

Council member Aron Streibel listens during Sheriff Daryl Crandall's presentation to the Marsing City Council last week.

Marsing Council to vote on OCSO pact

City seeks commitment on three items, see Page 5

The Marsing City Council held a special meeting Wednesday night to review the proposed contract from the Owyhee County Sheriff's Office for patrol responsibilities in the town. After hearing more public comment, the council will vote on the contract at its regular meeting tonight at 7 at City Hall, 425 Main St.

The annual contract with OCSO for 228 hours of patrol coverage each 28-day work period currently costs taxpayers $76,385. (The agreement between the city and the county has been in effect since 1974.) The new contract would start Oct. 1 and terminate Sept. 30, 2011.

Sheriff Daryl Crandall said he would like to see the contract changed from a yearly commitment from the city to a bi-annual pact or even a three-year contract.

"We feel you are getting a pretty good value for the dollar," Crandall said. "As you know we are short on money. We still put in more hours than is called for in the contract. We are putting in school hours in the programs. And we are working hard to make Marsing a safe place to live and a good place to raise children."

"As far as the contract goes, the only thing I would like to see changed instead of a yearly I would like to see it moved to a bi-annual or a three-year contract," Crandall said. "We have people's jobs that hang in the balance. It would be nice to know prior to budget time whether we are going to have this income."

Mayor Keith Green interjected stating:

"The city can't actually enter into long term contracts. We can sign a long-term contract, but they are still approved every year."

Marsing City Attorney Stephanie J. Bonney informed the council and Crandall that every contract is subject to annual appropriations review. Entering into a long-term contract isn't really possible, she said.

Before the council took time to ask questions of the sheriff Green opened the meeting for public comment.

Marsing resident Tom Johnson, a retired law enforcement officer from Oregon went back and forth with the sheriff on traffic control. Green at the end of the spat informed the public that they are allowed one question and "there would be no rebuttals or arguing".

"I have a real problem with the traffic in this town," Johnson said. "We have two deputies that don't work traffic the way it should be worked. I don't see a lot of proactive law enforcement going on. You could sit right out here in the morning and if you can't write a book of speeding tickets from 6 a.m. to noon you are blind as a bat."

"We have two deputies that don't work traffic the way it should be worked. I don't see a lot of proactive law enforcement going on."

Marsing Resident

"Would you like us to ask for state police assistance on traffic control?" Crandall asked Johnson.

"No I would like your deputies to do their jobs," Johnson said.

"I have one deputy," Crandall said.

"Then that deputy needs to do their job and do it a whole lot better. You are sitting here asking for this money and not showing us anything," Johnson said.

According to the contract terms between Marsing and OCSO:

"The County, through its designated representative, hereby agrees in good faith to provide to the best of its ability and based upon available resources, up to four Deputy Sheriffs to provide for the police and law enforcement needs in and around The City."

selected for the eight-month fellowship and the only one from Owyhee County. After graduating from Boise State with a degree in psychology in 2001, she was offered a job with the library.

"There is a really good mix of libraries," Streibel said. "There are two from the Boise area and some from eastern Idaho. They range from small like ours to some of the biggest in the state."

The fellows began with a webinar in July where they were introduced to the program. Streibel will travel to Portland for a three-day conference this month where she will pair up with similar libraries to collaborate their information.

"The baby boomers are heading toward a different future. They are calling it the second middle age," Streibel said. "The fellowship is about how we can improve our programming and help the baby boomers. We want to find ways for them to stay involved after retiring, maybe even a second career."

Streibel will log about 10 to 20 hours a month researching creative ways to transform the library environment into a center for lifelong education for the boomers. Currently the library doesn't offer any "programs geared for adults" in the community, she said.

"My goal is really to make the library vibrant and interactive and a resource for all needs and abilities," Streibel said.

"We don't have any adult programming. We had a book club last winter, and that is it. This is one of the biggest reasons we wanted to be involved in the program."

see in the library. The program is focused on the individual needs of the libraries participating.

