Mohawk breaks records, Adrian in 1A football

Adrian High School ran square into the teeth of a playoff monster Friday night in the 1A Oregon state playoffs: A record-setting quarterback and his equally ferocious teammates.

The Antelopes were reluctant first-hand witnesses to football history in Marcola as unbeaten Mohawk rolled to a 90-12 opening-round victory.

The Indians (10-0) set the all-classification record for points in a playoff game, and senior quarterback Brody Wilkins scored seven touchdowns in three different ways to become the all-time leading TD scorer in Oregon history. He has 105 scores during his four-year career, but is battling another senior — Cory McCaffrey of Sisters — for state supremacy. McCaffrey began the postseason with 103 career TDs.

Adrian (4-5) was making its second state playoff appearance in the past three seasons and only its third since 1999. Mohawk has won 32 of its past 34 games, including the 2005 state championship game.

The Indians owned a 76-0 lead before Blake Purnell scored on a 15-yard run to end the shutout early in the fourth quarter.

One team had been there before, the other was making a historic journey.

In the end, the veteran Dufur High School volleyball team swept Adrian for the 1A Oregon volleyball state championship Saturday in Forest Grove.

The Antelopes (27-5) wound up on the wrong end of the score in their first appearance in the state championship match. The Rangers prevailed 25-21, 25-21, 25-14.

Dufur, coached by Kelly Darden, won its third 1A title in four years and the fourth state crown since 1996.

Adrian came home with a trophy from Pacific University for the second time in as many years. Last season, coach Aimee Goss and the Antelopes headed east with a third-place trophy after the state tournament.

Dufur was making its sixth championship match appearance in the past 14 seasons.

Antelopes senior Paige Branstiter and Dufur junior Kelsey Reffertt were named Qwest Players of the Game for the championship match.

No other details from the match were provided by press time.

Youth, experience serves Marsing girls

Sophs, freshmen could play large role for Huskies

Marsing High School girls basketball coach Don Heller is counting on a combination of youthful contribution and experienced leadership to improve the team's fortunes this season.

The Huskies have three freshmen and two sophomores on the squad to go along with a nucleus of returning players, led by senior point guard Elisa Moreno, a two-time all-conference selection in the 2A Western Idaho Conference.

"We're pretty young," Heller said. "We only have three seniors. We have a real good freshman class and a real good sophomore class. We've got three or four juniors who are pretty good, but we've got some real good kids coming up. We've got a couple of freshmen that will be on the varsity who are real good athletes, good rebounders, that's why they'll be up there."

The younger players will have plenty of opportunity to make an impact this year, as the team needs to replace four of its top five scorers and its two best rebounders from last year. Fortunately, the Huskies have their scoring, assists, and steals leader back in Moreno.

At a girls basketball jamboree hosted by Marsing on Nov. 6, the Huskies lost to Parma, 27-21. The taller Panthers pulled away at the end, scoring eight of the game's last 10 points for the win. The Huskies kept the game close with an aggressive defense that forced turnovers and generated several transition scoring chances.

"Our big stress has been defense," Heller said. "We're not the biggest team, so we're going to have to make up for our lack of size with defense. So we're putting a big emphasis on that this year. We'll be pressing. We'll play man-to-man. Usually when we press, we'll drop back into a zone, but we'll play a lot of man-to-man. A lot more than we have in the past. I think it will be a big strength for us."

Freshmen Rebecca Cossel,

Candy Leon, and Andi Merritt all saw significant playing time against Parma. Moreno knocked down 10 of the team's 21 points, and may have to get used to providing the bulk of Marsing's offense. Last season, she accounted for over 30 percent of the team's scoring. That percentage may have to go up because the rest of the returning Huskies account-

Huskies volleyball season wraps up on a positive note

Marsing's volleyball team won only one match this season, but spirits were buoyed by the announcement that two players received postseason accolades. And Huskies coach Loma Bittick is optimistic about next year's prospects.

Junior setter Kaitie Kent earned first-team all-conference honors in the 2A Western Idaho Conference, while senior hitter Amanda Staudenmier earned honorable mention and was selected to represent the Huskies in the 2A District III senior all-star match.

Marsing's season got off to a great start with a win in the season opener. Unfortunately, while they played a number of close games, the Huskies followed up the win with 13 losses in the regular season and two more defeats in the district tournament.

"We played each of our league opponents closely, especially the second time around, which is a tribute to the effort the girls have made," Bittick said. "However, all season, we have lacked the competitiveness to put down the kill, even when the momentum was in our favor. This was still a factor at the tournament, when we had teams down and let them come back and win the match."

Bittick praised the performance of the junior varsity squads, and sounded a hopeful note for 2008.

