Mustangs fight back emotions to capture school's first state championship in sport

Playing with heavy hearts, the Jordan Valley High School volleyball team made history Saturday by winning the school's first 1A Oregon state championship.

The Mustangs wrapped up the championship at Pacific University in Forest Grove, Ore., with an 18-25, 25-21, 25-21, 13-25, 15-9 victory over Griswold. Jordan Valley finished the season 19-1 after a 20-1 campaign in 2005.

"(The Mustangs) believe in each other and their ability, and I could not be prouder to be involved with the 25 young ladies that Coach Elsner and I had the opportunity to coach this year," Jordan Valley coach Jacque Naegle said. Naegle didn't mention the tragedy in her press release.

The championship came four days after the Tanuya D. Clark, the mother of Mustangs player Chelicy Payne, died in an early-morning, single-car rollover accident on Interstate 84 near Caldwell.

Clark's niece, Jessie White, also is a member of the Mustangs' team.

"Chelicy and Jessie were very courageous in going ahead and playing and doing a great job they are truly members of a championship team but more important very strong young adults," Naegle said.

A memorial service is scheduled for 1 p.m. today inside the Jordan Valley gymnasium. Naegle said the team will dress in their road uniforms and support Payne, White and their families at the funeral.

Naegle said the team rallied behind White and Payne, whose sister, Shelly, made the trip to the Portland area on the team bus to support her older sibling.

"The dedication and prayers that they made were between the team members just like they have done all year before each game," Naegle said. "They just hit a little closer to home this weekend."

Ex-Trojan helps Third World

Haylett helps Nicaraguans maintain dental health

Kelsi Haylett has kept busy since graduating from Homedale High School. But she still has found the time to travel abroad.

Of course, her travels were directly related to her pursuit of a degree in dental hygiene at the Oregon Institute of Technology.

She spent a couple weeks last month in the Matalgalpa province of western Nicaragua providing free dental services to the needy. The trip was part of a program through which OIT students travel to assist people in Third World countries.

"It was just a wonderful opportunity to get to help out those in need while gaining knowledge and experience, which would not be gained through school clinics alone," Haylett wrote in an e-mail to The Owyhee Avalanche last week.

Now the 22-year-old Haylett is back in Klamath Falls, tackling her senior year as a student-athlete. She's planning women's basketball now for the Hustlin' Owls and plans to graduate from OIT in June after finishing her

Don't call it a revolution

Even under new coach, Rimrock merely reloads for run at State

Rimrock High School's girls basketball team opened the season Friday night with a new coach, a slew of new faces and possibly a new philosophy.

"We hope to be a fast-break team and then set it up and do a half-court offense when necessary," first-year coach Mike Chandler said. "And that was tough to do during the summer because (the Raiders) weren't used to running, but they've really picked up on it."

Chandler, a longtime assistant on the Rimrock staff, takes over from Bob Delle, who retired after the Raiders' fourth-place finish in last year's 1A state tournament.

Delle, who used a methodic half-court scheme to lead Rimrock to a pair of state championships and oversaw a 50-game winning streak, turned out the lights on his career after seven seniors walked out of the gymnasium for the final time last season.

But Chandler, who will carry seven full-time varsity players and enlist the part-time help of three swing players between the junior varsity and parent club, isn't worried about finding the cupboard bare to start the 2006-07 season.

"We have a good crew of girls. We really do," he said. "We have some young kids that will come

Huskies, Trojans girls forced to wait to tip off hoops season

Lack of practices triggers postponement of weekend showdown between Owyhee County teams

Last weekend's scheduled girls basketball season opener between Homedale and Marsing high schools was postponed until Dec. 1.

Trojans coach Mike Greeley, who is beginning his second year at the helm, said the game was moved from its Saturday date because the Huskies haven't had the required number of practices to be eligible to play games yet.

The Idaho High School Activities Association mandates that teams complete 10 practices before playing their first games.

Marsing was scheduled to play host to Greenleaf Friends Academy on Tuesday, and will continue the season Thursday on the road against Payette.

Meanwhile, junior wing Taryn Corta and senior post Whitney Tackett had to wait with their Homedale teammates until Tuesday to start the season. The Trojans were scheduled to play host to New Plymouth. Homedale next plays on the road against Parma on Thursday.

Results from the Tuesday games for Homedale and Marsing weren't available at press time. Both Corta and Tackett were inadvertently left out of the Trojans' season preview that appeared in last week's edition of The Owyhee Avalanche.

Corta and Tackett both spent the bulk of their playing time on the junior varsity a year ago.

Greeley said recently that Corta will only add to the Trojans' team speed this season.

"She'll bring speed and quickness to the game, and she's awesome on defense," Greeley said. "She's just like a little bulldog. She just goes after them."