"When we are done, we will send the information out to similar communities like Marsing, to help them start their programs. This will allow them an easier transition into starting a similar program," she said.

Streibel hopes that the efforts of all the fellowship candidates help to bring creative and influential programs to not just Marsing.

When the Idaho Commission of Libraries sent out the information for the fellowship, Streibel said it was a "pretty exciting" program to get involved with. The library board had to submit a letter declaring its support for Streibel and its commitment in allowing her the time needed for research.

"The board is really excited about the program," Streibel said. "I think they were a little shocked to realize most of them fall into the target of the program."

Streibel said the community will play a vital role in the program's development. She said that they don't want to duplicate what other groups in the area are doing but be "unique" in their application.

"I'm really excited. I think this will be very beneficial for the library," Streibel said.

"We want to have a larger presence in the community. We want the library to be more than just a place to check out books. This program will help us for all ages not just the baby boomers."

According to testimony at the last council meeting, absorbing the Ross field into the Sundance complex would provide additional space for about 200 cars and lessen the congestion on streets around the park during large events.

The city would invest as much as $68,000 to buy the land and turn it into a graveled lot with an access road, according to numbers discussed at the meeting.

Schools

The contract stipulates, "To the extent possible, 60 to 80 of those (monthly) hours shall be spent at schools within the city limits". As per the contract the sheriff is to coordinate school duties with the school district.

According to the Sheriff's PowerPoint presentation, deputies spent a total of 348 hours within the schools located in the city. These hours are based from January 2010 through the end of August.

"As far as the schools go," Crandall said. "I spoke with Hopes Door, they want to come in and do some dating violence programs. Alive at 25 is a drivers education program, we go in and teach it at the schools. Every15 Minutes is another program that we have been involved in but not sure if it will be run this year."

Green asked superintendent Newell Cleaver to comment on the representation the school district would like to see.

"Most of you are aware I am new to the community, so I am kind of reluctant to give my evaluation," Cleaver said. "First off, it has been refreshing that even though resources are limited that we are able to contact (sheriff's Deputy Jeff Wasson). He has been extremely cooperative and responsive. The school's perspective is, 'Can we get a hold of them immediately, are they responsive and are they visible for our activities?' To this point, generally speaking, yes. But I am leery of the fact that there might be a time where they won't be physically able to respond to the needs of the schools."

Cleaver said that it would be ideal for the three schools in Marsing to have a full-time School Resource Officer that is present on campus.

"If you have someone in the schools all the time that knows the kids, you cut down on a lot of the crime in the community, for vote at tonight's meeting

The Marsing City Council will hold its regular meeting at 7 p.m. today at City Hall, 425 Main St.

The agenda will include the monthly law enforcement report from the Owyhee County Sheriff's Office. A resolution regarding "Fair Housing" will be discussed along with a public comment session.

There will be updates on the water project and CTE grant construction.

Local apartment owners Les and Terri Danner will speak with the council regarding their delinquent water service account. The council will review a special use permit for landowner Ron Lamkey along with an ordinance for Idaho Power.

The approval of the contract between OCSO and the city will be voted upon along with the contract for the prosecutor for fiscal year 2011.

Green said.

In 2004 the D.A.R.E program was removed from the district and the officers that facilitated the program were removed from the schools.

"Although the program was ended and the school stopped putting money into the program and the sheriff's office quit putting an officer there," Green said. "The city still paid one-third of the money since 2004 for the officer in the schools. We haven't had the presence in the school. If you take off the one-third which is around $22,000 that we are paying for an officer to be in the schools, that is a lot."

Crandall said that in the past many deputies would stop and eat lunch with the students and have a presence when they were available to make it to the schools.

"If you are looking at the 116 hours in January, that is almost 50 percent of the hours in Marsing," Crandall said. "I would venture to guess at sporting events. I know that many of the officers eat at the schools a couple of times a week. Those hours probably weren't separated out of the hours in previous years."

