County budget has something for employees

Pay raise, help with insurance costs allocated

Owyhee County employees will see a bump in pay for the first time in two years, if commissioners approve the proposed budget released this week.

Most employees will receive a one percent pay increase in fiscal year 2011, according to the proposed county budget, which appears on Page 13A of this week's edition of The Owyhee Avalanche.

The public hearing on the FY 2011 budget will be held at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 7, in Murphy.

The proposed FY 2011 budget has been set at more than $7.3 million, a five percent increase over the $6.9 million budget under which the county currently operates.

The proposed budget shows more than $1 million in cash carryover, a more than 50 percent increase from FY 2010. Proposed taxes for the next fiscal year are set at $1.68 million, or

School starts today in Homedale, Marsing

Homedale patrons vote on $300K levy Aug. 26

Students won't be the only ones making adjustments as the new school year begins this week.

School already has started for the Jordan Valley and Melba school districts. Students in Marsing and Homedale begin class today, and Adrian opens Monday.

The recently completed sidewalk and pavement work in front of Homedale High School has created a reconfiguration in the parking situation.

With construction crews altering their schedule to complete work before the school year began, HHS now features new sidewalks along its East Idaho Avenue frontage and a new drop-off spot for students on the east side of the main parking area in front of the school.

The remainder of the area will feature six angled parking spaces and, on the west end of the parking area, a disabled parking space, according to Homedale School District Transportation and Maintenance Director Tom Muir.

The work is part of the Local Improvement District commitment from the school district,

Community shows support for TRHS at ribbon cutting

Children from the Hope House Choir perform for the open house guests that attended the ribbon cutting for the TRHS in Marsing.

Terry Reilly Health Services Clinic in Marsing held its official grand re-opening with a ribbon cutting during National Health Center Week.

The ribbon cutting, which was organized to celebrate the newly remodeled clinic featured music from the Hope House Choir in Marsing. TRHS Executive Director Timothy Brown spoke to those in attendance and thanked the community for their support of the clinic.

Marsing clinic director Faith Peterson, along with her husband Jack and behavioral health specialist Michael Benjamin, cut the ribbon officially re-opening the clinic.

"We truly appreciate the representation of the community," Jack Peterson said. "This is Marsing, and so typical of the community. They really reach out and help each other. We are very pleased with the outcome."

TRHS is a not-for-profit organization. Those wishing to donate can contact Brown, at 467-4431.

Critical Initiative land purchase fund created

Supporters hope private groups will come forward

With the sale of other federal lands, the Bureau of Land Management has created a fund to buy ranching interests inside wilderness created by the Owyhee Initiative law.

Sen. Mike Crapo (R-Idaho) announced Friday in Boise that a $2 million bankroll will be used to fund the purchase of so-called in-holdings that cattlemen have in areas in Owyhee County that have been designated as part of the 517,000 acres of wilderness.

The announcement was made a press conference attended by Crapo, Bureau of Land Management Boise District manager Aden Seidlitz and Board of County Commissioners chair Jerry Hoagland.

"We are indebted to the vision and the follow-up of the Owyhee Initiative group, which Jerry is a part of, and the Shoshone-Paiute Tribes and the many interest groups," Seidlitz said of the progress.

"We are forever indebted to (Crapo's) leadership for making this happen."

More importantly, though, with public money now secured — a part that Crapo on Friday called

"critical" to the overall success of the Initiative — stakeholders are optimistic that private groups now will come forward to buy animal unit monthly (AUMs) from ranchers so that federally owned pastureland can be retired and made wilderness.

"I was surprised that it come through this quick," Board of County Commissioners chair Jerry Hoagland said. Hoagland sits on the Initiative board of directors as a commissioner.

"I was afraid some of this wasn't going to come to fruition until quite a few years in the future."

Chad Gibson, the first vice-president of the Owyhee Initiative board, said that there are private investors willing to buy the in-holdings and sell them to the Department of Interior's Bureau of Land Management. Three landowners are willing to sell their in-holdings at this time, Gibson said. Nearly 1,200 acres would be involved in the transaction.

A fourth landowner has a 540-parcel he would like to sell, Gibson said, but it is not an in-holding.

A number of other private in-holdings are eligible for exchange for other land because the property owners opted not to sell, Gibson said.

Back to school carnival set for Friday night at HMS

The second annual Homedale Middle School Back to School Carnival will run from 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. on Friday at the school.

Proceeds will benefit the HMS athletics programs.

Activities at the event will include carnival games, a dunk tank, sumo wrestling, an astro jump, hot dogs, hamburgers, other concessions, silent auction baskets and an ice cream eating contest.

Marsing girl to perform at FFA national meet

A member of the Marsing FFA chapter has been selected to perform at the national convention's Talent Program.

Kyla Loucks, daughter of Les and Amy Loucks, was one of two Idaho FFA members selected to perform during the convention, which is set for Oct. 20-23 in Indianapolis.

Loucks, who is starting her senior year at Marsing High School and her fourth year in FFA, sings country western songs.

Shiloh Sharrard of Troy FFA also was picked to perform at the national convention, according to an e-mail from Idaho State FFA Advisor Ben Meyer.

OCD election is producers’ opportunity to get involved

Younger generation sought as terms of long-serving supervisors expire

Four seats on the Owyhee Conservation District Board of Supervisors are up for election on Nov. 2, and a district spokesperson is urging younger agricultural producers to get involved.

“We would love to see the young people in the farming-ranching community run for supervisors,” OCD administrative assistant Gina Millard wrote in an e-mail. “It is time for young blood. We have many issues that face farmers year after year: Irrigation cost, electrical cost, etc.”

Hopefuls have until Sept. 2 to declare their candidacy for a position on the OCD board of supervisors. Four-year terms begin in January. Candidacy paperwork is available at the district office inside the U.S. Department of Agriculture Service Center, 250 N. Bruneau Hwy., in Marsing.

Write-in candidates must declare for the election by 5 p.m. on Oct. 8.

For more information, call the district office at 896-4544, ext. 102.

There are seven men serving on the board, and many have served decades in the unpaid volunteer positions, Millard said.

The men whose terms expire at the end of the year include secretary-treasurer Ray Mansisidor, vice-chair Charles Kiester and supervisors Rick Smith and Jim Briggs.

The balance of the board includes chair Charles Chadez and supervisors John Cossel and Tim Volk. Elmon Thompson serves as an associate supervisor, which is a non-elected position.

The supervisors meet on the second Thursday of the month at the OCD office inside the USDA service center. The board meets at 8 p.m. during the summer months and at 10 a.m. in the winter.

Millard said Mansisidor has been on the board for more than 30 years and calls him a “fountain of knowledge about our county.”

“Our board members are farmers and ranchers, so they understand the needs of the farmer/rancher,” she said.

The district supervisors help secure grants to provide assistance for producers, Millard said.

“We have several grants programs that help with irrigation needs, some for nutrient management and weed control.

It is not much but it does help,” she said.

“The district’s goal is to protect our natural resources: land, water and air. The board tries to look at the needs of the local farmers and come up with workable solutions.”

Millard said all current board members are from Homedale and Marsing, even though the OCD encompasses all of Owyhee County west of the Bruneau River Soil Conservation District’s boundary. There is a need for input and board participation from areas such as Givens and Murphy.

“It is hard to get volunteers,” she said. “Just like our weed board. I have a few dedicated weed-haters who are really helpful, but it’s hard to get community volunteers.”

Jordan Valley FFA chapter gets national ranking

Jordan Valley FFA chapter was recently selected as a two-star winner in the National FFA Chapter Award program from nearly 650 applicants.

The Jordan Valley chapter members have been invited to attend the 83rd National FFA Convention in Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 20-23, where they will be recognized.

The award program, sponsored by the Ford Motor Company and John Deere, recognizes FFA chapters for developing and conducting a detailed program of activities. According to a press release, each activity provides opportunities for members to excel in one of three areas: student, chapter, or community development.

Nick Usabel is the Jordan Valley FFA advisor.

Every year, chapters are recognized as having earned a one – two – or three-star rating on their application. The three-star rating is the highest level of accomplishment a chapter may achieve.

Marsing considers hiring code enforcement officer

Council seeks to lighten the sheriff office’s burden

Marsing City Council discussed the possibility of adding a new member to the city staff to enforce city codes and issue notices to those not in compliance.

Sylvia Bahem, who works as an ordinance enforcement officer for the Caldwell Police Department, spoke with the council Wednesday. Bahem, who also works as the planning and zoning administrator for Homedale, explained her job and what avenues an enforcement officer can take to ensure city code is followed by residents.