Greeley admitted that Corta's aggressive style could lend itself to foul trouble.

The coach is looking to Tackett as a rebounding force for the Trojans.

"She's going to be ripping boards for me," the coach said.

SRV coaches reward Trojans for historic girls soccer season

The Homedale High School girls soccer team landed five players on the All-Snake River Valley conference team after the most successful season in the history of the program.

Sophomores Hannah Johnson, Kendall Rupp and Sierra Aberasturi were placed on the all-conference first team.

Johnson and Rupp were the top offensive threats for coach Lesa Folwell, while Aberasturi was a bright spot during her first season as goalkeeper.

Honorable mention selections included senior Whitney Tackett and freshman Jessica Eubanks.

"All of them had a terrific season," Folwell said.

The Trojans finished the season at 4-9 overall, and picked up the first overall victory and the first SRV win in school history.

Three of the athletes — Johnson, Rupp and Tackett — have shifted gears and helped Homedale's varsity girls basketball team open its season Tuesday at home against New Plymouth.

Those who helped

Kelsi Haylett said she wanted to thank the following businesses and individuals who helped make her trip to Nicaragua possible:

Owyhee Family Dental (Dr. Jepps), Landa Farms, Shanley Trucking, Uria Pump, Hopkins Evergreens, Dr. Mansfield's Dental Office, Sid and Delores Harris, Chris and Deitra Batt, Luke and Ylonda Hays, Ray and Josie Johnson, Ron and Joan Kaufman, Karla and Greg Haylett and Bruce and Benita Miller.

gone," she said.

The insanity of the moment, no doubt, is worth it considering what she helped accomplish for the Northwest Medical Teams International (NWMTI) mobile dental unit between Oct. 4 and Oct. 24 that visited schools in neighboring towns around the coffee plantation community of Santa Luz. The area collectively is called Aguas Amarillas.

Haylett and seven other OIT students flew to the Nicaraguan capital of Managua after earning spots on the team through the submission of a letter and an interview process.

"NWMTI set us up with a local program in Nicaragua, which helps the community with different medical problems, and we helped with the dental aspect of that program," Haylett said.

NWMTI's trip was accomplished in conjunction with Accion Medica Cristiana in Nicaragua, for which Haylett and the others worked during their three-week stay. She said there were three dentists, five translators, cooks drivers and "numerous others," who helped out.

"They we all wonderful and very organized and were very willing to teach and allow us to learn," Haylett said.

One dentist was Dr. Alicia Reyes, a local practitioner who Haylett says did her best to make the students feel comfortable in unfamiliar surroundings and conditions.

"She was just a happy lady who wanted to do the best for her people," Haylett said. "She welcomed us with open arms and taught us so much.

"She wanted us to learn and to experience everything, and she was so encouraging when we were nervous or scared to perform procedures."

But Haylett and her OIT colleagues weren't the only Americans on the trip. Dr. Belina Forbes is an American dentist who moved to the Central American country after marrying a Nicaraguan national 17 years ago.

"She was also amazing to work with," Haylett said. "She was very down to Earth and excited for us to gain knowledge of new procedures."

Some of the lessons Haylett learned undoubtedly won't be taught stateside. During an electricity outage during tooth decay removal, she was forced to place temporary fillings in a patient's teeth.

Although essentially a mobile team, Haylett and her colleagues provided a full array of dental care services, including cleanings, fillings, anesthesia, veneers, sutures and extractions. Haylett said sutures and extractions are two procedures that hygienists aren't allowed to perform in the United States.

Haylett learned first-hand how eager Nicaraguans are to maintain healthy teeth.

"We would open our clinic in the morning, and there would be people waiting outside for us to open," she said.

along during the season and really be a great help."

The team will revolve around the two returners from last year's squad — junior guards Ellie Cantrell and Shelby Chandler.

"They have some varsity experience, and they're basically the veterans of the team," Mike Chandler said. "Both of them are excellent 3-point shooters. They shoot the ball well."

Shelby Chandler scored 16 points Friday night as the short-handed Raiders opened the season with a 52-18 victory over Cole Valley Christian in Meridian. Only five Rimrock players saw action Friday because not all the athletes had achieved the required number of practices to play in a game.

Four of the five Raiders on the floor Friday scored in double figures, with Cantrell and Kailie Murray chipping in 11 points apiece. Freshman Jackie Thurman added 10 points as Rimrock led by a familiar, large margin at halftime, 27-8.

Cantrell, a 5-foot-6 athlete who could see some time at post, and the 5-6 Shelby Chandler have been statistical leaders on the JV for the past two seasons. Cantrell averaged 1.4 points and 1.5 rebounds per game when she saw time in varsity games a year ago.

"From junior high sports up, she has been basically the leader of the bunch," Mike Chandler said of Cantrell. "She works hard at everything she does.

