Sheriff's patrol coverage may have gaps

Dispatchers on 24/7;
patrol reportedly short
up to 6 hours a month

While county residents will still have any emergency call answered immediately, whether a deputy will be available to respond at that moment is in question. The Marsing City Council heard its monthly law enforcement report from Deputy Jeff Wasson on March 10. During the report, councilman Aron Striebel asked Wasson to clarify a rumor Striebel had heard; that the Owyhee County Sheriff's Office was currently unable to provide 24-hour coverage to the northern end of the county.

Construction crews are making progress on one of the two homes destroyed by a Thanksgiving Day fire on West Owyhee Avenue in Homedale. The home of Mike and Anita Brown is near completion. ## Homedale City Hall could go off power grid

Marsing part of grant to run city buildings on solar

The City of Homedale may begin producing energy if the proposed goal of a recently issued state grant is met.

The state Office of Energy Resources awarded a $978,385 Energy Efficiency and Conservation Block Grant to seven entities on March 8. Each city in the application group led by the City of Parma — including Homedale and Marsing — seeks roof-mounted solar panels to meet the power needs for government buildings.

Construction could begin as soon as June 1.

The money is part of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act federal stimulus plan.

Grand View man missing

Resident was on his way to Mtn. Home

Ted G. Thomason was last seen on March 9 when he left his home in Grand View to drive to Mountain Home.

Relatives reported Thomason missing and the Owyhee County Sheriff's Office is seeking help in locating him. A release from OCSO said that Thomason may be suffering from dementia and may appear confused.

Thomason is 66 years of age, and is described as balding, with blue eyes,

U.S. 95 speed limit restored; road construction continues

Surface rehab, overlay planned for Homedale, Marsing highways

Normal highway speeds have returned to a stretch of U.S. Highway 95 around Taxidermy Lane outside Homedale.

Idaho Transportation Department crews removed the temporary traffic signal from the location and restored the 55 mph speed limit Thursday.

The portable traffic signals were in place reducing U.S. 95 to one lane crossing the bridge at Taxidermy Lane while it was widened. The work was in preparation for a project on US 95 this summer.

State maintenance crews continue on piping work on U.S. 95 between Homedale and Marsing. Construction is expected to continue over the next few weeks, according to ITD spokesman Reed Hollinshead.

The Idaho Transportation Department can access the new reader board over Main Street in Marsing to post emergency messages.

Marsing reader board welcomes arrivals

Marsing’s city reader board was mounted over Idaho 55 on March 10, bringing to fruition months of planning to fund, permit, purchase and mount the sign.

The board, over a state highway, is the only municipal board mounted over an Idaho Transportation Department route, Marsing Mayor Keith Green believes. It is limited to announcements for non-profits and municipal events — like the annual Marsing Disaster Auction — ITD emergency notifications and area warnings like Amber Alerts.

The board also displays the time and temperature, and is capable of animations. It is located on the steel-lattice railway signal arm across the highway, facing east, toward those arriving in town across the Snake River bridge.

Of the funding for the $11,000 board, nearly 90 percent was covered by grants and donations. Money raised included a West Valley Medical Center grant and donations by the Marsing Disaster Auction, the Marsing American Legion Post 128, the Post Ladies Auxiliary and the Marsing Lions Club. The city picked up the final $1,000 or so for the signboard.

The computer-controlled sign can be accessed remotely by ITD.

Council rejects mandatory totes

Public hearing draws large crowd

Faced with strong opposition from residents who have seen their utility bills creep skyward over the past few years, the Homedale City Council have chosen not to make garbage totes mandatory.

Councilmen voted unanimously to reject a proposal from Westowns Disposal Inc. to mandate that all city customers use 96-gallon garbage carts at a cost of $2.50 per month.

“The increases we’ve had over the last year with sewer, water and garbage and the LID ... I can see a place where we’re going a little too fast on the increases,” Councilman Tim Downing said.

Citing the fact that demand for the option of garbage totes has doubled during the past year to more than half of Homedale’s customers, Councilman Eino Hendrickson suggested Westowns owner Bill Pastoor come back when 80 to 85 percent of the customer base has opted for the wheeled, hinged-covered totes.

Customers now pay $3 per month for the cart option.

Mayor Harold Wilson advocated for the adoption of mandatory carts in an effort to clean up the city’s alleys. He said alleyways in Marsing and Wilder, where Westowns has achieved mandatory totes, are much cleaner than those in Homedale.

“I don’t know if some folks realize how much time we spend picking up garbage strewn in alleys,” city public works supervisor Larry Bauer said.

Pastoor said that, during their Tuesday rounds in Homedale, his crews often pick up trash that has been thrown into the alley or has been dumped out of cans knocked over either by the wind or animals running at-large.

A few residents voiced support for the option based on the aesthetic improvements the carts could bring. But the majority of people who spoke complained of yet another “tax” being placed on their utility bills in a time of economic distress.

“It’s just another sort of thing to voluntarily use something and then the next thing you know, it’s mandatory,” resident Dennis Davis said.

Some residents who said they were on fixed incomes said the mandatory charge would make it more difficult to make ends meet.

Speaking on behalf of his son, Tolmie’s Ace Hardware owner Dirk Tolmie, Harold Tolmie asserted that making totes mandatory — in essence making other garbage receptacles obsolete — would take business away from his son’s store.

Council president Dave Downum, who said he uses two of the totes at his house, said he was against the idea of issuing a mandate.

Councilman Aaron Tines said he was siding with the citizens’ opinion.

“I’m against it, if we got off the public input from what we’ve heard tonight,” he said.

Wilson contended that the citizens who spoke against the proposal were in the minority.

“I’ve talked to a lot of people, and there are a lot of people for it,” Wilson said. “But those who are for it don’t come to meetings.”

Fire-ravaged home could spark court battle

Property owner against city's order to clean up

A Homedale resident says he will head to court over the city's insistence that he clean up the remains of his burned-out home.

Dennis and Elizabeth Davis and their children were one of two families that lost homes in a Thanksgiving Day fire on West Owyhee Avenue. Months later, the city has put cleanup of the Davises' property on the clock.

In an emotional and, at times, heated discussion with the city council and Police Chief Jeff Eidemiller, Dennis Davis said he intends to file an injunction to delay the city's demands for abatement of the 5,100-square-foot property.

An administrative hearing on Davis' appeal of the city's 30-day notice was scheduled for Monday night after deadline.

During the March 10 City Council meeting, Davis said he had yet file the injunction, which he said would be “to stop the city from proceeding that will cause great monetary harm or harm to my case. That’s the definition of an injunction. That’s what’s going to happen.”

Davis is upset because the city recently gave him 30 days to clean up the home, which was destroyed in a Nov. 26 fire that started next door in the home of Anita and Mike Brown. He said he and his wife's work schedule and inclement weather on the weekends has made it difficult to do much cleanup.

The city sent an abatement let-

Lot cleanup slow going on Owyhee

Homeowner Dennis Davis told the Homedale City Council on Wednesday that cleanup efforts at his burned home on West Owyhee Avenue have been hampered by work schedules and weather.

ter 60 days after the fire then another three weeks later. Eidemiller said the city agreed to be flexible with the cleanup timeline as long as Davis was making “substantial progress”.

“They told me I wasn’t working fast enough,” Davis said. “I find that insulting. That’s a slap in the face to all the hard work my family and friends have done for me and the progress we’ve made.”

Construction on the Browns' new home is ongoing. Davis said progress on his property has been slowed by legal proceedings with Frigidaire — the maker of the range that is believed to have sparked the blaze — and the Browns' insurance underwriter.

Davis said in last week's meeting that he did not have insurance on the home.

Eidemiller, who said he has been one of the family's strongest advocates with concerned city officials, said public sentiment and nuisance laws require the city to move forward.

Fellow fire victim Anita Brown said she has heard from the public, too.

“The neighborhood has not only come down on the city, but they’re coming to me and (husband) Mike, and they’re saying, ‘When is that next door going to be cleaned up?’ ” she said, adding that the backyard debris that Davis is working on is unrelated to the fire but has been a problem for 11 years.

