ICA slack signals another Owyhee rodeo

Sunday's free performance is first of five days of action

One of the longest rodeos on the Idaho Cowboys Association circuit gets going Sunday when the Owyhee County Rodeo holds a slack performance.

Admission is free to the 10 a.m. action at the Owyhee County Fairgrounds rodeo arena in Homedale. Events scheduled are tie down roping, breakaway roping, team roping and barrel racing.

Jackpot team roping will be held at the conclusion of the slack.

Sunday's slack performance means rodeo fans will have five different days in which to see some of the state's best cowboys and cowgirls compete in one of Idaho's most lucrative rodeos.

Marsing clinic now capable of X-ray

TRHS raises nearly $250K
for expansion

Providing more complete health care has become a little bit easier for the Terry Reilly Health Services Clinic in Marsing with the completion of the first major remodel since it opened in 1980.

The clinic located at 201 Main St., finished up a two-year campaign to raise funds to remodel and update the health care facilities. With nearly $250,000 raised through private and public support for the renovation, the clinic now boasts a brand new X-ray facility along with new counseling offices.

U.S. 95 work starts Monday

The 7.3-mile pavement rehabilitation project on U.S. Highway 95 south of Homedale is expected to begin Monday, the Idaho Transportation Department announced.

Work will stretch from Homedale's south city limits to the U.S. 95-Idaho highway 55 junction outside Marsing.

Work should be complete in late September.

The project will use the CRABS (Cement Recycled Asphalt Base Stabilization) method of pavement rehabilitation. In addition, existing guardrail will be upgraded, shoulder rumble strips installed for the length of the project and up to two feet added to each side of the roadway.

A project by State maintenance forces this spring added to the gravel shoulders in that area in preparation for this project.

This project also will be coupled with a thin-lift overlay resurfacing on U.S. 95 (1.8 inches of new pavement) from the Marsing Port of Entry to the junction with Idaho 55, about an 8.5-mile stretch.

Check station pursuits by Posse worry commissioners

Sheriff's resources used by district on handshake

People not employed by the county are using county vehicles at invasive species check stations under a handshake agreement between the Owyhee County Sheriff's Office and the Bruneau River Soil and Water Conservation District.

Some of the people employed by the BRSWCD to man the boat inspection stations in Bruneau and Marsing were characterized as either Posse members or "special deputies" in testimony given by district invasive species program coordinator Rayola Jacobson during the July 12 Board of County Commissioners meeting.

County vehicles have been a staple at the quagga mussel inspection sites, which were the first in the state to open in late April.

"Owyhee County probably has been quite a bit more progressive that way than the others," Lloyd Wright, the administrator of the Idaho State Department of Agriculture's Division of Plant Industries, said about the sheriff's office involvement.

Pavingstones LLC, which has locations in Owyhee County and Meridian, has begun building a new entrance to the courthouse in Murphy.

Courthouse entrance to meet ADA regs

Company with Owyhee ties does work

The Owyhee County Courthouse main entrance in Murphy soon will be compatible with the Americans with Disabilities Act. County records also indicate that the work also will make the courthouse more secure by reducing the number of unlocked entrances needed for public access.

Pavingstones LLC, which has its manufacturing plant in Owyhee County off Idaho highway 78, has been contracted to build a new walkway and entrance to the courthouse at 20381 State Hwy. 78 in Murphy. Work began last week on the $15,030.80 project. The Board of County Commissioners approved the work during their July 12 meeting. A new brick walkway stretches from the steps leading to the parking lot in front of the county offices complex and then splits to the right for a two-step walk-up to a new landing. Paver bricks have been used in the project. The left side of the entrance now features accessibility for the disabled. A ramp constructed of pavers and lined with a wall will lead to the courthouse doors either from the walkway coming from the sheriff’s office or from the left side of the main sidewalk from the front parking lot. Other work includes removal of old concrete and installation of the new pavers and wall.

County seeks $250K for 911 replacement

Owyhee County seeks nearly a quarter of a million dollars to replace its 911 dispatch system. County emergency services coordinator Jim Desmond said he would hand deliver a grant application to the Idaho Emergency Communications Commission in Boise after the Board of County Commissioners gave final approval of a $246,323 grant application at its July 27 meeting. The application deadline was Sunday. The grant seeks 100 percent assistance for equipment costs and the maximum allowable 80 percent assistance for maintenance fees and network services. Using the highest bid received from the county as a baseline, Desmond said a 20 percent commitment from the county would amount to $2,940 for maintenance fees and $4,800 for network services. If a grant is awarded, state funds would cover $30,960 of maintenance and network costs. That leaves a request of more than $215,000 for the system and its components. Defender gets new deal Longtime county public defender William Wellman has a new contract and a lower salary. Commissioners unanimously approved a two-year agreement with the Nampa-based attorney July 20. Wellman will receive $86,760 for fiscal year 2011 with a planned renegotiation for FY 2012 to take place next July. Wellman earned $90,000 through his professional services contract with the county for FY 2010. — JPB

High school work starts

ASC employees Juan Lopez, with trowel, and David Pilayo, smooth fresh cement for the new sidewalk on the north side of East Idaho Avenue along Homedale High School on July 27.

Though on schedule, LID will cost more

Lighting design changes add thousands to tab

Recent changes to the Homedale downtown revitalization project have added thousands of dollars to the Local Improvement District price tag. Meanwhile, City of Homedale Public Works Supervisor Larry Bauer said work was on schedule after a few changes and that some elements of construction could actually improve storm water drainage downtown.

The City Council recently approved $31,000 in additional charges for the LID. Project manager Andrew Kimmel from Project Engineering Consultants Inc., said they included about $18,000 for taller decorative light poles to replace three existing wooden light poles, about $7,000 for conduit on those poles and $6,000 for the change from a 12-foot light pole to a 14-foot pole throughout downtown.

Two utility poles near Homedale High School and a third at the corner of West Idaho and 1st Street North will be 25 feet high. Kimmel said the taller poles are necessary because of high-powered lights that will be at the same height as the existing cobra-head streetlights on the wooden poles.

Kimmel also explained that contractors will replace untouched old concrete in front of the Vance Dairy Construction building on the south side of West Idaho Avenue. Originally, the Vance company was going to do the work itself, Kimmel said, but now subcontractor ASC of Caldwell will do the work.

“It will be done, and it will be done before the project is over,” Kimmel said. “It won’t change the price because originally the figures included that as part of the project.”

Kimmel said that the old sidewalk in front of the Canyon-Owyhee School Services Agency Automated Engineering building in the 100 block of West Idaho will remain because city officials determined it was sufficiently safe during an initial walk-through.

Bauer said that contractors have altered the original work schedule to make sure that the extensive work in front of the high school is completed before the school year begins on Aug. 18.

Homedale School District superintendent Tim Rosandick said the work includes new sidewalks as well as a reconfiguration of the parking in front of the school’s main building.

“Right now, we have front-in parking there, and from my vantage point it detracted from the appearance of the school,” Rosandick said, adding there are also drainage problems in front of the 70-year-old school.

The superintendent thinks the new parking configuration will enhance the school’s curb appeal and make for a safer driving environment on that part of East Idaho Avenue. But school staff’s fears of fewer parking spaces will be realized, he said.

“But more and more faculty and others are using the parking spaces that are immediately to the west of the building,” Rosandick said.

No other district funds other than the projected $30,000 commitment for the 10-year LID assessment are being used in the work, he said.

Bauer said the strain of the city storm drain system has been “inadvertently” reduced by some LID work. He said about three blocks of French drains have been added, moving some west-side storm drains from the downtown arm of the system to another portion of it.

Bauer said the LID project is still on schedule despite a change in schedule and an earlier stoppage as the city negotiated a lighting permit with the Idaho Transportation Department.

The project is slated to conclude in the third week of September.

He also said that crews will adjust their schedule to accommodate the Owyhee County Fair and Rodeo next week.

There will be a clean-up day Friday, and crews will move to the 400 block of East Idaho or try to work on “back streets” to minimize their footprint during fair week, Bauer said.

✓ X-ray: Other services expanded, too

Peterson, was asked to head up the volunteer board to start a fundraising campaign. The fundraising was jump-started by the Marsing Disaster Auction that is held each February.