Green asked for clarity in the monthly reports the city council receives. The mayor wants reports that break down the actual hours deputies are spending in the schools and what they are doing.

"The hours that I was presented here from your office are totally different than what was turned in," Green said. "We have never had a month with 116 hours that has been turned into us. I thought that our representative had all the hours that were turned in."

After Crandall learned from Wasson that the council reports are generated in Murphy, the sheriff said:

"Before I came into office, they were putting down just the hours (spent) in the fire district. Because this came up as a point of contention in January, we put down how many hours they were in the city and schools," Crandall said. "One thing Toni (Wunsch) wasn't doing and that she didn't understand until yesterday, (was) the hours in the school and the hours in the city are one in the same."

Council member Aron Streibel, a former OCSO deputy, explained later in the meeting about the work hours recorded in Marsing during the previous sheriff's administration:

"I have to dispute that because I worked this end of the county. I'm not sure where that came from if it was something written down. This wasn't the case. We only counted the hours within the city limits of Marsing. I worked here and I know what I put down."

Overall, the council asked that a commitment be made that deputies will be present in the schools and be available for the district to contact. The council encouraged a program be started that allows for barring the world coming apart, they should be there," Crandall said.

Infractions

The council brought up citizens concerns about the lack of speed limit enforcement in town. Green reported that between 2008 and 2009 the revenue generated through the courts for infractions was $12,384. This revenue is used to supplement the city's contract with OCSO, he said.

"In 2009-2010 we are down to $4,700 from the court system," Green said. "This is the one thing that people are asking. We would like you to address the citation revenue."

Streibel said he would like to see better traffic enforcement within the city.

"I understand the hurdles you are up against," Streibel said. "Nothing against city council, but I think I understand a little better having worked here. I know there are only so many hours in a day and so many miles you can travel. However, being a representative of the city, we have a responsibility for their safety and how we spend their money."

Streibel said his biggest concern was traffic and the number of citations being issued when there are numerous people commenting to the council on the "noticeable differences" with patrol.

"I recall a city council meeting several months ago where we were told there was more of a focus on education as opposed to writing tickets," Streibel said. "In my opinion, the only way to educate them is to write tickets."

Council member James Ferdinand brought up the radar board and the complaints that businesses had after watching it. He said they would watch the speed in a 25 mph zone, and the board would read "45...50...65".

"The solution to the traffic problem, I have a great working relationship with the state police," Crandall said. "If you would like me to call for some troopers to come in the morning. I would be more than happy to ask them to Homedale Ambulance administrator Lisa Rittenhouse, who recently marked 11 years working with the volunteer responders, said this will be a vital tool in helping diagnose and detect potential problems in emergency crews and patients.

"The benefit to the community is great," Rittenhouse said. "One year we had a situation with eight patients at a house. The call came in, and we were dispatched for an unknown problem. When we got there one in the patients and allows for the EMTs to know the current levels in the body.

According to the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA), normal CO levels for a non-smoker should be in a range of zero-to-five percent. Those who smoke can range anywhere from five-to-10 percent. Any reading between 10-15 percent requires use of oxygen and transport to a hospital. Readings over 25 percent, patients are sent to a hospital with a hyperbaric chamber for treatment.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) lists that CO poisoning symptoms can be confused with flu symptoms, food poisoning and other illnesses. Some symptoms include shortness of breath, nausea, dizziness, light-headedness and headaches. High levels of CO can be fatal, causing death within minutes.

"This will be a big help to us if we have a large working fire," Rittenhouse said. "After so many minutes in the fire, the firefighters come out and have their blood pressure checked and pulse rate taken. The new tool allows us to check their CO levels. It is

Gem among irrigation districts seeking board members

Three more Owyhee County irrigation districts have opened nominations for Nov. 2 board of directors elections.

All nomination petitions must be received by the respective district secretaries by Sept. 23. If only one nominee files for each available position, no election will be held.

