County gets state 911 grant

Commissioners agree to buy 700mhz radios for OCSO

The state has awarded nearly $250,000 to help Owyhee County purchase and install a new 911 emergency communications system.

Commissioners found out about the award on the same day the agreed to buy eight portable radios to allow sheriff's deputies in the northwest part of the county to communicate on the 700-megahertz band with agencies in Canyon and Ada counties.

The Idaho Emergency Communications Commission notified counties of the fiscal year 2011 grant awards in an e-mail sent Sept. 13. Owyhee County emergency services coordinator Jim Desmond informed the Board of Commissioners of the $246,323 award at its meeting later that day.

Jordan Creek bridge closed

Several county spans in need of attention

As work continued on repairing one bridge, Owyhee County learned Thursday that the state has condemned another vital bridge.

District 1 Commissioner Jerry Hoagland (R-Wilson) told The Owyhee Avalanche that the Idaho Transportation Department had closed the Jordan Creek Bridge for safety reasons.

"It is already posted with a weight restriction, but the deteriorating condition of the bridge indicates that these weight limits are not being observed or enforced," ITD spokesman Reed Hollinshead said.

S. Board irrigation ends Oct. 8

Homedale city service ceases Oct. 4; other county shutoff dates tentative

The South Board of Control has announced when irrigation water will be shut off for the season.

Service to City of Homedale users will end Oct. 4, according to city public works supervisor Larry Bauer.

The rest the area served by South Board, which includes producers in the Homedale-Marsing-Adrian region will have irrigation water until Oct. 8.

Reynolds Irrigation District director Jerry Hoagland said the board has set an Oct. 1 shutoff date because funds to pay for electricity to run the pumping station are running low.

Leticia Morris of the Opaline Irrigation District said the board of directors won't set a shutoff date for that area's water until an Oct. 5 meeting.

Homedale schools battle dwindling tax base with fundraisers

Trojans tennis coach steps down

Homedale School District patrons have raised more than $10,000 to support activities at the middle school and the high school in the past month.

The Homedale Trojan Athletic Association’s fundraising luau held Aug. 28 at City Park brought $7,300 for the district’s athletic transportation fund.

In his report at the Sept. 13 school board meeting, Homedale High School athletic director David Hart said 300 tickets were sold for the luau, which also featured an auction and guest speaker Dr. Vincent Kituku.

In addition to the money raised through the luau, the HHS Class of 2009 donated $2,038 to the transportation fund. In slashing the district budget, the school board put the onus on participation fees and fundraising to come up with the district’s $30,000 athletic transportation budget.

Homedale Middle School athletic director Nick Schamber, speaking at the same meeting, reported that the Aug. 20 HMS carnival raised $1,000.

Homedale superintendent Tim Rosandick told the board that property values in the joint district fell 25 percent from 2009 and that schools will receive $63,458 less in property tax revenue than last year.

Personnel moves

School trustees approved the hiring of former HHS teacher Jim McMillan and current art teacher Katy Belanger as yearbook advisors for the high school. Mark Boothby was hired as the HMS memory book advisor.

The board also accepted the resignations of high school tennis coach Mark Weekes and middle school Academic Bowl advisor Linda Miklancic.

Rope & Ride helps defend ranching

Annual fundraiser starts Friday in Jordan Valley

The 12th annual Owyhee Rope & Ride hits the Jordan Valley Rodeo Arena in two days to help multiple use interests.

The Rope & Ride runs Friday through Sunday. Spectator admission is free.

Proceeds from the event benefit the Owyhee County Cattlemen’s Legal Defense Fund and the Malheur County Defense Fund. The event raised $20,000 in 2009 and the funds have received more than $250,000 throughout the run of the event, according to a press release.

“Cattlemen are in a fight of our life to preserve our business and way of life,” the Jordan Valley Rodeo Association wrote in a press release promoting their event. “If the environmental extremists win this battle to remove cattle grazing from federal lands, not only will it affect our business, but it will flow down to other related business as well as hunting and recreation.”

In addition to the rodeo arena action, the Rope & Ride features informative displays, silent auctions and raffles. The winning ticket for an ATV raffle will be drawn on Sunday.

The action gets going at 9 a.m. Friday with cow dog trials. Warm-up roping will be held after the trials, with registration beginning at 3 p.m. The entry fee is two for $45.

The top 10 dogs from Friday’s trials advance to Saturday’s finals at 9 a.m.

At noon Saturday, the stock saddle bronc riders take to the arena in pursuit of a $500 added purse.

At 2:30 p.m., it’s muley roping. The entry price is three head for $40, and teams may enter four times.

Sunday’s final day begins at 9 a.m. with mixed team branding. Registration begins at 8:30 a.m. and costs $50 per person. Each person can enter up to three times.

Last-chance horse and muley roping begins at 10 a.m., with a $100-per-man entry fee.

For more information on the event, call (541) 586-2551 or (208) 337-4094.

Lawmakers start e-newsletter

Owyhee County’s delegation to the Idaho Legislature has launched an electronic newsletter to keep constituents informed.

The first Idaho Legislators District 23 Newsletter hit the inboxes of about 800 e-mail addresses Friday afternoon to update folks on what state Sen. Bert Brackett (R-Rogerson) and Reps. Jim Patrick (R-Filer) and Stephen Hartgen (R-Twin Falls) are working on in preparation ahead of the start of the next legislative session in January.

Hartgen said the newsletter will be sent out periodically, adding that there is no set publication schedule. Patrick said the legislators would consider a weekly newsletter when the session begins.

“It’s kind of a using a modern tool to reach our increasingly electronically connected district,” Hartgen said, who holds the District 23B seat in the Idaho House of Representatives.

District 23 encompasses all of Owyhee County and the western portion of Twin Falls County.

Hartgen said that about 35 to 50 percent of households in a typical rural community have Internet connectivity.

“We see it as another way of keeping touch with our district about the issues we’re working on,” he said.

He encourages those people who have received the newsletter to forward it to their friends and neighbors, including those people who may no longer living in the district but still want to keep up on the issues affecting the past home base.

“Over time, we hope to add to the list so that by the time the legislative session starts we have a couple thousand e-mail addresses,” Hartgen said.

There also is a newsletter subscription link in the inaugural issue as well as links to all three legislators’ e-mail addresses.

The initial newsletter features links to Web sites for Patrick and Hartgen as well as an introduction to the purpose of the mailing.

“For the first one, we wanted to say what it was and give a quick checklist of what we’re keeping an eye on,” Hartgen said.

Specifics include budget challenges that legislators — especially Patrick and Brackett who serve on the Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee — will face come January.

An issue-by-issue preview of the 2011 legislative preview and a calendar of upcoming events at which one of the legislators will appear also are featured.

State PUC approves solar deal

GV energy farm set to go online in January

The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has approved a sales agreement between Idaho Power Co. and Grand View Solar PV One.

Grand View Solar PV One is building a 20-megawatt solar energy production plant on 180 acres owned by JR Simplot Co., near Grand View. Robert Paul of Desert Hot Springs, Calif., is the project manager.

The Grand View solar farm is expected to be in operation by Jan. 1. The sales agreement is for 20 years.

The agreement is “non-levelized,” meaning the price for the electricity generated gradually increases through the life of the contract. The rate is $77.77 per megawatt-hour in 2011 escalating to $128.31 per MWh in 2031. That rate is adjusted for heavy- and light-load seasons as well as heavy- and light-load hours. The planned monthly output for the project varies from 1,326 megawatt-hours in January to 4,816 megawatt-hours in July.

Idaho Power has a number of net metering agreements with customers who own small primarily residential solar projects, but this project is the first solar sales agreement with a larger provider.

According to an Idaho PUC press release, the project is a qualifying facility under the provisions of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act of 1978 (PURPA). PURPA requires electric utilities to offer to buy power produced by qualifying small-power producers or cogenerators. The rate to be paid PURPA project developers, called an “avoided cost rate,” is determined and published by state commissions. The avoided cost rate is to be equal to the cost the electric utility avoids if it would have had to generate the power itself or purchase it from another source.

Idaho caps the size of projects that can qualify for the published avoided-cost rate at 10 MW. Even though the Grand View Solar project capacity is 20 megawatts, the project is not expected to exceed 10 average megawatts on a monthly basis given the fact that solar power cannot be generated around-the-clock. Should the project exceed 10 average megawatts, Idaho Power will accept the energy but will not be required to pay for it.