"The JV 'A' and JV 'B' teams both finished in third place after league play and have real promise," Bittick said.

"They enjoy volleyball and played well this year."

Homedale volleyball coach pleased with rookie season

David Hann's first season as Homedale High School volleyball coach ended with four of his seniors making the All-Snake River Valley conference team.

But the coach, who also teaches at Homedale Middle School, credited all levels of the town's volleyball program as well as parents for the Trojans' growing success.

"I couldn't have done it without all the help from parents and the community," Hann said. "The time that people put into helping us with fund raisers, game stats, books, lines, meals for the girls ... It's just been incredible. We received great donations from various businesses around town."

While Rachel Wheeler, first team, Mandy Brasher, second team, and Corey Hall and Nina Bell, honorable mention, earned spots on the all-conference team, Hann was quick to point out that the developmental teams also fared well during the season.

"Let's not forget the seventh- and eighth-graders," he said.

David Hann

The HMS seventh-grade team finished second in the district tournament, losing to Fruitland in the championship match.

First-year coaches Taci Morris and Jenni Hall guided the developmental teams at the high school level. Morris was the freshman coach, while Hall guided the junior varsity squad to a second-place showing.

"We've got a great group of sophomores coming up who have shown us great hustle, talent and heart," Hann said. "Coach Jenni hall was very ecstatic over their play in their tournament. They were amazing."

Hann said Wheeler, Brasher, Hall and Bell all were selected to compete in last week's District III senior all-star match, but only Wheeler suited up.

"(Wheeler) would tell you that she didn't play very well, but you have to realize that they had one practice and 12 girls on the squad," Hann said. "It's more to have fun and play one last game. Rachel did have fun and represented Homedale just fine."

While Wheeler, Brasher and Hall played numerous seasons in the Homedale system, Bell transferred in from Vallivue.

"She was our most consistent passer and always had her game face on," Hann said.

The Trojans had just one other senior in the fold this season, Amanda Andeverde

"She struggled at first then blossomed as a back row passer," Hann said.

While there are a slew of sophomores ready to make the jump from the JV, one 10th grader — Kindra Galloway — was active on the varsity as the second setter.

"She showed us a lot of hustle and drive and just handled the pressure well," Hann said.

The junior class included setter Mikal Mackenzie, whose confidence and all-around talent allowed her to be a play-caller on the court, Hann said.

Other juniors included: Rachelle Christoffersen — "She came on strong toward the end with her net play. I needed her to block, and she did great," Hann said.

Katie Lindbloom — "Her serves and kills were difficult to return," the coach said.

Bri Cornwall — "A real team player at libero. If she wasn't 'on,' she let someone else play," Hann said.

Haylie Freeloove — "She has improved so much with her net play," Hann said. "Her attacks were improving each week."

Valadez named Trojans MVP

Three players
tabbed All-SRV
first-teamers

Three members of the Homedale High School football team were named to the All-Snake River Valley conference first team, coach Rob Kassebaum announced at the season-ending banquet recently.

Senior offensive lineman Jaime Uriarte, senior defensive back Zach Tolmie and junior kick returner Rodrigo Villarreal were recognized by the 3A SRV coaches after the Trojans went 2-2 and earned the league's third spot in the state playoffs.

Villarreal also earned three second-team nominations — offense, defense and special teams. He was picked on offense as a running back, on defense as a defensive back and on special teams as a kicker.

Other second-teamers for the Trojans included receiver Trent Acree, tight end Grant Sweet, defensive end Micheal Wilhelm and linebacker Daniel Valadez.

Center Mario Gaeta and quarterback Ryan Ryska were offensive honorable mentions. Seniors Amador Cortinas (defensive tackle) and Sam Hart (linebacker) made the grade on defense.

Villarreal also was a consistent player of the week for the Trojans. He was player of the week for two-a-day preseason workouts and also won the award after wins against New Plymouth, Payette and McCall-Donnelly.

Other player-of-the-week selections, as announced at a recent season-ending banquet by coach Rob Kassebaum, included Wilhelm after the opening-week loss to Melba, Cortinas after Week 2 against Nampa Christian, Zach Tolmie in Week 4 (Parma), Uriarte following the Trojans' 34-0 loss in the first round of the state playoffs against Buhl, and the offensive line after the hard-fought

Other honors doled out at the year-end banquet included Scout Player of the Year (shared by Jake Tolmie and Justin Ennsley), Most Improved Player Austin Ferguson, Most Inspirational Player Hart, Lineman of the Year Uriarte and Best Back and Coaches Award (Zach Tolmie).

Valadez was tabbed as the team's Most Valuable Player for 2007.