Gem

In the Gem Irrigation District, which serves Homedale and Marsing, the three-year term of Division 3 director Dennis Turner of Homedale ends Dec. 31. Nomination forms can be obtained and returned to district secretary Connie Chadez, 1118 W. 1st St. S., Homedale, ID 83628. All Gem District directors also serve on the South Board of Control. Call 337-3760 for more information.

Bret Nielsen, the current Ridgeview Irrigation District representative on the South Board, is up for re-election in December. His term expires on Dec. 31. Nominations will be taken and ballots mailed to eligible electors in the Ridgeview district in Oregon in December.

Homedale High graduate reappointed to st

Belknap-Brinegar's personal experience is a driving force in job with developmental disabilities board

Toni Belknap-Brinegar, a 1993 graduate of Homedale High, was recently reappointed by Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter to her second term on the 28-member Idaho Council on Developmental Disabilities, but her winding path to get there began years ago in Tacoma, Wash.

About 10 years ago, Belknap-Brinegar gave birth to her oldest son, Antahn. To his parents' surprise, Antahn was struggling at birth and finally doctors isolated a hemorrhage in the left frontal area of his brain. As a result, they surgically relieved the pressure on his brain. She said they had to be patient and "wait and see if it worked." Twenty-six days later, they went home from the hospital.

"It was a shock at first, but it was so good for me," she said.

Today, Antahn is a vibrant, smiling 10-year-old boy with cerebral palsy, and Belknap-Brinegar is a proud parent who has been changed by her experiences.

Once home from the hospital, she had to figure out how to navigate the myriad of services her son would need to assist in his development physically, mentally and socially. A service coordinator working with her family recognized Belknap-Brinegar's gifts and pointed them out.

"One day, she looked at me and said, 'You don't really need me — you're so good at it that you should do this,'" Belknap-Brinegar said.

With a Bachelor's in Psychology from the University of Puget Sound, Belknap-Brinegar had been working with at-risk kids in Tacoma. In hindsight, she sees it as an opportunity that gave her experience advocating for those who need a voice.

Now living in Nampa, she is employed as a service coordinator for Advanced Services. In her position, she advocates for and refers services to those who have disabilities.

"Advocacy comes naturally to me, because if a person deserves or needs something, they should be given that chance and sometimes helped to get it," she said.

The present movement of disability advocacy is something Belknap-Brinegar compared to the civil rights movement of the 1960s.

"There is a need to raise awareness of disabilities and the rights of those with them," she said.

This is where her advocacy shifts from her role as mother and service coordinator to the state policy level.

"In eight years, my son will be 18," she adds, "It is my goal to help people see that those with a disability are not broken, weird or strange — they are just people."

Her first term on the Council for Developmental Disabilities began in 2007. Serving the three-year term, she learned much and began to see the changes that she could help advocate at a policy level in the state.

"We are the only council in Idaho that focuses on cognitive impairments," she said.

A primary task of the council is making a five-year plan that guides the ongoing work of the council's director and staff.

Belknap-Brinegar started her first term in the middle of the current plan and saw how it was implemented. The council's next five-year plan is due in 2011.

"I'm excited about it, and that is why I reapplied to be on the council," she added. "It gives me a chance to be a part of the process of setting priorities for the next five years."

Belknap-Brinegar is the daughter of Steve and Nancy Belknap of Homedale. She describes her family advocacy as "teaching families about their rights and services available to them."

"Teaching runs in my family," she said. Her grandmother was a longtime teacher in Homedale. Her father is a teacher in Parma and her mother is a teacher in Marsing.

Education is part of the council's plan. They are promoting Idaho's first statewide conference for people with disabilities to be held at Boise's Hilton Garden Inn on Oct. 21-23. Belknap-Brinegar points out that the conference is not just for people with disabilities. It includes many presenters with disabilities. Conference sessions will be presented on self-advocacy from their perspective.