"It's one of those things. What Ellie says, they will do. They really do well under her leadership."

Shelby Chandler, who averaged 1.7 points per varsity game last year, is the top scorer returning for the Raiders.

The new coach's tone exudes the impression that Rimrock is just reloading, not rebuilding, even with the loss of scoring and strength from the likes of Emily Chandler (team-high 11.9 ppg., 5.4 rebounds per game), Robyn Ridley (11.4 ppg., 6.0 rpg.), Melanie Simper (8.4 ppg., team-high 7.3 rpg.) and Shannon Hipwell (8.4 ppg., 7.1 rpg.).

"I think they expect to win. They don't hope to win," Mike Chandler said of athletes involved in the Rimrock program. "They come out saying, 'It's a new year, and we're going to win just like the other teams did.'

"We've had some great girls that are nice kids besides. They've respected the kids that have been ahead of them, and a lot of them try to emulate those ahead of them."

It's not a bad recipe to follow. The Raiders have finished on the winners' bracket side of the state tournament every season since at least the 1999-2000 season, and they won back-to-back state titles in 2003 and 2004. Rimrock has been the odds-on favorite to win the 1A Western Idaho Conference championship each season for at least a decade.

The likes of Greenleaf Friends Academy and Gem State Adventist in Caldwell notwithstanding, Chandler foresees another conference championship banner.

"I believe we can win the league. Definitely our toughest competition is going to be Greenleaf, because they've got three good girls," he said. "And Gem State, you never really know what they've got."

The Raiders, on the other hand, will have a young roster. There are only two seniors — 5-6 post Laura Zaragoza and 5-5 BreAnn Merrick — but they played their junior seasons on the JV club a year ago.

Freshmen Jackie Thurman (5-9) and Anna Cantrell (5-10) will work to replace the height lost from last year's team.

"They're very, very talented players," Chandler said.

Kailie Murray, a 5-6 sophomore, also will bring some rebounding prowess.

"She's going to be a significant player at guard and at post," the coach said.

Chandler said his athletes show the ability to grasp his game plan, and that has made him eager to see what can happen on the floor. After losing their first 12 games in summer play, the Raiders won six consecutive games in the Treasure Valley tournament, beating teams such as Parma, Greenleaf and Cole Valley Christian.

"I've been looking forward to (the season) since this summer," he said. "We had our camp and played the games, and there are just great possibilities to come out of this year. And the kids are just some of the nicest kids that you could ever coach."

Adrian volleyball finishes third in 1A Oregon tournament

Adrian High School junior Paige Branstiter uses every bit of her 6-foot frame to block a shot by a Days Creek player in the Antelopes' first-round 25-11, 25-14, 25-17 victory Friday morning. Branstiter and senior teammate Sarah McPeak earned first-team All-State honors as Adrian stumbled in the semifinals before beating Mohawk 25-17, 25-19, 25-21 to bring home the third-place trophy from Pacific University in Forest Grove, Ore. Adrian lost to Griswold, 10-25, 25-18, 20-25, 25-23, 15-7, in the semifinals. Senior setter Ryann Bowns was a second team All-State selection. Adrian, which is coached by Aimee Goss, finished the season at 26-3 after the Antelopes' second consecutive trip to the state tournament. ✓ JV wins Facing an emotional two-day trek through the state tournament, the Mustangs rallied from two games down in both the first round and the semifinals.

Jordan Valley dropped the first game of the title match against Griswold, but came back behind the strength of championship match most valuable player Michelle Elsner. She racked up 11 kills, 11 digs and seven blocks as the Mustangs beat Griswold to improve on last year's second-place finish in the state tournament.

"One of the questions we kept getting asked was how a team this small in size could keep the pace with the teams that had girls so much bigger than us?" Naegle said. "The one thing that I know about our team is that while most of the team is around 5 feet, 5 inches tall, they truly know what a team is and how to work together and not give up."

Senior Angela Larsen capped her first-team All-State performance with six blocks and eight kills against Griswold. Larsen was a second-team all-tourney player as a junior when Jordan Valley finished second in the state tournament.

Elsner joined Bailey Kershner and Kelsey Prescott on the All-State second team. Kershner dished 24 assists in the championship match, while Prescott had six kills and eight digs.

Payne racked up five kills, two digs and a block in the title match.

Griswold reached the state title match by beating Adrian in a semifinal marathon, 10-25, 25-18, 20-25, 25-23, 15-7. The Antelopes, who beat Jordan Valley for the High Desert League regular-season championship this year, swept Mohawk 25-17, 25-19, 25-1, in the third-place match.

The Mustangs arrived in the town outside Portland facing an emotional adversity, and that carried over on to the court with a sluggish start Friday morning.