“The best thing for me to do, is tell you what I do,” Bahem said. “This is in hopes of you understanding what you might want here in Marsing. There are two of us in Caldwell, we go out and look for code violations. We also handle all the complaints, abandoned vehicles, weeds, trash and calls about people living in sheds.”

Bahem explained the process that Caldwell follows when responding to city code violations. The ordinance officers investigate the complaints and the violations they witness and fill out what they call a “green card”, which is then turned into their office and a letter is sent to the offender.

The letter informs the resident or landowner about the violation and explains that the officer will follow up in 10 days. If the officer follows up on the property and find it isn’t cleaned up there is a second notice issued. If the property isn’t cleaned up after that, a citation can be issued.

“I think Homedale uses a preprinted three-part form,” Bahem said. “When the officer (Homedale Police) is out and sees a violation, they fill it out and tack it on the door. It is then filed and followed up on after 10 days.”

Mayor Keith Green explained that this officer would help alleviate some of the duties of the Owyhee County Sheriff’s office. If Marsing decided to go forward with this staff position, the ordinance officer would be able to issue warnings and then follow up within a certain time frame. If the problem hasn’t been fixed, he said then the notice would be turned over to the sheriff and a citation issued.

“In reality, the sheriff’s department serves what I write up,” Green said. “As a mayor that comes in when I can, you really don’t have the time to write up all the ordinance violations. If we had an ordinance officer that came in twice a week and wrote up all the things they saw, it would be a benefit. The fact of it is, I haven’t written up all that I have seen.”

Bahem informed the mayor that if the ordinances were worded correctly the warnings for the violations could be served by the ordinance enforcement officer. This would alleviate the need of first contact being made by the sheriff’s office.

“This would be finding the right person,” Green said. “One that could actually get a response from the people in town, and could do it in a way that wouldn’t create a battle. This is going to take some time to think about. We also need to figure out how to fund it.”

✓ Budget: Board chair commends department heads for tightening belts

15.9 percent lower than last year’s approximately $2 million figure.

County Treasurer Brenda Richards pointed out that the sharp eye with which each department has spent money in the past year created the carryover that — combined with the commissioners “generously” putting all of the fiscal year 2010 Payment in Lieu of Taxes funds into the budget — enabled the county to move forward without raising taxes.

“The departments and the employees have done really well. They have watched their purchases. They have been very, very frugal just to get actually what was necessary,” Board of County Commissioners chair Jerry Hoagland said. “Compared to when I was first on commissioners to this past year, it’s actually amazing how much they’ve been dedicated to save.”

Other revenue — including more than $1 million from the Department of Interior as compensation for the vast tracts of tax-exempt federal land in the county — amounts to $4.5 million, nearly identical to last year’s number.

County Clerk Charlotte Sherburn pointed out in last week’s commissioners meeting that nearly $160,000 received for housing out-of-county prisoners in Murphy also helped the bottom line.

In addition to the pay raise, county workers also will see an extra pay period in the next fiscal year.

Sherburn said the 27 pay periods in a year happens once a decade.

The proposed budget also reflects a six percent increase in the share of insurance deductible buydown that the county pays for its employees. The county now will pay $20 of the $30 monthly buydown payment that reduces employees’ medical insurance annual deductible 90 percent from $2,000 to $200. The employees’ share of the buydown will not change because of the county’s action, Sherburn said.

Additionally, Owyhee County Sheriff’s Office patrol deputies will see their hours restored to 171 monthly.

Not everyone will get a one percent pay hike if the proposed budget is approved.

Coroner gets big raise

Coroner Harvey Grimme’s salary is set to go from $10,228 to $15,000. Prosecuting Attorney Douglas Emery will see virtually no increase in his pay rate, but will earn more because of the extra pay period.

At the same time, the salary of Emery’s deputy prosecutor, Chuck Saari, could be slashed nearly 75 percent from $29,000 to $7,500.

Larger pay increase proposals were rejected through the budget workshop process, county records reveal.

Sheriff Daryl Crandall asked for 10 percent pay increases for himself and his chief deputy for FY 2011. Instead, Crandall will get a one percent hike, while his chief deputy, which he has said will be Kenny Hoagland when Bill Detweiler retires at the end of the fiscal year, will make about two percent less than what the chief deputy currently draws.

Two new budget lines were created — $63,490 to compensate for the state-mandated consolidated elections and $41,150 for the county vessel fund, which in the past was a trust fund that was drawn into the county budget whenever money was needed for a project. The new taxing district elections budget is wholly funded with state money, Sherburn said, while the county waterways committee members specifically asked for the vessel line in order to better account for the money.

The largest line item increases came for the Tort fund (39.8 percent or $36,685), Board of County Commissioners (22.1 percent or $31,403), the coroner (21.9 percent or $9,782, primarily because of Grimme’s pay hike), the assessor (21.6 percent or $45,035) and the county historical society and museum (20.3 percent or $10,158).

BOCC plans ahead

The bulk of the increase in the assessor’s budget comes from the shifting of the division of motor vehicles salaries from the sheriff’s office budget. Previously funding for one full-time position and half the funding of another was supported by the sheriff’s budget.

The commissioners’ budget jumps primarily because of a $40,000 line for professional services. The line was funded at only $10,000 for FY 2010, and only 25 percent of it had been spent through Aug. 11. Sherburn said the budget was increased because of looming RS 2477 road hearings and that part of the increase is being funded by the money taken from the deputy PA line in Emery’s budget.

The historical museum and society budget, which is over budget by five percent through Aug. 11, is set to increase in FY 2011 because of a historical preservation grant and a rising electricity bill that Sherburn said can be attributed to increased use of the McKeeth Hall community center. County records show that the museum is 29 percent over budget on its FY 2010 electricity allocation.

The county proposes an increase in its Tort fund to $128,835 for FY 2011 to account for a 25 percent increase in the liability insurance premium paid to the Idaho Counties Risk Management Program as well as the commissioners’ desire to have more money available for professional services, Sherburn said. Currently, the fund is two percent over budget for FY 2010, for which $91,550 was allocated.

Courts to get security

The county also plans to add a part-time position for security at the courthouses in Murphy and Homedale, Sherburn said. If approved, the position will be funded at $14,182 (Crandall had sought a full-time jailer at $27,747, but Sherburn said she changed it in the worksheet to the courthouse security).

It’s anticipated the deputy will work two days per week, and a part-timer will be hired sometime in FY 2011, Sherburn said.

“We won’t have someone at the door eight hours a day,” she said.

Sheriff’s patrol hours, which were cut last year to save money and had been a bone of contention for Crandall, could be restored to 85.5 every two weeks (171 per month), Sherburn said. Dispatchers will work 80 hours in a pay period under the proposed budget.

Although the new budget would restore patrol hours for the sheriff’s office, there were items on Crandall’s wish list that were denied, including the addition of a patrol deputy in the sheriff’s budget and a dispatcher in the jail budget.

Overall, he wanted to increase the sheriff’s budget by 10.6 percent (more than $100,000), but the proposed budget was set at just over $1.1 million, or 1.7 percent more than FY 2010.

County records show the sheriff’s office is over its $75,000 fuel budget for FY 2010 by nearly $4,300 with 15 percent of the year yet to go. Crandall requested a fuel budget of $90,000 for FY 2010, but the proposed allocation remained $75,000.

Both the sheriff’s office and the jail are meeting budget overall for FY 2010.

Crandall sought a 20.5 percent increase in the jail budget (almost $150,000), but an 11 percent increase was proposed to $743,689. That hike includes a 17.7 percent bump in the overall salary budget and a doubling of his overtime budget to $20,000.

Through Aug. 11, 85 percent of the budget year, 90 percent of the jail’s salary budget had been spent and only eight percent of the year’s overtime budget remained.

✓ School: New look at Homedale High which superintendent Tim Rosandick has said, will cost about $30,000 over the next 10 years.

The Homedale district also is welcoming four new teachers into the realm this week, including Amy Winters, the new curriculum and instruction and student support specialist working out of the middle school; band and choir director Jessica Hanna at both HMS and HHS; HMS fifth-grade teacher Rebecca Anderson; and Sarah Jamison, who will teach science and math at the high school.

In Marsing, the high school and middle school have two new teachers apiece. At the high school, Doug South will teach History and Weight Training, and Kimberly Freeman will teach Business and Technology. At the middle school, Deidra Little is the new Science teacher, and Lisa Pender will handle Literacy Intervention and Technology.

There are no new teachers at either elementary school in Homedale and Marsing.

As the school year starts in Homedale, supporters are gearing up for an Aug. 26 supplemental levy election aimed at restoring teacher-contact days and other components cut because of a tighter fiscal year 2011 budget.