Council still mulling Sundance, LID financing

More parking lot debate set for Thursday’s meeting

The Homedale City Council will revisit two recent topics during its Thursday meeting. Council members will hold a third night of talks on buying 3.68 acres from Toni Ross to build a second parking lot for Sundance Park. Ross is asking $35,000 for the field, and improvements to turn it into a parking lot could push the price to $68,000. At its last meeting, the council discussed asking park users such as the Conner Landa-Daniel Miller Memorial Tournament and Homedale Youth Sports Inc. to help with the purchased price. News came that there could be gravel under the vacant field to help with building the parking lot, too. The council meeting begins at 6 p.m. Thursday at City Hall, 31 W. Wyoming Ave. The council also is set to vote on a resolution to provide interim funding for the Local Improvement District that is bringing sidewalk and lighting upgrades to downtown. Council members had discussed securing financing for the interim with a loan from the Homedale Public Library’s $175,000 savings account, with the remainder of the $500,000 total coming from a bank loan. Reports from the council and Mayor Harold Wilson, the police department, the public works department, new city attorney Stephanie J. Bonney and Planning and Zoning administrator Sylvia Bahem are on the agenda.

✓ 911: County, federal funds to be used to purchase handheld radios

“We received every nickel we asked for,” Desmond said. Owyhee County now has two years to execute the grant, which was the second-largest awarded to a county agency. Butte County received $256,109.10 to convert its communications system to Enhanced 911. In an e-mail to winning agencies, Idaho E-911 program coordinator Eddie Goldsmith said each county would receive grant packages on Oct. 15 with funds available on Nov. 1. The county will receive 100 percent of the funding for a new 911 system and 80 percent of the cost to cover maintenance fees and network services/ With the award of the grant, Owyhee County ends a two-year odyssey that began with the IECC actually rejecting a FY 2010 grant application because the signature sheet from the commissioners arrived days after the application deadline. The delay came, in part, because the BOCC and Sheriff Daryl Crandall seemingly were at loggerheads over county grant submission protocol. Also during their Sept. 13 meeting, commissioners approved Crandall’s request to purchase eight handheld 700mhz radios, which will be used by the sheriff, his chief deputy and six deputies who patrol the area of the county that borders Canyon County. According to Desmond, the radios are available for $2,322 each through Oct. 2. The $18,576 price tag for the eight units will be covered by communications funding in the county’s Civil Defense budget ($4,644 for two radios) and part of Owyhee’s Bureau of Homeland Security Grant Program funding from 2008 and 2009 awards ($13,932 for the remaining six). The balance of the capital communications equipment line in the county’s Civil Defense budget for fiscal year 2010 was $41,800 before the purchase. Desmond hinted that conserving the federal grant money would be wise because of a mandate to convert repeaters to narrow-band frequencies by 2013. Several county emergency agencies still must convert to the 700mhz system over the next three years. Desmond has said that more than 80 emergency responder vehicles must be outfitted with compliant radios. These are the first 700mhz radios purchased for the sheriff’s office, although the county previously spent $51,491 in federal funding for an interoperable gateway radio device that allows dispatchers to patch county emergency personnel into Canyon County’s 700mhz radio system. Desmond told commissioners on Sept. 13 that the gateway device, purchased in 2009, was not in operation yet because service provider Intermountain Communications had yet to program “talk groups” to allow communication with neighboring agencies. Crandall said during the Sept. 7 budget hearing that his deputies had at least two recent instances in which they could not communicate with Canyon County-based authorities because of a lack of 700mhz capability. Jeff Berger of Intermountain Communications told The Owyhee Avalanche that the programming and personnel training for the gateway should be completed before October and as soon as the end of this month. Owyhee had no reason to use the gateway until Canyon County switched to 700mhz in the summer, Berger said. Even with the gateway, Berger said, handheld radios will be useful to bridge the communication gap when deputies or responders are out of reception range with Murphy. With the 700mhz portables, personnel still will be able to communicate with agencies with compatible devices. Other agencies for which the county has ordered 700mhz radios include Homedale Police Department (five radios) and Marsing Fire and Ambulance (one each). The county also has previous purchased one radio each for HPD and Homedale Fire and Ambulance. — JPB

✓ Bridge: County crews continue Flint Creek Bridge work

two county spans that have been the focus of mitigation efforts in conjunction with the Local Highway Technical Assistance Council (LHTAC). It has been estimated that it would cost at least $500,000 each to replace the Jordan Creek Bridge and the Reynolds Creek Bridge. “The Flint Road bridge over Jordan Creek and Reynolds Creek bridge are in pretty bad shape,” Hoagland, who is also chair of the Board of County Commissioners, said. The county has been working with LHTAC since before Hoagland became a commissioner to get the two bridges replaced. Recently, the grant money that had been earmarked for the bridges was funneled to another project because of the length of time it is taking to engineer the two jobs and get federal review of those plans, Hoagland said. He said the decision to move the bridges down the list could mean a delay of three years in receiving grant money. The county would have to pay between nine and 11 percent in matching funds to receive the grants. He was unsure if ITD’s action would move the Jordan Creek Bridge up on the funding priority list. The bridge is the most direct means of access for three families and several property owners. With the bridge out of service, those people as well as hunters and recreationists will have to go through Oreana for the alternate Bachman Grade route. But Hoagland said officials close that road by December each year because of snow accumulation. Several agriculture trucks also use the Jordan Creek Bridge to ferry winter hay into the pastures and livestock out of the area, he said. Hoagland said that a temporary bridge could be put in place, but the Army Corps of Engineers permitting process can take up to two months. “We’ll have to find an alternate to get around the creek,” Hoagland said. While signs went up closing Jordan Creek Bridge, Road

District 1 workers continued to repair Flint Creek Bridge. That span, which also carries Flint Road over a body of water, was damaged last year when a grader fell through the decking, Board of County Commissioners chair Jerry Hoagland said crews patched the bridge until a full repair could be done. “It’s going to be a whole lot better for getting cattle and hay trucks up there now,” he said. The county now is soliciting bids to replace another bridge 20 miles south of Grasmere in Road District 3. During the Sept. 13 commissioners meeting, District 3 road superintendent Dave Miller said the Mary’s Creek Crossing on Buckhorn Road needed to be replaced. Hoagland said a precast bridge could cost $34,000 plus the cost of trucking the structure into the area. A bridge built on-site could run slightly more than $60,000, according to Miller’s report to the BOCC. According to the county’s request for bids, which appears on Page 20 in this week’s edition of

The Owyhee Avalanche, county crews will demolish the old bridge, create a detour and also perform excavation and back fill work. Bids will be accepted at the County Clerk’s Office in Murphy until 5 p.m. on “Other bridges need repair, but they’re not as severe as Jordan Creek or Reynolds Creek,” Hoagland said. “The bridge inspector has recommended fixes on those, and has said that some bridges need better signage.” Some of those fixes are long-term goals. Hoagland said Road District 1 superintendent Phil Rittenhouse has some ideas to repair another Flint Road bridge near the Triangle, but that work won’t take place until next year. The Lone Tree Creek Bridge near Pleasant Valley School and just west of the Oregon state line also has culverts that must be updated to deal with heavier water flows from the past few years, Hoagland said. “They are quite narrow,” he said. “Either we have to extend them out or add another culvert.” — JPB

✓ Irrigation: GV water flows until late October

The Bruneau Buckaroo Ditch Co.’s water runs every month of the year except March. Dixie McDaniel, the Grand View Irrigation District secretary, said irrigation shutoff in that part of the county won’t be set until a round of directors meetings in the first week of October. However, she said the tentative shutoff date for Grand View Irrigation and Snake River Irrigation is Oct. 29. The Grand View Mutual Canal Co., has tentatively set Oct. 20 as the day that irrigation water will stop. All three boards of directors meet at the Grand View Irrigation District office, 645 Idaho St., in Grand View. The Grand View Irrigation board meets at 11 a.m. on Oct. 5, the Grand View Mutual Canal Co., board meets at 7 p.m. on Oct. 4, and the Snake River Irrigation directors meet at 7 p.m. on Oct. 6. A message left with the West Reynolds Irrigation District wasn’t returned.

Cremation is under the direction of Flahiff Funeral Chapel. By her request there will not be funeral services. A private ceremony will be held by her immediate family at a later date.

Lucille was a wonderful mother, grandmother, great grandmother and devoted friend.

She was the first born to Arthur and Esther Kiester on July 15, 1927 in West Allis, Wisconsin, and raised and educated in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. She met her soulmate and love of her life, Robert William Bruening, her senior year of high school. They married January 19, 1946.