"We were having problems passing the ball and getting our sets up where we needed them," Naegle said. "We struggled to get a steady rhythm going. We would come on and play fairly well then go cold and be on the defensive."

Jordan Valley lost the first two games of its opener against Willamette Valley Christian only to storm back for a 22-25, 21-25, 25-19, 25-23, 15-7 victory.

Nickie Naegle led the defense with 10 digs, and Kershner added eight. Larsen led the offense with 15 kills, while Elsner added 14 and Payne chipped in seven. Larsen also had a team-high five blocks. Breann Hipwell set a team-high 26 balls.

In the semifinal, Jordan Valley defeated mighty Mohawk, which had lost only 11 games all year and entered the Friday night showdown on a 14-match winning streak that included knocking off 2005 state champion Dufur. Prescott had 11 digs and Hipwell added nine in the Mustangs' 25-21, 22-25, 13-25, 25-19, 15-9 victory.

Kershner recorded 19 assists, while Larsen and Elsner carded 10 kills apiece.

"We didn't really run our offense effectively and relied on the defense to keep us in the game," Naegle said. "The girls again held together and kept their heads and pulled off the victory."

On the edge of common sense

The cowboy’s document of contrition

Whereas the average cowboy is a person of good intentions, generous to a fault and kind to women, children and animals, and Whereas said cowboy is often in the right place at the wrong time and driven by an over-developed sense of chivalry, bravado and/or tradition, and Whereas you may frequently find said cowboy entangled at the center of many a controversial, embarrassing or blatantly stupid miscarriage of sanity;

This form is offered as a document in which said cowboy acknowledges his participation in some grievous social, marital, work-related, animal inspired or tequila-afflicted misbehavior.

(offender please circle one or more of these excuses):

I freely admit that I lost control of

a) My mouth

b) My good dog

c) The balloons full of beer I was juggling
2.

I now realize that

a) It was not as funny as I thought

b) You didn’t have fire (flood) insurance

c) Weed eaters are not the proper way to slice cheesecake
3.

It is true

a) I didn’t know your uncle had a pacemaker when I handed him the Hotshot

b) You should avoid microwaving paint gun balls

c) Skeet shooting should be done outdoors

I will not be surprised to know that my hosts

a) Really expected a more mature behavior

b) Have written me out of the will

c) Have filed suit to recover the cost of repairing the bass boat I fired up in the yard and the gazebo I wiped out with it 5.

What I want the offender(s) to know, in my defense, is

a) I am fully aware of the damage I have done to our relationship, the landscaping and the parrot cage, and I humbly apologize.

b) I am unable to remember what happened, but if the DNA matches, I take complete responsibility.

c) I messed up. I’m sorry I did. I didn’t mean to wreck (your party, our date, your grandmother’s Bowflex). Sometimes I just get carried away, and if you give me one more chance, I promise I’ll try to do better

Not important ... but possibly of interest

Spencer Davis and immortality

As I pass the Kuna city limit sign, westbound, I push the gas pedal to the floor. The engine in my little blue 1965 Ford Cortina GT responds. I let the tachometer needle touch 6,000 rpms before shifting to fourth gear. The speedometer needle climbs to about 80 mph. The car radio is tuned to the area’s most popular rock and roll station, KFXD.

The Cortina is a British “sports sedan” in the same class another car of the period, the Mini Cooper, but a little larger. My Cortina GT has a high performance camshaft and a genuine dual-throat Weber carburetor that boosts the little four-cylinder engine to nearly 100 horsepower — nothing to sneeze at in a car that weighs less than 1,500 pounds.

I have made this 26-mile journey to the home of a certain brown-eyed girl probably 200 times since meeting her in 1965. But the trip never bores me. Each journey is a new challenge — an opportunity to take some corner a little faster — to shave a few seconds off my previous best time, which currently stands at about 25 minutes. Not bad considering the route includes four stop signs and some slow going through two small towns.

At Southside Boulevard, I make a 90-degree right turn and accelerate again. Seconds later, I hang a 90-degree left turn — then back on the gas for a couple of miles. At Highway 45, a hard right. The engine howls as I run through the gears again — then brake for another 90-degree left onto Lakeshore Drive.

Two miles of straight road are followed by another 90-degree right curve that can be taken at 60 mph if there is no oncoming traffic. Then another high-speed left turn, and I’m on the winding portion of Lakeshore Drive. I’m approaching the aforementioned curve when a song begins on the radio. I crank up the volume.

Da da da da da Dum!
Da da da da da Dum!

It’s the introduction to a song by the Spencer Davis Group — “Gimme Some Lovin’” It has a rapid, staccato rhythm — perfect background music for driving fast.