“The Marsing Disaster Auction and their $10,000 contribution was the cornerstone for all the other grants to come in,” Jack said. “That local support was incited by the large donors. I’m so impressed with the nature of giving that is within Marsing.”

In a community with close to 1,000 residents, Jack said that the outpouring of support was amazing. The community of Marsing was instrumental on the success of the project, he said. The involvement of the volunteer EMTs, Ambulance and Fire Department was a driving factor in starting the campaign to raise money to get an X-ray and update the facilities.

“The support and the relationship with the volunteer EMTs, Ambulance and Fire Department in Marsing was inseparable,” Jack said. “This is where the need for the X-ray came from, they were always transporting people into Nampa, Caldwell or Boise.”

The clinic is the only medical facility in town. The family practice clinic is made up of patients from all areas of Owyhee County. Some patients travel from as far as Jordan Valley and McDermitt, Nev., to receive medical care. Before the new equipment arrived, patients with a suspected broken bone or pneumonia had to travel either to Homedale or to a hospital in Canyon County.

With the second-longest tenure at the clinic, director Faith Peterson is overwhelmed by the support from within the community and the new resources available to her staff and patients.

“It is really excellent. We are really excited for these changes,” Faith said. “They did an amazing job. I have learned a great deal about how all this works.”

Faith said they have had patients come in seeking medical treatment in the past and have had to send them to an emergency room in Canyon County because they can’t tell if there was a broken bone. The new X-ray equipment is digital compatible, which will allow the clinic to upgrade the machine simply by hooking a computer to it and not having to use film any more.

This upgrade will take place in the future as other Terry Reilly Clinics replace older equipment and Marsing receives the necessary components to go digital.

With the addition of the X-ray equipment, the Marsing Clinic will be able diagnose pneumonia, an illness that is prominent with the elderly.

“We have quite a few seniors in the area. Before we would say, “We think you have pneumonia,” and suggest that they go in and get an X-ray. Some would flat-out say, “No”. But now we can check it out and diagnose them and help them get better. This is a wonderful benefit for us.”

The capstone to the fundraiser was a $75,000 donation from the M.J. Murdock Charitable Trust, which wrapped up the two-year campaign. The clinic’s patients will have two updated rooms for counseling, which is a vast improvement from the “porch” as the staff used to refer to the area.

“The old offices were basically in a porch area,” Faith said. “It was like a covered porch, all glass, no insulation. It was basically a porch. We expanded out about five feet on the south side of the building to add the X-ray and updated rooms.”

The clinic’s five-member staff has nearly 60 years of service to the Marsing community. They couldn’t be more pleased with the addition and the chance to serve the community in a higher capacity.

With the updated facilities and new capabilities the Marsing Clinic will be holding a ribbon-cutting ceremony and open house. The event is scheduled for Tuesday, between 4:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. The ribbon cutting will take place at 5:30 p.m.

Children from the Hope House Choir will provide music for the event. Members of the community are encouraged to come and see what their hard work and money has helped accomplish for the area.

The clinic has sent invitations to county commissioners, law enforcement agencies and state government officials.

“I have things in the back of my head for the future. You can never stop growing and expanding,” Faith said. “We are here to serve the community and want what is best for them.”

Thousands of boats inspected in county

Bruneau station sees largest number of checks

More than 2,600 boats have been inspected at the two invasive species checkpoints in Owyhee County since the program began in late April.

According to data on the Idaho State Department of Agriculture Web site, the Bruneau checkpoint at the intersection of Idaho highways 51 and 78 has seen 1,828 boats pass through. Data is available through July 21 for the Bruneau station.

Personnel at the Marsing station at the junction of Idaho 55 and U.S. Highway 95 has inspected 799 boats, according to the latest information posted, which is dated July 9.

In a July 12 appearance before the Board of County Commissioners, Bruneau River Soil and Water Conservation District invasive species coordinator Rayola Jacobson reported that 2,014 boats had passed through the two stations as of June 24.

The ISDA Web site lists data from all 20 checkpoints that dot Idaho roadways as part of the campaign to keep the quagga and zebra mussels from invading state waters. Jacobson said on July 12 that the mussel has turned up in waters in California and Arizona. Most notably, however, is the infestation at Lake Mead outside Las Vegas in Nevada, according to reports.

The vast majority of boats inspected in Bruneau — 1,569 or 85.8 percent — are registered in Idaho. The next-highest number of inspected boats (158) hails from Nevada.

In Marsing, 58 percent of the boats checked out — 464 — have come from Idaho. California boats are the next-highest number at 123. There also have been four Canadian boats — two each from Alberta and British Columbia — to pass through the Marsing station.

The Weiser station on northbound U.S. 95 has encountered 2,222 boats, according to data through July 22.

Jacobson told county commissioners that none of the boats inspected at either county station have had evidence of mussel infestation. She did say that an affected boat was found at the Rogerson checkpoint. The Rogerson station, which isn't affiliated with the BRSWCD, is located on U.S. 93, 9½ miles from the Nevada border.

Sheriff's office asks for more time

On Monday, Owyhee County Sheriff Daryl Crandall informed The Owyhee Avalanche that he would utilize a 10-day extension in responding to a July 29 public records request pertaining to his office's role in the Bruneau Soil and Water Conservation District-operated quagga mussel checkpoints in Bruneau and Marsing.

"After careful review of your request, we are utilizing our 10-day extension in conjunction with the three working reply to this request," the sheriff's response states. "We will contact you in regards to this request prior to 8/16/2010."

The request seeks:

- The names of posse members employed at the checkpoints
- Sgt. Kenny Hoagland's specific role in the program
- The number of sheriff's office pickups used at the checkpoints
- The level of Peace Officers

Standards and Training certification for each posse member employed at the stations

- An explanation as to why there was no written agreement between OCSO and the Bruneau River Soil and Water Conservation District

The Avalanche also sent a public records request Wednesday night to BRSWCD seeking a list of employees Thursday. No response had been received by Monday.

State law requires a public agency to respond to a public records request — either giving explanation of the rejection, providing the requested information or asking for an extension — within three business days of receiving the request. The requesting party must receive the information or an explanation for the denial within 10 working days of the public agency's initial response.

✓ Check: Bruneau district pays county $100 for fuel used in county rigs

"In Oneida and Franklin County, the local county law enforcement checks in with (inspectors) and does some enforcement."

Jacobson said no other checkpoints in the state have full-time police presence.

The county commissioners voiced concern over liability issues during their July 27 meeting, at which they received a letter from BRSWCD board chair Mark Frost praising Sheriff Daryl Crandall for his willingness to allow the use of county vehicles.

"These vehicles are used by members of the Owyhee County Sheriff's Posse, that are Idaho State Department of Agriculture (ISDA) certified inspectors; to pursue, stop and inspect watercraft in transport that have failed to stop for inspection at a station," Frost wrote.

Salary from ISDA funds

The conservation district pays the posse members with funds from the state government.

The fact that non-county personnel are using sheriff's office pickups to chase down boaters who skip the checkpoints worries commissioners. They also are concerned that the sheriff has requested fuel payments for pickups used at the check stations.

"Our biggest problem still is even if it's in the sheriff's budget, they need to have some agreement, whether it's with the State of Idaho or Bruneau River Soil Conservation District, to be able to justify those funds going for the gas and to help assisting them," BOCC chair Jerry Hoagland told The Owyhee Avalanche.

During last week's BOCC meeting, Hoagland — the District 1 commissioner — addressed the pursuit of boaters who fail to stop.

"I still think there's a big liability on this," he said.

"Somebody could get hurt very bad," District 2 Commissioner George Hyer said, to which Hoagland responded: "And who's liable? The county."

ICRMP not consulted yet

County Clerk Charlotte Sherburn said last week she had yet to contact the county's insurance carrier, Idaho Counties Risk Management Program (ICRMP), to check out the liability issue.

The commissioners went on record with their concerns July 12 when Jacobson came before the board to discuss the program's success. At that time, she said there was a handshake agreement in place between the district and the sheriff.

Jacobson later told the Avalanche that, during its July 14 meeting, the Bruneau district board of directors took under consideration the adoption of a possible memorandum of understanding (MOU) with the sheriff's office regarding its help with the check stations. She said it would be an action item during the board's meeting next Wednesday. Jacobson said the MOU between the ISDA and the Bruneau district for the check stations ends Sept. 30.