The senior class had a strong contingent on the academic all-stars with Joey Cline, Tolmie, Mat Hansen, Hart, Cortinas and Austin Ferguson receiving recognition.

Junior Mitch Quintana and sophomore Jake Tolmie also were cited for their academic performance. Academic all-stars achieved a grade-point average of 3.25 or better.

Carlos Salinas (5-11, 220) and offensive lineman/linebacker Jose Araujo (5-10, 180) have been tabbed to play in the game. Their coach, Jim Clark, will serve as the West squad's offensive coordinator.

Homedale will be represented on the 11-man West squad by two linemen — Amador Cortinas and Jaime Uriarte. Uriarte will play on the offensive side of the ball, while Cortinas has been selected for his exploits as a defensive tackle. First-year Trojans coach Rob Kassebaum has been chosen to coach the defensive line for the game.

Marsing running back Ethan Sauer will play for the 11-man West team.

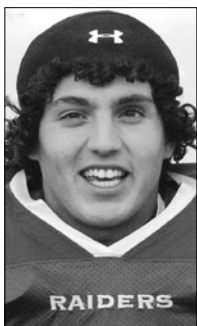

The eight-man game kicks off at 11 a.m., with the 11-man contest scheduled to go off at 2:30 p.m. Tickets are $12 for adults and $6 for children. Tickets will be available at the gate, but also can be purchased at the participating schools.

Rimrock High School's football team finished one win away from the 1A, Div. I state playoffs this season, and the Raiders' opponents took notice.

In the wake of coach Jim Clark's third season at the helm, three players were placed on the all-conference first team, including senior Carlos Salinas, Ricardo Araujo and Sam Richardson, a 6-3, 185-pound junior. Junior lineman Alex Meyers made the honorable mention list.

and he also was honored as the conference's best kicker. Salinas kick two PATs this year.

Fellow senior Nate Hofer was a first-team linebacker.

Sophomore running back Ricardo Araujo also made the first team after rushing for 1,586 yards and 23 touchdowns.

Second-team selections included junior linebacker TJ Snyder and defensive linemen Ethan Standlee, a 6-1, 230-pound sophomore, and Sam Richardson, a 6-3, 185-pound junior.

ed for just 56 of the team's 804 points last season, and the offensive potential of the new players is unproven.

"Overall, we don't have any real good outside shooters besides probably Elisa Moreno, so that's why we're going to have to make up for it with our transition defense," Heller said.

Last year's team struggled through a 5-17 season, going 1-9 in conference, but showed improvement at the end of the season.

"We were toward the bottom, but at district time we played pretty well," Heller said. "We were out in two, but we played two teams that beat us pretty handily during the season, and we played pretty well with them."

As for this season, Heller said: "I really have no idea. We were in kind of a transition last season. It depends on how the older girls and the younger ones mesh. They played well together this summer. We had some success there."

Team leadership may be a key to Marsing's season, with Moreno and senior Holly Heller likely taking on that responsibility.

"A lot of that is going to be on our point guard, Elisa Moreno," Heller said. "She's been first team all-conference two years in a row, and I think she could be player of the year if she has a good year. My daughter is a strong leader, a good defensive player and a good rebounder."

Heller said that New Plymouth, with its quickness, speed, and playoff experience, and Parma, with its height, probably will be the teams to beat in the 2A WIC this year. After the Huskies played the Panthers close at the jamboree, Heller was optimistic about his team's chances this season.

"I was darn pleased with the team," Heller said. "We have had six practices and have spent probably 4½ days on defense. Offense will come. I can't wait to play a game. I don't think teams will be able to handle pressure for 32 minutes."

The Huskies started the season on the road Tuesday against Payette. Results weren't available at press time.

Football: Antelopes score twice in fourth

Kalani Sheeler scored on a 20-yard run later in the fourth quarter to push Mohawk past the 1986 Butte Falls team and to the top of the list of single-game highest-scoring teams.

The Antelopes fired back as David Stones raced 80 yards with the ensuing kickoff for a touchdown.

Adrian was limited to 174 yards total offense, and 1,000-yard rusher Kyle Rogers was held to 35 yards on 19 carries.

Mohawk rolled up 569 yards total offense, including 463 on the ground as three different players broke the century mark.

Wilkins rambled for 174 yards on nine carries (a 19.3-yards-per-carry average). He scored four rushing touchdowns in the first quarter and ran another score in from 35 yards out in the second quarter.

Wilkins' also scored two return touchdowns minutes apart to start the second half.

He scored on a 60-yard sprint when Adrian was unsuccessful on an onside kick attempt to start the third quarter. Minutes later, Wilkins picked off a pass by Kyle Dondero and raced 55 yards for another TD.