Daddy went off to war and mama worked until he returned home over 1 year later. They always wanted a large family but that was not in God’s plans. After taking care of her mother-in-law for several years they decided to begin the process of adoption. Many years passed and on July 27, 1960 they were blessed with a notification of a child to be adopted. A daughter, Deborah (Debbie), was the light of their life. After one year they reapplied for another adoption but they had to move to Homedale, Idaho to take care of her parents. Thus it was only the three of them that would make up their loving family.

In 1963 they moved to Homedale and she soon went to work for Simplot. She left there in 1972 to be a stay-at-home mom and help grandpa and grandma take care of the many gardens and fruit trees they had on the place. Soon she worked part time for JC Watson company and because she was such a hard worker, they promoted her to a full time position becoming leading lady with a full packing crew.

In 1985 after a short devastating battle with cancer, she lost her true love. It was a very hard time for mama.

She continued to work and loved to bowl. She was a member of a travel league and accumulated many awards and pins throughout the years.

She sold her home and moved into the new senior apartments in Homedale. It was there that she lived for over 13 more years. She loved it there. Many days were spent playing cards and games with her “Card Buddies.” She also had fun going on many trips to Jackpot and Winnemucca. Sundays were very special because she loved playing cards with friends Bud and Mazie.

Lucille had so many special friends, too many to name. Thank you all for bringing a smile to her face. You all were very cherished in her heart.

The real light of her life was her daughter, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. She was especially proud of her new three-month-old twin great-grandsons. She was able to hold them several times in the last three months.

Although Lucille fought for many years with health problems, she never lost her smile and was always prepared to be with God and hold daddy’s hand again.

A special thanks to all who cared for mama in the hospital. A special thanks to Kathy Watson, who made her stay at the apartments so wonderful. Also, Pastor Ross Shaver, your weekly trips to mama’s house to deliver the sermon of the week was something she looked forward to. Your presences at mama’s celebration into eternal life were greatly appreciated.

Mama, I’ll miss you with all my heart. But I know if there is a slot machine around you are sitting at it with daddy by your side holding your hand. I love you forever.

Lucille is survived by a daughter Debbie (Tim) Brown, grandchildren Taunya Brown, Blake (Megan) Brown, Garrett Brown, and great-grandsons Hunter, Heath and Tucker.

She was preceded in death by her husband Bob, parents Arthur and Esther Kiester, sister Ruth Rice, a great-grandson, and recently a very special friend whom was like a son to her, Art Lawson.

Bet You Didn't Know

Super Bowl ad prices have grown with the spectacle

So, if you were buying a Super Bowl ad in the first game in 1967 ... what would you have paid? About $85,000 for a full minute ... now it's over $1 million for each half-minute ...

So did you ever actually count and see for yourself that there were 28 tiles in a game of dominoes? There are.

Before 1908 the Olympic Marathon was 26 miles ... why did it change? The race was lengthened by 385 yards so that it would finish in front of King Edward VII's royal box in London. He must have had some pull.

Where'd we get the term ... “Red herring”? From the sport of fox hunting ... anti-hunting activist used to drag herrings across the path of the dogs to throw them off the scent of the fox.

... Is this new? Nope, started back in the 17th century ... folks still up in arms about it, aren't they?

You remember CinemaScope? Can you tell me what film was the first to be made in it? “The Robe” back in 1953.

Come on, think about this ... what's the most often printed warning in the history of the printed word? “Close cover before striking”. Used on match book covers ... did you get it?

What industry was the first to adopt the five-day, 40-hour workweek? The steel industry in 1923.

Local sheepdog represents U.S. with bronze medal

Tess and Lavon Calzacorta herded in largest sheepdog trials

During the Bank of the West Soldier Hollow Classic sheepdog trials in Utah earlier this month, local Lavon Calzacorta and Tess brought home the bronze.

Tess' handler, Calzacorta attended the invitation only event, which saw representation from 15 countries from five continents. The herding duo showed their skills to the nearly 25,000 spectators that attended the event.

"This is the third year we have gone but the first time we have placed," Calzacorta said. "This is a very tough competition, the toughest you will find. They bring in the top 50 people you can find anywhere. The National Sheepdog Finals are in Virginia this year. This was the closest thing to the finals on the West Coast."

Tess qualified for the Soldier Hollow trials by placing at the Lacamas Valley Sheepdog Trails outside of Camas, Wash. Calzacorta said there are about four qualifying events that you can place in to get invited to the Solider Hollow event. This crowd was the largest that Tess had competed in front of.

"My nerves get to me before I go out onto the field. But once I get out there, it all goes away. We have a job to do and that is what you focus on," Calzacorta said. "You don't even hear the crowd. The dogs are the same way. They are only concerned with the five sheep on the hill and to do their job."

Last year, Calzacorta and Tess attended the national finals and placed fourth in the country. This years finals are under way in Seven-year-old border collie Tess, brought home the bronze medal in the Bank of the West Soldier Hollow Classic sheepdog trails in Utah earlier this month. Below: Tess and her handler Lavon Calzacorta.

Middletown, Va., and continue through Sept. 26. Calzacorta, said "it just didn't work out" for them to travel back their this year.

Tess, a seven-year-old champion border collie, was the only dog from the U.S. to win one of the top three medals in Utah. Tess was bred at the Helsley Ranch in Caldwell. Calzacorta has been training her since she was 12 months old.

"I have had her for seven years. She was a birthday present from my wife and kids. We have been doing this now for 15 years," Calzacorta said. "You always have to have a young pup coming up. Tess has about two years of competing left. Then she deserves to retire. Someone is going to have some awfully big shoes to fill."

"I always tell people, border collies are not the best backyard dogs. They need to run. They need to have a job to do."

— Lavon Calzacorta

Calzacorta said from the time they started working with Tess "we knew she was special."

"You find the strengths of the dog, and then you work on the weaknesses. She is a natural athlete. Anyone who thinks they actually train a dog is kidding themselves," Calzacorta said. "The dogs have that natural ability. A good trainer knows how to bring the instincts out."

Overall, just like any working dog, you have to keep them occupied and give them a job to do, he said.

"I always tell people, border collies are not the best backyard dogs. They need to run. They need to have a job to do. You have to do something with them and keep them occupied," Calzacorta said. "We spend about four nights a week jogging the dogs. I jump on the four-wheeler and get the dogs excited to do their job."

Tess is sponsored just like a professional athlete. Her major sponsor is Dynamite Specialty Products of Meridian. The company has developed a line of dog food products that is grain-free and all natural. Calzacorta attributed much of the success he has seen to the product line and the "fuel" that it brings to the dogs.

Despite not attending the national finals, the duo will have a busy month of competitions. They will compete in Bonanza, Ore., the first weekend in October. They then head to the annual Trailing of the Sheep Festival held Oct. 9-10 in Sun Valley. They wrap up Tess' season at the Fire Ridge Vineyard trails in Milton, Ore., held Oct. 21-24.

Grand View looks for water contractor

Bid process begins for arsenic abatement-related improvements

Construction bids are being sought for improvements to the City of Grand View’s drinking water system.

The Grand View Water and Sewer Association published a legal notice in this week’s edition of The Owyhee Avalanche (Page 20) seeking sealed bids for a multifaceted system the focus of which is bringing arsenic levels in line with federal drinking water guidelines.

Bids will be accepted until 11 a.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 13, when the sealed bids will be opened and read at Grand View City Hall, 425

Boise Ave.

The project calls for an arsenic treatment system, the extension of a sewer main to the treatment location, storage tanks and related improvements.

Grand View has wrestled with arsenic abatement since the federal Environmental Protection Agency dropped the maximum contaminant level for arsenic in drinking water 10 parts per billion in January 2006.

Payette-based Holladay Engineering estimates the project will cost between $1.2 million and $1.4 million.

Grand View has secured at $360,000 Idaho Department of Commerce Community Development Block Grant and favorable loan terms from the state Department of Environmental Quality to continue with abatement procedures. DEQ has agreed to loan $1.5 million with $750,000 of the debt forgiven. The remainder of the 30-year loan will be paid back with a zero percent interest rate.

ION Heritage Museum in Jordan Valley restores 1946 building

Museum director hopes garage rebirth will feature a working blacksmith shop for a future “Pioneers Day” event

The ION Heritage Museum in Jordan Valley is restoring an old building to be used as a blacksmith shop with hopes of starting a “Pioneers Day” to highlight western life.