Eidemiller refuted Davis' claims that there has been no communication from the police department about a burglary that occurred approximately three weeks ago. The police chief said property has been recovered and the case is in the hands of the prosecutor.

Davis also criticized the way the Homedale Fire Department handled knocking down the fire during a nine-hour battle, saying that the use of a front loader to tear down part of the structure was unnecessary.

Both Eidemiller and Homedale Fire Chief Scott Salutregui defended the technique used by volunteer firefighters. Salutregui said conditions forced his crews to take a defensive strategy to save neighboring structures.

"The fuel load inside and outside was so tremendous that it was endangering firefighter personnel," Salutregui said.

Council president Dave Downum also came to the defense of the fire department.

"I think it's so disrespectful what he said about the fire department," Downum said. "These guys came out twice and risked their lives on Thanksgiving to put this fire out, and apparently he didn't think that was good enough. He didn't think they put it out correctly."

Davis, who during an earlier discussion about uncontained garbage in Homedale said he had been “ticketed” 11 times by the city, told the council that he is concentrating on cleaning up debris in his backyard. He contends the backyard is fenced, so the debris pile is hidden from public view and, therefore, isn’t a nuisance. Eidemiller argued that a portion of the back fence is down, and the pile is visible.

Court records show that Davis has been charged on at least eight separate occasions since 1996 on offenses ranging from violation of fencing regulations to public nuisance violations to dogs running at-large infractions. In all but three instances, the charges were dismissed. In 2002, he was fined $48 for a dog at-large, and fined $63.50 and placed on six months' probation for failing to comply with a city ordinance. In 2006, Davis was hit with another $57 fine for dogs at-large.

Three Creek patrons headed to polls again

District seeks bond nine months after $20K levy

Registered voters in the Three Creek Joint School District in the southeastern corner of the county will vote on expanding the facilities at the tiny school later this month.

The polls will be open from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m. on March 30 at the school, which is nearly 40 miles outside Rogerson. On the ballot is a $240,000 bond to last no more than 20 years, according to school district officials.

Superintendent Harlan Mink told the Twin Falls Times-News that the bond will finance a gymnasium and storage area, which could be constructed by the first part of fall if the bond passes.

Teacher Marylin Boss told The Owyhee Avalanche last week that the one-room school took an attendance hit earlier this year when one of the area families moved away. Three Creek now has only three students.

“I’ll be really excited if the bond passes, as we will then get to build a half-gym for the students to use and will also have badly needed room for storage,” Boss said.

The storage would be used to house tables, computers and books.

Mink told the Times-News that the school board cut the contingency fund by $20,000 to $40,000 for fiscal year 2010. Patrons passed a $20,000 levy in June to replace the school’s water pipe and draw up plans for the expansion.

There are 35 registered voters in the district. All but six voted to pass the levy last summer.

County towns seek DEQ grants

Homedale wants to commission studies; Bruneau association looks to reactivate sewer pond

Infrastructure grants requested by two Owyhee County communities appear far down on the priority list released Friday by the state Department of Environment Quality.

Idaho DEQ will take public comment until 5 p.m. on April 7 on the list of 33 wastewater project proposals and 36 drinking water construction proposals.

The state has $47 million for wastewater projects and $40 million for drinking water jobs. Entities made $123 million in wastewater requests; $65 in drinking water requests.

Homedale has a grant request in each category, but public works supervisor Larry Bauer said Friday that neither pertains to construction.

The Bruneau Water and Sewer District is asking for a $25,000 grant for engineering on expansion of its wastewater plant capacity through recommissioning of a retired treatment lagoon. The request ranks 31st out of 44 wastewater grant bids on the DEQ list.

Homedale’s municipal water system rehabilitation is all but complete, and the sewer system upgrade is nearly done, according to Bauer’s report to the City compliance on anything, and most of the time if we do have a compliance hit, we can do a resample and it’s almost always OK,” he said.

“Right now, our sewer pond is doing a wonderful job. What’s going to change that is if and when DEQ changes the allowances, and then we’ll have to address that.”

Homedale’s request is 32nd on a list of 44 proposed projects vying for DEQ money.

Bauer said the testing that the grant would finance “looks good to DEQ. They see that we care. It shows we’re proactive.”

Bruneau Water and Sewer District president Stacey Buckingham said the recommissioned lagoon would serve as a backup to the lone remaining pond. The grant money would be used to repair a liner that was ruptured by groundwater. Buckingham said DEQ won’t allow the lagoon to be used because of the ruptured liner.

He also said that the lagoon would be used in case of expansion of the Bruneau wastewater system, but the second pond is needed now to lessen the burden on the system created by the municipal water treatment plant. The reverse osmosis system to abate arsenic in the drinking water sends more wastewater into the Bruneau sewer plant than before, Buckingham said.

Marsing hires schools boss

The Marsing School District will have a new superintendent July 1 as Newell Cleaver steps into the position.

Cleaver is a 21-year veteran and comes to Marsing from his previous position as superintendent of the Grant School District No. 3 in Oregon.

Cleaver returned to Oregon after his selection at last week’s school board meeting to attend the birth of a grandchild.

He will be replacing Harold Shockley, who will step down from the helm at the Marsing Schools due to health issues this year.

Marsing Housing Authority annexation complete

The city council passed ordinances A-176 and A-178, folding the Marsing Housing Authority and a neighboring privately owned strip of land into the city on March 10 during its regular monthly meeting. The annexation had been a longtime goal of the city, which has supplied water and sewer services to the Housing Authority, which paid its property taxes to the county, not the city.

Having the housing authority within the city limits also alleviates legal concerns expressed previously by the council, as city maintenance crews — paid by city taxes — are not authorized to work on areas beyond the city limits.

Crosswalk gets flashers

The crosswalk at the corner of Main Street and Idaho highway 78 will be equipped with a pair of solar-powered LED crosswalk flashers after council voted to approve spending $9,600 of road department money for the purchase. The general fund will have to be tapped to balance the expenditure.

The two lights are programmable and will flash automatically during school hours, and will be touch controlled the rest of the time, Mayor Keith Green said.

The flashers are warning lights, rather than stoplights, and the Idaho Transportation Department has agreed to install the pair, Green said.

Impact fees not approved

Green asked the council to decide on the advisability of instituting an impact fee structure as requested by planning and zoning to insure developers help pay for needed infrastructure addition tied to their projects.

Such a fee structure would assess potential costs to the city for projects like homes or subdivisions built within Marsing.

City attorney Stephanie Bonney explained the options the city had: Instituting the fee, continuing to negotiate each impact with each developer, or instituting impact fees for non-infrastructure impacts like parks, law enforcement or libraries while negotiating with each developer.

After discussion, the council decided to retain negotiations for infrastructure — roads, water and sewer — but may examine a specific impact fee targeted at parks and recreation.

USDA favors new meters

City engineer Amy Woodruff updated the council on the nearly complete water project, and said the U.S. Department of Agriculture Rural Development backed the idea of using remaining water project funds to install new remote-read meters city-wide.

The meters and the completion of a 20-year engineering plan are the last steps in the project.

Law enforcement report

Deputy Jeff Wasson detailed the number, location and type of each of 33 incident calls logged by the Owyhee County Sheriff's Office within the city limits during the previous month.

Wasson said he was surprised to discover that, for Marsing, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays outstripped weekends for number of incidents in the report.

The council and mayor expressed approval of the report, something Green had requested as part of Marsing's law enforcement contract with the county. Wasson said that future reports might have additional details.

✓ Patrol: Deputy roster has been shortened by medical, training leaves

Wasson indicated that was the case, and said that the issue wasn't limited to the Marsing and Homedale area.

"There may be some lapses on some days," Wasson said. "We did get cut on hours. If it (current scheduling) works out, it's about six hours a month."

The office of the county clerk confirmed that OCSO patrol deputies are being paid for 40 hours per week. Ten deputies (including Chief Deputy Bill Detweiler) are listed on the roster provided last week by Owyhee County Prosecutor Douglas Emery. Four have been unavailable for full hours due to medical, holiday or training issues.