"I've been told that boat traffic drops off dramatically after Labor Day," she told the Avalanche, adding that the check stations can be closed early through a written request to the ISDA.

Jacobson also fielded questions from the commissioners July 12, including one from District 3 Commissioner Dick Freund about hundreds of dollars in fuel costs that had been submitted by the sheriff for the vehicle used by Bruneau-area check station employee Jim Green, who is also a posse member.

County pays for fuel

On June 1, the commissioners rejected a $200.92 claim from vendor Gus's Gas in Grand View. The minutes from that meeting state that the bill, with five charges from April 2 to April 24, was for "fuel for patrol of the station near Bruneau set up by the Department of Agriculture." The check station went online five days after the last purchase.

Jacobson said that Green also uses the vehicle to patrol campgrounds in the Bruneau area as part of his posse duties.

On July 12, she told commissioners that checkpoint inspectors driving county vehicles use "probably a gallon a day" in fuel.

Commissioners received a $100 reimbursement check last week from the conservation district, nine weeks after the claim was originally submitted.

According to Idaho Peace Officer and Standards Training records, Green is a Level II reserve. The Idaho Administrative Code (IDAPA 11.11.01) says Level II reserves "shall work under the direction of a full-time certified peace officer." Sgt. Kenny Hoagland serves as the sheriff's office administrator for the quagga mussel program. Jacobson said Hoagland makes the work schedule and serves as supervisor for the sheriff's office portion of the program.

POST weighs in

According to a POST spokesperson a posse member must have a Level I certification to carry out the actions of a full-time peace officer, such as patrolling. But POST management assistant Trish Christy said that posse members pursuing those who fail to stop at checkpoints is an acceptable practice as far as POST is concerned as long as the sheriff and prosecuting attorney are comfortable with the policy.

Posse members at the Marsing checkpoint have been seen using emergency lights to pull over boaters who have failed to stop. County radio traffic has documented that similar stops have been made in Bruneau.

"If they're pulling someone over under the guise of being law enforcement officers, it would be my expectation that they are doing that under the laws and guidelines of law enforcement officers," Wright said. "I assume Sheriff Crandall has that all worked out."

On Monday, Crandall requested a 10-day extension on a July 29 public records request in which the Avalanche sought details about OCSO's involvement in the program. Among the questions was a list of posse members employed at the check stations and their POST certification levels.

Posse pursues daily

In his letter, Frost wrote that there are an average of eight drive-bys each day at either the Marsing or Bruneau station that require pursuit. The stations are open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

With a July 1 change to the state's invasive species law, boaters who fail to stop at the checkpoints can be cited, but Christy said that only POST-certified peace officers can write tickets on criminal offenses. Violation of the invasive species act can result in both misdemeanor and civil punishment.

"We don't intend to really issue them because that seems counterproductive to good relations," Jacobson said in the July 12 BOCC meeting.

A Level III reservist's work is limited to "temporary extraordinary situations that do not require general law enforcement powers", according to the state's administrative code, which gives jeep posse, mounted posse and parades as examples.

Washington County Sheriff Marvin E. Williams said the inspectors on U.S. Highway 95 outside Weiser contact his office whenever a boat doesn't stop. He has no posse member or full-time deputy stationed at the site, which checks northbound traffic.

"It needs to be at least a Level I certification," Williams said of his comfort level in putting a posse member in a county vehicle at the Weiser checkpoint. "As far as putting a certified deputy there, it's kind of out of the question for us. We don't have the staff for that."

Williams said that a Level I reservist can drive a patrol car, but must have a direct supervisor from the sheriff's office "readily available."

Homedale seniors start serving Buckaroo Breakfast on Tuesday

Law enforcement-themed quilt raffle continues

The Homedale Senior Center’s annual Buckaroo Breakfast fundraiser begins its fair-week run Tuesday in the building’s parking lot.

Breakfast of all-you-can-eat pancakes, sausage and eggs will be served with choice of coffee, milk or juice from 7 a.m. to 10 a.m. daily between Tuesday and Aug. 14.

Cost is $6 for adults, $3 for children ages 5-10 and $10 for children younger than 5.

There will be live music each morning, and the center will announce the annual quilt raffle winner on Saturday.

In preparation for the breakfast, the senior center had the parking lot resealed last week. Former senior center board vice-president Bill Shaw donated $300 to help pay for the project and challenged other people and businesses in the community to support the senior center and its programs, such as Meals on Wheels.

Lunch is served at the center on Tuesdays and Thursdays and food is also available on Wednesdays, Shaw said.

The center is taking reservations for a shopping trip scheduled for Monday. The van will leave the center at 9 a.m. Call (208) 337-3020 to save a seat.

The senior center’s board of directors meets at 1:30 p.m. on Wednesday at the center, 224 W. Idaho Ave.

Two Saturday night dances are planned this month — on Aug. 14 and Aug. 28. Cost is $4 at the door plus finger food, and the dance goes from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Other musical entertainment at the senior center this month includes the band In One Accord featuring Russell Page at 11 a.m. during lunch on Aug. 24.

The monthly foot clinic is set for Aug. 17. Appointments begin at 8 a.m., and the cost for a visit is $10. Call the center at (208) 337-3020 to make an appointment.

The senior center continues to sell raffle tickets for a quilt fashioned by Romona Andrus and featuring 81 law enforcement agency patches donated by Homedale Police Chief Jeff Eidemiller.

Proceeds from the raffle will be split between the senior center and the Rodger Nash Memorial Community Fund. Tickets are $5 each or six for $20 and the drawing will take place during the center’s annual Christmas Bazaar.

Quilt raffle tickets also are available from the Homedale Police Department or by calling Tonia Atkins at (208) 514-7796.

Library wants committee to explore taxing district

Homedale Public Library wants to test the water for a taxing district.

Library director Margaret Fujishin seeks community members who are interested in serving on a committee to explore the feasibility of a library district in the area.

If there is enough interest, an organizational meeting will be held at 9 a.m. on Saturday, Aug. 21, at the library.

If interetsed, call Fujishin at 337-4228 Monday through Wednesday afternoons as well as Friday afternoons.

Citing Anne Abrams of the Idaho Commission for Libraries, Fujishin said the district process takes three to five years.

A vote of patrons within the boundaries of a proposed library district is required to establish the taxing entity.

Revenue from the district would be used to support the library. Currently, the library runs on city funds, donations and grants.

The library board and Homedale Mayor Harold Wilson have advocated for a new 5,000-square-foot library on the city-owned lot east of City Hall on West Wyoming Avenue. Opponents have said a district should be in place to fund the construction and continued operation of a new building.

OCA Bit Winner

OCA member Dan Mori of Bruneau won the membership bit during Saturday's meeting.

B2H process continues Monday

Owyhee County residents get their first look at the next phase of the Boardman-to-Hemingway power line planning Monday.

The fifth in a series of Bureau of Land Management scoping meetings dealing with Idaho Power's proposed 500-kilovolt transmission line takes place from 3:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the Phipps-Watson Marsing American Legion Community Center, 126 W. 2nd St. N.

According to a news release from the BLM's Vale District, the B2H scoping period has been reopened, and the federal agency is in the process of holding additional public meetings in coordination with the Oregon Department of Energy.

Formal presentations from the BLM and ODE are slated at 4 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. Monday.

BLM scoping meetings already have been held in four locations in Oregon.

The Marsing meeting is one of two in the local region and the only one planned in Idaho. Another public meeting is planned for Tuesday between 3:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. at the Four Rivers Cultural Center, 676 S.W. Fifth Ave., in Ontario, Ore.

Most of the Owyhee portion of the line was moved off private property after a long public process to ensure the transmission line crossed federal land.

The BLM release said that additional scoping meetings give the public the opportunity to understand the roles of the federal BLM and state ODE in the project as well as provide comments for consideration in the Environmental Impact Study. Comments received in the previous scoping period will be considered along with those from the new period.

The EIS, required under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969, will analyze potential environmental impacts from construction, operation, maintenance and termination of the B2H project, the release said.

Meanwhile, BLM announced a delay in the release of the draft EIS for the proposed 1,150-mile Gateway West 500kV transmission line.

