the ICA Finals rodeo at the Idaho Center in Nampa.

According to the 2006 ICA schedule, which can be found on the organization's Web site at www.icarodeo.com, this week's rodeo in Homedale is the only such Owyhee County event sanctioned by the ICA this year.

The ICA was created a half-century ago to promote the sport of rodeo. The circuit's list of champions stretch back to 1956.

Through the ICA, rodeos attract bigger crowds and cowboys and cowgirls compete for larger prize-money pools.

All rodeos sanctioned by the ICA meet standards set to enhance the quality of the rodeo, the talent of all competitors and the safety of the rodeo stock.

Most rodeos approved by the ICA average three performances and attract about 1,500 spectators for each day of action. Many rodeos in July and August — like the Owyhee County Rodeo — are held in conjunction with county fairs.

The ICA membership is dotted with folks from all walks of life. Some are professional cowboys who enjoy following a rodeo circuit that keeps them close to home. Others are businessmen and businesswomen, ranchers, farmers and horse trainers.

After a half-century of sanctioning rodeos, the association has earned a reputation for producing top cowboys and has been a proving ground for many professional cowboys.

And Owyhee County has been a big part of that.

Names like Rob and Blaise Black, Luke and Joel Jeffries, Tim and Jackie Roeser, Mike Pendergrass, Richard and Jason Eiguren Sam Mackenzie Sr., and Bryan Martinat pepper the ICA championship scrolls, and many more compete at a high level today.

The Owyhee County stop on the ICA circuit is exemplary of that sanctioning body's quest to preserve the spirit of the Old West through decades of rodeo tradition.

Crowd favorite

Bull riding long has been a staple for the Idaho Cowboys Association. Mike Sparks takes a ride during the 2004 Owyhee County Fair and Rodeo. The Owyhee rodeo has been a big part of the ICA circuit, too. At least six cowboys with ties to the Owyhee area have won the association's all around championship.

THANK YOU

The Mary Prow family would like to express our many thanks for the beautiful flowers, donations of food and cards, the many donations of money to the Senior Center, the wonderful loving support and words of encouragement and comfort. Special thanks to Kathy at Homedale Care Center and thanks to the rest of the staff for Mary's care during the past five months. Thank you. Verva "Jodi" and Frank Gilbert and family, Brenda Watts and family, and Larry and Darlene Prow and family.

I would like to send a big thank-you to all the people who helped contribute to my trip to the National high school rodeo finals in Springfield, Illinois. Without the support I wouldn't have done what I did. I had a great time and it was a good experience. Thanks again. Bob & Wendy Olsen, Regan Lawson, Jim & Jamie Kirk, John Whitley & Deanna Everett, Larry & Carol Rudd, Bill and Donna Watterson, George & Jaci Miller, Kim McKenzie, Mike Matteson, Dr. Jeppe, Perfection Repair, Mary Martinat, Bill & Jalene Bruce, Dominator Performance Diesel and to my parents Kim and Tony and my sisters Kelsey and Toni Jo Martinat, my traveling partner Mark Gage and all my rodeo friends.