If all four did not work at all — which is less than the actual case — that leaves 960 hours of patrol time in a four-week (672-hour) period. If nine were available for patrol, patrol hours would rise to 1,440 — enough to have two deputies on duty at all times.

"I haven't heard a word (about cuts to on-duty patrol deputy hours)," District 2 commissioner George Hyer said Friday. "I don't know why he (Crandall) would be cutting hours. He's been on the new budget since September. Nobody's informed us (of any lapses in coverage)." District 3 commissioner Dick Freund also said he had not heard of any hour shortages, and said the issue was more likely to be one of management and scheduling than budgeting.

"The Sheriff's department is fully staffed with available department budgetary allowances and operate within governing labor standards," Emery said Thursday in response to a faxed query from The Owyhee Avalanche — sent to both Emery and Sheriff Crandall — asking for details on how uncovered hours might affect response time and public safety.

He listed several officers who were currently not on patrol. Four men were on medical leave, on vacation, in training or finishing training as of Thursday.

Emery confirmed that any gaps would be in patrol, not in dispatch, and that dispatchers are on duty every hour of every day.

"Sheriff Daryl Crandall and the Owyhee County Sheriff's Department are dedicated to protecting public safety," Emery wrote. "Law enforcement response time is dependent on the accessibility and remoteness of the incident."

He did not address how or if response time would be affected if a call came in during a period when no deputy was scheduled for patrol.

Whether the lapse in coverage will be solved by the return of the four deputies, or if another factor is engendering the issues, is not yet clear, and The Owyhee Avalanche continues to ask Crandall for comment and clarification.

Calls, faxes and e-mails to the sheriff were not returned.

✓ Grid: Homedale could sell excess electricity back to Idaho Power maintenance shop — essentially could go off the Idaho Power grid if the solar panels generate enough electricity.

However, the grant application shows that only Homedale would probably produce more energy than City Hall would use. The Marsing city shop could significantly reduce its dependency on grid power, but there probably wouldn't be a complete elimination.

No match money is necessary, according to OER administrator Paul Kjellander, but each city had to pay $150 to apply. The Homedale City Council allocated its payment from the economic development budget line during its usual bill approval at the Feb. 25 meeting.

Marsing Mayor Keith Green said he authorized $150 from the town's general fund.

"It's going to be helpful," Green said. "The council talked about it Wednesday, and they're happy. We're all pleased."

Homedale Mayor Harold Wilson announced the grant award during last week's council meeting.

"Hopefully we can get going on this grant and cut our power (bill)," Wilson said. "And when there's excess power, Idaho Power will buy it back."

According to the grant document filed by Parma on behalf of the six other cities, Homedale's project to build a 6,400-square-foot, 45-kilowatt (kW) solar-panel array on top of City Hall will cost $259,725.

An average of 45,636 kilowatt hours (kWh) is used annually to power City Hall, which includes the police station, city offices and the magistrate court. It's estimated that the solar panels, which will cover all available space on the flat roof, will generate 70,224 kWh per year, or nearly 25,000 kWh above the necessary load.

According to figures compiled by Sage Community Resources, Homedale would actually make a net profit each year after project completion, which is tabbed for November. Homedale now spends $3,240 per year on City Hall power, but the solar panels would actually put energy back into the electricity grid. Idaho Power would then purchase the excess, resulting in more than $300 in energy bill credits each year for Homedale.

In essence, the City Hall meter would run backwards, according to a Sage Community Resources official who didn't want to be named.

The grant application states that the energy cost figures do not account for expected annual increases in utility rates.

Marsing's maintenance shop energy costs would dramatically reduce as well, but would not be completely wiped out.

The project, estimated to cost $133,320, would build a 24-kW grouping of solar panels covering 2,400 square feet of the shop's south-facing sloped roof. The panels reportedly would generate 37,452 kWh per year. The shop now uses an average of 3,240 kWh each month, or 38,880 kWh annually.

The Marsing shop power bill averages $210 each month, or $2,520 annually, and the solar project is expected to reduce the annual cost by $2,247, resulting in an average monthly electric bill of about $22.73.

The project, which also includes Notus, Greenleaf, Mountain Home and Midvale, also could reduce carbon dioxide (CO2) emissions because coal constitutes about 40 percent of Idaho Power's energy-producing mix.

The City of Parma is the only entity that must participate in the bid process, but the other cities are not precluded from taking part, according to documentation from Sage.

✓ U.S. 95: Pavement rehabilitation hits high gear sometime this summer

replacements in that area in the coming weeks," Hollinshead said. "These pipes have to be done before water is turned into the ditches for the summer."

Irrigation officials have said water will begin flowing in ditches sometime next month.

Hollinshead said crews may be forced to leave trenches in gravel overnight after each pipe replacement if asphalt is unavailable.

"Due to the quickly approaching irrigation season, we do not have many options," he said.

Later in the summer, crews will embark on a planned pavement rehabilitation project on 7.5 miles of U.S. 95 between the southern Homedale city limit to the highway's junction with Idaho highway 95. Hollinshead said the project should get under way in July or August.

The project will use the Cement Recycled Asphalt Base Stabilization (CRABS) method.

In preparation for the rehab, state crews have been adding to the gravel shoulders of U.S. 95.

In addition to the U.S. 95 to Idaho 55 work, crews will put a 1.8-inch thin-lift overlay resurfacing on U.S. 95 from the Marsing Port of Entry to the Idaho 55 junction (the ION truck stop). The project covers about 8.5 miles, ITD said.

Eastern Owyhee Library after-school programs continue

After-school programs continue at the Eastern Owyhee County Library with activities for preschoolers through sixth-graders.

The Tappin’ Toes program takes place at 2:30 p.m. Mondays for preschoolers and at 3:30 p.m. Mondays for kindergarten-ers through third-graders. The program has featured fun with trains and cars, indoor snowball fights and crafts in addition to story time.

Children in fourth through sixth grade are invited to the library’s after-school time at 3:30 p.m. on Thursdays. Crafts activities include the current pillowcase project during which children are sewing pillowcases and then decorating them with markers, fabric spray paints and tie-dye. Other activities during the year have included making piñatas, playing Wii Rock Band and receiving gardening instructions from an Owyhee County 4-H representative.

All three programs will take next week off for spring break, but will resume the week of March 29 and continue through mid-May, according to library director Kathy Chick.

The library continues its Wii bowling leagues and also has new titles for adults and teenagers to check out.

The library is located at 520 Boise Ave., in Grand View and can be reached at (208) 834-2785.

Master naturalist chapter seeks conservation volunteers

The Southwest Idaho Lizard Butte Chapter of the Idaho Master Naturalist Program is now accepting applications. Classes will be held at the Deer Flat National Wildlife Refuge Visitors Center on Tuesday, March 23. The classes are limited to 20 people, who will become master naturalists upon completion.

The cost is $50, which includes the course curriculum, guest speakers and field trips. One scholarship will be offered. Training includes 40 hours of core curriculum in classroom and field settings; eight hours of advanced “track” training and 40 hours community service. Those interested must submit a 500-word essay on why natural resource stewardship and becoming a master naturalist is important to them. Idaho Master Naturalist Program members will participate and guide conservation efforts and will become part of a statewide network of trained volunteers working toward conservation.

The Lizard Butte chapter will focus conservation efforts on Owyhee, Canyon, Payette and Gem counties. For an application or to get more information, contact Diane French at the Marsing Natural Resource Conservation Service office, (208) 896-4544, Ext. 110 or diane.french@id.usda.gov.

Anniversaries

Former Homedale residents mark 50 years in Nampa

Former Homedale residents Glen and Donna Erickson will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary at an open house later this month.

The Ericksons, who now live in Nampa, started married life in Homedale on March 25, 1960, with a wedding at the Friends Community Church.

The celebration takes place from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, March 27, 2010, at the Silver Crest One Community Center, 1907 W. Flamingo Ave., in Nampa. Friends and family are invited to attend. No gifts are requested; however, $1 Sacajawea coins will be collected in honor of their golden anniversary.

In addition to residing in Homedale, the couple has lived in Weiser, Midvale, Boise and Nampa and Hood River, Ore.