Homedale school trustees recently approved the election on a $300,000 one-year levy. Polls will be open from noon to 8 p.m. at the Seventh Day Adventist Fellowship Hall, 16613 Garnet Road, for Canyon County patrons and the school district office, 116 E. Owyhee Ave., for Owyhee County patrons.

An absentee ballot can be obtained at the district office Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. The deadline for applying for an absentee ballot is 5 p.m. on Aug. 25, and ballots must be received by the district clerk no later than 8 p.m. on Election Day.

Corrections

The age of the victim in a Pascoe Road homicide from Aug. 7 was reported incorrectly to The Owyhee Avalanche for an Aug. 11 article. Bradley Dewayne Schlotka was 49, according to his death notice. Pascoe Road also was spelled incorrectly in the article.

Sheriff prepared to sue county over recall

Crandall’s Boise attorney asks clerk to strike petition

Sheriff Daryl Crandall has privately retained an attorney in his fight against a recall petition brought by Owyhee County citizens, including former sheriff’s office employees.

In an Aug. 11 letter to County Clerk Charlotte Sherburn, Boise attorney David H. Leroy wrote his office “has been retained privately” by Crandall to bring legal action if the county does not disallow the recall petition filed by former sheriff’s office employee Jessica DeGeus.

The press release and accompanying documents were faxed to The Owyhee Avalanche from the sheriff’s office. OCSO employee Jayne Kingston called the newspaper to confirm receipt of the documents, which included an affidavit from Crandall denying some of the allegations in the petition.

Board chair Jerry Hoagland (R-Wilson) said that the commissioners have not approved any funding to pay Crandall’s legal expenses.

Leroy’s letter to Sherburn asks for a reversal of the approval of the recall petition on the grounds that the document contains false claims, which both Crandall and Leroy say constitute a felony under Idaho Code. Because of the alleged violation of state law, Leroy asserts, Sherburn should not have approved the petition, which continues to circulate.

“... We ask for your unilateral and preemptive action to prevent the necessity of litigation,” Leroy wrote in the letter, which threatens a lawsuit.

Clerk: Law was followed

“I don’t see a clear legal basis to strike the petition,” Owyhee County Prosecuting Attorney Douglas Emery said Friday. Emery said he reviewed the petition at Sherburn’s request before she certified it and that Sherburn had confirmed that all 20 people who signed the petition were registered voters in Owyhee County.

“I feel like Code was followed to the T,” Sherburn said.

The Avalanche didn’t receive all the documents Leroy apparently sent to Sherburn. Relaying information from Crandall, Kingston told the Avalanche that an Elmore County Sheriff’s Office incident report regarding an investigation into alleged false claims made on the recall petition won’t be released because the case is still open. Leroy’s letter said the Elmore County prosecutor is reviewing the case.

Sherburn said Friday afternoon that she never received the incident report, even though it was listed as an attachment in the attorney’s letter.

Emery said information on open cases generally isn’t released. He confirmed that he requested the Elmore County prosecutor to look into Crandall’s claims after the sheriff had asked him to investigate the matter soon after the petition had been filed.

The prosecutor said that there would be a basis to strike the petition if the investigation found that fraud had been committed and charges were filed. Another avenue would be for Crandall to sue the petitioner asserting fraud.

“Everything on that petition is true,” DeGeus said. “I’ll testify in court how I was treated in there. It was very hostile.”

Sheriff denies claims

In his affidavit, Crandall denies some claims made in DeGeus’ petition, including lack of cooperation with the media, not upholding the Marsing law enforcement contract, a poor relationship with county emergency medical services and poor employee relations.

Specifically, the petition, which was signed by 20 county residents as required by law, asserts Crandall hasn’t followed campaign promises of “working for the community, cooperation with surrounding counties and communication with citizens.”

In addition to the assertion he’s not working for the community, Crandall’s affidavit refutes other DeGeus claims, including:

- The sheriff hasn’t responded to multiple records requests from new media and victims of crimes and accidents.

In his affidavit, Crandall says he “properly responded to all 54 requests from the Owyhee Avalanche” for public records and also cites several days spent with a film crew for a feature on the county Christmas food and coat drive, which aired on ABC’s “Good Morning America”. The affidavit also claims OCSO assisted a crew from NBC Universal in filming portions of an episode of “Disappeared” last month.

- Crandall is not holding up Marsing’s patrol contract with city ordinances and traffic patrol, citing several burglaries reported in Marsing during times only a sheriff’s office “ ‘supervisor’ was on call (in Grand View or Murphy).”

The sheriff said he has assigned Cpl. Jeff Wasson as chief of police in Marsing, and that he attends city council meetings there and gives monthly reports. As to the burglaries, Crandall said he personally responded and special deputies John Zrofsky and Karl Kingston did foot patrols, during which times, Crandall says, no burglaries occurred. Crandall also said a burglary suspect is in jail awaiting trial in connection with the crimes.

- “County-wide, citizens and EMS staff have complained of lack of cooperation.”

Crandall said two emergency services summits have been convened during his time in office and there also is a 911 committee in place. The latest meeting, according to Crandall’s affidavit, was Aug. 5.

- Crandall also defends his working relationships with neighboring agencies, citing cross-deputization of the Homedale Police Department and Elmore County Sheriff’s Office as well as working with the Nampa Police, Canyon County Sheriff’s Office and the area’s interagency narcotics unit. He also says OCSO has worked with the Idaho State Police, Bureau of Land Management, Drug Enforcement Administration and responded to the Duck Valley Indian Reservation to assist Bureau of Indian Affairs Police in investigations of violence on police officers.

OCSO personnel changes

- The petition claims eight supervisors have been changed and 16 employees have either resigned or were terminated.

In his affidavit, the sheriff itemizes personnel changes in the office during his tenure, saying two employees from the Gary Aman administration “resigned in the interim of (sic) failed to report for work in the change of administration.”

He said reorganization created eight supervisors and that six remain in that capacity today.

“As sheriff, I have terminated four people including the author of this petition,” Crandall states in his deposition. “Three of those firings were for various causes, including insubordination, a civil rights violation and inability.”

Crandall said that he has had eight employees resign since his term began on Jan. 12, 2009. He also said one employee retired and he has demoted or “punitively reassigned supervisory personnel on three occasions.”

Crandall’s deposition did not address allegations, including:

- Victims of crimes and accidents and employees complaining of a lack of communication
- The sheriff not following hiring practices and that most replacements have been hired with little or no experience, some are family members and employees and they are placed “on their own without proper training.”
- Employees complain of a hostile work environment and low morale, and that Crandall’s “ ‘open door policy’ has adapted to cursing, yelling and closed blinds with a locked door.”
- Crandall hired “a convicted felon (a personal friend on work release) and paid him for tinting jail windows and other services, which is an ethics violation.”
- “Compassion is poor during investigations of critical incidents.”

DeGeus told The Owyhee Avalanche on Monday that supporters have gathered the signatures of between 500 and 700 people. In order to get the recall election on the Nov. 2 general election ballot, the former Owyhee County Sheriff’s Office dispatcher needs to gather the signatures of 1,056 Owyhee County registered voters by Sept. 1.

Although state law allows for a longer window to collect signatures, DeGeus said petition supporters chose to have the election on the general election ballot to save the county the extra expense of a special election.

“We’re actually trying to save the taxpayers money and not have a special election,” DeGeus said. “We’re not like Sheriff Crandall, who’s wasting money on investigating this or threatening to sue the county clerk for doing her job.”

Marsing OKs FY 2011 budget

City engineer updates on water projects in town

Marsing City Council passed the fiscal year 2011 budget Wednesday with no input from residents on the changes. While the overall budget dropped, funds were added to key areas for development in the city.

The FY 2011 budget of $1,910,898 was set for a public comment during the regular council meeting. The new budget for FY 2011 saw an overall decrease of $654,013 in expenditures from the FY 2010 budget. The budget passed with council member James Ferdinand absent from the vote.

The only areas of the budget that saw increases were the Parks Department: $68,426 up from $42,024, Irrigation: $54,025 from $49,185 and Sewer: $450,200 from $439,000.

The increases in the parks department reflect a grant that was received to go toward work at Island Park. Increases for irrigation include work being done to replace water boxes and irrigation pipe. The sewer project increased because the main sewer line from the Bruneau Highway to the lift station is being replaced.

The proposed property tax levy will include a $3,397 increase, with all categories seeing changes from last year. General Fund will increase to $96,393 from $93,992, Roads and Streets: $25,194 up from $24,460, Parks Department:

$8,986 from $8,724.

City engineer Amy Woodruff gave updates regarding the ongoing water system upgrades in Marsing. She informed the council that the bids for new auto-read meters that will be installed meet almost all the criteria of the system, there were just a few questions that needed to be answered.