*“Well my temperature’s rising, got my feet on the floor
Crazy people knocking ‘cause they’re wanting some more*

*Let me in baby, I don’t know what you’ve got
But you’d better take it easy, this place is hot!”*

The lyrics in no way reflect my social life. But the song has a rhythm. I’m through the big curve and already past the little bar/café on the left and the “Speed Limit 35” sign on the right. As I approach a series of “S” curves I check to make sure there is no oncoming traffic, then go through the twists at about 70 mph, using the whole road.

*“And I’m so glad we made it
So glad we made it
You gotta gimme some lovin’ (gimme, gimme some lovin’)
Gimme, gimme some lovin’ (gimme, gimme some lovin’)
Gimme, gimme some lovin’, every day”*

Da da da da da Dum!
Da da da da da Dum!

The music blares, but can’t mask the howl of the engine. The scenery rushes past in a blur, but I’m too busy setting up for the next curves to appreciate the view.

*“I feel so good, everybody’s getting high
Better take it easy, ‘cause this place is on fire
It’s been a hard day nothing went too good Now I’m gonna relax like everybody should.”*

I’m 22. One mistake, and I’ll probably never be 23. But I’m out on the edge with Spencer Davis, my heart is pounding in time with the drums and I feel absolutely immortal!

The sun, which has been in my eyes virtually the whole trip, is setting as I pull up in front of her parents’ house. I look at my watch. Just under 24 minutes from the far side of Kuna to the far side of Marsing — a record Spencer Davis and I never break.

Da da da da da Dum!
Da da da da da Dum!

I suspect this 40-year-old memory is crystal clear because my mind knows I shouldn’t be alive to remember it.

Drive-by media wins big in election

by Cliff Kincaid

The so-called “drive-by media” demonstrated their power in last week’s election results. Demoralized by negative coverage of the war in Iraq, voters brought to power a Democratic Party that will pressure the Bush administration to leave Iraq before victory is achieved. Those who remember how a Democratic Congress paved the way for a disastrous American withdrawal from Vietnam understand that it is not too early to talk about the consequences of an American defeat in Iraq and what it will mean for U.S. national security.

The so-called “dinosaur media” that played such a prominent role in the Vietnam debacle, when they were at the height of their power, demonstrated that they are not extinct but very much alive. They have been resurrected to do their dirty work in another war. This time, however, the implications of a U.S. military defeat will not be confined to a far-away part of the world. They will be worldwide in scope.

Suggesting the resignation of Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld, as even some conservatives are doing, misses the point. Rumsfeld has been carrying out the orders of the president. It’s the president whose administration has failed to articulate the case for the war. Bush’s State Department has degenerated to the point of standing by a U.S. official who went on Al-Jazeera and called U.S. Iraq policy stupid and arrogant. Now, with the pending launch of its English-language spin-off, Al-Jazeera International, the media opposition to the Iraq war and the poisoning of the public discourse on Iraq can only grow here and abroad. Whatever progress is being made on the military battlefield, the war is clearly being lost in the media. And this area, as al Qaida knows and has said, is the key to the outcome.

Here, the election results demonstrate the shortcomings of the “New Media” that Republicans were counting on to save their hides. Stroked during a “Radio Day” event at the

Reader’s view

Columnist shouldn’t put Canadian lynx issue at Bush’s feet

by Dale Gray

In the Nov. 8, 2006, edition of The Owyhee Avalanche, William Pendley Perry of the Mountain States Legal Foundation wrote an editorial. I assume the fellow is a lawyer, but his facts do not support his conclusion. His attempt to blame the president for a “land grab” was lacking in logic and would have been laughed out of a high school debate. But with $889 million of our taxes in the balance, it does take some of the humor out of it.

By his own words, Perry states that the Canadian lynx issue results from a March 2000 district court decision forcing the Fish and Wildlife Service (FSW) to list the Canadian Lynx as a protected species. This decision was pushed from 10 years of litigation by environmental groups. Hmmm, now who was president prior to March 2000? Besides, last I checked the president was not part of the Judicial Branch of the U. S. government. Since then, the same environmental groups have pushed the FSW to designate land in the lower 48 as lynx habitat. Apparently, in 2004 the court issued a mandate and issued a deadline for a plan for critical habitat.

The courts, under pressure from environmental groups, have forced the FSW to set up a situation where private property rights in potential lynx habitat may be impacted. The motivation came from environmental groups and the judgment came from a Federal District Court in the District of Columbia. The Fish and Wildlife Service, one of many agencies under the Executive Branch, has to follow the court’s mandate. How then does this become a “massive land grab” by the Bush administration? As far as the facts presented prove, the Bush administration is only guilty of obeying the law.

I personally find environmental colonialism the worst kind of abuse of our system of government. People using celebrity species to further a private agenda are not strengthening our land or providing true benefit for the environment. It is only feeding emotional power needs among fringe social groups. From what I have seen, these groups seek to dominate the silent majority and to inflict their own personal values on the lives of people and places they have never seen. In our country, they have a right to their opinions, but I contest their right to impose their values on others without their consent!