Mohawk's other 100-yard rushers included Tyson Ludwig (114 yards on 10 carries) and Kalani Sheeler (145 yards and a TD on seven attempts).

Ludwig had short touchdown runs in the second and third quarters. He also caught a 36-yard scoring strike from Wilkins to open the second-quarter scoring and give the Indians a 38-0 edge.

The Antelopes exacted revenge from the 2006 state tournament and moved into the first state championship match in school history by dumping Griswold, 25-20, 25-22, 22-25, 25-21, in Friday’s semifinal.

“This was an awesome match,” Goss said. “Griswold is a very good team, and we lost against them last year in the same round of play as tonight, and so this win was really enjoyable.” Goss said the Antelopes played strong throughout the match and prevailed after intense battles in Games 3 and 4. “You expect that between two really good teams, and especially in the qualifying round for the championship game,” Goss said.

Branstiter fired home 20 kills. She capped another solid all-around match with defense that included seven blocks and four digs. Andrea Shenk carded three aces and seven kills. Kassi Daugherty added 10 assists, and Purnell came up with seven kills and seven assists. “I’m really proud of the way the team played tonight,” Goss said.

Kirsten Phillips served four aces and picked up seven digs as the Antelopes opened Friday’s first day of the state tournament with a 25-16, 25-16, 27-25 victory over St. Paul from the Casco. “I was very happy with the way we played this match,” Goss said. “We had some very consistent play from each of the girls, and that helps beat teams at this juncture of the season.” Branstiter led the way with 14 kills and six blocks. She also had five digs and two aces. Daugherty and Purnell set the table for Branstiter, collecting nine assists between them. Purnell also grabbed six kills, and Daugherty had two digs.

Commentary

Baxter Black, DVM

On the edge of common sense Selling the show steer

In the month before our county fair, our mail box is filled with letters from 4-H kids inviting us to the fair and to take a look at their show animals, i.e., “I’m in the 6th grade, my second year in 4-H in the beef project, and I love it! My steer’s name is Chipper, come take a look at him. Sincerely, ...”

Coincidentally, I received a copy of a Letter to the Editor, in another town that said, and I paraphrase, “...desensitizing children (emotional manipulation) to betray the animal’s trust by raising it, then sending it for slaughter is animal cruelty and a sad commentary that we encourage that dichotomy of thought in young people.”

I called the writer of the letter to the editor. She was a smart, articulate, animal rights activist and entrenched in her opinions (like most of us). It was very difficult for us to find any middle ground, except that we both favored spaying and neutering dogs and cats. She was a vegetarian; saw no reason to raise animals to eat in the first place. When I suggested that production efficiency was worthwhile, she said it was just to make money, besides, farmers are subsidized. I tried to make a distinction that the relationship of humans to pets and humans to livestock was different. It fell on deaf ears.

Just as her efforts to convince me that a pig’s right to express its “pigness” was more important than my evaluation of its comfort, based on measurable production parameters. She actually said pork should cost a lot more. I’m sure a lot of pork producers agree with her, but she’s not a consumer like most of us.

In her ideal world, everyone would eat grain and greens. There would be no milk, no eggs, no steak, bacon, salmon, sushi, chicken enchiladas, cheese, ice cream or locusts consumed by humans. We would live the culinary life of mountain gorillas, while coyotes, chimpanzees, polar bears and sharks would scour the Earth for meat on the hoof.

The minor ruckus in the community where the activist’s letter to the editor appeared, served its purpose. She made her point and mobilized the local county agent and the 4-H kids to think through and articulate their positions. The activist chooses to live in her own cocoon, ignoring that 96 percent of the population eats meat and it has to come from somewhere. The excerpt from a letter by one of the 4-H kids expresses the view as well as it can be said:

“A 4-Her is knowledgeable enough to understand the difference between a pet and livestock. Sure some tears may be shed at the sale. The tears show how much dedication and effort was put into a project. Yes, bonds may be formed, but these animals are bred as market animals. The only ‘emotional manipulation’ occurring is the maturing and realization that these animals will be feeding a family for many nights.”

I couldn’t have said it better. It is our lot in life to feed our fellow man. Let’s hope we do it well.

Debates and chocolate shakes

Our high school debate team was in Boise for a tournament at Boise Junior College. The team was small enough that we traveled in several private cars. I drove my 1956 Ford. At lunchtime, we headed for McDonald’s.

In 1962 the McDonald’s restaurant on Orchard Avenue was the only one in Boise — probably the only one in Idaho.

In those days, McDonald’s didn’t have a drive-up window or indoor seating. You had to get out of your car, walk up to a window, order your meal, carry it back to your car and eat it there.