The replacement of the old meters around town will include new vaults for the meters along with a meter that sends out a radio frequency eliminating the need to go around and read each individual meter. In total there would be 450 meters purchased along with the necessary software for the system to get it up and running.

ITD ready to work on another Idaho 78 job

Roadway south of Murphy to see rehab

With crews already busy with a project on one stretch of Idaho highway 78, the Idaho Transportation Department announced last week that another resurfacing project will begin this month.

An eight-mile stretch of roadway extending south from Murphy will be covered with a 1.8-inch thin-lift overlay during a project that is expected to last until late September.

No exact start date was provided in the ITD press release. The $958,000 project by Central Paving Co., of Boise, is the first improvement on the roadway since a 1997 resurfacing job using the Cement Recycled Asphalt Base Stabilization (CRABS) technique.

During this month’s project, traffic will be restricted to one lane (as it is now on Idaho 78 south of Givens Hot Springs). Flaggers will guide traffic, and the speed limit will be reduced to 45 mph.

The goal of the project is to extend the life of the roadway and provide a smoother ride for motorists, according to the ITD release.

The project may be funded with a second round of stimulus funds.

Obituary

Vivian Nash Downing

Vivian Nash Downing departed this earth in the early hours of July 19, 2010 at the Hospice Care House in Bend, Oregon. She had been in the care of the wonderful hospice staff and her children for a week before losing her six-year battle with cancer. She left this life with a great deal of dignity and grace — the same way she had always dealt with her illness. She was eighty years old.

Vivian was the first born of Hoyt and Opal Nash, living her first 18 years on the small farm south of Homedale, Idaho which had been homesteaded by her Nash grandparents. She attended school in Homedale and made many friendships that continued throughout her life. She married Clyde Downing in 1947, and they began their life together which spanned forty-plus years before his death in 1987. After several years and several jobs, the young family left their home and families for better prospects and eventually ended up in central Oregon. By this time they had two children: Vicki Lynn born in 1948 and Michael Hoyt born in 1950.

Clyde, who became a master of heavy equipment, found his niche in the construction of the dams going into the Madras area. In 1955, their youngest child, Janice Kaye, was born and completed their family. At the conclusion of the dam era, Clyde and Vivian started Downing Construction and Metolius Rock Quarry, which eventually included their son, Mike, and daughter, Jani, and continues today.

Even though Vivian was busy with her home, yard, and doing the books for their business, she still felt the need to contribute more to the family income. In 1965, she went to work for Hatfield’s Department Store where she became a clerk and eventually a buyer in their home department. As Clyde had found his niche in construction, Vivian found hers at Hatfield’s. Vivian had a keen sense of organization and a skilled flair for home décor, which proved invaluable in her job. She was a respected employee who treasured her relationships with both her customers and her co-workers and remained there until her retirement.

Upon retirement from Hatfield’s, she continued working in the family business at their rock quarry scale house until she was 79. Vivian had an amazing work ethic and was happiest when she was accomplishing something. The care she always gave her home and family reflected these values.

Vivian was preceded in death by her parents, her husband, her sister (Lynnette), her brother (Rodger), her nephews (Randy Shanley and Alex Stacy), and her sisters-in-law (Ardis Nash and Chris Nash).

She is survived by her children: Mike (Cathy) Downing, Vicki Jagels and Jani Jagels. Her grandchildren include Micah, Ian, Caleb, Lucas, Callie, Josiah and Hoyt. She leaves behind twelve great grandchildren and a number of nieces and nephews. Also surviving are her brother, Craig Nash, and sister, Mildreta Shanley.

Throughout her life, Viv enjoyed nothing more than getting us all together for fun and delicious food. In the spirit of that, there will be a celebration of her life held on September 25th, her birthday, in Madras, Oregon.

Bet You Didn't Know

No gold records for this George Harrison

Talk about a mistake ... fellow named George Harrison (not the Beatle) sold the rights to the Witwatersrand for $50 in 1886. The Witwatersrand in South Africa, in case you didn't know, is the world's largest source of gold ...

Jonas Hanaway ... Doesn't ring a bell does it? Anyway, he was the first man in England to carry an umbrella in public. Caused quite a stir in 1750 ... Only women had carried them up until that point ...

If you were a logger and someone was talking to you about a "jackpot" ... what were they referring to? It was used to describe a large, messy pile of logs.

While we're on technical terms ... If you were driving a truck and someone was talking about a "bumper sticker" ... What would they be talking about? Someone who tailgates too closely.

CherriOats ... that's what Cherrios were first called when they came on the market nearly 70 years ago.

Bet you didn't know it takes 9.86 quarts of milk to make a pound of butter.

In the early 1800s you could buy "Dr. Miles Compound Extract of Tomato" ... Was a medicine ... today we call it ketchup.

Comment on DeLamar Mine water discharge

Public comment is now being taken on Kinross DeLamar Mine's request for mixing zones for treated groundwater discharged into Louse Creek.

A mixing zone is an area of a water body where treated pollutants are mixed with cleaner water and diluted to legal limits.

Comment on the draft certification will be accepted until Sept. 7 by the Idaho Department of Environmental Quality.

The mine is located within the Jordan Creek watershed about 20 miles east of Jordan Valley. The treatment facility is located near Sullivan Gulch.

Kinross is seeking coverage to discharge treated groundwater from its operations at the DeLamar Mine under the federal Environmental Protection Agency general National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) permit for groundwater remediation discharge facilities in Idaho.

The draft certification specifies conditions to ensure that the mixing zone complies with state water quality standards.

The draft certification is available at DEQ's Boise Regional Office and on DEQ's Web site at www.deq.idaho.gov/public/comment.cfm.

Submit written comments by 5 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 7, electronically on DEQ's Web site, www.deq.idaho.gov or by mail to Craig Shepard, DEQ Boise Regional Office, 1445 North Orchard, Boise, ID 83706. Faxed submissions can be sent to (208) 373-0287 or e-mail craig.shepard@deq.idaho.gov.

HHS grad's game-show appearance to re-air

Kim Wilson, a 2002 Homedale High School graduate, will be back on TV soon.

The episode of "Let's Make a Deal" featuring Wilson will be rebroadcast on KBOI-TV Channel 2 at 2 p.m. Thursday.

Wilson attended a taping of the classic game show hosted by Wayne Brady on Oct. 18 during a birthday trip to Las Vegas.

The show in which she made it on stage to compete for prizes originally aired a few weeks later.

Wilson dressed as a birthday witch, while her friend, 2000 HHS grad Amy Packer, dressed as a devil. Wilson's father, Keith Ingersoll, also a Homedale resident, donned an Elvis costume.

HTAA hosts luau dinner and auction later this month

The Homedale Trojan Athletic Association plans a Hawaiian Luau-themed dinner and auction in the Homedale City Park, Saturday, Aug. 28 at 6:30 p.m.

The organization hopes to raise money toward its 2010-11 school year goal of $20,000 to help the non-profit group pay for the school district's athletic transportation costs for the year.

The luau will feature a roasted pig prepared by H & M Meats in Nampa. Dinner will also include baked potatoes, corn on the cob, salad, rolls and pineapple. Luau events include both live and silent auctions, dunk tank, raffle items and door prizes.

Advance tickets are $10 for adults and children in grades seven and up and $8 for children in grades six and below. Tickets respectively go up to $15 and $12 if purchased at the door.

Tickets are available through Brandon DeMond, Teresa Gibson, Hair Depot on East Wyoming Avenue and Rumors hair salon on West Idaho Avenue

Businesses, groups or citizens can purchase a table of eight at a reduced rate of $70.

Volunteers and auction donations are welcome. Parents or relatives of Homedale athletes can join the HTAA at the event.

Marsing puts apartment tenants on notice about water

City services will be shut off Nov. 1 if owners don't pay past due amount

The City of Marsing has sent a letter to four tenants of an apartment complex this week explaining their water will be shut off Nov. 1 because the landlords have not paid the overdue service amount on the property.

“At this point with no representation, I ask the council to approve the letter,” Mayor Keith Green said. “On the date of Nov. 1, we will shut off the water. I think that we should stay with what the ordinance says and turn the buildings off.”

The letter, which is being sent to the tenants of the apartments owned by Les and Terri Danner, located at 999 and 997 Main Street, have been given a 90-day notice about their water being shut off. The Danners have been delinquent in their payments on the apartment complex and owe the city $4,504.19.

The letter acknowledges the fact that this is a difficult situation for the renters, but cites the owners are out of compliance and, therefore, water will be shut off.