The building was originally built in 1946 for Pilar Elorriaga to house a 1946 Ford she won by selling the most subscriptions to the then — Eastern Oregon Observer. In 2002, the Elorriaga family donated the property where the museum currently houses their collection.

The museum received a $1,800 matching grant from the Malheur County Cultural Trust to be used toward the renovation of the building. Museum director Joanne Cunningham said the match would come from local labor and donations of time and material.

“The (Malheur Cultural) Trust has been very faithful in giving us funding, for the development of arts and culture,” Cunningham said.

Cunningham said that largest

Darrell Franke works on the exterior of the garage that is being turned into a blacksmith shop.

portion of the match is through the donated labor of Jordan Valley resident Darrell Franke. He has been working on the building “for a while now”, Cunningham said, and he plans to have the exterior done by the fall. Construction work of the interior will begin in the spring.

“Darrell has been doing all the work on the building and volunteered his time,” Cunningham said. “The expenses weren’t that much. Low’s Cement in Caldwell donated two-yards, and we paid for their truck time.”

From informationCunningham has gathered, the original exterior lumber for the garage was milled at the DeLamar Mill outside of Silver City. The original lumber wasn’t in suitable condition to be reused, Cunningham said.

“Jerry Stanford was tearing down an old barn near Cow Creek,” Cunningham said.

“I think the lumber from that barn might have been milled at DeLamar as well.”

The building is fairly simple. It is about 10 feet wide and was long enough to hold a car. The museum received a donation of an old set of bellows from a blacksmith shop, but officials aren’t sure where they will be stored. “They are about six feet long,” Cunningham said.

“Mike Hanley is donating the forge,” Cunningham said. “We have quite a few other things that people are donating, but we don’t have an anvil yet. So we are looking for one of those.”

Overall, Cunningham wants to see the blacksmith shop featured at a “Pioneers Day” she envisions as an annual event. She stressed how important it will be to get the community involved in planning the event.

“I’m just kind of hoping that we can develop this,” Cunningham said.

“We would like to show how the forge works. Possibly have Mike Hanley bring his horse team down here and teach people to harness. I just thought that we could get a bunch of western things going. Right now it is just a dream in my head.”

The ION Museum in Jordan Valley is located at 502 Swisher Ave. Visitors are encouraged to call (541) 586-2100 to schedule a visit.

Owyhee Front cleanup headlines Public Lands Day

Trail work also scheduled Saturday in Big Jacks Creek Wilderness

Volunteers are invited to participate in the Bureau of Land Management activities to commemorate the 10th anniversary of National Public Lands Day and the National Landscape Conservation System.

On the west side of Owyhee County, the third annual Clean-up of the Owyhee Front takes place Saturday.

In the past, several user groups, such as the Idaho ATV Association, the Southwest Idaho Mountain Biking Association, equestrian groups and others have pitched in to help.

For more information on volunteering, contact the BLM’s Owyhee Field Office in Marsing at (208) 896-5925.

A work day in the Big Jacks Creek Wilderness in southern Owyhee County will be held Saturday, too. The wilderness was established with the passage of the Owyhee Public Lands Management Act of 2009.

The Big Jacks Creek event includes restoring a one-mile stretch of closed vehicle route into a hiking trail, the Parker Trailhead, with native plants and seed and complete construction of the trailhead parking area.

“This is a great opportunity to get outside, volunteer, have fun, and meet new friends,” said David Draheim, outdoor recreation planner for BLM’s Boise District office.

Workers also will mark barbed-wire fencing to increase visibility and help reduce the mortality rate of sage-grouse colliding with the fences. This work will take place in habitat areas outside the wilderness.

A Dutch oven bake-off will be held with prizes for the best dish, best non-meat dish and dessert. This will evolve into a social event allowing folks to eat and mingle. The BLM will provide beverages, plates, bowl, utensils, briquettes, prizes and tables, and some chairs will be available, but attendees are encouraged to bring their own seating and a light lunch or snacks.

Submissions for the Owyhee and Bruneau River Systems Boater Guide Amateur Photo Contest also will be judged at the event.

Volunteers interested in helping with the Big Jacks Creek Wilderness work will meet at 9 a.m. Saturday at the kiosk on Wickahoney Road, about 4.8 miles west of Idaho highway 51. Project work will last until 2 p.m., when a Dutch oven bake-off contest and photography judging will take place. The program will end at 4 p.m.

For more information on the event, contact Draheim or Maile Adler at (208) 384-3458, or visit www.blm.gov/id/st/en/fo/bruneau.html.

Workouts put HHS soccer on road to Zen

Nampa-based yoga instructor Julia Jones leads the Homedale High School girls' soccer team in its weekly yoga lesson.

Correa introduces yoga to enrich athletes off the field

Fit and focused are two things every athlete needs to succeed.

The Homedale High School girls' soccer team is accomplishing that with a technique that is growing in popularity across the nation.

"Yoga brings a person into the present, and it forces you to be in the present and it quiets your mind," Nampa-based instructor Julia Jones said. "With that said, your focus and your concentration is better. I know kids get too scattered and it brings them into themselves."

"You're going to be more into the game, you're going to be more focused, and you're going to listen to the coach."

Getting his athletes to listen to him wasn't the first thing that went through coach David Correa's mind when he clicked on the idea of introducing the Trojans to yoga.

"I wanted these sessions as a way of exposing them to something new and diverse in training," said Correa, who was introduced to yoga when he decided to drop in on Jones's class at the Nampa Rec Center where he works out.

"The benefits of it are different for each one of the students depending on how engaged they are in the session."

The Trojans are more than halfway through the first 10-session plan Jones worked up. Correa isn't expecting the girls to achieve Zen on the pitch through the sessions, which take place Fridays.

"You hope that it's going to make a difference on the soccer field, but there are other benefits like focusing on goals, personal goals, and that goes beyond the soccer field," Correa said. "Talking about honesty and courage, those type of things go beyond the soccer field."

Jones said yoga has made its way into athletic teams' training schedules across the United States. She hopes that other Homedale coaches will take Correa's cue.

"I think what we're doing right now is seeing how it's received by the team, and so far so good," Jones said. "And then maybe we'll come back and do the volleyball or the basketball team."

Jones works the body-mind connection that is yoga into her sessions in many different ways from stretching to relaxation to writing devotionals on each athlete's workout mat.

"My ... interest and Coach Correa's was, yes, physical, but a lot of it was just getting them settled down, settling their minds maybe stretching their ankles and their shins and things like that. Giving them a little more balance in their life just to be better at the sport that they are doing," Jones said.

The instructor, who starts yoga classes at the College of Western Idaho in Nampa next month, incorporates different types of yoga into the workouts, from Asana (body) to Pranayama (breathing) to Bhakti, a devotional discipline she achieves by writing inspirational messages for the girls.

"I wrote on all their mats — 'peace', 'compassion', 'truth', 'love'," Jones said. "I'm bringing a little of that to asana practice that day to give them something to strive for or to work on."

Correa says he found yoga was a complete workout when he decided to take Jones's class about six months ago.

"We have this image of yoga that it isn't really a workout," the coach said. "But it is a full-body workout. I can see the benefits of muscular strength and flexibility, and that's how I thought about it for the team."

Antelopes tame Mustangs

Strong future brewing for girls' soccer

Coach thrilled with HHS youth movement

For years, David Correa has struggled to build consistency in the Homedale High School soccer program.

Experience grows slowly when there is no immediate developmental league from which to draw burgeoning talent, but the enthusiasm for the sport seems to remain if the numbers out for the Trojans girls' soccer team are any indication.

"Most of the team is returning, which is exciting to me. It provides continuity in the team's development," Correa said as he starts his third year with the girls' squad after leading the boys for the first five years of the program's existence.

There are 19 players on a squad that began 2010 without the services of recent graduates Jessica Eubanks (a forward) and defender Amalia Cardenas.

But Correa remains upbeat — it seems ingrained in the eighth-year coach — and confident in his team's ability to weather another season in one of the toughest 3A conferences in the state.

"Many of the girls from last year returned, and they are aware of how difficult the competition in our conference is," Correa said. "The girls already seem more mature and grounded than they did last year. Most important, they want to do better than last year."

The team is winless after four 3A Snake River Valley conference games, including losses to 2009 state finalists Fruitland and Payette. The Trojans start the second half of the conference schedule against reigning state champion Payette at 4:30 p.m. Thursday at Homedale Middle School.