As we walked up to the order window, I was feeling pretty spiffy. Mom had decided that if I was going to be a successful debater, I should look the part. I was wearing my brand new J.C. Penney black pinstriped suit — my first suit ever.

The best thing about McDonald’s in those days was the prices. Hamburgers were about 15 cents, fries, somewhere around 12 cents. And you could get a shake for 15 cents, too. They weren’t the greatest shakes in the world — a little like drinking flavored liquid chalk — but they were filling and that was the most important factor for a 16-year-old guy. I picked up a burger, fries and chocolate shake, got back change from my dollar and hustled to the car.

McDonald’s was quite a ways from the BJC campus. Just driving to and from the location used up most of the lunch hour. And Gaye, my debate partner, and I were scheduled to compete at 1 p.m.

Gaye and I were a heck of a team. I was a decent debater. Gaye, who was only a sophomore, was a good speaker. She also was very nicely put together. On one occasion, we were losing to a team composed of two rather arrogant males from Eastern Idaho. The leader, Bob Somebody, the defending state champion, got up to give his summation. Halfway through, he made the mistake of looking at Gaye who was sitting about 10 feet in front of the podium. She was wearing a tight, short, green skirt. When the champ looked at Gaye, she looked right back ... smiled ... and crossed her legs. At that point, poor Bob’s mind went on vacation. He stood there for a while — looking very flustered and confused — trying to remember what he had been talking about. He never did. We won.

But I digress.

I sucked down my burger in about three bites while stuffing fries into my mouth. I finished the fries and grabbed my chocolate shake, which was sitting on the dashboard. The steering wheel was between me and the shake. As I drew the cup toward me, the bottom hit the top of the steering wheel and the top of the cup kept moving forward. A split second later I was holding an empty shake cup. The chocolate shake was in my lap — all over the trousers of my brand new, J.C. Penney, black, pinstriped suit.

Gaye rounded up enough napkins to soak up the chocolate shake in my lap. She wanted to help with the actual cleanup. But I figured then I would have had to debate with chocolate shake stains on my trousers AND a mind as blank as ol’ Bob’s, so I turned down her offer. I also knew even if my pants dried completely, they would still look — well — odd.

I don’t remember many details of our debate that day, other than the topic was “Resolved: The United States Should Adopt Reciprocal Free Trade Agreements with Non-Communist Nations.” I do remember trying to hide the milkshake stain by carrying a notebook in front of me as I walked sideways up to the podium. I was too preoccupied with my condition to be eloquent. Because our opponents were two females, Gaye couldn’t stun them into submission with a leg cross. I’m pretty sure we lost.

The whole business is a lot funnier after the passage of 45 years.

Web must remain accessible

by Sen. Larry Craig

I’ll tell you right away that I’m no expert on the Internet, but I learn more every day. I can tell you that I understand the capability it holds as a method of communication and commerce. The Internet has been called the “Information Superhighway,” and while you do have to pay a toll of sorts for access to the highway, at least you don’t have to pay taxes on that toll. Now, I’m proud to report that Congress has done its part to make sure this remains the case.

On Oct. 31, H.R.3678 was signed into law by President Bush. This new law will extend the moratorium on Internet access taxes for another seven years. The current moratorium was set to expire at midnight, which would have been a cruel trick for Halloween! When the bill previously passed through the Senate, language was added to clarify that those who pay for e-mail, instant messaging or electronic data storage won’t be taxed either.

While I may be something of a novice on the Internet, one thing I know for sure is that I’ve never been a fan of taxes. I will admit that some taxes are necessary so government can provide certain goods and services that wouldn’t otherwise be provided. But once a tax is on the books, governments have a tendency to ratchet them up, little by little, until businesses and working families struggle under the burden. So we need to continuously scrutinize every tax on the books to determine its impact on workers and the economy, and provide tax relief when necessary.

When it comes to levying new taxes, my first reaction is skepticism. What service will these tax revenues fund? Can this service be provided more efficiently by the private sector? Can government find a way to shift or trim funding from other programs or projects, instead of creating a new tax?

Ever since the Internet tax moratorium was instituted back in 1998, I haven’t come across many answers to these questions that are convincing or compelling, when answers have been provided at all.

In this case, I believe that allowing states to tax Internet access would have the effect of pricing many Americans out of the Information Superhighway. It also would provide a new revenue source to lure bureaucrats into more government spending.

The Internet has proven to be a remarkable engine of

The gift of giving

Mark Community Foundation Week with long-term gifts

by Cathy Silak

The pumpkin pie and turkey may be gone by the end of Thanksgiving weekend, but gifts to the community are a lasting way of showing thankfulness for our own blessings. As thoughts of gifts enter our minds, the members of the Idaho Community Foundation encourage the residents of Owyhee County to think about making a long-term financial investment in their community.