I also think it does our country no good to blame the president for everything that happens in government. Especially in this case when the courts appear to be working hand-in-glove with the environmental groups. Perry’s article in no way showed a link between the legitimate, if morally questionable, process used by the environmental groups to impose their will, and a so-called “land grab” by the Bush administration. Indeed, it seems from the evidence Perry presented that the battle is between the courts and Congress.

I got two things out of the editorial. One is that the Canadian Lynx habitat issue is going to heat up, and we will hear a lot more about it before it is resolved. And, two, that William Pendley Perry has personal issues with the Bush administration and decided to use the Lynx to defame the Bush administration.

If you think about it, Perry used those poor Canadian cats just like the environmental groups. With all these people trying to use them, no wonder Canadian Lynx prefer to live in Canada.

White House, Republican radio talk-show hosts tried hard to motivate conservatives to turn out and vote Republican, but the campaign fell far short.

If the Republican takeover of Congress in 1994 was a testament to the power of conservative talk radio, the election results in 2006 have to be seen as strong evidence of the reverse. Simply put, conservative talk radio was unable to motivate the conservative base to vote Republican in sufficient numbers to win. It wasn’t good enough to try to scare Republicans into contemplating a Democratic victory. Alternatively, suggesting that talk of a Democratic victory was a liberal plot to demoralize Republicans didn’t work, either. Putting on a happy face, Rush Limbaugh said on election day: “What happens if they [the Democrats] lose? Nobody’s talking about what happens if they lose, they’ve set their bar so high. What will be the outcome if they lose?” This was wishful thinking that failed to grasp the nature of the discontentment with the administration that came from conservatives themselves.

That is not to say that conservatives did not turn out. It’s just that they didn’t vote in many cases for Republicans. The power of social conservatism was still demonstrated in the fact that seven states — including Idaho — approved same-sex marriage bans, a so-called medical marijuana measure went down in South Dakota, and a state amendment to legalize marijuana was defeated in Colorado.

One part of the new media, Fox News, turned in a dubious performance, as its anchors, even the conservative ones, relentlessly promoted the candidacy of liberal Democrat Harold Ford in Tennessee, offering him up to viewers as a “conservative” who was even “pro-life.” National pro-life representatives told me that they tried in vain to provide Fox News with the facts about Ford’s pro-abortion voting record. It was as if a corporate decision had been made to support Ford for the Senate and misrepresent his record. Indeed, Rupert Murdoch, chairman of Fox News parent company News Corporation, was backing Ford as well as Sen. Hillary Clinton (D-N.Y.). Ford lost, but Clinton is now poised, with the possible support of Murdoch, to seek the presidency in 2008.

My columns on the leftward drift of Fox News have generated interesting reactions. One came from Australia, where Murdoch began his media empire: “Mr Murdoch’s helping of leftist candidates is no surprise to longtime readers of ‘The Australian’ [a Murdoch newspaper]. Although their editorials are mostly pro-freedom and free-market, when it comes to elections they back whoever they think will win anyhow. This shows that Mr. Murdoch is more interested in power and influence. I would suggest he may have some vague conservative instincts, but these come a poor second to the accumulation of power. I, therefore, believe Fox was launched to fill a niche and make money for Mr. Murdoch rather than as a principled alternative to the MSM [mainstream media], and if Mr. Murdoch thinks using Fox to pander to leftists will increase his influence then he’ll do it. To put it another way, he has permanent interests rather than permanent politics.”

One factor in the Democratic victory, as the exit polls indicate, was congressional corruption. But corruption can be defined in different ways. Some conservatives believe the Congress abandoned conservative principles through reckless spending and the failure to address issues like border control. That, too, can be considered a form of corruption. Ironically, during a year when David Limbaugh released a book alleging that the Democratic Party was intellectually and morally corrupt, it looks like voters, including conservatives, held the Republican Party more accountable in this area.

Curiously, some conservative radio talk-show hosts had alleged that the Mark Foley sex scandal was a Democratic Party dirty trick, rather than a legitimate and real example of Republican corruption. A more conservative House GOP coming into office next January will not be able to avoid coming to grips with the infiltration of the party by gay Republicans actually committed to the social agenda of the Democratic Party. Not only Foley but retiring Republican Rep. Jim Kolbe, who is accused of having inappropriate contacts with former male congressional pages, had been leading a double-life on Capitol Hill but getting rewarded for it by Congressional leaders.