"Our strength is our conviction that we can succeed," Correa said. "Another strength is that we do see our limitations and try to overcome them. Our attacking third is also tenacious."

That front-line unit includes sophomore Gabby Nash, who returns at forward.

"She is a hard-working girl," Correa said. "Her tenacity on the field wears down opponents. I expect great performances from her."

Trojans wreak havoc on Pilgrims

Corta and Cuellar notch career-high rushing yards

The Homedale High School football team put a damper on the homecoming festivities for New Plymouth on Friday night edging the Pilgrims 46-26.

The Trojans (4-0) faced off against the state's top-ranked 2A team in a non-conference game that New Plymouth led 26-17 at halftime. Despite the deficit Homedale would rally in the second half bringing in 29 unanswered points on the Pilgrims.

"The first half was tough with four turnovers. Anytime you have four turnovers in a game you are going to struggle. Luckily we were able to keep the score close in the first, though," Homedale coach Matt Holtry said. "In the second half, we eliminated our turnovers and got a couple ourselves from them. We ended on a high note, which is good."

The Homedale offensive attack was led by quarterback Trey Corta who racked up a career high 304 rushing yards on the night with five of the Trojans' touchdowns. Corta is 91 yards shy of marking 1,000 yards on the season.

"Trey is a special athlete. Anytime you have a kid who can do what he did and continues to do, you are blessed as a coach and as a program. The important thing we have with Trey that you might not have with other athletes is, he is willing to work hard," Holtry said. "You have talented athletes out there and take that talent for granted and have an ego that goes along as well. Trey is a hard

Huskies take on Nampa Christian

The Marsing High School football team hits the road for its 2A Western Idaho Conference opener against Nampa Christian on Friday at 7 p.m.

The Huskies (1-2 on the season) head to the Trojans' field where Nampa Christian is also 1-2. Nampa Christian is also coming off a bye week with a loss in week three to Parma 23-19.

The Trojans' only win of the season so far came in their home opener against Glens Ferry on Aug. 27. They beat out the Pilots 44-13. Glens Ferry is also the Huskies' only win. They beat the Pilots 20-19, on Sept. 10.

Adrian aces first HDL test

Madison Purnell served eight aces Friday as Adrian High School opened 1A High Desert

League volleyball play with a win.

Purnell also put down five kills in the Antelopes' 25-6, 25-17, 25-14 home victory over Jordan Valley.

"It was a good overall night by the whole team," Adrian coach Aimee Goss said. "We are doing a good job of looking to attack and tonight we just overpowered Jordan Valley on the serve."

Annie Bowns had four kills and four aces, while Madison Shira chipped in three kills and two aces.

"We were not ready for the fast pace of Adrian, so we lost mental focus," Jordan Valley coach Chris Elsner said. "We came back a little in the second and third games. Our serving improved, and that always helps."

Meagan Fillmore had 10 service points and three digs, while Hayley Caywood chipped in five digs and three assists for the Mustangs. Christina Rogers added two kills.

Adrian (2-1 overall, 1-0 league) travels to face Huntington/Harper in a 1A HDL match Friday. Jordan Valley plays host to Dayville-Mounument the same day.

HHS volleyball moves to 2-1 in SRV

Homedale High School notched a pair of conference volleyball victories last week.

First-year coach Janel Van Dyke's squad beat visiting Payette, 25-18, 25-20, 25-22, on Thursday night behind 16 assists, seven digs and four kills from Caitlyn Johnson.

Sydney Cornwall led the net play with five kills, three solo blocks and four assisted blocks, while Bryce Osborn added four kills and two blocks. She also served a pair of aces.

Laurien Mavey had three kills, two digs and a block for Homedale (4-3 overall, 2-1 3A Snake River Valley conference).

"Payette was probably our best game overall yet," Van Dyke said. "The girls moved well on the court together. There is always room for improvement, but it was fun to watch them play."

Homedale went winless in pool play at the Cole Valley Christian Tournament on Saturday, losing to Garden Valley and the tournament hosts.

"Tournaments are great for pulling a team together," Van Dyke said. "I feel like we are learning how to believe in ourselves and each other."

Sept. 14: Homedale def. Weiser, 25-8, 13-25, 21-25, 25-21, 15-5 — The Trojans came from behind to beat the Wolverines on the road. Johnson had 17 assists and 13 digs. Megan Barraza led the team with 15 digs.

"We played tough against Weiser," Van Dyke said. "Winning the first game was a plus for us, and then we fought back hard to finish. It was a courageous effort on the girls' part and a great win for us."

Cornwall, Kaitlin Garcia and Bryce Osborn led the offense with seven kills each. Laurien Mavey pounded five kills and served four aces. Cornwall also had three ace serves.

Sept. 13: Vale, Ore., def. Homedale, 25-15, 25-22, 25-14 — Barraza kept plays alive with 11 digs, and Cornwall had four kills and a block in a non-conference match on the Trojans' floor.

Unbeaten Trojans start conference Thursday at Payette

Matt Hetrick threw three touchdown passes, and the Homedale High School defense scored twice in the junior varsity football team's fourth consecutive victory Thursday.

Trojans defenders tackled the same New Plymouth ball carrier in the end zone twice for safeties as the home team rolled to a 37-0 non-conference win at Deward Bell Stadium.

"The kids are a great group, who have labeled themselves the second battalion," JV coach Chris Wright said.

Homedale (4-0) opens the 3A Snake River Valley conference season Thursday on the road against Payette.

A sophomore who didn't play in the first two games of the season, Hetrick completed 63.6 percent of his passes (14-for-22) for 210 yards. He fired two touchdown passes to Talon Freelove, covering 16 yards for the game's first score in the opening quarter and 23 yards for the final score in the fourth quarter. He also hooked up with Riley Qualls for a 13-yard scoring play with 57 seconds left in the third quarter.

At defensive back, Hetrick also picked off two New Plymouth passes.

Freelove finished with 97 yards on six catches.

Homedale's defense held the Pilgrims' rushers to negative yardage. Kade Eiguren, a sophomore transfer from Jordan Valley, had seven tackles and both of his team's quarterback sacks. Freshman Casey Hansen also had seven tackles, sharing the team lead with Eiguren. Freshman Jovan Cornejo, who also handles the placekicking, had five tackles and three assists from his defensive line position.

Hetrick also scored on an eight-yard run in the first quarter, while Hansen opened the second half with an 80-yard kickoff return for a touchdown.

Antelopes shut down Mustangs

Adrian High School's rush defense was the difference in Friday night's battle of winless football rivals.

The Antelopes held Jordan Valley ball carriers to less than a yard per play and rolled 52-18 for their first 1A High Desert League win of the season.

While the Mustangs (0-3 overall, 0-2 1A HDL) gained only 40 yards on 41 carries, Adrian ran 20 fewer plays and finished with just eight fewer total offensive yards than their visitors at Ward Field.

Mark Ishida had a monster game to lead the Antelopes' defense. He carded 11.5 tackles, nine assists and four tackles for loss (TFL). David Stones had eight tackles, eight assists and 4.5 TFL. In all, Adrian's defenders throw Mustangs players for losses 12 times.

While the Antelopes (1-1, 1-0) recorded only 190 yards offense, big plays from three different facets of the game resulted in points.

Jeremy Price scored on a 55-yard punt return and a 45-yard run to help Adrian to a 22-6 lead after the first quarter.

Kurt Nielsen ended the scoring with nine seconds left in the game when he picked off a James Dowell pass and returned it 70 yards for the Antelopes.

Dowell threw two touchdown passes to Nathan Easterday, covering 39 yards in the first quarter and four yards in the third quarter. Jordan Valley's other TD came on Ty Warn's 62-yard run with 9 minutes, 39 seconds left in the game. Easterday hauled in six passes for 119 yards.

Paxton Shira and Blake Purnell each threw touchdown passes for Adrian. Shira's pass was a 15-yarder to Price in the fourth quarter, and Purnell got the scoring started with a 22-yard strike to David Stones 2 1/2 minutes into the contest.

Shira scored on a one-yard run 33 seconds before the end of the third quarter, and Ishida had a five-yard scoring jaunt in the second quarter.

Jordan Valley plays its first home game of the season at 2 p.m. Friday against unbeaten Dayville-Monument-Long Creek (2-0 overall and atop the 1A HDL).

Adrian goes or its third consecutive win on the road at 2 p.m. Friday against Huntington-Harper.

worker and he gets after it."