Letter to tenants mailed Aug. 12:

“July 28, 2010”
“Per Marsing City ordinance, all property owners are required to pay for water connections for City water services, including apartments that are vacant yet connected to the City water. The owner of your apartment buildings, Les and Terri Danner, fall within this requirement; however, they have neglected to pay the required water connection fees. As such they are in default. The City has tried working with them; however, things have not worked out to the satisfaction of the city... This is approximately ninety (90) days from today's date. We realize this puts you in a difficult position. However, the City is required to terminate service to the property when connection fee payments are outstanding.”

Currently everyone who has a water meter in the City of Marsing pays a flat fee of $67.82 per month to be hooked into city water and sewer. This fee is collected regardless if the water is turned on or off the money received goes toward upkeep and maintenance of the water and sewer systems in the town.

“I know that the water is ultimately the responsibility of the owner.” Les Danner said. “I’m not in a position right now to make the payments for the water and the mortgages. As a result of this, the properties are going into default. The solution is to get renters in there. We had talked with the city of Marsing, and I thought we decided the best thing for both of us, was to let the water stay on for those who are in there.”

During the July meeting the Danners spoke with the council to try and remedy the situation and come up with a payment solution.

The proposed solution from the Danners was to pay off one unit at a time as they became rented. Later the Danners decided that this wasn't feasible for them.

“They asked to pay off one apartment at a time. But then in the end decided not to commit to paying anything,” Green said. “I’ve had enough of this, and wish to proceed with approval from the council to send the letter. Right now the city is subsidizing their business, and I don’t want to do that.”

The Danners were placed on the agenda for Wednesday’s meeting and failed to attend and speak with the council. Danner said that he failed to attend the meeting because of an issue that required him to travel to Reno, Nev.

“I just feel that it is a monopoly,” Danner said. “I don’t know how they can charge for a service that I’m not using. When they shut off the service and it isn’t being used, I shouldn’t be charged for it.”

During discussion about the apartments Green suggested when the new meters go in citywide the apartment complex have their meters changed out. They would replace the eight individual meters located at the complex with one single meter for each building. The charges for a 2-inch meter run $184.39 while a 3-inch meter runs $396.97 per month in service fees.

“This is basically a one-owner facility. We need to go in and pull out the individual meters and put in a single meter,” Green said. “The base rate they will pay is on one meter. We don’t care how many tenants you have. The bill will go to the property owner and not the tenants, just like everyone else in town.”

City Engineer Amy Woodruff explained to the council that the units would need to have their flow rate checked in order to determine what size of meter would be placed.

The council discussed the options between using a two-inch and a three-inch meter for service of the buildings.

“The base rate is quite a bit different between the two-inch and three-inch,” Woodruff said. “We really want to make sure we size that right, so that we aren’t charging them more than what they need. It would be a great opportunity to clean this up and take care of it once and for all.”

Library district panel meets Saturday

History essay contest deadline moved to Nov. 1

At least six Homedale-area residents have signed on to serve on a library taxing district exploratory committee.

The panel and Homedale Public Library officials will convene the first meeting at 9 a.m. Saturday at the library, 125 W. Owyhee Ave.

All but one of the community members who have come forward live outside the city limits. The group includes Robin Aberasturi, Pauline Cook and April Whitworth, who live west of town; Kristina Culver, who lives in what would be the Canyon County portion of any district; city resident Pete Austin; and Thomas Macleod, who lives southwest of the city limits.

Library director Margaret Fujishin discussed the committee during Wednesday’s Homedale City Council meeting. She invited interested community members to attend Saturday’s meeting.

“I think that’s a great move,” Councilman Tim Downing said of the new committee.

As the request of the library board, the council voted unanimously to let the board explore other investment tools for the nearly $170,000 it now has in the state investment pool. Fujishin said moving the money from the state investment pool into a bank account could yield more interest as well as create a safer environment for the funds.

Fujishin said a two-year certificate of deposit is available at 0.7 percent annual yield, about three times the return of the state investment pool.

Another element of Fujishin’s presentation to the council resulted in moving the deadline for History of Homedale essay submissions back to Nov. 1.

The original due date had been set at Sept. 1, but the library board voiced concern that not enough entries would be received by then.

County adopts new comp plan

County commissioners formalized adoption of the revised Owyhee County Comprehensive Land Use Plan at last week’s meeting.

The Board of County Commissioners voted to adopt the comp plan at its Aug. 3 meeting, but sealed the decision with a resolution on Aug. 9.

The next step is tweaking zoning ordinances to conform with the vision of the new comp plan.

Changes to courthouse walk

Commissioners approved a $500 change order to the project to make the entrance to the county courthouse Americans with Disabilities Act compliant.

Pavingstones LLC requested the change order because a wider wheelchair ramp was required to meet ADA standards. The price tag rose to $15,530.

Hand rails now must be added to the new access. Commissioners discovered that the railing was not part of the original bid. No price was discussed.

“I’ve had people say it’s time we got it done, and they’re glad they did it,” District 3 Commissioner Dick Freund (R-Murphy) said.

County replaces aging machine

Commissioners approved $13,000 to buy a Centormail postage machine from Allied Business Solutions in Boise. The cost will be split between the fiscal year 2010 and FY 2011 budgets, according to County Treasurer Brenda Richards.

She said the price — $2,900 less than ABS’ original quote — includes a five-year warranty and protection against postal rate increases. ABS will update the computer chip that regulates postage for free if rates go up during the term of the warranty.

The machine replaces a model bought in 1999.

Richards named officer with state treasurers group

Brenda Richards, who will run unopposed Nov. 2 for another term as Owyhee County treasurer, won another election earlier this month.

With her appointment as treasurer for the Idaho Association of County Treasurers, the Reynolds Creek resident is now in line to become the organization’s president in three years.

“It is an honor to be voted in as an officer by my fellow Treasurers as an officer of the Idaho Association of County Treasurers, and I look forward to serving,” Richards said.

Richards, who will start another term as county treasurer in January, earned her position with the state association during an Aug. 5 election at the group’s 85th annual conference at the Hunt Lodge in McCall.

As treasurer for the state association, Richards will handle the accounting, collect dues and pay bills. Next year, she’ll move into the office of secretary, followed by the vice-president for fiscal year 2013 and finally president for FY 2014.

During the conference in McCall, Richards was recognized for completing 68 hours of training and education to achieve the status of Certified Finance Professional. The continuing professional development program includes education on county funds and budgeting, Idaho Code and investments and professional development in areas such as credibility, leadership and communication skills.

Richards was re-elected to her position as the State Tax Commission Rules Committee representative for the treasurers group, too. In that role, Richards addressed the conference on updates in the state tax code.

She also served on the association’s committee and helped present the FY 2011 budget at the conference.

Buckles on the line at Jordan Valley Jr. Rodeo

Custom-made buckles and other prizes are up for grabs Saturday in the 11th annual Jordan Valley Junior Rodeo.

The rodeo starts at 9 a.m. at the Jordan Valley Rodeo Grounds with the boot race for contestants 5 and younger.

Events throughout the day will include barrel racing, pole bending, goat tying, flag racing, calf and cow riding, breakaway roping, calf roping and team roping.

Buckles made by Tres Rios Silver go to the champion in each event — a total of 26. Eight all around buckles made by Frontier Trophy Buckles also will be awarded. Competitors also will vie for prize money and tack.

The rodeo divisions include Mini Mites (6 and younger), Pee Wees (ages 7-9), Juniors (10-13) and seniors (14-18).

Admission is $3 per person or $10 for a carload. Concessions will be available during the rodeo.

The Jordan Valley Junior Rodeo also announced it has awarded $250 scholarships to Mattie Wroten and Dusty Easterday, both of whom graduated in the spring from Jordan Valley High School.

Scrimmage rekindles grid rivalry

Huskies, Trojans meet; Rimrock starts at home

An Owyhee County rivalry gets rekindled Friday when the football teams from Homedale and Marsing high schools square off in a jamboree. The scrimmage is set for 7 p.m. at Deward Bell Stadium. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for students. All proceeds benefit the YEA. The varsity and junior varsity teams from both schools will compete. Quarters are 15 minutes long with a running clock with each offense getting the ball twice. Homedale and Marsing both have zero week games this year to kick off the season. The Trojans start the season at home at 7 p.m. on Aug. 27 with what has developed into a traditional non-conference opener against visiting Melba. The JV plays at Melba at 6:30 p.m. on Aug. 26. The Huskies open the season on the road against former 2A Western Idaho Conference foe Parma at 7 p.m. on Aug. 27. The Marsing JV plays host to Parma at 6 p.m. on Aug. 26. The Panthers moved into the 3A Snake River Valley conference with Homedale this year. The Rimrock High School football team starts its sixth season under the guidance of coach Jim Clark with a 7 p.m. game on Aug. 27 in Bruneau against visiting Garden Valley.