Originally scheduled for release this summer, the document now will be available in the final quarter of 2010, according to a news release from the BLM's Wyoming office.

The Gateway West line will come from east to west across Owyhee County on its route from Wyoming to Hemingway.

BLM project manager Walt George said that a 90-day public comment period will begin once the draft EIS is released. Public hearings also will be slated.

The Gateway West line is a joint venture of Idaho Power and Rocky Mountain Power.

Public Meetings in Your Area

The Bureau of Land Management (BLM), Oregon Department of Energy (ODOE) and U.S. Forest Service have reopened the public comment period for Idaho Power's proposed Boardman to Hemingway Transmission Line Project. These agencies invite you to attend additional public scoping and information meetings about Idaho Power's revised project.

Idaho Power is proposing to construct, maintain and operate a new single-circuit, 500 kilovolt electric transmission line between the proposed substation near Boardman, Oregon, and the Hemingway Substation near Melba, Idaho. The project initially underwent scoping in 2008, but Idaho Power subsequently developed new routes based on public input from its community advisory process. In summer 2010, the company submitted new routes and related documents to the state and federal agencies for review.

These agencies will be hosting open houses in a community near you; providing an opportunity for you to review project information, ask questions, view detailed maps and submit comments.

Meeting Schedule

All locations will be open from 3:30 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. with presentations at 4:00 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. The same information will be presented at all meetings.

Mining firm gets OK to haul War Eagle ore

Comment on long-term job taken to Aug. 13

Aden Seidlitz, the Boise District manager for the Bureau of Land Management, announced Saturday that Silver Falcon Mining Co. had been issued a temporary right-of-way as of Sunday to haul ore tailings off War Eagle Mountain.

The decision came Friday, two days after a public meeting in Murphy to discuss a right-of-way on War Eagle Road and road enhancements for War Eagle and Silver City roads.

About two dozen people were there along with Board of County Commissioners chair Jerry Hoagland, Seidlitz and BLM Owyhee Field Office manager Buddy Green.

Under the temporary right-of-way, which Seidlitz announced at Saturday's Owyhee Cattlemen's Association meeting in Silver City, Silver Falcon can truck 4,000 tons of waste rock material from War Eagle to its Diamond Creek Mill on Silver City Road about six miles from Idaho highway 78.

The project is set to last through Oct. 10 and will see 222 truckloads cross War Eagle and Silver City roads, according to a presentation given Wednesday in Murphy.

There will be 40 truckloads daily. Hauling will occur on weekdays, and pilot cars will be used.

The company proposes a long-term plan to haul 40,000 tons of material each year, with a schedule of 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday. The proposal would require road enhancements and further National Environmental Protection Act (NEPA) analysis.

The BLM recently issued a right-of-way for Silver City Road to Owyhee County, and BLM spokesperson MJ Byrne said that means Silver Falcon will deal with the county to get permission to make improvements, which include widening 18 curves.

Negotiations had been ongoing between the county and Silver Falcon, owner of Diamond Creek Mill. But county officials were frustrated because mill management was slow to provide stamped engineering plans.

According to information from the meeting, construction would begin in late fall or early spring and last about four weeks with traffic delays of up to four hours.

Written comment will be taken until Aug. 13. E-mail kelly\_moore@blm.gov or mail to Kelley Moore, Owyhee Realty Specialist, Bureau of Land Management, Owyhee Field Office, 20 1st Ave. W., Marsing, ID 83639.

The use authorization sought by Silver Falcon is the same the company used to haul ore to a Melba processing plant in 2008 and 2009.

Ranchers talk property, preservation

Cattlemen OK membership dues increase

The proceedings at Saturday’s Owyhee Cattlemen’s Association summer meeting centered on protecting and promoting the rancher’s way of life.

Cattlemen heard about a perceived attempt to bring all U.S. waters under federal control, good news about a fish that once was the target of an endangered species listing campaign, and they also got a pep talk on how to spread positive press about their industry while combating the negative headlines well-organized animal rights groups generate.

“What you’re doing as far as work ethic and what you bring to the table ... not many people know about that,” media consultant Dale Dixon, a Homedale High School graduate, told the membership.

Dixon urged the ranchers to get involved in their own publicity through social networking sites, such as Facebook and Twitter, or through Internet blogs, or by picking up the phone and offering their expert views to media outlets in the event they do a story on the nation’s food chain or the cattle industry.

One of the best angles for any such news story could be the sense of family in ranching. Jordan Valley’s Forest Fretwell received more than just the Life Member award Saturday for he and his wife, Nancy; he also got a surprise when he noticed his 95-year-old mother, Evelyn, from Pascoe, Wash., was sitting near him during his acceptance speech.

“They’ve been in the association for a long time,” OCA president Doug Rutan said during his presentation. “They’ve been lifelong members and support the industry and support what we all do and we would just like to honor them.”

Rutan also hinted at the tight-knit nature of ranching during his final president’s report to start the meeting. He told the story of his trip to the Idaho Statehouse to testify before the Legislature on state endowment lands issues and how he felt out of place in Boise.

“It was pretty reassuring that you can go to a place that was that big with that many people and people were still willing to help you with what you needed to accomplish that day,” Rutan said.

The Jordan Valley rancher thanked his wife, Michelle, for her support during his year in office, calling her the organization’s “co-president.”

The OCA also adopted a new membership dues schedule, establishing a new entry level annual dues of $15 for producers with 20 or fewer head of cattle. All other categories will see a $15 increase in annual dues except for the associate members, who will continue to pay $35 per year.

Kenny Bahem of Homedale and Pat Anderson of Jordan Valley were elected new members of the board of directors. They are replacing past president Bodie Clapier and director Winston Gammett, both of whom saw their six-year terms end last weekend.

“He’s pretty quiet, but when he’s right, he’s right,” incoming OCA president Mark Frisbie said of Gammett.

Rustling update

Air patrols have helped curtail cattle theft in southeastern Oregon, Malheur County Sheriff’s Deputy Bob Wroten told the OCA membership.

Wroten said the number of “mother cows” reported stolen has dropped from 900 head in 2008 to 40 this year.

“Through the efforts of just getting around and educating the ranchers a little more and us being in the air, we’re slowing it down,” Wroten said.

Wroten also reiterated a warning to ranchers to use caution if they discover a marijuana grow in the backcountry.

“If you come on it, just back out and remember where it is and report it,” Wroten said, adding that ranchers should make immediate reports of cattle theft and pot grows rather than waiting days before calling authorities.

Clean Water Act

The OCA membership unanimously adopted a resolution opposing HR 5088, the America’s Commitment to Clean Water Act, and SB 5787, the Clean Water Restoration Act. The resolution also calls for hearings on HR 5088, which Rep. James Oberstar (D-Minn.) has insisted is a new bill.

The association believes the legislation will put all waters of the United States under federal control, including stock water, and “inhibit” the role of state and local

OCA Youth Heifer Program Recipients

The Owyhee Cattlemen’s Association recognized the youth heifer replacement recipients and the producers who donated stock Saturday during the annual summer meeting in Silver City.

“It’s a tremendous way to keep young people involved,” outgoing president Doug Rutan said. “We were very surprised with the interest that showed up and the amount of young people who applied for this program. It would not be possible without the support of the membership and the support of the ranchers that have donated the heifers to help get these kids started.”

Donations from Vern and Bonnie Kershner, Dan Mori, Doug and Michelle Rutan, Ed Olson, David and Ann Rutan, Doug and Janice Burgess and Bodie and Tina Clapier, allowed for the heifers to be awarded to seven children.

New OCA life member Forest Fretwell receives a hug from his mother, Evelyn, after being presented with the award for he and his wife, Nancy.

OCA life member Forest Fretwell presents outgoing president Doug Rutan with a custom made set of reins that Fretwell built for a special gift for Rutan.

With a handshake, outgoing OCA president Doug Rutan passes the reins to incoming president Mark Frisbie Saturday in Silver City during the annual summer meeting of the OCA.

government and private property owners in local management of land and water resources.

“There are those in Congress who, I guess, believe there should never be an end to the expansion of federal jurisdiction,” rancher Tim Lowry said while presenting the resolution.

Members also contend that Oberstar changed the name of the House bill from the same as the Senate bill in an attempt to sidestep the hearing process.