Glen graduated from Firth High School. Donna graduated from Homedale High School and received her AB degree from Treasure Valley Community College. They owned a meat packing business and were involved in apartment management.

They are now retired and enjoy visiting with their children and grandchildren and traveling in

They are parents of three children — Ron Erickson of Hood River, Ore., Carl (Cindy) Erickson of Nampa and Darla Gjino of Hood River. They have five grandsons and one granddaughter, two great grandsons and one great granddaughter.

Daughters plan celebration to mark Metzers' golden

Kenne and Darlene Metzger will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary at 6 p.m. on Saturday, March 27, 2010, at the Txoko Ona Basque Center, 333 S. Main St., Homedale.

Friends and family are invited to attend a party hosted by their three daughters, Randee Metzger Garrett, Teri Metzger Uria and Lynne Metzger Murphy.

The Metzgers were married on April 3, 1960, and made their home in Homedale.

Kenne and Darlene have owned and operated Kenne Metzger Well Drilling as a team since that time.

In addition to well drilling, the Metzgers continue to stay busy farming their home place on Succor Creek and following the many activities and sporting events of their 10 grandchildren.

Kenne and Darlene have always spent much of their time supporting the accomplishments and celebrations of those in their family and community as well

B2H routes for NEPA released

Idaho Power has released the suggested routes for the proposed 360-mile Boardman-to-Hemingway 500 kilovolt power line.

The map shows that all alternate routes that ran north-south through Idaho — and Oregon in the Adrian area — have been discarded. Remaining routes run generally northwest to southeast across eastern Oregon.

The impact on Owyhee County remains to be seen, as a final decision as to placement of the section of the line paralleling the existing PacifiCorp transmission line had not been made. Landowners and irrigators have argued for the line’s placement south of the existing line since the inception of the project two years ago. Cultivated cropland currently runs up to, and in places under, the existing line on its northeastern side.

The Bureau of Land Management will now examine the proposed routes under the guidelines of the National Environmental Protection Act (NEPA). After the impacts of the line are assessed, the BLM will issue a draft Environmental Impact Statement.

The draft EIS is expected in six to seven months.

Right-of-way acquisition for the line is planned for 2012, according to Idaho Power’s B2H Web site. Construction is slated to begin in 2013.

Idaho Power last week released the suggested Boardman-to-Hemingway power line routes that will be used in the Bureau of Land Management’s NEPA process.

Feds earmark $16M to help with sage-grouse

First signup period for producers runs until April 23

On Friday, Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack announced a new initiative to protect sage-grouse population and habitat in 11 western states using two U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) conservation programs — the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and Wildlife Habitat Incentive Program (WHIP).

“USDA will take bold steps to ensure the enhancement and preservation of sage-grouse habitat and the sustainability of working ranches and farms in the western United States,” Vilsack said.

The USDA will use up to $16 million through EQIP and WHIP in the 11 states this fiscal year to provide financial assistance to producers to reduce threats to the birds, such as disease and invasive species, and improve sage-grouse habitat.

Producers can sign up through April 23 to participate in the first round of rankings for this initiative. USDA’s Natural Resources Conservation Service administers EQIP and WHIP. USDA will also work with the Department of Interior to provide certainty to landowners who enroll in NRCS programs to benefit sage-grouse, the release said.

“This will protect landowners from increased regulation should the bird be listed under the Endangered Species Act in the future,” it explained.

Because of the DOI decision not to list the sage-grouse, landowners will have additional time to be responsive by taking specific actions to protect the species, according to the release.

For additional information about EQIP, visit www.nrcs.usda.gov/programs/eqip/ and for WHIP, visit <http://www.nrcs.usda.gov/programs/whip/>.

Donkey basketball raises funds for pastor

Donkey basketball was a great success for the Homedale FFA chapter. It took place in the Homedale High School gym on March 8. A total of $781.04 was raised to benefit Carl Bennett, pastor of the Homedale Friends Church.

We would like to thank all of the Homedale and Marsing FFA members, Homedale school faculty (Casey Grove, Matt Holtry, Kenny Thomas, Larry Corta, Nancy Anthony, Mark Thatcher, Debby Turner, and Burke Deal), and Homedale community members (Dennis Uria, Barney Harper, Kasey Garrett, Corby Garrett, Dwayne Fisher, Bobby Christensen, Gheen Christoffersen, Steve Nash, Jim Ryska, Shelley Shenk and Amaya Auw) for participating and making this an event worth attending. Also, thanks to Kevin Cornwall for working the admission booth.

The game was won decisively by the Homedale Community team who were able to fight their way to victory.

We also appreciate the Homedale Friends Church for joining in the fundraiser by providing the wonderful dinner and cake auction.

It was a pleasure to watch our chapter members get their ... donkeys ... kicked!

Horse judging team makes it to state

The Homedale FFA Horse Judging Career Development Experience team qualified for state on March 10 during district competition in Wendell. Lane Matteson, Carlie Purdom, Kolbie Gerdes, Cole Twedt, Bodie Hyer and Kylie Schoonover all competed. Matteson placed first as an individual in the contest with 466 points, Purdom second, Gerdes third, Twedt seventh, and Hyer 10th overall. Matteson, Gerdes, Twedt, and Hyer will all compete in Twin Falls at the State Leadership Convention in April.

Homedale chapter celebrates FFA week

The Homedale FFA chapter held the annual FFA week Feb. 16-19. The week was filled with ice cream, BBQ lunch, Fear Factor and Greenhand Day.

Tuesday, Feb. 16, was Greenhand Day. All of the members who will be receiving their Greenhand Degree this year painted their hand on the Ag shop door for the sixth annual tradition.

On Feb. 17, members were treated to ice cream at lunch. A BBQ was provided for the members the next day. This lunch consisted of hot dogs, chips and soda. Thanks to our chefs Trey Corta, Alex Mereness and Casey Christoffersen.

The week was finished with the best event of all, Fear Factor. On Feb. 19, members participated as teams of four.

Contestants competed in shaving balloons, a dog food pie eating contest, sucking lemon juice out of baby bottles, relay races, eating doughnuts off a string, and searching for M&Ms in a bowl of flour without using their hands. The results:

Each member of the first-place team — Alex Mereness, Drew Farwell, Megan Harper and Laurien Mavey — received a pair of movie tickets.

The second-place team members — Casey Christoffersen, Trey Corta, Bodie Hyer and Lane Matteson — received Subway gift cards.

The third-place team of Kenny Harper, Mike Mavey, Fletcher Kelly and Tucker Gerdes earned a box of candy bars.

We thank everyone who participated in these activities and made this week enjoyable. A special thank you to Shelley Shenk, who helped with Fear Factor, including the clean-up!

Marsing audit “good”

Bailey and Co. certified public accountants gave Marsing a passing grade last week in the City’s yearly audit.

Jared Zwygart said the results were “a good report” and that the auditors “felt like you guys were looking at and monitoring things.”

In most categories, Marsing did well, with a general fund showing a final balance (as of the Sept. 30 end of the fiscal year) of $227,462. Roads and streets finished at $46,969 and other funds (parks and recreation among them) at $17,670.

This year, for the first time in recent memory, residents’ delays in paying taxes forced the city to cover $415 from the general fund at the end of the fiscal year, while awaiting the payments. Holdbacks from state government also hurt cities throughout Idaho, Zwygart said. In 2009, $57,000 was expected in intergovernmental revenues in the roads and streets department. Marsing received $46,036.

City planning and zoning saw a big hit as builders stopped building in 2009. Revenue expectations of $14,500 fell almost $4,000 short, and supplies and personnel costs were $2,725 higher than expected. That left a total deficit of $6,482, added to planning and zoning’s last year’s deficit, that left the office’s ending fund balance at $13,980 — money that will have to be paid from the general fund.

Enterprise funds — water, sewer, irrigation and trash — showed losses in three of four categories.

Water saved the combined funds from an overall deficit, generating $72,038 in revenue after operating costs, while sewer finished at a $32,553 deficit, with losses in irrigation and sanitation of $2,743 and $4,143, respectively.