A different kind of corruption was in evidence in decisions made by the national Republican Party. Putting the retention of power over principle, the White House backed liberal Republican Lincoln Chafee for a Senate seat in Rhode Island, in a primary against an excellent conservative challenger, after Chafee had sabotaged the nomination of John Bolton as ambassador to the U.N. in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Chafee lost, and the White House ploy has backfired in a big way. Now, with Democratic gains in the Senate, Bolton’s nomination is once again in limbo. His temporary appointment expires at the end of the year.

Many conservatives will argue that Bolton has done a magnificent job for the U.S. at the U.N. and that the White House should mount another campaign on his behalf, in order to get him a permanent appointment. Bolton’s fate will tell us a lot about the direction of the administration.

Town excited about prospects of being champs

The community’s sports fans are hyped up this week, in anticipation of next Saturday’s football game, when the hometown Trojans face a tough Kimberly squad.

The game will determine the A-3 champions for Idaho.

Last Saturday, the Trojans soundly stomped the West Side Pirates, 28-12. It was the first Pirate defeat in 19 games.

Booster signs were posted in business windows throughout the town, and the Chamber of Commerce sponsored a football breakfast that morning. About 150 fans turned out at the Senior Citizen Center for the feed, with the football team, cheerleaders, coaches and managers as guests of honor.

The slogan “when you play Homedale, you play the whole town” was accented at the breakfast and the game. Additional bleachers were borrowed from Wilder for the Homedale side of the field, but, still, many fans were without seating room.

Marsing FFA takes part in contest

Marsing FFA participated in the crops and dairy judging contest held recently at Meridian.

The crops team composed of Shawn Were, Debbie Rhodes, Jeff Folwell and Alan Swore placed seventh in the nine-team competition.

The dairy team consisting of Shelli Hiatt, Judy Coffelt, Pam Sevy, Wayne Ineck and Sam Austin ranked fourth high of nine schools.

The FFA is planning its annual barbecue for members and parents for Saturday, Nov. 14 at 7 p.m. in the Marsing High Ag shop.

Post office to be open Saturdays

Saturday window service at the Homedale post office will begin this week, Postmaster Joyce Turner said Monday.

Service will be available from 10 to 11 a.m. Saturdays, she said. Thursday evening service until 5:30 p.m. will also continue.

Mrs. Turner said she has adjusted employees’ hours to make the Saturday accommodation possible.

“We’re here to serve the public, and I feel some Saturday window service will help accomplish this responsibility.”

Homedale locals

Ada Thomas was taken to Mercy Medical Center, Nampa, following a heart attack while she was bowling November 5.

Seven ladies attended the Macramé class instructed by Lenora Benjamin at the Senior Citizen Center on November 5.

George Christofferson has returned to his home after a stay at St. Luke’s hospital, Boise, following a heart attack.

Bessie Johnson spent the weekend with Farrell and Norma Smallwood, Ted Davis, and they hosted her to dinner at the Furrow Café, Wilder, on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Lee Upshaw, Caldwell, called on her Sunday evening at her Homedale home.

Pearl Ganow is spending several days with her grandson and wife, Ron and Helen Were, Caldwell.

Dorothy and Roy Edmiston, Marsing, have returned from a three weeks tour of Kansas, Iowa, and Nebraska, where they visited her sister, Eva Wishon, and cousin, Opal McKellie. They stayed with Gary and Darlene Steiner, Rexburg, en route.

Sharon Beam and infant son, Madras, Ore., are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vern Thompson, Purple Sage, and with Mary Mae Miller, Homedale.

As an early Christmas gift for Alisia and Teresa Burrow, their aunt, Penny Carlson, flew the family dog from Chicago, Illinois, to Boise on Saturday, Nov. 7th. They had to leave their pet behind several months ago when the family relocated to Idaho.

Homedale Trojans crush Wilder 40-6 to win ‘B’ title

The Homedale Trojans crunched Wilder 40-6 here Friday afternoon to top off an unbeaten, untied football season and win the Snake River Valley “B” league championship.

Coach Deward Bell’s team, which nipped second-place Notus 12-2 two weeks ago, was held to a 13-0 halftime edge, but broke loose in the final two periods to add four more touchdowns.

The Trojans pushed off to their first half lead on a 12-yard touchdown jaunt by Junior Uranga, and a 40-yard scoring pass from Vic Landa to Don Tveidt.

Homedale ran the count to 27-0 in the third quarter on touchdowns by Landa and Bill Carson, the latter a 30-yard run. Jack Aberasturi capped the season’s scoring for the new league champions with a pair of fourth quarter TDs, the first on a five-yard plunge and the second on a 35-yard pass play from Johnny Uranga.

Carson added a pair of conversions to his scoring total, while Chuck Dunn and Taggart each had one.

Wilder, whose only victory came last week over winless Middleton, got its only touchdown on the last play of the game.

Work progresses on new city jail

Work on the new city jail is progressing, and the three cells have been put in place and block work completed.