The cattlemen also urged the Idaho congressional delegation to push for hearings.

District 9B Rep. Judy Boyle (R-Midvale) remarks in her address to the membership seemed to echo the cattlemen’s overall sentiment about government intervention.

“We have to start nullifying unconstitutional laws like the Endangered Species Act because wildlife belongs to the state, just as the water does,” she said.

Owyhee Initiative

Chad Gibson, the former OCA representative on the Owyhee Initiative, gave an update on the landmark law. With Gibson focusing on his job as coordinator for the Initiative Science Review, the cattlemen have appointed Frank Bachman of Grand View as the OCA’s representative on the Initiative board of directors.

Gibson said efforts continue to recruit experts for the Science Review pool. A three-person panel has been seated for the initial test case.

During his address to the cattlemen, Bureau of Land Management Boise District manager Aden Seidlitz said that federal agency continues to progress on range improvement inventory and gathering data on the Wild and Scenic River designations. Public meetings are planned for the fall on wilderness boundaries and in the spring for the Wild and Scenic designations, he said.

Endangered Species Act

Dan Schill of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game shared the findings of a red band trout population study that covered Snake River basin in Idaho, Nevada and Oregon.

Schill said that the data of his report points to a strong population base for the fish — nearly one million, including almost 250,000 breeding adults — in the study area, which included Owyhee County.

Schill said the data suggests that the population is strong enough to withstand a petition for listing under the Endangered Species Act.

Even with a lack of information, the federal government was compelled to consider listing when a petition was filed in 1995, Schill said. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service found listing unwarranted at that time.

Former Trojan wrestler grapples into mixed martial arts

2009 Homedale High School graduate Danny Zenor unbeaten thus far

In most sports, there are clear pathways to advance after high school. Wrestlers have fewer and fewer collegiate programs to continue a career.

In recent years mixed martial arts (MMA) and organizations like the Ultimate Fighting Championships (UFC) have brought about a new route some wrestlers have chosen to pursue.

2009 Homedale High graduate and Boise State sophomore Danny Zenor, 19, is one of those former wrestlers who has seen a way to continue competing and use his past experience to his advantage. The back-to-back 3A District III champion became a fan of MMA and followed it via pay-per-view events and television shows that have made it into a mainstream phenomenon.

In September 2008, Zenor stepped into the ring to fight Jose Contreras in Meridian, left with a TKO victory and hasn't looked back. The bantamweight, 135-pounder is undefeated at 4-0 and is ranked No. 3 in Idaho among amateurs.

He also has submission wins over Leonard Owens (August 2009 in Kuna) and Scott Oliver in Boise on April 30.

He entered the ring for his fourth fight on June 4 with a red custom t-shirt with his nickname, "The Owyhee County Kid", emblazoned on the back. He defeated Kevin Gee via submission at the Xtreme Fight Series #52, held at Qwest Arena in Boise.

He describes his ambition for fighting as a "natural progression to the next level." Zenor began wrestling at age 5 and has 12 to 13 years of grappling experience. Combining middle school and high school, he has six years of collegiate-style wrestling. At Homedale Middle School, he had an eighth grade season with only one loss. He won Idaho state championships in freestyle and Greco-Roman wrestling and grabbed a top-six finish in the western regionals. Of all the training Zenor has, he says "the wrestling background helps a whole lot."

To become a more well-rounded competitor, Zenor trains in Karate, Brazilian Jui Jitsu, boxing, and Muy Thai. His trainers at Combat Fitness in Garden City are all well-decorated fighters.

Leading the team of trainers at Combat Fitness is Scott Jorgensen who was a three-time Pac-10 wrestling champion at Boise State and is currently the fifth-ranked bantamweight in the world. Kit Cope, is a four-time Muy Thai world champion. Jesse

"I watch the fights before his and I cry a little when I see others get hurt."
— Misty Zenor
Danny Zenor's mom

Brock, former BSU wrestler, was a two-time Pac-10 wrestling champion. Finally, Jason Flynn is a black belt in Brazilian Jui Jitsu and was a participant on The Ultimate Fighter television series.

Zenor's typical workout includes an hour of boxing or kickboxing, an hour of Jui Jitsu, and an hour of wrestling. He spends around 10 hours per week at the gym or conditioning on his own. The gym's fighters spar once per week. His workouts double a month before he fights.

Along with fight training, Zenor majors in Athletic Training at BSU and holds down a job at The Olive Garden. With a 30-hour schedule at the restaurant, he juggles his training to fit it in. He schedules to work earlier shifts so he can hit the gym in the evenings and tries to work Saturday evenings so he can spend the morning at the gym.

As Zenor continues his training, he is focused on an upcoming fight in August or September. It will likely be in Boise against an as-yet unnamed opponent.

It has taken some time for Shain and Misty Zenor to get used to their son's pursuit.

"At first they didn't want me to do this because they were nervous about me getting hit," Danny Zenor said. "Mom still gets pretty nervous and Dad is relaxing about the whole thing."

From Misty's perspective: "Moms handle it a little differently...we need a support group."

She said that it hits a little too close to home because Danny just graduated and hasn't been gone that long.

"I watch the fights before his and I cry a little when I see others get hurt."

Misty fears a life-changing injury but said, "This really does keep him in shape, focused, and out of trouble, but I do hope it is just a phase."

According to Misty, Shain gets pretty nervous as Zenor's time to step in the ring approaches, but feels a bit better once it is underway.

Zenor said his worst fight situation was during his third bout. While attempting a kick, he slipped and fell, hitting his head on his opponent's knee. Momentarily stunned, he regained his bearings and made it through.

But the incident didn't come without a scare: "That was the one time I thought I was in real trouble."

Being a bantam requires intense training to stay at his competition weight which is as many as 10 pounds lighter than his district title weights of 140 and 145. He is comfortable at the top of the bantams (135).

Zenor sees returning to his high school weight as a disadvantage, saying "Those 145 guys are bigger guys who are cutting down weight to be there."

His No. 3 state ranking offers interesting storylines. The top bantam fighter, Aric Iverson, and No. 2 Brendan Raftery were scheduled to face off on the same June 4 fight card as Zenor's last victory. This would have cleared things up a bit when Zenor's submission win could have earned him a shot at the top fighter in his next fight.

It wasn't in the cards that night as the anticipated 1 vs. 2 matchup was scratched because of illness. Ironically Raftery is Zenor's teammate and training partner.

"It is kind of difficult when your teammate is ranked right ahead of you," he said. "On one hand, you want to challenge your way up, but you don't necessarily want to do that to your teammate. He is your training partner and you want him to be successful, but if you had to fight, he is also the guy who knows your fighting style better than anyone else."

When stepping into the ring for the first time, Zenor was more relaxed than he thought he would be. On the day of his last fight, he was interviewed on a local radio station and he said, "I was more nervous for that, than for the fight."

Zenor envisions turning pro within the year, but he is still focused on completing his degree at BSU.

His parents are behind him all the way.

"As hard as it is at times, we will support him because we are proud of his accomplishments," Misty said. "He could be doing worse things."

Cattlemen mark 107th Owyhee meeting at Silver City
A relatively quiet meeting was held during the 107th Owyhee Cattlemen’s Association gathering in Silver City on Wednesday.
JoAnn Smith, the first woman president of the National Cattlemen’s Association, was scheduled to attend the meeting, but was required in Congress that day for legislation affecting the cattle industry.
The cattlemen made several decisions at the meeting, voting to change the name of the Idaho Cattle Association back to the Idaho Cattlemen’s Association; and stressing their support of a Birds of Prey area along the Snake River, but in a smaller zone than called for in a present study.
Butch Peugh of the Boise Bureau of Land Management said a management plan was being developed for the Birds of Prey site and asked for comment from the public. The Birds of Prey is attracting national attention and the BLM must prepare for increased traffic there, specifically in the realm of garbage and sewage disposal, Joe Zimmer, Boise, District Manager, echoed Peugh’s sentiments, “You live in a unique country, and you can’t keep it a secret much longer.”
New officers were elected for the coming year. Selected as OCA president was Eric Davis of Bruneau to take the reins from out going president Forest Fretwell. Craig Malmberg of Marsing became vice-president. Vern Kershner and Pete McArthur were chosen as directors for the group.