The numbers for the enterprise funds do not reflect the increase in sewer rates that came online in October. That income’s impact will be seen in next year’s audit, as will service on the city’s $1.5 million bond debt from the municipal water project.

The one point Zwygart said needed attention was a way to track oversight during the payment of bills and issuance of checks by the city — a double check to reassure auditors that council members also saw issued payments. The oversight could be as simple as the city council members initialing the paperwork, he said.

Law enforcement briefs

From March 4 through March 11 the Owyhee County Sheriff’s Office logged 69 incidents. Four arrests were made; one DUI and three for driving without privileges.

In the same period, Homedale police logged 31 incidents. Three arrests were made: One DUI and two DWP.

HPD

Homedale police cited Penny J. Ibarra, age 49, for driving under the influence. Ibarra, a Caldwell resident, was pulled over just after noon on March 9 at the intersection of Main Street and Idaho Avenue in Homedale.

Ibarra has two convictions for DUI in Canyon County, dating from 1989 and 1994.

The JZ Auto building in Homedale, located at the corner of Idaho Avenue and South 1st Street West, was burglarized on March 8. One or more persons broke the window of the building and entered the premises. No items were taken, according to the property owners, HPD Chief Jeff Eidemiller said.

Police are investigating a report of a stolen vehicle, which was impounded after a pursuit by the Canyon County Sheriff’s Office prior to its being reported stolen by Homedale resident Steven Dickson on March 7.

The vehicle became involved in the pursuit after failing to stop for a traffic violation, but the driver eluded Canyon County authorities, Eidemiller said Monday.

Dickson reported that he had parked the vehicle at a friend’s house and discovered it was missing the following morning, Eidemiller said.

The vehicle is currently being held by the CCSO until it concludes its investigation, Eidemiller said.

OCSO

Homedale police officer Steve Atkins aided three Owyhee County deputies — Jim Mackenzie, Slade Heeb and Dustin Moe — in a DUI arrest at the Snake River Mart in Marsing on March 7 at approximately 9:30 p.m. Marsing resident Landen Dorman, 33, was arrested.

Also on March 7, a five-hour power outage took OCSO phones offline for one or two hours after backup battery packs were exhausted. Sheriff’s dispatcher Bev White said that Qwest telecommunications and OCSO were discussing additional emergency backup power, in the form of batteries or a generator.

Marsing gets first softball victory of season
Rebecca Cossel slides at home plate with one of her two runs for Marsing High School on Saturday as Rimrock softball pitcher Jackie Thurman rushes in to cover after a wild pitch.

Hardy, Huskies hammer Raiders

Kala Hardy had a strong and successful prep debut last week. The freshman was 4-for-4 with three RBI in Marsing High School's 14-1 non-conference softball victory over visiting Rimrock on Saturday.

The Raiders (0-1) didn't score until the fifth inning when Becca Barrett scored after a leadoff single. The game was ended by the 10-run rule.

Kacie Salove picked up the victory, pitching 3 2/3 innings of no-hit ball before Janice Ontiveros singled with two out in the fourth inning. A junior, Salove finished with a four-hitter.

Hardy smacked a two-run double in the Huskies' five-run third inning.

Senior Peyton Kinney had two singles and an RBI, and Lacey Usabel counted two doubles among her three hits.

Marsing (1-1) dropped a 5-0 non-conference decision to 3A Payette on Friday with Hardy and Usabel getting the team's only singles.

HHS juniors named All-SRV

Rimrock's Thurman, coach tops in All-1A WIC

If a consolation championship in the state tournament for a team loaded with underclassmen wasn't enough of an indication, the All-3A Snake River Valley conference voting has solidified that the future may belong to the Homedale High School boys' basketball team.

Junior sharpshooters Kenny Esparza and Walter Almaraz landed on the first team, while senior Ryan Ryska joined sophomore Trey Corta on the second team.

Freshman Jason Galligan earned an honorable mention nod to account for the only Marsing candidate on the All-2A Western Idaho Conference team.

Girls

Senior Jackie Thurman picked up one last honor in her basketball career at Rimrock — 1A Western Idaho Conference Player of the Year. The Raiders' Mike Chandler was tabbed as conference coach of the year.

Other seniors — Randie Denton and Anna Cantrell — were All-1A WIC first team.

Kortney Stansell represented Homedale in the All-3A SRV voting as a second-teamer. Justine Calzacorta and Kyle Farwell both were placed on the honorable mention list.

Antelopes tackle baseball challenge

Rebuilding a once-mighty athletic program is a challenge in itself. When you have to reload talent in the process, as Kevin Purnell is doing this year with Adrian High School baseball, it becomes even more daunting.

The Antelopes begin the season Friday against Nampa Christian with six new faces in the starting lineup and one standout on the sideline recovering from wrist surgery.

Blake Ishida, a shortstop/catcher who hit better than .340 each of the past two seasons, and George Ellsworth, a team leader at catcher, both graduated after leading Adrian to a fifth-place showing in the 2A Wapiti League. The team's season ended in the district tournament against Joseph/Enterprise.

Junior Blake Purnell, shortstop and ace of the pitching staff last year, will miss a good portion of the season recovering from surgery to repair a wrist broken during football season. The 6-foot-2 Purnell hit over .400 and averaged 10 strikeouts per game as a junior as he was a first-team all-league pick and an honorable mention All-State utility infielder.

Junior Jeremy Price is in his third year with the team. Kevin Purnell says the starting second baseman's defense and speed on the base paths will be essential.

Kevin Purnell will start four or five freshmen, but has a senior coming back to pick up for Ellsworth behind the plate.

"He will need to step up and work hard because everybody will be watching to see how he leads this team," Purnell said.

New coach sees potential in Trojan golfers

Ryska, Landa anchor deep, talented squad

New Homedale High School golf coach Greg Kilmer has a few concerns this season — none of which pertains to his team's potential.

"I've got to get the Ryska boys' names straight, and I've heard horror stories about the district van we'll be taking to matches," Kilmer said prior to Monday's season-opening tournament at River Bend Golf Course.

But what about the team talent?

"I like this team — a lot," Kilmer said of the 11 boys who turned out this spring. "I've followed high school for a long, long time — some of these kids weren't born yet — and I like what I see."

Greg Kilmer

Kilmer worked for the Idaho Press-Tribune for over 14 years, covering prep golf over that time while sending his three children through junior golf in the Treasure Valley.

"What I like is we have depth; weekly qualifying will be very competitive," the Trojans' coach said. "And I like the balance of experience and youth."

This is Kilmer's first high school coaching job. He has coached golfers at the youth and junior high level and also has served as an instructor for First Tee of Idaho. Reed Batt serves as assistant coach for HHS this

AMA motorcycle races held in desert Sunday

National riders expected for Rabbit Creek 100

Top national riders are expected to compete Sunday in the Rabbit Creek 100 cross-country motorcycle race set for the Owyhee Desert between Murphy and Oreana.

Dirt Inc. is hosting the fourth round of the American Motorcyclist Association/Kenda National Hare and Hound Series. The Southern Idaho Desert Racing Association also sanctions the 100-mile race.

"The start is pretty impressive," Dirt Inc.'s Bill Walsh said. "At the front line, there will be 100-plus bikes at one time."

Walsh said because this is part of a nine-race national series, the field should break the previous Rabbit Creek 100 record of 220 riders. This is the only national points race set in Idaho. There is one held in Utah, and the rest of the Hare and Hound series is contested in Southern California.

"We'll have a fairly good show," Walsh said, adding that he has consulted with the Owyhee County Sheriff's Office and Board of County Commissioners about impact concerns, including increased traffic.

Most of the course is closed to spectators, he said.

There are 15 classes of riders ranging from Overall (pro and A- and B-rated riders) to mini-bikes for boys and girls.

Pro riders will hold a poster signing from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday at the Hampton Inn in Nampa, he said.

Sunday's racing begins at 9 a.m. for mini-bikes, which will cover a six- to eight-mile loop in a one-hour ride. Entry fee for mini-bikes is $35. Signup is from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, and from 7 a.m. to 8 a.m. on Sunday.