Senior running back Emilio Cuellar also notched a career high 151 yards on 22 carries. Cuellar ran a 10-yard jaunt in the third for a touchdown. The Homedale offense piled up 592 yards of total offense against the Pilgrims.

"Emilio has come along way this year. He went to some camps this summer that really helped him out. He worked hard all summer in the weight room and all year," Holtry said. "He is one of those kids in his senior year and really strives to perform. He had a great game."

The Trojans defense was led Jonny Stacey and Benny Mello. Stacey brought down seven Pilgrims on the night along with one quarterback sack. Mello added to the defensive charge with six tackles, with Brett Ryska adding another QB sack.

"We were facing the defending 2A player of the year (quarterback Brady Harris). The receivers they have are solid receivers. We knew we would have our hands full coming into this game," Holtry said. "If you go back and watch the game and take away the three deep balls they had in the first half, in reality they didn't have much. Our kids that had the big plays made on them came back in the second half and made big plays. I was really pleased with all the players both offensively and defensively."

Harris completed 20 of 34 passes on the night for 228 yards. Harris had three touchdown passes all to Garrett Bowen. Bowen racked up 133 yards on the night.

The Trojans have outscored their opponents 185-67 in four games. Up next, Homedale looks for a homecoming victory over Payette in the 3A Snake River Conference opener of both on Friday at 7 p.m. The Pirates head to Deward Bell Stadium with a 2-2 record coming off a 40-9 non-conference win over Buhl.

"Payette has some good size and have a really good senior at quarterback (Garrett Grotheer). He is a great athlete, and they have a great coach (Troy Gleave). Their team is a solid team," Holtry said. "With our kids, it will come back down to everyone following their responsibilities and doing their job. I think if everyone does that we have a pretty good shot."

Marsing volleyball falls to 2-4 on the season

The Marsing High School volleyball team dropped road matches to Nampa Christian and Parma taking them to 2-4 in 2A Western Idaho Conference play.

On Thursday, the Huskies lost in three sets, going 25-15, 25-8 and 25-15 against the Trojans of Nampa Christian.

"We played pretty even for the first three rotations. We then got stuck in a serve-receive and couldn't get out of it," Marsing coach Loma Bittick said. "The first three were pretty good and then the fourth rotation just hurt us and we couldn't come back. It was actually 13-12, and they got a good run on us."

On the night, Kacie Salove led with five assists and one ace. Andrea Rodriguez pitched in with four kills, and senior Rebecca Cossel added three kills.

"Kacie is getting stronger since being back. She did a good job this past week," Bittick said. "We have put Candy (Leon) back in a defense slot. She will make a big impact as the libero."

On Monday, Sept. 13, Marsing took 2A WIC conference rival Parma to five sets, claiming the first set 25-19. Parma rallied in the second 25-15, the Huskies notched the third set 25-20 and then dropped the fourth and fifth 25-19 and 15-8.

"It was back and forth," Bittick said. "We made a few service errors that were significant in the last set. We have to work a lot on our serve-receive and get better."

Cossel led the Huskies with six kills, four blocks and one ace. Salove added 10 assists and two kills. Rodriguez knocked down five kills with Shannon Malmberg bringing in three kills and one block assist.

Check The Owyhee Avalanche Web site for the results from the Huskies match at Cole Valley Christian on Tuesday night.

The Huskies face off in Melba on Thursday against the Mustangs. On Monday, the squad will travel to Homedale to line up against the Trojans in a non-conference match.

Forward Aubrey Nash works to get around a Weiser defender.

✓ Homedale: Seven ninth-graders added

a slew of midfielders, including sophomore Elizabeth Albor and juniors Ashley Leslie, Justine Calzacorta, Aubrey Nash and Kylie Kushlan.
Calzacorta and Nash will serve as leaders.
“Their athletic abilities will be tested during this season, and I have no doubt they will respond well to that challenge,” Correa said.
The only seniors returning this year are defenders Lucia Ortiz, Lucia Vega and Norma Bautista.
“Lucia Ortiz seems to want the responsibility of commanding the defense and keeping our defensive line in check,” the coach said.

Playing behind the experienced nucleus is first-year goalkeeper Raven Kelly, a junior.
“Raven has shown quick reflexes, good hands and intuition — characteristics that good goalkeepers possess,” Correa said.
“She has been a great addition to the team.”
Other first-year players include sophomores Brenda Uriarte and Stephanie Villarreal, who will play in the midfield and on the back line.

Kelly, Uriarte and Villarreal lead a band of 10 newcomers, including seven ninth-graders — Jenny Barroso, Edmy Vega, Leslie Albor, Hailey Kushlan, Lydia Aman, Lauren Craft and Maria Castro.
“Having this many freshman girls is great for our program,” Correa said. “They know it will be challenging, but they have embraced the challenge. You cannot look at them without thinking about the future of girls’ soccer.”

Defense does the trick for HMS; volleyball A teams win

Top volleyball teams earn first-week splits
Defense set the tone last week as Homedale Middle School’s football teams routed Parma in their season openers Sept. 14 on the road.
The seventh-graders rolled over the Panthers, 32-8, on the tide of an early touchdown and five turnovers forced by the defense.
The victory was a watershed moment for the seventh-grade program, which was winless in 2009.

The Trojans scored on its first offensive series, and the defense did the rest by allowing just one TD.
“Both Chase Martell and Riley Christoffersen made great plays on the two picks,” HMS seventh-grade coach Mark Boothby said. “Jakobee Osborn was a force to be reckoned with at nose guard, even making a tackle by running down a Parma sweep to the outside.”
John Collett scored three touchdowns on the ground, while Noah Freelove added a rushing

TD and Garrett Carter hauled in a scoring pass.
Eighth grade: Homedale 36, Parma 12 — Middle linebacker Colton Grimm returned an interception 50 yards to highlight the Trojans’ defensive effort.
Jose Lopez returned a kickoff for a touchdown and was one of three Homedale runners to find pay dirt, joining Miguel Montejano and Andy Martinez and runs to the end zone.
Homedale’s squads opened the home portion of their season at Deward Bell Stadium against Fruitland after deadline Tuesday.

The Trojans visit Weiser (1-0) on Tuesday with the seventh-graders taking the field first with a 4:15 p.m. kickoff in an early-season battle for the conference lead. The eighth-graders meet their 0-1 counterparts 15 minutes after the conclusion of the first game.
The Weiser seventh-grade squad edged Fruitland, 6-0, last week. Weiser’s eighth-graders opened the season with a 12-6 loss to Fruitland.
Volleyball
Homedale’s A squads split their first two matches of the season in both seventh- and eighth-grade action.

The eighth-graders bounced back from a sweep at the hands of Fruitland on Sept. 14 to beat Parma on Thursday, according to HMS athletic director Nick Schamber.
Schamber reported that the seventh-graders also downed Parma after falling to the Grizzlies in two sets to start the season.
Homedale’s B squads at both levels swept Fruitland on Sept. 14. Results for the Parma matches weren’t reported.

Local student escapes Mexican earthquake

A Homedale family had some tense moments last week as they awaited word if their daughter had escaped the destruction of an earthquake that flattened scores of buildings in Mexico City.

Julie Uranga, daughter of Charlene and Junior Uranga, was traveling in Mexico last week with the Northwest Nazarene College’s women’s volleyball team when the quake hit. Parents of the team members were uncertain whether the group had left for their next destination, Puerto Vallarta, or had stayed behind in Mexico City for some shopping, Charlene said.

The girls were traveling under the auspices of Youth Enterprises and playing some exhibition games, before the ‘terremoto’ struck, destroying buildings and causing an estimated 2,000 deaths by Monday. Coach Jerry Finkbeiner had remained in Idaho during the trip.

Charlene said relatives assumed the team had left Mexico City. While Puerto Vallarta and other coastal towns experienced a heavy jolt from the earthquake, originating from an epicenter out to sea, the buildings there did not collapse in the fashion that the ones in Mexico City did. Many of the beautiful churches and other structures the students photographed remain only on film, Charlene said.

Jarbidge plan, EIS released

Some big changes are ahead for 1.7 million acres of public lands in Idaho and Nevada. The BLM has released the Proposed Jarbidge Resource Management Plan and Final Environmental Impact Statement for public review.

Under the plan, 90,406 acres would be considered for transfer from Federal ownership, including 73,481 through the Carey Act or Desert Land Entry, 1,240 for sale, 9,605 for sale or exchange, and 6,080 for exchange only.