Parkins are fair parade grand marshals

A community-minded couple has been selected as the grand marshals for the Owyhee County Fair and Rodeo Parade, to be held on August 17.
Arlie and Nydia Parkins will be honored at the parade for their involvement in the area. The Parkins moved to Homedale from northern Idaho in 1931. Arlie was superintendent of the Homedale schools from 1933 until 1937. He helped organize the first Owyhee County Fair and was the general chairman for the next three years.
The family moved to Marsing in 1939. Mr. and Mrs. Parkins have been very active in the Homedale and Marsing communities and Arlie served as senator from Owyhee County in the Idaho Legislature from 1958-1962. The couple is now retired and live on the Parkins’ farm near Marsing.

Wealth of history found as Mud Springs dig wraps up

A little more knowledge of the early history of Idaho may be gained following the completion of the Mud Springs archeological dig near Opaline.
Excavation of the site has been completed with backfilling of the dig slated this week, said State Archeologist Tom Green. Archeologists through the State Historical Society and the Great Basin Chapter, a local club, found a wealth of Indian materials dating back 2,000-3,000 years.
The workers removed the overburden on the site down over three feet in June and started the slow work of looking for artifacts. The Mud Springs site is located near a dried up hot springs which would have been a virtual paradise to Indian nomads in the winter months, used to the cold deserts of Nevada. Green said the Shoshone-Paiute tribes arrived in the area about 1,100 A.D., so the dwellers at the Mud Springs level may or may not be linked to the bands found by the first white explorers in the area.
The digging crew found several things they had anticipated unearthing. One house was excavated, as well as evidence of habitation in a time scheme of 300 years before and 300 years after the dwelling was prepared. Green said the house was a shallow bowl-shaped depression in the ground with a center post rising to meet several rafters. The roof was then covered with what is believed to be Western rye grass.

Other artifacts found included knives, projectile points such as arrowhead, bowls, and probably the most important – bones, shells, and the remains of food. Green said various seeds and plants at the level will be examined to determine what the inhabitants ate at the time.

Owyhee stockmen name officers at Silver City
The Owyhee Cattlemen’s Association, established in 1878, and going strong ever since, held its 82nd annual meeting in Silver City Saturday, named new officers, passed resolutions and heard speakers, and then joined the ladies for entertainment that continued into the wee hours.
This once lusty mining town, nestled high in the Owyhees, was back to normal again Saturday, with hundreds of people tramping its streets, shouts and laughter, and dancing continuing through the night to the sound of western music.
Frank Baltzor of Jordan Valley was elected president at a Saturday morning business meeting, replacing Alvin Benson of Wilson.
Arsen Alzola of Grasmere was named vice-president with Ed Mink of Marsing taking over as association secretary, replacing Ralph Samson who has moved to Boise where he is extension conservationist with the University of Idaho.
New directors named Saturday were Walter Yarbrough of Grand View and Ray Pershall of Marsing.

Wind, hail storm cuts swath in Ridgeview

Sometimes in this busy world the strangest things happen at the most unexpected time! To all appearances everything was moving along in the usual pattern Saturday afternoon. All we had time to do was mop our brows, but that wasn’t news. We had been doing that for two weeks or more.
Then suddenly at about 5 o’clock a storm came out of the southwest that really gave us something to talk about. The main part of the storm lasted about 15 minutes but in that time damage was done and scenery changed that will be seen and felt for many years.
At Charles Scott’s home (the Robert Robertson place) the garage was demolished, the chicken house roof was blown 100 yards away, a tree fell on the house and the machine shed was damaged.
At the E. E. Nelsons the metal roof of a shed was lifted off and carried about 100 feet into Joe Nelson’s yard. Donna Nelson had left her washing on the line and it was blown piece by piece onto E. E. Nelson’s lawn.
David Beebe’s garage and chicken house were demolished. Glen Beebe lost four trees, one of which fell on the house, but fortunately it did no damage to the house.
Keith Tallman’s grain bin was lifted up, turned around and set down again.
Eleven trees were blown down at Alfred Costely’s, most of them near the house.
At the Wall place a tree fell on the house splitting the kitchen in two. Fortunately, no one was living there.

Seed processing plant to locate in Homedale

Intermountain Agricultural Marketing Association, Inc., has completed negotiations with Reid-Strutt Company, Inc., and J. C. Palumbo Produce company for establishing a seed processing plant in Homedale.
The board of directors decided to locate the seed processing plant at Homedale in order to provide shorter hauling in addition to excellent services for the seed producers in Owyhee, Malheur and Canyon counties and other seed producing areas announced Roger C. Howard Marsing, president.
The equipment to be installed is the best available for processing seed, and the flow of the seed through the plant provides for the maximum efficiency and flexibility when processing alfalfa and clover seed. Also with over 20,000 square feet of storage space, all seed will be held inside after delivery to the plant.
The receiving facilities and the clipper cleaner will be installed first so any lot of seed can be handled at the time of harvest, and installation of all equipment will be completed by early September, according to Richard E. Crippen, manager.

PRINTERS’ STRIKE. There has been a general strike among the printers of San Francisco for an increase of wages from sixty to seventy-five cents per 1,000 tons, and the Call advertises for twenty-five printers at the highest rates, offering permanent work for six months. The Bulletin declines to pay the advanced demand.

ANOTHER BENEDICT. Last Sunday, July 31st, our young friend, M.D.Fife, deserted the ranks of the army of bachelors, by taking the solemn oath, to love, honor, and cherish through life, Miss Mary E. Barter. Mat., we bid you good buy, and wish you a long and prosperous journey, and may your progeny be as numerous as those of Adam of old. In due time we shall expect to hear the shrill notes of a young Fife echoing through the hills of Silver City.

WHILE the people of Silver City and vicinity are enjoying the finest of weather our neighbors at Boise are almost dying with the heat. Accounts from Elko, Nevada and various points in California represent the heat as insufferable and in some places work in the harvest fields has had to be done at night.

GONE TO COPE. The Chief left for Cope on Monday morning with the intention of being back on Thursday but Thursday came and brought him not; neither has he written us a line to let us know what he is doing. We hope our friends in Cope will turn him in this direction and if he should prove any way unruly about it please put a few drops of croton oil in his whisky.

GOING IT LEGITIMATE. The office of Collector of United States Internal Revenue has its little episodes, even in places like White Pine. One of them has just occurred there and as it is invested with sharp practice all round, we might as well dish it up to our readers. Collector Mekins was morally certain that a Polish Hebrew down town was carrying on a quiet three-ball business, without sign or license; but could never fix any transaction on him that would legally stick. Finally he determined to put up a job on him, and borrowing a large American silver watch from a friend, he placed it in the hands of one of the boys to “spout” with the aforesaid surreptitious “uncle” knowing that his customer belonged to that impecunious class who are likely to patronize pawn shops, he readily loaned $10 on the valuable collateral, with the usual charge of 10 per cent interest in advance. The Federal officer then sent another party to the accommodator, with the memorandum, to redeem the ticket and pay the charges. He then paid his license-evading friend a visit, and said Uncle Sam wanted $50 from him in the shortest possible space of time.
“Fifty dollars? Wat for?”
“Why, for a pawnbroker’s license, to be sure.”
“Now I tells you more as a hoondred dimes I no vas a pawnbruker.”
“Well, I know better, and you had better settle.”
“You can nicht knows better as me vat I doesn’t do, anyhow.”
“Look here, my fine fellow, do you know that watch?”
And Mekins drew the huge silver time-piece from his pocket. Shylock looked at it, changed color and surrendered:
“I yoost tells you vat it is, Mister Menkins: I coomes to your office in coople hours, and I taked out da tam infernal license, and den I goes into the ‘buis’ leshitimit, and hangs out my tree balls, yoost de same as ony udder man!”

THE LOTTERY. It was rumored recently in San Francisco that as soon as the tickets of the mercantile library are sold the Attorney General would attach the money as subject to confiscation to the State. The officers, on the contrary, say that they will pay off the debt of the library at once, and make other arrangements to protect ticket holders, so that little fear is entertained of the result.

On the edge of common sense Rodeo stock contractors

Bennie Beutler got inducted into the Pro Rodeo Hall of Fame this summer. One of a good handful of stock contractors who have been so honored.