Big bike registration is open Saturday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. and again Sunday from 7 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. The motorcycle races begin at 11 a.m. Sunday, and riders will make two loops around the course. The entry fee is $65 or $40 for sportsman class riders.

All Rabbit Creek 100 entrants must be AMA members, Walsh said, and an association

HYS Inc. plans fundraiser

Homedale Youth Sports Inc. will hold its third annual fundraiser Saturday at the Txoko Ona Basque Center.

Doors open at 5:30 p.m. for a Texas Hold 'em poker tournament, silent auction and two raffles. The Basque center is located at 333 S. Main St., in Homedale.

Food and drink will be served.

HYS president Shane Brown said prices for entry and raffle tickets are still being formulated. Donations for the raffle and silent auction are being sought, too.

Auction items include BSU- and U of I-themed baskets.

For more information, to purchase a ticket or make a donation, call Brown at 880-4552.

Trojans taste season-opening success

The Homedale High School softball and baseball teams opened Thursday on the road against non-conference foe Parma.

Thursday: Homedale 11, Parma 0 (6) — Winning pitcher Bryce Osborn went 4-for-4 with a double and collected four RBI. Osborn was one of three Trojans to rip doubles in the game. Homedale led, 5-0, after three innings.

Parma managed just one hit against two Homedale pitchers.

Thursday: Homedale 14, Parma 9 (susp., 5) — Right fielder Jordan Jarvis went 3-for-4 with a double and three RBI as the Trojans rode a fast start.

The plan is to complete the game in Homedale on April 1 when the Panthers visit for the second half of the home-and-home series.

Homedale opened with seven runs in the top of the first inning. Jarvis had a bases-clearing double to get the scoring started.

Parma rallied with six runs in the bottom of the first against winning pitcher Jose Gonzalez.

membership costs $39 a year.

The starting line is set above Murphy off the Stage Road by Diamond Basin, Walsh said.

The race goes across Bureau of Land Management ground, and Walsh said the federal agency alerts organizers if grazing allotments are involved.

“They’ll let us know if we have a rancher to deal with, and we always have a real good time with (area rancher) Paul Nettleton,” Walsh said. “He’s usually one of our honorary starters.”

This year’s course features almost 3,000 feet in elevation changes, Walsh said. The starting line is at 3,200 feet and the course drops down to the Rabbit Creek recreational area parking lot before going as high as 4,800 near the Fossil Creek Play Area. The racecourse goes behind Hemingway Butte and also crosses Sinker Creek.

Walsh said that in addition to race winnings, there is a $500 reward for the first rider who catches a character named Rekluse Rabbit, which is actually veteran rider and former national champion Curtis Dice of Nampa, who will get a five-minute head start.

✓ Golfers: Kilmer sees good mix of young and seasoned

While last season’s leaders of Garrett Sweet and Ryan Garrett have graduated, seniors Ryan Ryska and Reece Landa look to follow up their basketball success with a trip to the 3A golf state tournament in Coeur d’Alene.

“They’re good athletes, and they are competitive,” Kilmer said of the two upperclassmen who will be joined by fellow seniors Cody Johnson and Garrett Gaskins. “I think our youngsters will learn from these guys.”

Homedale’s roster is chock full of those youngsters, with only sophomore Brett Ryska returning from the 2009 team. The rest of the team is staffed by first-time players, including sophomore Anthony Adams and five freshmen — Hayden Krzesnik, Reed Mag-gard, Nick Ryska, Cole Twedt and Aspen Curtis.

“There’s talent in that group. Hayden Krzesnik and Reed Maggard have played a lot of junior golf and will benefit from playing with the seniors.

“Come district time, I’ll be confident with whoever I send over to Scotch Pines.”

Scotch Pines Golf Course in Payette is where the 3A Snake River Valley conference golf contingent will vie for the 3A District III title in May — and berths to the state tournament.

“Traditionally, Fruitland and Payette are always qualifying teams, but like I said, I like this team. I like our chances to see how we stack up against the rest of the state,” Kilmer said.

“We just need that van to get us there.”

Council raises sewer fee, takes action against U-turns

The Homedale City Council raised the minimum sewer fees from $1.95 to $4 residential, and $3.45 to $5.50 commercial on a monthly basis at the regular meeting on Wednesday. The additional dollars will be compiled in a reserve fund to pay for improvements to the lagoons that are called for by 1988.

Mayor Paul Fink opened the discussion by requesting the increase, in light of new restrictions that will be placed on the lagoon effluent by the Federal Government starting in July, 1988. The Homedale lagoons were out of compliance four times last year and the situation must be solved, he said. The present minimum residential cost of sewer, water, and garbage is $13.10

A $1.7 million grant has been secured from the government that will pay for 75% of the $1,735,776 cost of changing the ponds, said Fink. In the past, the Federal branch covered 90% of the costs, but that has been reduced by 15%, and the days of more grant money may be over soon.

A sand-filled basin would be placed in one of the lagoons to catch any suspended solid overflow, said Fink. The entire project must be in compliance by July, 1988. The engineering costs, supplied by JUB Engineering, will be paid 90% by the grant money.

The problem of U-turns on the Homedale streets may soon be solved — by fines. Police Chief Allen Bidwell said a number of accidents had been caused by this habit, and presented a model ordinance against the practice. It is against the law to cross a double line, but several downtown streets do not have that designation or resurfacing has erased them. The practice of backing out from a diagonal space and heading in an opposite direction of travel would also be considered a U-turn.

Bidwell added that junk vehicles on the streets and alleys of Homedale would be tagged soon, giving 30 days to dispose of them in preparation for a city-wide cleanup.

Clapier chosen for housing authority

The Marsing City Council faced a short agenda last Wednesday night, according to City Clerk, Manie Werre.

David Clapier was chosen by Mayor Roy Herman to the Marsing Housing Authority. The position is a three-year term. The city’s major responsibility to the Authority is choosing the board of directors for the group.

Keith Thurgood of Blaine and Company appeared with a proposal for insurance for the city. The matter was taken under advisement by the council.

Two streets were named at the meeting. “McCullum Street,” connects Canal and Patton was named after long-time resident Henry McCullum. “Dons’ Street,” off of First Street North, was termed for several men who have developed the area, Werre said.

Tall tales told at Marsing gabfest

“You expect us to believe that one?” “You don’t have a story? Now, that’s a yarn in itself.” These were some of the varied comments at the Marsing Senior Citizens “Gabfest,” held on Friday.

The morning session allowed area seniors to pull each others’ ears with some first-class stories, jokes, tall tales, and a few white lies. Floyd Caldwell and Amos Lee were selected as champion gabbers and won special coffee cups for their efforts.

The stories ranged from funny anecdotes from experiences to some jokes that the seniors had heard. Some of the participants felt timid at first to relate their stories, but soon warmed up the discussion and produced some real yarns.

Caldwell started off the fest with his prize winner. In northeastern Colorado where he grew up, the wind blew all the time, said Caldwell. In one bout, the wind hit so hard that is popped prairie dogs right out of their burrows. When Caldwell experienced a few skeptical remarks, he replied, “I didn’t say it was true.”

Homedale enters state tourney at Coeur d’Alene

The Homedale Trojans won the Region Two Class AA championship Saturday night by defeating the Wendell Trojans 62-37. This victory gives Homedale the lone state berth and a chance at the state championship.

Homedale will meet Mullan from Region One at 7:30 o’clock in the opening game of the state Class AA tournament Friday night at Coeur d’Alene. St. Maries and Westside will battle at 9 o’clock.

In Friday night’s regional play at Caldwell, Homedale had an easy victory over Valley high with a final score of 57-38.

Valley’s only lead was 1-0 during the first 15 seconds of the game. Then Leslie, Frazier and DeGroat ran the score to 7-1 without giving up a point.

At the end of the first quarter the score was 14-10, but by halftime Homedale had a 10-point lead 30-20. They held this lead through most of the third quarter. As the fourth period started the score stood at 43-32.

Fire department called Monday

The fire alarm which blew about 5am Monday morning woke many Homedale residents, most of whom, rolled over and went back to sleep, but the Homedale volunteer fire department rushed to a hay stack blaze at the Lower Jump Creek sheep company northwest of town.