For almost 20 years, the Idaho Community Foundation has helped Owyhee County residents get into the holiday spirit by providing the needed tools and resources to make a meaningful and lasting gift — and it continues to do so in a way that is easy, flexible and personal.

With the help of advisers from the community, we have a deep understanding of the challenges and needs in Owyhee County, and we work hard to meet them. This year, through the help of many donors, the Idaho Community Foundation gave almost $90,000 to Owyhee County organizations. Grants went to groups ranging from the Marsing Resource Center to the Girl Scouts.

However, as 2008 approaches, there is still more to do. While many of us can count our bountiful blessings this holiday season, others are not as fortunate. The demand for services continues to increase. Your assistance is important in meeting these needs and making a difference for the future of the community.

During this season of giving citizens from diverse backgrounds, living in rural areas or cities, are committed to donating to one of the more than 770 community foundations located across this nation, because they seek to enhance their community and the lives of the people living there. Because of their generosity, stronger hometowns where families want to establish roots are being created, recreational parks are being built in greater numbers, social service programs are being offered at a higher quality and promising local students are receiving more scholarship opportunities. You have the power to make those changes right here in your own community.

This holiday season, we encourage you to think about the issues you support and the philanthropic gift you may like to make. When you’re ready, contact the ICF to find out how you can help. You can learn more about the Idaho Community Foundation at www.idcomfdn.org.

This week is Community Foundation Week, and today is National Philanthropy Day. There’s no better time to make a lasting gift to your community.

Opponents, supporters deserve thanks after mayoral election

Now that the election has passed, I wanted to write and express my appreciation to all who participated and voted in the race for Homedale’s mayor. I am deeply honored to have received the confidence of so many to lead the city of Homedale in the next four years.

I would like to commend Paul Fink and Charlie Garrison, who both ran fine mayoral campaigns. I look forward to working with them and the Homedale City Council in the future.

Most of all, I would like to thank those in Homedale who supported my campaign with their time, pocketbooks, and expert advice. My wife, Mary, as it turns out, is a tireless campaigner, and for that I am forever grateful. You all made the difference.

With your continued support, I look forward to the challenge of leading the community of Homedale as its mayor.

√ Web: Tax-free access gives people freedom of telecommuting, too

— as well as a medium for — creativity, commerce and interaction. Congress should be looking for ways to get more people involved, not fewer. And we are, by looking for ways to provide incentives to extend broadband services to rural communities, for example.

As more people gain access, some find that they don’t always have to live in the big cities to hold a job that pays well. Telecommuting suddenly becomes a realistic option, and rural Idaho can benefit from that. But a tax on Internet access makes that a more expensive — and therefore, less attractive — proposition. If the Internet is a superhighway, you can be sure I’ll keep looking for ways to build more lanes instead of roadblocks.

Accuracy In Media

Rudy can rally GOP opposition to treaty

by Cliff Kincaid

As someone who covered the Senate Foreign Relations Committee’s consideration of the U.N.’s Law of the Sea Treaty, I have to report that the experience has been an ugly one. Our major media have been intentionally AWOL from the debate, aiding and abetting the liberal scheme to quickly ratify the dangerous measure. If they had attended and covered the hearings, they would have reported that committee chairman Sen. Joseph Biden (D-Del.) and his Republican sidekick, the hapless Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana, have done their best to keep information about the major flaws in this treaty away from public view. The treaty gives the U.N. unprecedented power over our domestic and economic policies and relations with foreign countries. It creates tribunals and courts to dictate our conduct on the high seas and an International Seabed Authority to govern access to oil, gas and minerals.

On a matter as momentous as a treaty, which becomes the Supreme Law of the Land when ratified, Biden, Lugar & Co., and the major media have collaborated to conceal vital information from the American people. But there is still time to avert a major catastrophe for the nation.

Despite the 17-4 vote in favor of the treaty in the committee, Senate Republican leaders have vowed to stop it on the Senate floor.

In a major surprise, Biden actually showed up for Wednesday’s committee vote and didn’t submit a proxy ballot; he had skipped the only two hearings on the treaty that had been held, asking other Democrats to fill in as chairman. The witnesses in those hearings had been stacked 9-2 in favor. A day before the committee vote, Biden pulled off what he thought was a zinger during the Democratic presidential debate when he said about Republican presidential candidate Rudy Giuliani that “there’s only three things he mentions in a sentence: a noun and a verb and 9/11.”