Entertainment at the conference is being provided by Flame. They are "a group from New York that is made up of 11 people with developmental/physical disabilities, including autism, Down's syndrome, mental retardation and blindness," according to their Web site, "They are a phenomenon that inspires a play.

About 90 percent of the time, the former high school and college teammates nailed the scenario and either Benny Mello or Emilio Cuellar or Trey Corta or Calvin Black nailed the ballcarrier.

"Coach Johnson and I, we're diehard football guys," Holtry, the second-year HHS coach, said. "We've got big dreams of doing big things with this program.

"And the only way to get that done is to pay attention to details, and the only way you get details is to watch film over and over and over again."

With head coach Holtry and offensive coordinator Johnson barking out possible plays, Nampa Christian had little chance to get started against Homedale at Deward Bell Stadium.

Homedale posted a 50-point score for the second time in as Junior quarterback Trey Corta fires a pass downfield to Zac Lowder. The 31-yard pass was part of a two-play, 39-second drive. Corta gave Homedale a 28-0 lead on the next play, a 29-yard run to the end zone.

many weeks, trouncing their 2A non-conference foes, 58-21.

Homedale moved to 2-0 heading into Friday's road opener against 2009 3A Oregon state semifinalist Vale, Ore. Kickoff is 7 p.m.

Holtry said he didn't know much about Vale because the Vikings were only starting their season Friday night (they beat La Grande, 33-7). But rest assured if the La Grande coach comes through, Johnson and Holtry will be plopped down in front of the television, clickers in hand, notepads at the ready.

"We spend probably four to six hours on Saturday and then on our own, Coach Johnson and I will probably spend another six to 10 on Sunday preparing," Holtry said of a typical preparation routine. "And we like hanging out, too, so it makes it better."

Holtry and Johnson, who began their relationship playing at Vallivue High School before moving on to McPherson College in Kansas, weren't the only brainiacs on Valley conference player on offense and defense as a sophomore, Corta averaged 20.3 yards per carry (264 yards on 13 totes) and also completed five of eight passes of 90 yards and a touchdown.

"I just want to thank my line, too. That's the first thing I want to do," Corta said. "They were blocking extremely well. They weren't giving up on any plays."

With Corta at the helm, the Homedale offense rolled up 488 yards. Cuellar, a senior who rushed for three TDs in the 55-0 season-opening lambasting of Melba, picked up two more scores against Nampa Christian and finished with 95 yards on 14 attempts.

The defense scored again, too. This time it was a safety as Danny Magdaleno forced Nampa Christian punter Tyler Rogers to the back of the end zone after a poor

Marsing drops home opener to Valley Friday night

The Marsing High School football team was defeated in its first home game of the 2A Western Idaho Conference against Valley High School 15-3; this takes their record to 0-2 on the season.

The Huskies started strong with a first quarter interception made by senior Nathan Danner, which resulted in a field goal. Danner finished the night with 24 rushing yards on seven carries.

Jesus Lino, a sophomore racked up one interception along with 72 rushing yards on 16 carries.

"Jesus had a hell of a game," Marsing coach Jaime Wood said. "He is a sophomore, he cuts here and cuts there. He reads the blocks and runs well. Being smaller he isn't going to take the beating like the other guys do."

Earlier this week starting quarterback, Chanze Raffaell was dropped from the game due to academic ineligibility. His transcripts that were received from the Las Vegas area high school he transferred from showed due to absences his grade point average didn't meet Idaho High School Activities Association standards.

"Chanze is appealing the attendance issue," Wood said.

"When it comes back they will have to OK it through the IHSAA and go that way. If he doesn't get eligible I will probably start freshman Austin Williams."

Austin Glenn, a junior, took over the starting quarterback slot for Raffaell. He completed five of 13 attempts on the night and rushed for 26 on 12 attempts.