Stock contractors are an odd lot. They’re not smilers. They’re always on the job ... sort of a cross between a prison guard and the captain of a pirate ship! Maybe it’s because they are trying to maintain order in a sea of chaos. They are merely attempting to match up one cowboy with one animal, neither of which takes orders very well! I’ve had the pleasure to be with several of them when they attempted to relax. Unfortunately, it’s like watching Queen Elizabeth in her Bermuda shorts texting her broker at Billy Bobs!

I was there at the Agribition watching Harry Vold trying to pick octopus limbs out of his chow mein at the hotel where Bob Tallman was asked to leave and Leon Coffee took on the Royal Canadian Mounties!

And, when Cotton Rosser surprised his guests at his birthday party by having me ride one of his big paint horses into the dining room. That same night he invited a skydiver to parachute into the parking lot wearing an American flag. Many were relieved that no one was seriously injured, but Cotton I think appreciated the excitement when the skydiver hit a lamp post and landed in a tree.

Jim Korkow took me home with him after a big night at the Silver Spur in Ft. Pierre where we concluded by singing “On the Wings of a Snow White Dove” with the All-Girl Indian Band. His wife drove, thank goodness. I remember he put me to bed, but I woke up the next morning under the kitchen table downstairs!

I’ve been Mike Cervi’s pen pal, listened to Wayne Vold sing “Oh, Canada” flat on his back, done pre-rodeo announcing for Bobby Christensen, and held the door for Jim Sutton and Reg Kessler and admired many from afar.

Back to Bennie, one of the more sartorially splendid rodeo producers, he’s usually in a suit, clean shirt with that natty little scarf around his neck, carrying on the tradition. In the early ‘80s during rodeo’s more “homey” days, Bob Edson was the commissioner, Bruce Ford, Roy Cooper, Tom Ferguson and Brad Gjermundson filled the stands, and the PRCA Convention was held in Denver.

In the evenings the halls were lined with hospitality rooms. My wife and I often played music with others ... just jammin’. Cindy Lou was from Oklahoma and played a fine fiddle. Bennie, it seemed, would often hunt her out and sit around listening to her play all those great ol’ songs that were part of his Oklahoma upbringing: Faded Love, Maiden’s Prayer, Take Me Back to Tulsa, Oklahoma Hills. His serious demeanor would melt for a while ... and he would smile.

Of course, we all knew that he was still workin’ out ways to get cowboys bucked off, but for a few minutes he looked almost ... happy.

Not important ... but possibly of interest Baby Boomers at age 65

Next year... the first official Baby Boomers will reach age 65. Many members of that generation have been successful enough to live the good life. But more than a few have seen that lifestyle disappear because of changes in the economic climate. That has to be a tough pill to swallow. But before they become too depressed, they might want to consider a story I heard 15 years ago:

The man on the stool next to me at the hotel bar didn’t fit the profile of the typical person attending a writer’s conference. His broad shoulders, close-cropped gray hair and weathered features made him stand out in a crowd where many of the males sported pony tails, wore blue jeans and sport coats with leather patches on the elbows and considered eggplant a main dinner dish.

I asked him what he did for a living. He said he was a school bus driver. You don’t find a lot of school bus drivers at writing conferences.

My companion said he had done a lot of things in his life. He graduated from college with a degree in economics. He also had been a corporate airplane pilot. Eventually, he settled down to pursue his first love — farming. He enjoyed what he did and worked hard. When he prospered, he tried to give something back to the community.

He spoke with pride of the time he served on the local Chamber of Commerce, and of the community improvement projects he helped bring to reality.

During the summer, he hired local kids. He was proud that many area youngsters who went on to be successful adults developed their work ethics on his farm moving sprinkler pipe and hauling hay.

He smiled as he remembered the annual celebration he hosted at his farm, attended by people from all over the area. It took an entire barbecued cow to feed the crowd.

And everyone, including the gate-crashers, ate until they were ready to pop.

But sometimes the best definition of “Life” it what happens to us while we are making other plans. The man said one day he woke up to find everything he had worked for was gone.

Rebuilding one’s life from square one is never easy. The broad-shouldered man said he learned some valuable lessons quickly. He discovered that a lot of his friends disappeared when he was no longer a “center of influence” in the community.

He also learned that a man over the age of 50 — even one with a degree in economics — always seems to end up out of the running for good jobs when the people doing the hiring are under 40. But the personnel directors were always quick to say age wasn’t a factor. After all, age discrimination is illegal. The only business that considered his maturity an asset was the school bus company.

But my partner wasn’t crying in his beer as he told his story. He said he considered himself a pretty lucky fellow. He had a lot good memories. He had reached the age where he could draw some Social Security to help pay the bills. And each year his grown daughter insisted on paying his way to the writers conference — something he really enjoyed.

The man with the broad shoulders thanked me for talking with him. I said it was a privilege to hear his story. I noted that it was time for the conference banquet and the main item on the menu was eggplant. We went across the street to a café and ordered hamburgers and fries.

From Washington Closed-door health care policy continues with recess appointment

Closed-door politics was the norm throughout the health care reform debate, and it seems that the Obama administration continued that practice with its latest move — the recess appointment of Dr. Donald Berwick to serve as the administrator of the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS). CMS is a vast federal agency that administers care to 100 million seniors, children and low-income families, with an annual budget of more than $800 billion — a budget larger than the Pentagon’s. With the newly enacted health care bill, the CMS administrator must oversee the implementation of this 2,409-page bill, including a massive Medicaid expansion with more than $500 billion in cuts to the Medicare program, which will impact more than 44 million seniors enrolled in Medicare.

To say that this position is important is an understatement. A recent Wall Street Journal article asserted that this appointment is more important to the direction of the country than Elena Kagan’s nomination to the Supreme Court. However, despite repeated promises of transparency in governing, President Obama quietly appointed Berwick to this position during the Independence Day recess. When public outrage arose over that action, he formally re-submitted the nomination to the Senate, although the recess appointment stands and it is unlikely that Berwick will ever face any confirmation hearings or a confirmation vote.

While President Obama is not the first president to use the recess appointment, it is a mechanism that should be used only as a last step in the case of unreasonable delay, not a first. Berwick was nominated on April 19, less than three months ago. The recess appointment of Berwick was an effort to bypass the scrutiny of the Senate and the American people for one simple reason — if they knew who Berwick is and what he stands for, they would never support the nomination.

Earlier this month, I joined with my Republican colleagues on the Finance Committee to ask Chairman Max Baucus (D-Mont.) for a hearing to question Berwick on his views. This is particularly important given the troubling nature of many quotes from Berwick regarding his views on health care. Some of the most disturbing include:

- On rationing: “The decision is not whether or not we will ration care — the decision is whether we will ration with our eyes open.”
- On single-payer health care: “I admit to my own devotion to a single-payer mechanism as the only sensible approach to health care finance I can think of.”
- On the British National Health Care system: “I think the NHS is one of the great human health care endeavors on Earth. It can be an example for the whole world; an example, I must say, that the United States needs now more

There’s no way I’d be in debt to my mother

Dear Dave,
We want to go into the mission field, and we’re following your plan trying to get out of debt before we do this. We’ve got about $16,000 in credit card debt. My mother doesn’t want this to stand in our way, and she’s offered to pay off our debt and let us pay her back over time at half of the interest rate we’re paying now. My husband likes the idea, but what would you say?
— Teresa

Money has a way of changing the family dynamic, and it’s almost never for the good. All of a sudden you’re getting raised eyebrows if you buy something for yourself, because even the nicest, gentlest person has opinions. You’d be giving her a say in your lives in a different way and at a completely different level than ever before. You just don’t need that in your life!
Now, if she wants to make paying off your debt a gift — one that will facilitate you guys hitting the mission field earlier — I’m ok with that. I’d be honored, and I’d accept the gift. But I would never tell you to go into debt — especially to a parent. I’m sure she’s coming from the perspective that she’d make a better “creditor” than the credit card company. If it were me, I’d tell her that I love her, but I just don’t want to take a chance on doing anything that might come between us later.