Giuliani showed his fighting spirit by issuing a statement in response about Biden’s history of plagiarism. Giuliani communications director Katie Levinson declared, “Senator Biden’s comments were of particular interest. The good Senator is quite correct that there are many differences between Rudy and him. For starters, Rudy rarely reads prepared speeches and when he does he isn’t prone to ripping off the text from others. And, Senator Biden certainly falls into the bucket of those on the stage tonight who have never had executive experience and have never run anything. Wait, I take that back, Senator Biden has never run anything but his mouth.”

Giuliani understands the bankruptcy of the Democratic Party on foreign policy issues. He knows that it is a party that doesn’t seem willing anymore to put America first.

Yet Biden is one of the Democrats’ premier spokesmen on foreign policy issues. Of course, he has enablers in the Republican Party such as Lugar and Sen. Chuck Hagel of Nebraska, both members of the Foreign Relations Committee.

It is an embarrassment for the Democrats that Biden is even in the presidential race (again) and an embarrassment for our country that he runs a Senate committee that passes judgment on treaties. Giuliani deserves plaudits for alluding to this fact.

But Giuliani can do some more good. He was the last major Republican presidential candidate to come out against the Law of the Sea Treaty. This move was not without controversy because at least one of his foreign policy advisers — former State Department legal adviser Abraham Sofaer — is a backer of the measure. Now we need Giuliani and his campaign to show the same fire they directed at Biden against the treaty itself. Considering his impressive showing among Republicans in national opinion polls, Giuliani has the clout necessary to play a significant role in sinking this treaty. There is no issue more important to the nation. He must be made to understand this. If he does not move on the national level to attack the Law of the Sea Treaty just as vociferously as his campaign has taken on Biden, people will conclude that his statement against the treaty was just red meat to conservatives.

In order to defeat the treaty on the Senate floor, the Republicans need 34 votes. Six Republicans on the committee voted for it (Sens. Lugar, George Voinovich of Ohio, Hagel, Bob Corker of Tennessee, John Sununu of New Hampshire, and Lisa Murkowski of Alaska). Four voted against it (Sens. David Vitter of Louisiana, Jim DeMint of South Carolina, Norm Coleman of Minnesota, and Johnny Isakson of Georgia). So that means the Senate Republicans have to find another 30 votes from Senate Republican ranks. It would be easier to do so if the Republican presidential candidates, especially Giuliani, made a big issue out of it.

On the positive side, sensing the growing concern about sovereignty issues among GOP voters and the public generally, all of the Senate’s top Republicans, including Minority Leader Mitch McConnell of Kentucky, are against it. Sen. Jon Kyl of Arizona has stated that there are not enough votes to pass it. That must mean he believes they have — or can get — the votes to kill it. This is a big test for the Republican Party as it enters a critical election year.

Will Giuliani fight the Law of the Sea Treaty in the same way that his campaign has aggressively highlighted the flaws of Joe Biden? This is the critical issue that confronts his campaign, and time is running out. The treaty could come up for a Senate vote at any time.

Conservatives will be waiting to see if Giuliani is willing to highlight the big picture — and rally the American people in a campaign to protect our survival as a free and sovereign nation.

Trojans host state championship game Sat.

“On to Victory” is on the lips of Homedale Trojan fans this week, as the State Championship A-3 gridiron game draws near.

The Trojans squad will face the North Fremont Huskies this Saturday at 1 p.m. on the Homedale field for the topnotch title in A-3 football.

Pre-game events are being organized early this week, including a pep rally, breakfast, merchants’ promotion, and proclamation.

Friday has been designated as “Jersey Day” among local merchants, and they will be wearing the team’s uniform jerseys all that day.

Local merchants are treating the football squad to breakfast at 9am Saturday. The feed will be held at the Washington building at the elementary school. The public is also invited to join the team at the breakfast. Tickets are $3.00 per person.

Homedale Mayor George Murray has proclaimed “Big Red Pride Week.”

Trojans win semi-finals; No. Fremont this Sat.

Four touchdowns were racked up by the Homedale Trojans, and another lacked only a few inches on a fourth-down drive. As the semi-final championship game turned out, the Trojans didn’t need that extra touchdown; they tromped the Declo Hornets 28-12 last Saturday at Trojan Stadium.

Homedale took the opening kickoff, and never let the Hornets touch the ball until the home team drove across the goal line following an 80-yard drive.

Then the Trojans booted the Declo team the ball, and big Dan Breach forced a fumble, and Homedale recovered the pigskin on Declo’s 30-yard line.

Again, the local boys drove across the goal for a 14-0 lead for the first quarter.

Scoring in period two was a duplication on Homedale’s part, but the Hornets managed to get six, ending the first half at 28-6.

The second half was a tight ballgame, and Declo gained six points in the third quarter, ending the game’s scoring with the scoreboard lighting 28-12.

Homedale tromps Wilder 31-0 in finale

The Homedale Trojans football squad tromped the Wilder Wildcats 31-0 in their final game at Wilder’s homecoming Friday.