"Not having Chanze at QB is killing us Austin fills the gaps and can take both sides of the ball. He

"Our serving was much better against McCall, we only had six service errors," Bittick said. "Our passing was much better, and our setter was able to get to the ball quicker."

Badgers bounce Adrian with third-quarter TDs

A two-man crew sent Adrian High School to a season-opening football loss Friday.

Powder Valley quarterback Trenton Dixon played a hand in two pivotal third-quarter touchdowns as the host Badgers posted a 42-32 1A eight-man non-league victory.

Dixon finished with five touchdowns in North Powder, Ore. Teammate Brenton Reed got the Badgers rolling with a 70-yard scoring jaunt in the opening minutes.

Adrian (0-1 overall) never led, but tied the game twice in the first quarter. Senior Jeremy Price rushed 65 yards for the Antelopes' first touchdown of the season and an 8-8 tie before Blake Purnell ran 40 yards to tie the game again 14-14.

In between, though, Dixon roared 85 yards with a kickoff return for a TD.

Dixon finished with 207 yards rushing, and Reed had 106 yards on just four carries. A third player, Colton Eubanks, romped for 97 yards for Powder Valley.

Purnell and Price scored two touchdowns apiece. Purnell scored on a 54-yard run to pull Adrian to within two points, 22-20, in the second quarter. He also threw a 37-yard TD scoring pass to Paxton Shira in the fourth quarter. Purnell collected 102 yards on the ground and was 7-for-11 for 147 yards through the air.

Price ended the scoring with a 30-yard run in the final period. He had 229 yards rushing on 20 carries.

Adrian lost despite outgaining the Badgers in total offense, 510-464. Powder Valley forced two Antelopes fumbles.

Fish and Game plants trout in Island Park pond in Marsing

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game stocked 500 catchable-sized rainbow trout in the Marsing Pond at Island Park on Aug. 30.

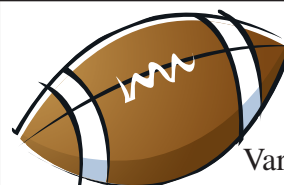

The hatchery fish from Fish and Game's facilities in Nampa and McCall were part of 26,000 released as part of September stocking operations in the Southwest Region.

Marsing Pond is the only Owyhee County location listed on the region's planting schedule.

Mustangs open volleyball slate

Jordan Valley High School's half-dozen volleyball players finally saw some competition Friday in Halfway, Ore.

And second-year coach Chris Elsner found some bright spots.

"I thought we played well as a team," Elsner said. "We served well and had some good volleys that I thought were good since we have no one to play against in practice."

The Mustangs beat Pine Eagle's junior varsity, 25-13, before losing three varsity sets, 26-24, 25-19 and 25-16.

Elsner tabbed junior Meagan Fillmore as the team's top server, and said Christina Rogers, another junior, also had a good night from the line. Fillmore had her team's only block.

Fillmore recorded four kills and Shelly Payne added three. Jessi Carson paced the team in athlete," Holtry said. "They only come along once in a lifetime, and you've got to take advantage of them when you can."

Two plays later from his own 22, Cuellar sacked Campbell and the drive stalled on fourth down and 10 with an incomplete pass.

Nampa Christian was on the move again with its first possession of the second quarter, getting down to the Homedale 20 when Rogers wrestled the ball away from Zac Lowder for a 35-yard completion. But Homedale's defense buckled down and survived the next four downs with two incompletions and giving up only two yards.

May racked up 139 yards on 15 carries. His 68-yard dive in the third quarter ended at the Homedale 12 when Corta made another TD-saving tackle. Two plays later, though, May took a nine-yard shuttle pass from Cheney and found the end zone.

It didn't take long for Corta to strike back, though. Stepping over Holton midway through a

Marsing High School football lights get realignment from Idaho Power

The lights at the football field in Marsing received some much needed attention from Idaho Power and RCI Electric. The crews worked on the 80-foot poles late into the evening last Aug. 31.