Total livestock use is expected to increase from the current level of 165,000 animal units months AUMS to around 178,000 AUMS in five years and 285,000 AUMS in 20 years. Over 300,000 acres would receive brush control and or seeding, according to the plan summary, the Saylor Creek wild horse herd near Bruneau would be managed at 50 head.

There are 31,410 acres recommended as suitable for wilderness designation, including the rim-to-rim portions of the Bruneau River, Sheep Creek (a tributary of the Bruneau) and the Jarbidge River Wilderness Study Areas, said Ted Milesnick, team leader for the study. The plan supports the BLM Interagency Study Team’s recommendation that the Bruneau and Jarbidge Rivers be designated at “wild and scenic” rivers. Milesnick said the final decision would come from Congress.

Fire causes considerable damage to C&W building

Fire broke out late Wednesday afternoon, September 14 in the warehouse owned by John Casner and Calvin White, of the C & W Farm Store. The building was used for storage by the J. C. Palumbo Co. and the C&W Farm Store.

The fire was started by two pre-school age children who were playing with matches, according to firemen.

An estimate of damage to the building is $5,000 and there was approximately $6,000 worth of stock damaged during the fire, according to word received by the Vance Agency from the insurance adjuster.

Adrian scores 7-6 victory over Marsing Friday

Adrian moved firmly into the running for the Snake River B league title Friday night by scoring a 7-6 victory over Marsing. All of the scoring came in the fourth quarter.

Pat Zamora ran 18 yards to score the Adrian touchdown and then kicked the extra point. Marsing came back to score on a series of line plunges with Tom Breshears bucking over from the three. But the try to run for the extra point failed.

Marsing threatened in the last few minutes, but a fourth down pass went incomplete at the Adrian 12-yard line. Marsing was stopped four times inside the Adrian 20.

Homedale Trojans defeat Wilder 40-0 Friday

Homedale’s Trojans rolled past another SRV-B league foe Friday afternoon, belting the Wilder Wildcats 40-0. The win was Homedale’s second of the season and it extended the Trojans’ undefeated streak to 12 games.

Homedale tallied in every quarter as the Trojans handed the Wildcats their second 40-0 defeat of the season. Last week Wilder bowed to Melba by the same score.

Roy McBride started the Trojan TD parade with scoring runs of 30 and 18 yards in the opening quarter and in the second period the defending champs upped their lead to 20-0 on a 12-yard run by James McClure.

FROM TEXAS. Con Shea, one of Owyhee’s most adventurous and enterprising citizens, has just got back from Texas. He and Tom Bugbee left here in March last, since which time they have purchased in Texas, and driven to within one hundred miles of Denver City, some 1,300 head of cattle. Bugbee remains with the stock, which will winter on the waters of the Arkansas River. Grass is very short along the route, which accounts for their not coming on this season. General Phillip Kohlheyer is still marching on with his drove, and will endeavor to reach the Humboldt before winter.

“OLD HILL,” of the Owyhee Avalanche, has been appointed by Judge Lewis District Clerk of Owyhee county. Hill will make a good clerk and deserves the position, which he should have had months ago. The old man is young yet, having received the appellation of “Old Hill,” er “Old Charon” while engaged in ferrying deluded souls over the dark stygian waters of the Cocytus, known on modern maps as the Owyhee, in the Plutonian dominions of Oregon. Here, in the days of the triumphs of the red devils, was the threshold of hell; here were the hill-tops shaken, and the howling of dogs announced the approach of griefs and avenging cares, pale diseases and melancholy age; fear and hunger that tempt to crime; toil, poverty and death, forms horrible to view; here furies spread their couches, and discord, whose hair was of vipers tied up with a bloody fillet; here also were monsters with their hundred arms, hydras hissing and chimaeras breathing fire. Such were the surroundings of the place where Old Charon stood in his boat, taking passengers for the other shore. If some were driven back among the furies to wait and wander by the hither bank until the Sibyl’s wrath be appeased ‘twas all the same with the stern old ferryman, who applied his ear and kept steadily on. Eneas might apply for passage to Palinurus but Charon’s wrath never relaxed nor would he turn his back to the shore though Pluto himself besought him to return. Thus it was that the popular mind became impressed with his great age, and thus it was that he took the name of “Old Hill,” though of years he had scarcely numbered five and twenty. General Crook was the Eneas of those days, who in full mortal armor, approached the shore and brushed away the spell, he it was who threw the medicated cake to the bristling monster in the path of progress and caused him to fall asleep in his den and now Charon is released from the ferry and transported beyond the “Region of Sadness” to become the clerk of old Minos, who has come to judge the deeds of the good and the evil-disposed. May the former be as numerous “as the leaves that fall at autumn or the flocks that fly southward at the approach of winter.”

PROVOKING. To be deprived of our western mail two days longer than necessary, is decidedly provoking, to say the least. Our Boise City neighbors are not satisfied unless their mail from California reaches them in a sack with a brass lock. The consequence is, that by some miserable inexcusable blunder, half of our California letters and papers go through to Boise City and are sent back. By this procedure the people of Silver City cannot get their mail till two days after its first arrival under their noses. Whose fault it is, we are unable to tell. The blame lies either at Sacramento, on the cars, or at Elko. Stupid mail agents and postmasters should learn that Silver City, Idaho, is sixty miles south of Boise City, the Capital of the Territory.

Another nuisance which almost exhausts our patience is, that considerable California mail intended for this place is first sent to Silver City, Nevada, and after being kicked round in that office, no one can tell how long, it finally reaches its proper destination. The post office officials at Sacramento are undoubtedly responsible for the miserable irregularities last mentioned.

Baxter Black, DVM

On the edge of common sense The right angle

It was one of those calving wrecks that just seemed to get worse and worse. Clay’s brother said he had never seen a pickup give birth.

The first pass through the calving pasture that morning, they observed a mama cow in the midst of calving. The calf’s hind legs were showing, so they made a mental note to check her again later. An hour later, Clay and his dad drove out for a second look. Brother rode in the back. The old farm truck rattled along, and it didn’t take long to find her.

Clay parked the rig, grabbed a small bucket with OB chains and handles and approached the preoccupied cow. “Don’t lose my good chains,” Dad admonished. The cow spotted the good Samaritan, rose and trotted off. Clay returned to the car, cranked the engine and chugged after her. The pasture was only 10 acres, but she made four passes from one end to the other, eluding our intrepid bovine midwives.

“Try and roper’er!” hollered Dad. “Trap her in the corner! Yer on the wrong side! Watch that hole! He’s right-handed, you nincompoop! Pull to the right! Watch that ditch! Yer going too fast! Yer going too slow! Throw it now! Shift to third! Watch the fence!”

They made a grand tour of northeast Oklahoma before the cow grew exhausted. She stopped to catch her breath. Clay drove the truck right up behind her, pulled a 30-inch OB chain out of the bucket, then, leaning out the window he dropped it over the extended hoof. To ensure that he didn’t lose the chain, he deftly looped the other end around his left wrist. He hooked an OB handle over the chain for a better grip.

Clay began to pull back, Brother tossed a lasso around her head for insurance, and Dad was giving directions “Pull down! Get that down angle!”

The cow rejuvenated, tried to get away, but the two brothers hung on. It didn’t go smoothly. On the first jerk, she banged Clay’s forehead on the door jamb! She stretched his nostrils from the bottom as she pulled his chest and shoulders through the pickup window! His head popped through, then his belt buckle caught.

Dad had a grip on Clay’s right boot and his own legs were braced against the gearshift and the roof! Clay’s boot gave way and slid off his foot, catching briefly on the steering wheel, then the side mirror. Clay slicked out of the truck in the horizontal position and immediately nose-dived into the soggy ground.

The last move changed the trajectory of the pull downward thus achieving the right angle so the calf’s hips unlocked and he plopped out still chained to Clay.

“Don’t lose them chains!” hollered Dad.

The burger and the balloons

When the Balloon Festival returned to Boise this year, we decided to attend one of the events. One night they bring some of the hot air balloons to Ann Morrison Park. They fire up the burners after it gets dark, and it makes the balloons glow.

One reason we decided to go was that our daughter Melanie and her husband live about a block back from the rim overlooking the park. We figured that would eliminate parking problems and would cut the walking distance to the balloons to maybe a quarter of a mile.

On the evening of the event, our group included Sara and yours truly, two daughters and their husbands and granddaughters Ella and Grace. Ella had the best deal as she got to ride in a stroller. Since it would be a short walk, I took along a shoulder bag with the heavier of my two cameras and a couple of extra lenses.