Other fall teams set for preseason

The county's high school sports teams warm up for their fall seasons have their sights trained on early-season action. The Homedale High School boys' and girls' soccer teams get their first taste of competition Tuesday with their respective 3A Snake River Valley conference preseason tournaments on the road. Both teams begin the conference campaign with road games on Sept. 7 in Payette. The girls play at 4:30 p.m. and the boys play at 6 p.m. The Trojans' volleyball team heads to Melba on Tuesday for a preseason jamboree. Both the varsity and junior varsity will see action. Homedale begins the season under new coach Janel Van Dyke on Aug. 26 by playing host to non-conference foe Melba. The varsity plays at 7 p.m. While Homedale has a new coach, Marsing volleyball opens another campaign with veteran coach Loma Bittick. The Huskies' first action comes Thursday in New Plymouth with a jamboree. Marsing opens the season with the Aug. 27-28 Kuna Tournament at Northwest Nazarene University in Nampa.

Herman, Mackenzie keep ICA titles home

Matteson-Badiola pair wins local roping

Owyhee country cowboys find glory in their home meet Saturday night at the Owyhee County Rodeo. Marsing's Dan Herman continued a strong rodeo season, winning the bareback bronc riding buckle with a 78-point ride in Saturday's short-go at the fairgrounds in Homedale. Sammy Mackenzie of Jordan Valley grabbed a steer wrestling championship by bringing down his animal in 4.2 seconds. Herman edged current Idaho Cowboys Association leader Eric Mader by one point in the short-go. Mackenzie for four-tenths of a second better than Caleb Ray. Jake Echevarria won the ICA tie down roping with a nine-second performance. Marsing's

Scott Roeser was second. Shawn Morehead of Bruneau finished third in the saddle bronc riding finals, scoring 75. JD Johnson took home the title with a 79-point effort. In the local rodeo, the Homedale duo of Lane Matteson and Ben Badiola edged Mikal Mackenzie and Carl Seiders for the Owyhee County team roping championship. Matteson and Badiola posted an 8.2-second run. The team of Joe Aquiso, Matt Tindall and Cooper Prow won Friday's wild horse race, while Troy Westphal and Trevor Yokum won the wild cow milking on Saturday. Jaylen Eldridge was the top mutton buster with an 80-point ride to edge Birch Eiguren by one point. Colton Hunter cruised in steer riding with a 73-point showing. Cassie Nielsen of Emmett was crowned 2010-11 fair and rodeo queen Friday night.

Marsing school assessment committee formed

A group of local patrons were selected Tuesday to plan the direction of Marsing’s school building improvements for the future. The school trustees also voted to hire a noted consultant to aid the assessment committee.

The committee will look at the building needs in the district for several months and report back to the school board in written and oral form. Based on recommendations from the administration, superintendent Dr. Richard Johnson selected Roman Usabel, Chuck Kovis, Kathy Malmberg, Sharon Larsen, Barry Larsen, James Huntley, LaDonna Gibbens, Bonnie Floyd, Mrs. Virgil Cuff, Baldimar Elizondon, Alex Silva, Kate Stancliff, Michael Marcheseni, Nancy Belknap, Ted Webb, Lavada Loucks and Ron Kiesler. The group represents parents, teachers, school board members, and may be increased through the next months.

Dr. Marvin Nottingham, Associate Professor of Education Administration at the University of Idaho, was hired as a consultant to the committee. Johnson said Nottingham has finished consulting work in Coeur d’Alene and will begin projects in the Boundary and Kootenai School Districts. The assessment committee would meet eight times under his direction and report their findings to the school board.

While the Mid High is a new structure, the board is concerned about the longevity of the high school first, then the elementary.

Bruneau writer assails non-stop Wilderness growth

A book by an Owyhee County man which condemns allowing any more wilderness in Idaho and the West is selling like sourdough hotcakes.

Jack Wayne Chappell’s “Wilderness Rape” has sold the first 5,000 copies, and the Bruneau author would like to take the book on the road to Ohio, the home state of Rep. John Seiberling (D-Ohio), the Chairman of the Interior Subcommittee on Public Lands and an acknowledged fan of wilderness.

Chappell, 33, is an Idaho native and works as a horse trainer and farrier in Bruneau. His father was a game warden and Chappell calls himself an environmentalist, but one who believes in multiple uses of the land, including ranching, which he feels is an integral part of the ecology of the land.

Chappell said 20% of the Forest Service land in the state was wilderness and the Bureau of Land Management was considering 1.7 million acres for possible recommendation in Idaho. All this land could come under authoritarian control by people who are not elected to their job and can dictate how this “privatized” property is used.

In “Wilderness Rape”, Chappell sets a fiction-non-fiction scenario of a young woman in a desert cabin telling stories of government misunderstanding into such issues as wild horses, the timber industry, grazing impacts on the rangeland, and the public’s right to have a few roads left to be able to view the wilds.

Marsing girl wins title

Angie Clapier, daughter of David and Connie Clapier of Marsing, won second runner-up for the All American Miss contest held at Long Beach, California.

She was sponsored by Morfitt’s of Marsing, Idaho First National Bank and Clapier Farms, also of Marsing, and Owyhee Dental Center of Homedale.

Over coffee

Nancy Stroebel of Joseph, Oregon, and Mr. and Mrs. Mick Richards and family, Homedale, were last Thursday visitors at the Ed Roper home, Fargo. Mike Roper, Parma, was a Sunday visitor of his father, Ed Roper.

Terry Perryman, Caldwell, was a caller last Thursday of his grandmother, Mrs. Myrtle Spellman, Fargo. Sunday callers of Mrs. Spellman were Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hall, Bob Hall, Kathy Averett and Lori, Caldwell, and Agnus Davis Neel, Fargo.

Two girls tied for Owyhee county fair queen

Rose Marie Quintana, sponsored by the Homedale PTA and Happy Go Lucky 4-H club, and Sandra Cook, sponsored by the American Legion and Auxiliary, are tied for Owyhee County Fair queen with 400 votes each.

Other girls competing in the contest are Sharon Hinton, sponsored by State Line Grange and the Homedale Royal Neighbors; Karen Bergeson, sponsored by the Beta Sigma Phi; Karen Cossel, Marsing, sponsored by the Marsing 4-H Livestock club, Marsing 4-H Tractor club, Marsing PTA, Marsing Royal Neighbors, the Marsing Chamber of Commerce and Pioneer club; Nancy Johnson, sponsored by the Homedale Jaycees; Carol Shelly, Melba, sponsored by the Wilson 4-H Beef Producers and Homemakers of Tomorrow; and JoAnn Churruca, sponsored by St. Hubert’s Altar Society.

The winning girl as well as being crowned queen of the Owyhee County Fair will receive a hope chest now on display at the Idaho Power office. The two runners-up will receive pieces of luggage.

Gabica named Owyhee County Grassman of Year

Richard Gabica has been named Owyhee County Grassman of the Year.

Gabica, a Reynolds Creek rancher, was chosen by the county’s 10-member Grassman Committee to represent the county at the five-county division competition in the fall. Division winners will then compete for the state title.

The following men were nominated for the Owyhee County title:

Gabica, Bob Gluch, Jordan Valley; Jonas Bass, Reynolds Creek; Henry Sweep, Homedale; Bill Harder and Preston Schultz, both of Grand View; Jim Kubosumi and Dave Phelps, Homedale; and Omar Stanford, Cow Creek.

They were judged on soil conservation and improvements made in the last calendar year in grassland management.

Photographs of Gabica’s operations will be displayed in the Owyhee Soil Conservation booth at the Owyhee County Fair at Homedale August 24-27.

Fire damages car Monday

Fire damaged a 1948 Pontiac about 2:30 a.m. Monday morning while it was parked in front of the business office of Dr. Russ Sayers. The owner, Cedrick Titus, lives in the basement apartment of the building.

Fire Chief John Matteson said it was supposed that cigarette ashes dropped earlier had started a fire in the upholstery of the car.

Rodeo board makes final plans for 1960 show

The Owyhee County Rodeo Board met August 10 at the city hall to make final plans for the rodeo August 25-27.

The board has been making repairs on the corrals at the fairgrounds and doing other touch up work in preparation for the three-night event.

Frank Maher and Bill Kershner will act as pick-up men during the performances. Ivan Pollard, Star, will again be the announcer and Jake Pope, producer.

Rodeo board members are Bob Basey, Walt Love, John Wright, Walt Adams, Don Carver, Bill Kershner and Barbara Love, secretary.