Shawn Kendall and Scott Schledewitz from Idaho Power along with Berry Kendall from RCI Electric adjusted 28 lights to remove dark areas of the field.

"I would bet that these guys (Idaho Power) are saving us about $1,500 to $2,000," Berry Kendall said.

The Idaho Power crew worked from an aerial bucket truck positioning and aiming the lights while Kendall and Huskies coaches Jaime Wood and Jim Briggs evaluated the positioning on the field.

The high school has eight more lights on order to replace some of the older lighting at the field. Kendall said it would be "a little while" before the new lights could be put up.

Briggs said that the addition of the new lights would be completed through donations from organizations in the community.

15 percent of your income over the years!

Having options is a great thing. Think about all the things you could do down the road if you save for retirement and have your pension in place. You could pay cash for a home, or even open your income into Roth IRAs and other pre-tax retirement plans. It's going to be pretty cool!

Dear Dave,

When is it OK to buy toys for the lake — things like boats and Baby Steps. And remember, no matter how shiny and cool it may look, buying a Sea-Doo is not an emergency! Save up and pay cash for your toys.

Remember this rule of thumb when it comes to toys. With the rare exception of collectibles,

Find different source to pay for Sundance parking lot

We have concerns about Sundance Park. Especially how the citizens of Homedale, who paid 100 percent for the original land purchase and who continue to pay 100 percent for the park's upkeep, are prevented, due to the gate being locked, from having access to the park for activities such as walking, jogging, a spontaneous family or church softball game and maybe even a Sunday picnic.

During the recent City Council meeting (Aug. 26) it was revealed that our city now wants to spend what may eventually amount to well over $70,000 additional dollars of taxpayers' money to purchase and develop more land for parking.

When we attempted to discuss the concerns we have, our mayor decided that what we had to say did not fit with the spend-the-taxpayers-money agenda and conveniently imposed the three-minute speaking rule on us while allowing others to talk at length and will in regard to spending our money based totally on speculation and hearsay.

We support the parking facility if it's found to be necessary based on input from the community, sound factual and financial research and meets the requirements of our Planning and Zoning Ordinance.

Without doubt Sundance Park is a wonderful asset to Homedale and we urge the mayor and city council to start looking for alternative ways to finance this plan rather than taking the money from the general fund and soaking all of us for a park that, as of now, all of our citizens are not freely allowed to use.

Using Arizona sheriff's idea could shave prison costs

Penal institutions are for punishment. The question is, for whom, the taxpayer or the perpetrators of crime?

I heard recently the cost to keep a prisoner in California was $47,000 per year or $129 per day. A few years ago, I heard the State of Idaho paid $35,000 or $96 per day to outsource a prisoner. The astronomical costs, essentially sending a cost each year for his incarceration, is a wonder.

It is evident something and reform of this old system. Imagine the anger everything possible $20,000 or $25,000 per year this bloated budget.

Action is required, will be hard-pressed to turn the plate and do what is down significantly.

Maybe we should see Arpaio, sheriff of Maricopa County, cost-effective, and in deeds rather than panhandling to make sure a release is a notable goal for the future.

✓ Disconnect: Sundance Park parking lot plan latest in spending spree mayor figures it will save the city from paying a higher rate to a lending institution, even though it's only a fraction of what the city needs to borrow.

But, as stated, Wilson isn't alone in the free-spending spirit.

As families tighten belts to make ends meet in the face of lower wages and unemployment, council members have shown a lack of awareness that rivals their big brothers in Washington, D.C.

The council signed off on pay raises for nearly all city employees — 5.24 percent for the maintenance crew, 5.97 percent for City Hall staff, three percent for department heads and library staff and a whopping 29.53 percent increase in the police department payroll.

The spike in the PD salary line includes $25,000 to pay reserve officers while Chief Jeff Eidemiller is deployed to Iraq. Without that, the pay hike is 8.63 percent, including a temporary increase for Sgt. Mike McFetridge as he fills in as chief. (Eidemiller's new salary doesn't go on the books until FY 2012 after he returns from active duty).