— Dave

Dear Dave,
I’m 31, single, and I have two college degrees. I have no money to speak of, having just come through a rough patch of unemployment, but I recently landed a job that will pay me $20,000 to start. There’s the added possibility of an increase to $40,000 in the first year. I’m thinking about buying a house, but I’ve also got $50,000 in student loan debt. The good news is that I have no other debt. What are your thoughts on buying a home in this situation?
— Trevor

Dear Trevor,
Man, you’re broke! There’s no other way to describe being $50,000 in debt with a job making $20,000. You don’t need to get wrapped up in buying a place right now. At this point, a house would end up being a curse instead of a blessing.

You’ve been through the valley, and now I want you to come up into the sunlight. I want you to start building a future on something solid, and that solid ground means being debt-free. If I woke up in your shoes, I’d get unbelievably aggressive about paying off this debt. I’m talking about rice and beans and living in a cheap little apartment for the next two or three years while you kill it off.
Whatever you do, Trevor, please don’t get complacent about this debt. Lots of times people will play around with student loans. They don’t take them seriously, because they have low payments or really low interest rates. The next thing you know, it’s still sitting there 10 years later staring at you like some kind of big, dumb pet!
Having a bunch of mortgage payments hanging over your head would completely destroy the foundation of your new financial life. Save up $1,000 for a small emergency fund. Go crazy about paying off the loan. Then, get your emergency fund of three to six months of expenses in the bank. If you get used to living on $20,000 a year, and your income rises like you mentioned, you’ll be able to get rid of your student loan fast. After that’s done, you can save enough for a 20 percent down payment on a house in no time!

Letter to the editor

Letter writer encourages citizens to speak out

A great quote from the U.S. Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson, 1950:
“It is not the function of our government to keep the citizen from falling into error; it is the function of the citizen to keep the government from falling into error.” It’s our job to control and regulate our governments.
There is a lot wrong and inappropriate with our governments, and there are good and appropriate parts within our governments. I believe every citizen of this country needs to apply skeptical scrutiny to what is heard and seen going on in all city, county, state and federal governments. Try to stay tuned to the happenings and try to apply “common sense” to their solutions. It’s very hard to beat! There is no need to become radical or mean-spirited, but asking questions and pondering answers with skeptical scrutiny is something we should all do. Skepticism has been lost in recent decades. I was taught as a youngster not to believe everything I heard or read. We should be teaching skepticism in school. It is an essential tool to get through life.
Think these things through and when 2 and 2 doesn’t equal 4, sound an alarm to fellow citizens, friends and neighbors and not importantly to the government who is misled. Use “Letters to the Editor” or any other method you can spread to the word. Writing the heads of our governments is very effective.

✓ Appointment: Administrator’s views deserve scrutiny from the Senate committee

The worrisome list of Berwick’s statements is growing and troubling.
Many Idahoans, along with many other Americans, were strongly opposed to the health care bill, yet it was forced through Congress with backroom deals and false claims. Similar to the same gimmicks and procedural abuses used to force through the health care bill, this recess appointment was done to bypass public scrutiny and Senate procedure to keep the public in the dark until the appointment was final. The public reaction has taught the administration an important lesson in transparency. Unfortunately the president’s resubmission of the appointment appears to be nothing more than political cover. What should happen is Berwick should come before the Senate Finance Committee for a full vetting of his record and positions and his nomination should be put before the Senate for a vote. We will see.

ATTENTION: RESIDENTS OF GRAND VIEW

IMPORTANT INFORMATION ABOUT YOUR DRINKING WATER:

Effective January 1, 2006 the US Environmental Protection Agency reduced the drinking water standard for Arsenic from 50 parts per billion (ppb) to 10 ppb. The two Well's supplying water for the Grand View Water & Sewer Association, Inc. was tested on July 9, 2010. The Arsenic concentration for Well # 1 is

0.18 ppb and Well # 2 is 0.15 ppb

of which both well's are above the 10 ppb Maximum Contaminant Level (MCL) set forth by the EPA. This is considered to be at the violation of the federal drinking water standard. Although this is not an emergency, you have a right to know what is happening, what you should do and what your water association is doing to continue to keep in compliance. The Grand View Water & Sewer Association, Inc. is still required to provide quarterly public notice of this excess EPA standard Arsenic level. Until such time as Idaho Department of Environmental Quality (IDEQ) notifies the Association that this notice is no longer required you will continue to receive this notice quarterly.

What happened? Arsenic is a natural deposit occurring element thought to enter the water source from contact with natural rock formations.

What health effects? Arsenic can cause adverse health effects, including cardiovascular disease, diabetes mellitus, skin changes, nervous system damage, and various forms of cancer.

What is being done? On the second Wednesday of each month there are regular Water & Sewer Board and the City Council meetings at City Hall – 425 Boise Ave. at 7:00 pm. Questions are encouraged concerning your drinking water and other issues.

IDEQ is still reviewing the Draft for our Design Phase Plan of the Water System Improvement Project to remove Arsenic from our drinking water. This draft may be view at Grand View City Hall located at 425 Boise Ave.

A water test well is being drilled in the hopes of finding water with lower levels of arsenic.

What should I do? It will be each citizen's choice to use alternative drinking water (e.g., bottled) or drink Grand View Association's Water the choice is the total responsibility of each citizen. However, if you have specific health concerns, consult your Doctor.

For more information, please contact Grand View City Hall - Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday from 8:00am to 5:00pm, lunch 12:30 to 1:30 – (208) 834-2700 - Closed all major holidays.

CORRECTED NOTICE OF PROPOSED WATER RIGHT CHANGE

This notice was previously published 5/19 & 5/26/2010. That notice was correct but referred to the application form, which had slight errors that have been corrected. This new notice rephrases the proposed change without changing the intent of the original notice. You do not need to re-protest the application if you protested it during the prior legal notice period.

Junayo Ranch LTD Partnership of 1087 W. River St. Ste 230, Boise ID 83702 filed Application No. 75704 to transfer a water right with a 1984 priority date from Reynolds Creek totaling 4.6 cfs and 150 af. This is an off-stream storage right and does not include direct diversion from the creek to the irrigated acres. The purpose of the transfer is to correct the right to accurately reflect current irrigation practices for 20 acres by adding those acres to the place of use of the right. Those acres are located next to the reservoir about 1 mile southeast of the confluence of Reynolds Creek and Macks Creek. The amount of water diverted from the creek and stored in the reservoir will not increase.

For specific details regarding the application, please contact the Idaho Department of Water Resources (IDWR) Western Region at 208-334-2190 or visit www.idwr.idaho.gov with detail provided under “new water right applications.” Protests may be submitted based on the criteria of Sec 42-222, Idaho Code. Any protest against the proposed change must be filed with the Director, IDWR Western Region, 2735 Airport Way, Boise ID 83705-5082 together with a protest fee of $25.00 for each application on or before August 23, 2010. The protestant must also send a copy of the protest to the applicant.

We also truly appreciated the prayers, visits, phone calls, hugs, food and flowers sent on his behalf. We are grateful for the Wilder paramedics and especially, Tom Fogg. The following heartwarming message from Cindy Orrillo sums it up: “Bill was a great husband, father and friend. He was wise beyond words and never left us with a dull moment, be it a nudge, a bear hug, one of his many jokes or sayings, or stealing your silverware from under your nose at the dinner table, he always made you laugh. Although my heart is saddened and my eyes are tearful now, when I think of Bill, I can’t help but smile and feel blessed that I was a part of his life.” From: Roxie Atkins, Ric & Terri Uria, Sonny & Teri Atkins, Darlene Atkins, Mary & Larry Bradshaw.

The family of Rev. Boyd Eoff wishes to thank each and every one for the cards, flowers, visits, food, phone calls and prayers during the loss of our loved one and our difficult time. Each act of kindness brought much comfort to each member of our family. A special thanks to Pastor Chuck Ryan and the Mountain View Church of the Nazarene who put on a lovely meal. To all who attended the service and to those who provided the lovely music and fond memories. We extend our gratitude. St. Lukes Hospice did a wonderful job while he was home the last 30 days, while instructing us and supervising his care. Special thanks to Nurse Linda and R.N. Michelle Hunt. Words cannot express it all. Sincerely from our hearts, Betty Eoff and family.

Jerry & Vicki Anderson would like to thank all their friends, neighbors and family for attending our 50th wedding anniversary celebration. It was Wonderful!