The victory boosted Homedale into third place in the final SRV league standings.

Homedale controlled the ball in Wilder territory the first half, picking up three of their five touchdowns. Only in the last minutes of the second quarter did Wilder penetrate into Homedale territory.

Homedale’s first score came early in the opening quarter. Their 66-yard drive was climaxed when Uranga went over right guard for two yards to score. Howard Brooks conversion kick was good to give Homedale a 7-0 lead.

Homedale’s second touchdown was set up by Larsen Waite’s 48-yard punt return to the Wilder 22. A pass from Uranga to Jack Aberasturi netted 14 yards. Uranga scored from the one-yard line three plays later and the Trojans led 13-0.

Early in the 2nd quarter, Homedale picked up its third touchdown from an 8 yd. pass, Uranga to Dennis Brandon. The conversion failed and the score was 19-0. A minute later Homedale intercepted a Wilder pass on the Wildcats 45. Another pass from Uranga to Brandon put Homedale on the 19, but a fumble was recovered by Wilder on the 11.

In the second half both teams exchanged equal gains until Johnny Uranga’s pass to Don Kushlan netted 80 yards and 6 points. A second pass play by the same combination netted 40 yards and another 6 points.

ON THE WING – ITEMS OF TRAVEL.

EDS. AVALANCHE: On the evening of the 23d we left Silver City for another ride over Hill Beachey’s stage route for Hunter’s Station. Although there is little to record of any particular interest in this trip, made so often by your readers, yet the few items picked up may conduce to the interest of some one who may read them. We made excellent time to Camp McDermit, reaching there about 11 o’clock Thursday night, and resting until six in the morning. After this refreshment we felt in excellent trim for the long dusty ride to Oreana; long and dusty! Yes, tedious indeed; one long stretch of sagebrush, sand and alkali, until face, clothing, and the air one breathes is impregnated with the meanest dust ever inhaled into one’s lungs; lips and hands become sorely chafed, the eyes inflamed, and by the time we reach Oreana we look more like small-pox convalescents than healthy, tidy humans beings. The stations are in much better condition than when we passed over the road in April – better stables, plenty to feed and other improvements necessary to the comfort of the stock and entertainment of the traveling public. The most tedious route is from Rattlesnake Station to Summit Springs. It is too long a drive and ought to be broken by a change and a station in or near Ives Canon. Camp McDermit Station seems to be a kind of nightly rendezvous for all the “idle strays” in the country round. The ought to be still hours of the night are made noisy by card players, singers, and uncouth jokes, cracked round the blazing fire; with the noise inside and the shrill bark of the coyotes outside we got very little sleep. The new road via Thacker’s is very dusty now and a most unpleasant part of the trip. There is one station worthy of note, called Sand Station, and kept by an affable, kind hearted gentleman by the name of Brewster. True, it is nothing but a sagebrush hut covered with canvas, but Mr. Brewster has the happy faculty of making it look really inviting – cleanliness and order give an air of comfort to even a hut. The nicely swept ground floor, the white tablecloth and the neatness exhibited in arranging the table were our best compliments for Mr. Brewster’s housekeeping qualifications. We reached Oreana on Saturday morning, the 26th, and wishing to visit Unionville, left the Beachey Stage and looked round the town for items the rest of the day. The stage from Unionville and Star City connects with the stage going to Hunter’s and waits for the northern stage going to Idaho before returning; so we are obliged to wait at Oreana all day and until 12 at night. The trip to Unionville is made in six hours. The town of Oreana is flourishing finely; the mines are in good condition, paying well, and the process of working the rock here is a decided success.

JNO. JOS. WASSON, former editors and proprietors of the Avalanche, departed this week from this vale of tears. They are “God’s own men,” and with but few exceptions take with them the best wishes of our whole community. They established the first newspaper in Owyhee and carried it on for two years; in doing so they did more than any one else for the prosperity and development of our mines. John left here on the morning of the 6th, and goes the Columbia River route to Frisco. He will visit the Puget Sound country on his way thither. He is now special correspondent for the New York Tribune and Alta California, in whose columns he has acquired a distinguished reputation as a spicy and elegant writer.

Joseph Wasson been out all summer with Gen. Crook, and in his letters to the Avalanche has given an interesting account of the Campaign. He is a practical printer and writer of more than average ability. He left here this morning on the Humboldt Stage for San Francisco. The brothers will meet at the metropolis of the Pacific, compare notes, and enjoy city life after a four year’s sojourn in the mountains. They will write to the Avalanche occasionally. Now we must say: “Farewell, a word that must be and hath been, A word that makes us linger, yet farewell.”