Excavation for the sewer line is now being done and when toilets and washbowls are installed and wiring done the new jail will be ready for use.

An LP gas heating system will be installed for heating both the fire station and jail, and installation of heating units will be the final step before the new jail is completed.

One cell from the old jail was moved to the new cinder block jail building and temporarily the city is without jail facilities.

Open house held at grade school

“We didn’t have anything like this when we were kids,” was the frequent comment heard Tuesday evening as parents trooped through the new Lincoln, Washington and junior high schools. The occasion was the open house held at the schools to observe National Education Week, November 11-17. Between 600 and 700 persons visited during the evening, according to Charles Zollinger, superintendent of schools.

Teachers were in their rooms to welcome the parents, and displays exhibited showed the variety of work being done. A Thanksgiving theme was emphasized in many rooms.

The new Lincoln school, recently completed, was of special interest. Rooms are decorated in soft pastel colors and have all new blonde furniture, cupboards and a laboratory in each room. All the floors are tile-covered.

The old grade building, now the junior high school, has been renovated, with floors newly sanded and walls re-decorated.

The teachers and janitors are to be commended for the well-kept appearance of all the buildings, parents agreed.

Open house is being held at the high school tonight between the hours of 7 and 9 p.m.

SILVER CITY, NOV. 8, 1866.

ED AVALANCHE: Please give notice in the local columns of your paper, that a public meeting will be held at the School Room on Washington Street, on Monday, the 12th inst., at 7 o’clock PM, to devise ways and means for building a Church in Silver City. A full attendance of the citizens of Silver City and vicinity is respectfully solicited.

MANY FRIENDS OF RELIGION.

BRASS BAND. The outside world may not be aware that Owyhee has an organized brass band of twelve or more instruments, one first-class piano in operation and another due here at an early day. Of the band, it contains several novices in the art of music as well as several old hands at the bellows, and altogether they seem to make very good headway. One good feature of the organization is that most if not all the members are permanent residents, thus giving the band an assurance of an extended existence. It should be encouraged, as nothing adds life to a town in comparison to a good brass band. The following is handed us for publication.

ROADS. Teamsters landing goods in Owyhee have more trouble in getting here after having apparently arrived at their destination, than they had all the balance of the trip. When persons hear of their freight on Reynolds Creek or in Jordan Valley — seven or eight miles distant — they anticipate its reception in a day or two at farthest; but in nearly every case teams seem to be from a week to ten days in accomplishing the feat. The road to Jordan Valley or more particularly that part between Boonville and Wagontown — has been a source of great delay to the heavy teams coming from California. The heavy rain last Sunday tendered the grade — which is too narrow most everywhere, and gives great trouble to teams in passing dangerous in the extreme. Major Biggs had trouble enough for a dozen of men, wagons being large and very heavily loaded came pretty near never making that few miles. Skinner & Co. should endeavor to have the road improved by early spring — though the road as it is has been a great blessing to the people. The travel over it next year will amply justify the proprietors for further improvements.

INDIANS IN FLINT. Last Saturday night two horses were stolen from a ranch in Flint District, and some other devilment transacted — the character of which we are not informed. For pure cussedness, these red men are unrivaled. They come into the Owyhee settlements occasionally and, when there is a dearth of horse-flesh for stealing purposes, they break up agricultural implements — slosh round and “fix things,” as A. Ward would say. O, the gentle cuss — so to speak.

INDIAN FIGHTS. A private letter from Capt. Walker, at Camp Smith, to a resident of Silver, says he had just returned from an Indian chase.

“We killed 4 and wounded 2 or 3 more. Mr. Drake, Reid, Griffith, a soldier and myself were the only ones engaged on our side, the rest of the party (21) had not come up. Indians numbers 25 or 30.”

The letter had no date, but the Captain’s word is good for the balance in this locality. He promised particulars in another letter soon.

Capt. Prescott happened at Camp Lyon last Saturday when the word came in of another fight, this time in the Owyhee lava beds. That Capt. O’Brien and a detachment of soldiers were on a scout, and found an old Indian who had been left behind as of no further account; that the said Indian volunteered to pilot the soldiers to the rendezvous of the Indians who had thus deserted him. This arrangement was successful — the soldiers killing a number of Indians, capturing 8 or 10 and upwards of 30 horses. The number of dead Indians reported varies from nine to fourteen and upwards.

The Board held an Indigent and Charity hearing on Case No. 06-31. After consideration of all testimony the Board moved to deny the applicant, as Owyhee County is not the obligated county.

The Board moved to adopt Resolution No. 06-41 changing the forms used by the Building Department.

The Board approved the lease agreement with the City of Marsing for office space for a one year period for $4,650.

The Board took the remainder of the day for coordination with the Boise BLM.

The complete minutes can be viewed in the Clerk’s office.