And, lest anyone forgets, police officers received a 7.3 percent mid-year pay hike — with Wilson casting the tiebreaking vote — in April 2009.

The overall city payroll will increase 2.79 percent in FY 2011.

And then there's the latest caper that Wilson has cooked up, under the guise of helping promote commerce. He proposes spending approximately $68,000 ($35,000 for the land and $33,000 for improvements) of taxpayers' money to turn more than three acres into a parking lot for Sundance Park.

Again, Wilson's tone deafness is showing. He doesn't have the money to spend, and how logical would it be to spend public money on a park that is tied up for most of the year in a lease with a private corporation?

Ordinary citizens — also referred to as taxpayers in more considerate circles than city council meetings — are prevented from using the land for a $5 annual lease with a private corporation.

Wilson says the money will be used for economic development. $60,000 each year for the land that's the same $60,000 fund from which the city pays for private discussions have been had (and any amount over that goes to the city to that). The line item for funds for any grants is $15,000.

According to Wilson, the city will spend $15,000 as a down payment and then pay the balance of the land. The improvement is creating an access road to the land. The improvement will be financed through a bond issue.

None of it adds up to a business I want to buy? and cold running cash.

Although commissioner Dick Bass could not attend Monday's meeting, he had earlier indicated similar feelings.

Owyhee County is not alone in the insurance dilemma. Homedale City for instance, will run out of coverage October 1. However, they have a possible carrier working up a proposal, we've been told.

Another valley city has obtained coverage, but the annual premium will be considerably higher, going from some $300 to $9,000 yearly.

Homedale city budget accepted without changes

The 1985-86 Homedale fiscal budget, was okayed on Thursday night with a few shifts to cover categories affected by a difficult economy.

The total budget was voted in unanimously at $600,509.01; up from last year's $599,049. Under expenditures, including revenue sharing monies, are $50,942 for general and administration, $130,799.52 for the police department, $76,569 for street and highway, $73,764.24 for sewer user fund, $95,379.24 for water user fund, and $9,050 for the contingency fund.

On the plus side, Homedale will receive an anticipated $52,600 from the state and Federal revenue sharing, $38,784 from the Highway Users' Fund, around $129,000 from sewer and water funds, and $70,636.28 from carryover and invested money.

Before voting the city budget into law, the council moved $6,000 from $10,000 set aside for tiling ditches, to repair pumps on the city wells. The pumps have picked up a lot of sand and needed a rehaul. The city may also look into placing some type of filtration in the wells to keep the sand from entering the water lines.

Homedale's enrollment down; Marsing's up

Homedale's student population is less than last year's, while Marsing has increased.

In the Homedale School District, enrollment is 956 in grades kindergarten through twelfth grade. This includes 553 in kindergarten through sixth and 403 in seventh through high school.

The student numbers are down by 36, 16 less in the elementary and 20 less in the secondary.

In Marsing, the population for all grades is 637, up by around a dozen from last year, which was up from the year before.

There are 62 children in kindergarten, 49 in first, 76 in second, 56 in third, 52 in fourth, 52 in fifth, 47 in sixth, 43 in seventh, 41 in eighth, 50 in ninth, 40 in tenth, 36 in eleventh, and 33 in twelfth.

Elementary principal Van Collins said most of the new students would be permanent students, not migrant transfers.

Jordan Valley has experienced a slight decrease from last year. In the high school, there are 67 students, down 7-8 from the beginning of 1984-85, but about on par with the end of the year. In the elementary level, there are 107 students, a decrease of six from the 113 level last year.

Bruneau Elementary currently has 74 students, Grand View Elementary has 200, and Rimrock High school has 177.

55 seniors.

There are 84 students registered in the three first grade rooms, 77 in the second, 84 in the third, 80 in the fourth, 71 in the fifth, 71 in the sixth, 71 in the seventh and 72 in the eighth grade.