Several tons of hay on the outside of the 25 to 30 ton chopped haystack were destroyed.

The fire, rural fire chief Bruce Smith said, was evidently caused by spontaneous combustion.

Succor Crik Sam Sez: “Good thing they ain’t takin’ the census this week end. With everybody gone to the basketball tourney they won’t be anybody home to complain about all them personal questions Uncle Sam is gonna ask.”

COUNTY AFFAIRS. So far as our knowledge extends, it is the history of nearly every county on the Pacific Coast that its finances are or have been managed with the utmost recklessness. There is with all, however, a species of uniformity. Every county is severely taxed. We often hear tax-payers inquire what becomes of the money? They see no public property nor improvements. The objects and sources of taxation are multiplied and the rates increased, yet no money accumulates in the county treasury and the paper of the county is next to worthless. At this point, a singular uniformity is still apparent. The usual debts are incurred anywhere from 100 per cent to 1000 per cent above the real value of the service or articles obtained, and thus increase the debt and add a heavy interest thereto. It is the history of all counties that they are worth their indebtedness and the citizens are finally forced to pay every farthing. They are thus made to pay from two to ten times the amount that would have been necessary under proper management. We can point to a score of counties whose scrip is from worthless up to and not exceeding twenty cents in value per dollar. While nearly every one familiar with its affairs, believes the orders of Owyhee County worth seventy-five cents per dollar, yet they are freely offered for fifty cents in cash and traded at the stores at the same rates. Excepting a small wooden jail, the County rents all buildings used for County purposes. We never hear of our county officers being suspicioned of dishonesty, and Owyhee County stands better to-day than most counties, and probably the best of any in the Territory. While our County only owes about $16,000 or $18,000, many people don’t understand how it became so, nor why scrip is only fifty cents. Yet the best posted men will give no more. Can it be they fear the future of the County? The only charitably plausible reason is the great value of money for immediate use. Some say in twelve months we’ll be out of debt. One year ago the same was said of Boise County. The Grand Jury of that County have recently made a careful investigation and after stating that the debt is enormous, amounting to $100,000 bearing 10 per cent interest, this finding is given: “We find the credit of the County to be utterly ruined; its certificates of indebtedness scarcely worth the paper upon which they are written: and empty treasury; no real or personal property (with the exception of the Jail and Hospital) to guarantee the payment of its debt.” In view of this and the facts above stated, our County Officers should be continually on their guard, and furnish for publication a statement of bills allowed and orders made at each session of the County Commissioners. If their acts are all right they can have no objection, and the people would know what use was made of their money.

AGRICULTURAL. As Spring approaches, ranchers should be preparing for planting the usual crops. The lands along Jordan, Reynolds, Sinkler and other Creeks near by, are fertile and capable of producing vegetables, barley and oats sufficient to supply the Owyhee market the present year. More farmers are required to till the ground than should be, and, but for continual Indian depredations, we believe plenty would choose that surest of occupations in the mines. However, as the case now stands, those who have good ranches are afraid to attempt their cultivation the ensuing Summer. Mr. Killingsworth informs us that he has a splendid ranch on the Jordan and would like to farm it, but he fears to make the attempt. Last year over $3000 worth of stock was stolen from it, and with this experience he don’t care to risk his life in addition to his property. To permit the ranches to lie idle will be a great loss to the owners and public. Captain Walker has gone to work in earnest to destroy the wild beasts (Indians), and if possible to do so with the means at his command, he’ll succeed; but to insure the cultivation of the valleys, it must be done soon and effectually. Every dollar saved whether in provisions or feed is so much added to our capital and fortunes. Are we to be continually paying high prices for grub and feed in consequence of showing mercy to merciless savage beasts?

On the edge of common sense One more for the tourists

Moira and Clive, British tourists, had taken in the Arkansas attractions of Eureka Springs, the Chuck Wagon races in Clinton, the sale barn in Green Forest, and now found themselves in Ft. Smith for the Arkansas Cattlemen's Association Trail Drive.

They stationed themselves along Rogers Avenue and watched as a group of jolly cowboys came pushing 20 head of rented longhorn cattle along the parade route. Clive was excited. He was a western movie buff. "By Jove, dear," he beamed, "it's just like Rawhide!"

He was photographing it with his digital Minolta Maxxum 7 when it became obvious some of the beasts were exhibiting unruly behavior. Amidst a chorus of mooing, bawling and cursing, the river of cattle split! Three head, including a big steer, a cow and a paint yearlin' bull, turned at 3rd Street struck out across Hanging Judge Courtyard. All Hector broke loose! Or as Clive said, "Good gracious, Moira! This is better than the bloody Pamplona!"

Two cowboys thundered after the renegades, shakin' out their loops in hot pursuit! A large crowd of onlookers raced after the ruckus, snapping photos and filming the action for America's Funniest Videos. The three cattle crashed through a construction zone ignoring the traffic light, the pedestrian crossing and the warning signs. Cattle, horses, cowboys and tourists followed, jumping cement barriers, danger signs and potholes, flashes popping and videos whirring!

Our two cowboys trapped them in the corner of a chain-linked parking lot. Within 10 minutes their faithful teamster had backed a trailer in the corner and loaded up the cattle ... all except the bull. He had evaded them.

The chase began again, now joined by the Park Ranger on his four-wheeler. "He's down in the draw along the river," he shouted as he raced by, "I'll run him out for ya'll!"

Well, he did. Back through the construction, Hangin' Judge Park and the mass of tourists, amidst cheering and cameras flashing.

"It's the wild west!" exclaimed Clive, "Back 'ome they'll never believe this!"

For a long five minutes our cowboys lost track of the bull until a straggler said, "Come look!" The whole mass of humanity crowded along the ridge overlooking the Poteau River. Halfway across, swimming like a Navajo rug in a Speedo, they could see the back and the head of the red and white spotted Longhorn bull making his way to Oklahoma.

Cowboy Earl took off his hat and shook his head. Then he heard one of the tourists with what he thought was a British accent say, "I say, ol' chap, that was a smashing good show! When is the next performance?"

Eyes on Owyhee In search of civic pride

Cleaning up town is not a new issue in Homedale. It just seems to be one that is difficult to solve — or get enough people to care about.

Former Mayor Paul Fink rolled out the old saw, "You can't legislate pride", during the mayoral debate in the last election. Looking around town, it's pretty obvious the former city chief executive was right.

The last time a major cleanup effort was launched in Homedale, few residents came out to help. National Guardsmen — many of whom didn't live here — spearheaded that project last year as a way to thank the citizens for their support of the 116th Brigade Combat Team.

Public works supervisor Larry Bauer lamented during last week's City Council meeting that a city-sponsored cleanup day probably wouldn't get much support. He said the last time a Dumpster was provided for a community cleanup day, it went away in the same condition it arrived — empty.

But is the citizenry's reputation for seemingly not giving a rip about how the town looks a reason for not trying again?

Bauer is more than willing to donate municipal equipment to help with a citywide cleanup project. Homedale's dump truck was used the last time Homedale High School launched its Trojan Pride Day community service project.

HHS principal Mike Williams said he is ready to put students to work on a similar project if the need is there and resources are available.

Police Chief Jeff Eidemiller said last week that personnel are always open to helping anyone who because of disability or age is unable to keep a handle on their own property, and resident Marshall Downing offers his services — for a reasonable fee — to keep yards tidy.

These offers and occasional efforts are all fine and good, but there still exists the underlying problem of too few people caring less about the alleyways, their own yards, etc.

Marsing has found a remedy to this with a citywide cleanup day, which rolls around again next month. The previous efforts, which have usually centered around community service projects for students, have had positive results to an extent.

One person called Homedale a town that "people drive through, not drive to" during last week's council meeting. The stated purpose of the downtown revitalization is to nip that particular problem in the bud.

But no amount of money — be it state grant or private funds siphoned from businesses by a property assessment — will bring folks to town long if the surrounding blocks are rife with debris, unkempt homes and dilapidated structures.