Homedale locals

Guests at a fish fry at the Clint Smith home Sunday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Owen Stewart and family and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Matteson and family.

The D. L. Townsend and Max Millspaugh families visited Sunday with Ralph and Everett Townsend at the Everett Townsend ranch on Flint Creek.

Mrs. Carolyn Kniefel attended a bridal shower Tuesday evening at Boise for her sister-in-law, Mary Su Kniefel, who will be married Sunday at Parma.

Sunday dinner guests at the home of Mrs. Golda Stansell were Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Stansell and family. Afternoon callers were Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Wooten, Blackfoot.

COPE POLITICS. The Nevada election takes place in November, and, already, in Mountain City, politics is up to blood heat with the prospect of reaching the boiling point. Democrats are as mad as March hares, because the Repubs have taken the wind out of their sails on the Chinese question. Among the most noted Democratic politicians in Cope, are Al Cage, from Arkansas, Cutler, from Damariscotta, Maine, and L. Fish, of Cariboo. Cutler talks by the hour, Al Cage corrects and spells him, while Fisk dashes in with a bit of burlesque every now and then. On the other side a black Republican named White, formerly of Owyhee, makes it mighty hot for that trio of played out ideas, often forcing them to acknowledge themselves Rip Van Winkles who have slept for centuries among the barbarisms of the Dark Ages.

MINING ITEMS. Last Wednesday we took a trip over War Eagle mountain, found the mines looking better than ever and everything in a prosperous condition.

The main shaft of the Golden Chariot is now 440 feet deep, showing the ledge to be larger and richer than in the levels above. There will be a greater rise in the price of Chariot stock when the extent and richness of its mineral deposits become generally known. There are now 75 men at work taking ore from the third, fourth and fifth levels. They work single handed with small sized drills, and hammers weighing from 3½ to 4 pounds. The miners are paid 65 cents per foot, measuring the depth of the holes, and in this manner experts make from $5 to $6 per day. The Chariot ore-house and shute are full of quartz that does one good to look at, and which will speak for itself in the ensuing bullion shipments from Owyhee. The ledge is from eighteen inches to four feet in width.

About 50 men are at work in the Idaho Elmore, the main shaft of which is now down 470 feet. The mine looks promising throughout and will give employment to a larger force in a few days.

Fourteen men are at work on the New York mine, taking ore from the level above the main tunnel. The vein being decomposed and the casings soft, no blasting is required. The cost of getting out the ore is said to be $5 per ton including timbering and all other expenses.

LOCAL HINTS AND HAPPENINGS. Wells Fargo & Co sent from here yesterday 8 bars of bullion, worth $15,000.

W. D. Walbridge and wife, from New York, and J. M. Wilson and wife, from San Francisco, arrived here on Thursday evening.

The Owyhee mill is turning out daily $2,500 of Golden Chariot bullion.

More quartz will be hauled to the mills this month than during any two previous months of the year.

A large amount of flour arrived in town this week.

It is rumored that the streets of Silver will be cleaned up before long.

McMahon’s Foundry has been turning out shoes and dies during the week.

The last 6 tons of the Oro Fino rock worked for the Bruce Bros, at the Cosmos mill yielded $65 per ton.

Col. Hay & Co’s arrastrar will soon be ready to run on Shookum ore.

Vegetables are plentiful and cheap in this market.

H. W. Millard, formerly of the Avalanche, has gone to Elko.

Tax-payers should step up to the Captain’s office and settle next Monday or they will be subject to additional costs.

Thanks to Wm. Hardiman, successor to Goodman & Bro., for a jug of fine old eau de vie yesterday.

Why was Miss Kate Odell like a lucky fisherman last Sunday? Because she got a good Hall.

Jos. Brooks received a large amount of goods yesterday per mule teams direct from Elko.

Bill Gabriel and Dave Picket are cutting hay in Duck Valley.

On the edge of common sense When you need a cowboy

There’s an old saying, “A mule is as good as a horse, till you need a horse.” Or, of course, the reverse!

I saw a photo in the newspaper of a man standing in the surf trying to throw a rope around the tail of a beached baby humpback whale. My first thought was, “A marine mammal biologist is as good as a cowboy, till you need a cowboy.”

How many times have you thought that yourself? “If only I had a cowboy.” Like two years ago when your cat got stuck up a tree: Sure, you called a fireman. They showed up with sirens blaring and lights flashing! Then they broke out the ladders and attempted to climb up the tree. A cowboy would simply have roped the limb, dallied and bent the limb back double. Then, with true cowboy clarity, he would have shucked the dally, released the limb and catapulted the cat into the neighbor’s stock tank where the Navy Seals could have rescued him!

Or, say you were being picketed by HSUS, PETA, and the lunatic fringe for texting non-organic messages to caged hens encouraging them to “Lay one for the team.” You realize that reasonable dialogue with moon-eyed zealots is futile, so you call a cowboy. He rides through the protesters scattering a wagonload of Hefty bags filled with chicken noodle soup, which drenches the crowd. Then he calls the dogs, which rush in and lick the whining protesters who slosh down the road with the dogs nipping at their heels.

Remember those times when the pigs got loose in the house and uprooted all your potted plants? Or when your pet camel fell through the swimming pool cover while grazing on the algae? Or when your daughter brought home a suitor with his head shaved like a soccer ball, a stolen credit card, and who was recidivist paint can sniffer? Oh, what you would have given for a cowboy.

Maybe we should start a non-profit foundation funded by the United Cowboy Way, wherein each county could maintain a couple of cowboys-on-call. They would function like a cross between a paramedic, a dogcatcher and a psychologist to handle the myriad of emergencies that cry for a man with a horse and a rope.

Think about that the next time you accidentally drop your heirloom Donald Duck lunch bucket down an abandoned missile silo or a rhino gets loose in the high school gym.

Remember, a 35-piece marching band is as good as a cowboy, till you need someone to rope a renegade tuba!

Eyes on Owyhee Selective recall

It’s ironic that Sheriff Daryl Crandall bases his claims of false statements in a recall petition on ... a false statement.

The sheriff repeatedly has used a statement from Joe Aman, publisher of The Owyhee Avalanche newspaper, as proof that he has cooperated with the media.

In his initial statement to media refuting claims in the petition signed by Jessica DeGeus, Crandall wrote:

“Another statement of the petition complains that we have not responded to requests from the media. Yet the publisher of the Avalanche, Joe Aman, printed in fact that they had requested information 54 times and had received that information within the three-day limit each time.”

That would be a good defense, if it were accurate.

In fact, what Aman wrote in a rebuttal to a letter to the editor on Page 15 of the Jan. 6, 2010 edition of The Owyhee Avalanche was:

“... reporter Michael Lane said he has faxed at least 54 public records requests to the sheriff’s office seeking information, and those requests usually have been answered within the three-day return limit as set by the Idaho State Attorney General’s Office. Names of those arrested and charges have been slower to come.”

“Each time” is a far cry from “usually”. And “answered” does not necessarily mean we received the information we sought. It simply means he responded to the requests.

But perhaps that doesn’t matter to a man for which words have little meaning.

Take, for example, the most recent public records request sent to the sheriff seeking information on the role of his office and Posse in the invasive species boat inspection sites in the county. He did respond to the request within the required three business days, asking for the allowed extension of 10 business days to reply.

“We will contact you in regards to this request prior to 8/16/2010,” the sheriff wrote in his Aug. 2 response. Crandall did not explain why he needed the extension.

There was no word received from the sheriff’s office as of Monday, which was Aug. 16. State law requires written explanation as to why a request has been denied, and the letter must cite the statute justifying the denial.

But twisting the words of the newspaper’s publisher isn’t the only instance in which Crandall looks to the Avalanche to challenge the recall petitioners’ claims.

The petition complains of “several burglaries reported in Marsing during times only an OCSO ‘supervisor’ was on call”. In his affidavit, Crandall acknowledges that Marsing experienced a string of burglaries, but appears to blame journalists for the outbreak.

“After the Avalanche put an article in the newspaper explaining when we had gaps in our coverage, we started to have the burglaries during those times when we did not have a patrolman on duty in Marsing.”

Forgetting for a moment that a journalist’s job is to keep citizens informed on things that could affect their livelihood, property, safety and lifestyle, it’s hard to imagine that the paper is a primary tool when small-time crooks scope out their next illicit job.

It is truly ironic for a man who has seemingly fought so hard to keep information from the Avalanche that he now embraces the newspaper to wage a battle to save his job.

The least he could do is quote us correctly.

Not important ... but possibly of interest Lucky dog

I had just finished mowing the back yard and was taking the mower around front. The big black dog with gold markings in his face loped across the street in front of me. I was fairly certain that the dog wasn’t from the neighborhood. But he wasn’t your normal stray either. He looked to be well-fed and cared for and he didn’t have that “I don’t know where I am and I’m scared to death” look strays usually have.

I shut off the mower. The visitor was just crossing the boundary line between our house and the neighbor’s. I called to him. He reversed course and trotted over to me.

The dog looked like he wasn’t more that two years old he probably weighed close to 100 pounds. His ancestry appeared to be a mixture of Lab and Rottweiler.

“Are you lost, boy?” I asked. He acted more like he was just on an adventure.

The dog was wearing a nylon collar with a red metal tag on it. On one side was a picture of Mickey Mouse. On the other was engraved the name “Bear” and a telephone number.

“Gladtoomeetcha, Bear,” I said, scratching his ears. “What a good boy!” He followed me into the enclosed patio, and I shut the gate so he couldn’t continue his adventure. “Let’s see if I can find somebody who knows you.”

The number on the tag obviously was for a cell phone. That concerned me a little as I know a lot of cell phone users who change companies and numbers about as often as they change clothes. I dialed the number, and someone answered — in Spanish.

About the only thing I can say in Spanish (or French) is that I can’t speak that language. So that’s what I told the person who answered. The Spanish word for dog apparently isn’t “dog” because when I used that word it didn’t seem to have any effect. Then the person hung up.

I was trying to think if I knew anyone who could translate for me when I took another look at the number on the tag. The numeral I thought was a zero appeared to be a nine. So I dialed using that number. The person who answered said “Hello.”

“Hi,” I said. “I was wondering if you might have a dog named Bear?” The woman on the other end said they did. I told her where we lived. After giving Bear a drink of water, I hooked a leash to his collar.

We went out in front of the house, and I sat down on a bench. Bear sat down beside me. He seemed to be listening carefully as I told him what a lucky dog he was. He looked like the kind of dog that is happy wherever he is. He put his head on my knee, looked up at me with what appeared to be grateful eyes — and slobbered all over the leg of my pants.

A few minutes later an older, somewhat battered pickup pulled up with a young woman driving. There also was a young man and a little boy in the cab.

The woman told me they lived about a half-mile away, on the far side of one of the busiest two-lane highways in the state. Bear was really a lucky dog to have crossed it in one piece. The woman thanked me for calling them, saying her son would have been heartbroken if the dog had vanished.

As the truck drove away, I waved to Bear and the woman who was in the back of the truck with him. The fact that I was able to get him back with his family pretty much made my day — maybe my week — maybe longer.

Keeping credit cards for rewards points is dangerous plan

Dear Dave,

I want to keep one of our credit cards open and use the bill-pay option for utilities and other monthly bills. I want to do this so we can continue earning rewards points, and the way I look at it, we'd just be re-routing the money and paying it off every month. My husband doesn't like this idea and thinks we should get rid of them all. Am I just asking for trouble by wanting to keep the rewards card open?

— Cheryl

Dear Cheryl,

Yes, you are. Life never works out exactly the way you think it will. You can make all the well-reasoned and best-intentioned plans you want, but sooner or later that snake is going to bite you.

The only thing I'd consider in a situation like this is a debit card that has a rewards system attached. Lots of debit card programs offer the same kinds of rewards programs offered by credit card companies, with one big exception — you don't have to go into debt!

You need to stop chasing these stupid brownie points. According to Consumer Reports, 78 percent of credit card airline miles are never redeemed. Studies also show that people spend more when using credit cards as opposed to cash. That extra money you spent is money you could have been saving. So, where's the reward? It's a myth. It's like trying to catch a unicorn.

Cut up the card and close the account, Cheryl. You don't build wealth by using credit cards!

—Dave

Dear Dave,

What's the best way to respond to a sibling who continually makes poor choices with money and often asks to borrow money? I don't want to be heartless, but they're out of control asking for money anytime they want. I'm currently on Baby Step 2 of your plan, and I'm six months away from being debt-free. Do you have any suggestions?

— Jen

Dear Jen,

I think you should just tell them the truth. You're trying to get out of debt, so you don't have extra money sitting around. Let this sibling know that you're working hard to change the way you handle your money. Let them know, too, that part of that is you've decided debt is dumb, so you don't borrow or loan money anymore.

Make sure you do this with a kind spirit, Jen. You could even let them know you might consider giving them some money as a gift if you had any extra lying around and you knew they were in control financially. But you're not really helping someone who's incompetent with money when you give them cash or even loan them money.

You've got to look at the big picture in situations like this. You're not helping someone if you participate in their misbehavior with them. Sometimes you have to love somebody enough to tell them the truth, and that can mean saying no and telling them to straighten up!

Levy passage will maintain district's quality education

As we approach the beginning of a new school year in Homedale, I've been reflecting on my own experience as a student here, from kindergarten through high school graduation.

Thanks to small classes, experienced teachers and a caring community, I always felt well prepared for my college and law school classes. Because of these positive feelings, when my family decided to move back to Homedale, I knew that our son would receive a well-rounded education in a supportive environment. Moving away from Portland, a city that we loved, was a big decision, but one we have never regretted. At that time, many schools in Oregon appeared to be headed toward a decline as a result of severe budget shortfalls due to property tax limitations. We were happy to leave headlines about furlough days and slashed programs behind us. Now, unfortunately, the Homedale School District has been forced to propose many of the extreme measures that were undertaken in Oregon schools several years ago.

The good news is that local voters have the opportunity to do something about it. The passage of the supplemental levy will restore six school days for students, along with badly needed textbooks, supplies and technology upgrades. All of these items are critical to ensure that our students will not only achieve proficiency on standardized tests, but also find success in college and be competitive in the job market when they leave Homedale schools.

I have faith that the Homedale community will demonstrate that legendary "Trojan Pride" and support this levy. It is a small price to pay for a very important investment in our children's future.

Please join me in voting "yes" on the Homedale School District supplemental levy, Thursday, Aug. 26, from noon to 8 p.m.

Voice of Idaho ag Environmental radicals collect $20M in hush money

Two environmental groups recently bullied a Texas energy company into donating $20 million to their cause to "save" desert sagebrush habitat by agreeing not to pursue legal action against a proposed natural gas pipeline. The pipeline is planned to cross southwest Wyoming, northern Nevada and southern Oregon.

Some praised the agreement as a breakthrough in environmental protection. We call it extortion. Our biggest fear is the money will be used to put ranch families out of business and cripple rural communities throughout the West.

In our view, the El Paso Corp., based in Houston, didn't have a clue who they were dealing with when they agreed to set up a $20 million conservation fund to be spent by the Oregon Natural Desert Association and the Western Watersheds Project (WWP). The WWP, headed by Jon Marvel of Hailey, with their oft-stated goal of ending public lands grazing, is required in the 10-year agreement to spend the money in counties and adjacent counties wherein the pipeline will run for the first five years. After that they can spend the money wherever they want.

However ham-fisted the agreement may seem, for the El Paso Corp. it's a business decision. Caring more about being tied up in court than the ranch families who earn a living in the region, or the rural communities they support, El Paso's suits are betting it will cost less to hand over the cash now than to be tied up in a lengthy court battle. What they didn't foresee is other environmental groups jumping into the fray.

Shortly after the agreement was announced, the enlightened Center for Biological Diversity, another Oregon green group, smelled the gravy and petitioned federal regulators to withdraw permits for the Ruby Natural Gas Pipeline. They claim the project could harm two species of suckers, the Colorado pikeminnow and Lahontan cutthroat trout.

At this point, it looks like El Paso will have to pony up another $20 million or so for fish protection if they want to stay out of court. Who's next is anybody's guess. If the folks down in Houston aren't yet wondering what got them into this dim-witted predicament, it's probably time to start asking some questions in the boardroom.

Negotiating with environmental groups is rarely, in fact almost never, a good idea. They have nothing to lose and everything to gain. Almost across the board they lack integrity. They don't live up to the agreements they make, yet they expect everyone else to. Marvel is a prime example of this with his recent grazing lease fiasco in Custer County and countless other incidents.

El Paso Corp. and its investors are learning this the hard way, but they should have known better than to negotiate with entities that bring nothing to the table except the threat of a lawsuit.

— Frank Priestley is Idaho Farm Bureau president.

The Board of County Commissioners passed Resolution 20-10 at its Aug. 9 meeting in Murphy denouncing the agreement between El Paso Corp. and environmental groups including Western Watersheds Project and the Oregon Natural Desert Association. The resolution, and others like it, was to be presented to El Paso officials by a representative of Elko County during a meeting last week in Salt Lake City.