There's no argument that the people of Homedale make it a great place to live. They'll give you the shirt off their back.

It's time some of those shirts were soiled with the perspiration of pride.

Not important ... but possibly of interest Trouble brewing

Last fall we stayed in a hotel room equipped with one of those new single-cup coffee makers. You just drop a small plastic cup of prepackaged coffee into a holder, pour some water into a small reservoir, put you cup underneath, push a button and ... Voila! ... One cup of hot, fresh coffee.

We liked the machine because it lets you make one cup in the evening, instead of a whole pot.

I did some Internet research and discovered only one company makes the brewer. But there are several models. There were some more sophisticated models with reservoirs that hold enough water for several cups. You can even set the time the machine turns on or off. That sounded like the way to go. In due course, one was on our kitchen counter.

The new coffee brewer was great. Each morning, it turned itself on before I got up. Normally, I didn't use it in the morning, but it turned itself off at 10 a.m. I would turn it back on and make a cup to go along with dinner.

One morning, I manually turned off the brewer instead of allowing it to turn itself off. That evening, when I can home, Sara said she had tried to make a cup of coffee during the afternoon, and the machine wouldn't work. I tried to start it, and all I got was a blank readout screen. I decided to take it back to the store for a replacement.

The next morning, I plugged in the brewer just to check before packing it up. It fired up properly and made a perfect cup of coffee.

One day, the brewer would work. The next day, it wouldn't. Sometimes it wouldn't even allow me to access its electronic menu.

We finally decided operator error wasn't the problem and planned to take the brewer back to the store. Before doing that, I decided to check online and see if anyone else was having similar problems. Almost immediately, I ran across a forum where the main topic of discussion was that all the brewer models with sophisticated electronics seemed to lose their minds at some point with no warning.

The good news, according to some posters, was that there was a procedure to "cold reset" the onboard computer, solving the problem. I printed off the directions.

As per the instructions, I held down the two "option select" buttons, and released them at the same time. Then I pressed the center "brew button" rapidly five times. It took several tries before the menu magically appeared on the brewer screen. Then I held in the two buttons again, released the right one before the left one and pressed the left one at the same time as the brew button. Then I held my breath for 10 seconds before hopping 14 times on one foot in a counter-clockwise circle (or something like that). It took about a half-hour before I got the sequence exactly right. Suddenly the brewer's mind returned, and it announced it was ready to make coffee.

Two days later the brewer had another stroke. I reset it using the Internet procedure. It was no easier the second time. Within a day the machine scrambled its little brain again.

Today, we have a single-cup brewer. It is exactly like the one we had at the hotel room. There is no menu screen or water reservoir. It doesn't take up as much room on the counter. There is no timer to turn it on or off. You put in the coffee module, pour in eight ounces of water, press a button and get one serving of coffee. And it cost less than our first brewer.

There are some problems even the Internet can't solve. And sometimes less is more.

Financial management

Auto-pay for everyday bills makes sound financial sense

Dear Dave,
What do you think about online bill payments or automatic monthly deductions to pay for everyday bills?

— Jay

Dear Jay,
I love them, and I have tons of them. I've got mutual funds that automatically tap my checking account, and all of my utilities are set up to be automatically zapped. This way, I never miss the early payment discounts, and I don't have to worry about payments being late. It's like automatic discipline!

But never, ever allow anyone you're fighting with — like a collector if you're trying to settle a disputed credit card account — to have automatic access to your account. They'll clean you out!

I don't have a problem with paying for things like your electric bill, water, cable television or investments this way, though. It's just a good, consistent way to take of business!

— Dave

Dear Dave,
My wife and I have accidental death and dismemberment insurance through our workplace. Do we also need level term life insurance policies?

— Anonymous

Dear Anonymous,
You definitely need good level term life insurance policies. You do not need accidental death and dismemberment. Think about it, dude. You're not more dead if you die by accident. Dead is dead! You need to make sure your family is taken care of in the best way possible, no matter how you die.

Don't buy gimmick insurance. Stick with 15- to 20-year level term life insurance, and make sure you have coverage that's separate from anything provided by your employer. You don't want to suddenly lose your life insurance if you're diagnosed with something awful like cancer and have to leave your place of work — and your life insurance — behind.

Each one of you needs about 10 times your yearly incomes wrapped up in your policies. That means if you make $40,000 a year, you need a $400,000 level term policy. The idea of life insurance is to take the place of income. If you died, then your wife could invest the $400,000, make 10 percent on that money over time, and replace your income.

Make sure you take care of your family. Term life insurance is very inexpensive. For next to nothing, you can ensure that your family will get a million bucks when you die.

— Dave

Dear Dave,
Is a balanced mutual fund a good place to put your emergency fund?

— Anonymous

Dear Anonymous,
Absolutely not! You should never put your emergency fund into anything that can go down in value. Also, never put it into anything that will charge you a penalty for early withdrawal, like a CD. Or as I like to call it, a Certificate of Depression.

I recommend putting your emergency fund into a good money market account with check-writing privileges. Your emergency fund is not an investment. It's insurance, and the money you have sitting in it has one purpose — to protect you, your family, and your stuff when Murphy comes knocking.

That's one of the reasons an emergency fund is so important. If you don't have one, and something unexpected happens, you'll end up borrowing the money from the bank or cashing out your 401(k) to fix things. So don't worry about investing this money. Just park it, and think of it as an insurance policy against all the junk life will throw at you!

Getting back to fundamentals

We recommit ourselves to the ideas of the American Founding. Through the Constitution, the Founders created an enduring framework of limited government based on the rule of law. They sought to secure national independence, provide for economic opportunity, establish true religious liberty and maintain a flourishing society of republican self-government.

— The Mount Vernon Statement, Feb. 17, 2010

A group of prominent conservative leaders recently released the Mount Vernon Statement to recommend a return to America's founding principles to meet our current challenges. Given the shape of our economy and the direction of our country, this advice could not come at a better time to remind America who we are, what we have been blessed with and which course to pursue as a country. The Mount Vernon Statement states that our Constitutional principles "define us as a country and inspire us as a people. They are responsible for a prosperous, just nation unlike any other in the world."

It is precisely this system of limited government that has allowed America to become the most economically and politically free country the world has ever known. Our Constitution limits the powers of government and spells out the liberties of its citizens. This system continues to supply opportunity for individuals and broad prosperity for all. Everyone benefits from the unprecedented productivity of our dynamic free-market system. It is this very system that has made America, as President Lincoln said, "the last best hope of Earth."

Yet there are those who would turn away from our Founding principles, especially now in a time of economic turmoil, instead of turning toward them. The Mount Vernon Statement says, "The federal government today ignores the limits of the Constitution, which is increasingly dismissed as obsolete and irrelevant." In January, in an editorial defending First Amendment rights for all, I wrote, "The federal government's unprecedented spending and increased control over the economy go far beyond what the Founders intended and are causing great unease among the majority of the American people."

The massive size of the federal government is not only creating unease among citizens and job seekers; it is creating unease and uncertainty among would-be job creators. The government, by itself, cannot create growth, jobs or prosperity, but it can, with its massive size, destroy incentive and productivity in the economy. The government should reduce spending, keep taxes low and let entrepreneurs and small and large businesses see that they won't be penalized for success. Then we will begin to see the economy recover and the jobs come back.

Over the past year, in opinion polls, at Tea Party rallies and at town hall meetings, we have seen overwhelming opposition to the size and direction of our current government. We cannot afford to see this opposition fade because of fatigue or because we think we have won. The president and the majority in Congress are still pressing a government takeover of health care and are looking to move onto cap-and-trade and massive spending and tax increases.

They are hoping for us to tire and quit speaking out. I urge everyone to use e-mail and other resources to encourage family and friends to continue speaking out and to tell their elected representatives to oppose this big government agenda. It is as important now as ever to continue speaking out and to restore the limited government philosophy that made America the freest and most prosperous country in the world.

— Republican Mike Crapo is the senior U.S. senator from Idaho. For more information on the above topic, visit <http://crapo.senate.gov>. Go to <http://www.themountvernonstatement.com> to read the Mount Vernon Statement in full.