When our guides headed west instead of north toward the park, I asked why. They said we couldn’t go straight to the park because there wasn’t a path down the hill. Farther west, there was a path, but it was too steep for Ella’s stroller. So, instead of a quarter-mile walk, we had to go about a half-mile to a major thoroughfare, then north for another half-mile, then east through the park at least another quarter-mile to the area where the balloons would light up the night. Did I mention that it was fairly hot for an evening that late in the summer?

Before leaving for Boise, I had asked Sara if we should get something to eat. She said no — that food would be available at the park. When we got there, it was still about two hours until dark when the event would actually start. There were probably 2,000 people already waiting to see the balloons. And of those 2,000, probably 1,000 were standing in lines at the only two booths serving food. I concluded that even if we got in line right away, both booths would run out of food before we got within smelling distance of the pulled pork sandwiches.

We hung around for a while, watching a crew inflate a large balloon that looked like Mickey Mouse. The crowd continued to grow. But the lack of food had dampened the spirits of our group. Finally, someone suggested we walk on through the park to Capitol Boulevard where there was a family restaurant. There we could eat, then walk up the hill and view the balloon lights from the rim near the Boise Train Depot.

As we trudged out of the park, we met thousands of people coming in. The real optimists were those driving cars — apparently believing they were going to find a parking place. My camera bag that had started out weighing maybe seven pounds, now weighed about 40.

When we reached the restaurant, we didn’t have to wait for seats. It was nearly empty because everyone was at the balloon event. By this time, it was nearly 8 p.m., and I was really hungry. The hamburger with bacon tasted almost as good as the one I got a couple of years ago in Los Angeles when we got back from a 10-day tour of China.

After a leisurely meal, we walked up the hill and watched the colorful balloons light up. Maybe I’m just getting jaded as I get older, but I liked the hamburger with bacon better than the balloons.

From Washington Children best served by local control of school programs

As the son of a teacher, the importance of a quality education was ingrained in me. Sound education is elemental to the strength of our nation. State and local control in matters of education, ensuring students have access to quality nutrition to fuel their minds and proper rural school resources, are critical to ensuring that students getting back to school have the right foundation for success.

Students, parents, teachers and state and local public school officials best understand how to improve student performance in local schools, and they must have control over education decision-making to ensure the most effective learning environment for students. The No Child Left Behind (NCLB) Act put needed focus on improving education. However, I do not support the federal control over local and state decision-making created by NCLB, which is moving our nation toward the U.S. government becoming a national school board.

I worked with local educators to develop the bipartisan Enhancing Flexibility for Effective Schools (EFES) Act, which I introduced for the third Congress in a row, to return decision-making to the states and local school districts. EFES provides increased flexibility for states and local school districts to use assessment models for measuring student progress, more flexibility in the assessment of students with disabilities, alternative assessments for Limited English Proficiency and changes sanction requirements for schools in need of improvement. It is essential that the flexibility and autonomy provided in the EFES Act is incorporated into legislation to reauthorize the Elementary and Secondary Education Act that is overdue for consideration in Congress.

Sound nutrition is also fundamental to a quality education. A healthy diet energizes students and helps them stay focused. The Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Program (FFVP), which is part of the Farm Bill and was expanded to every state through the 2008 Farm Bill, provides nourishment to students by providing fresh fruit and vegetable snacks and helps educate students about healthy eating choices. This program benefits both students and farmers who grow the high-quality produce. Additionally, in an effort to extend child nutrition programs before they are set to expire at the end of September, the U.S. Senate recently passed the Healthy, Hunger-Free Kids Act. This legislation would connect more children with school meals and healthy local produce through Farm-to-Schools programs, provide a performance-based increase in the federal reimbursement rate for school lunch and expand program access to reduce childhood hunger.

It is also imperative that students in rural Idaho communities have access to first-rate educational opportunities. I have worked to extend the Secure Rural Schools and Community Self-Determination Act (SRSCA), commonly called county payments, because the federal government must pay its fair share of the costs in counties with large federal land holdings. Pre-nuptial agreement puts marriage off on wrong foot

Dear Dave,
My fiancé is from a wealthy family. The other day, her father suggested a pre-nuptial agreement. I'm not sure what to think about this. What's your opinion on pre-nups?
— Jeremy

Dear Jeremy,
It sounds like her family values its money more than it values their relationship with you. That could be a problem. If your bride-to-be feels the same way, then you shouldn't marry her. In most cases there's just a really bad spirit that goes along with pre-nups. It's basically planning your divorce in advance. And in most cases, what you set your eyes on is what you'll end up getting. One of my daughters just got married, and I never even thought of suggesting a pre-nuptial agreement.

There may be one exception to this rule. If you're fiancé was already wealthy on her own, I might change my answer. Extreme wealth has a tendency to attract a whole lot of weirdness and dishonesty. I've even gone so far as to tell my wife to get a pre-nup if I die and she marries again. This is different than just the potential to be wealthy, like your case.
You can still have a wonderful marriage, even if you don't see eye-to-eye with her family on this. But both of you need to be on the same page and of one mind. That's why I think it would be a really good idea for you guys to address this before the wedding with a heart-to-heart talk and some pre-marital counseling!

— Dave
Dear Dave,
I'll be starting college next fall. Is it OK to take out student loans if you have no other income to live on while you're in school?
— Mandy

Dear Mandy,
Wait a second! What do you mean you don't have any other source of income to live on while you're in school? Didn't anyone ever teach you about a little thing called work? I worked 40 to 60 hours a week all through college, and I still graduated in four years. Nowadays, many people would call that child abuse. It's absurd! Don't try to box me into a corner with the ridiculous notion that you have to take out student loans to go to college. You do not! Did you know that only 57 percent of people who start college actually graduate? That means 43 percent don't. And guess what they have? Student loan debt and no degree!

Here's what I want you to do. First, apply for every college scholarship you can find. Next, get a job! You may even have to take a couple of part-time jobs, but so what? Once you're there, live in the dorm and eat dorm food, too. It won't kill you. And a state college, where you can get in-state tuition, is always a good idea. If there's one close by you can save even more money by living at home.
Is a college education important? Sure, it is. It's a great thing, and I recommend going to college. But is student loan debt a necessary part of getting a degree and achieving success in life? Absolutely not!

Americans for Limited Government

Congressional term limits could treat the D.C. disease

by Howard Rich

As Washington D.C. slips further below the waves of partisan rancor and unprecedented red ink, voters of both parties are overwhelmingly endorsing term limits as a way to right the sinking ship.
In fact, as increasing numbers of Americans have begun to recognize the importance of refocusing our nation on its founding principles, none of those principles is garnering more support than term limits.
According to the results of a new FOX News poll, 78 percent of all voters favor term limits — including 84 percent of Republicans and 74 percent of Democrats and independents. By contrast, only 16 percent of voters oppose term limits. In today's era of political hyper-partisanship and media-fueled ideological divisiveness, those numbers are positively astounding.
Or are they?
The truth is that support for term limits has always been strong. In 2002, for example, voters in states that passed legislative term limits during the previous decade were still supporting them by huge majorities — ranging anywhere from 60 to 78 percent.
Given such strong and consistent public support, it's not surprising that the only successful attempts to undo legislative term limits in the modern era have come from legislative or judicial actions that overturned the results of popular elections. In fact, just last year, New York City leaders arbitrarily tossed out the results of two citywide elections to give themselves additional terms in office.
So much for the argument that term limits are "anti-Democratic."

A throwback to Athenian, Spartan and Roman government, the concept of term limits — or "mandatory rotation in office" — is actually a staple of democracy. Championed by Thomas Jefferson and numerous Founding Fathers, term limits were designed to "prevent every danger which might arise to American freedom by (politicians) continuing too long in office."
"Nothing is so essential to the preservation of a Republican government," George Mason — the father of the U.S. Bill of Rights — wrote in endorsing term limits.
Famed female historian Mercy Otis Warren — who was dubbed "the conscience of the American Revolution" — vigorously protested the exclusion of term limits from the U.S. Constitution, while accurately predicting the corrosive influence that career politicians would wield over the populace in their absence.
"There is no provision for (rotation in office), nor anything to prevent the perpetuity of office in the same hands for life; which by a little well-timed bribery, will probably be done," she wrote in 1788.
Frankly, our government has moved well past "a little well-timed bribery." Today, decisions in Washington are dictated almost exclusively by a corrupt pay-to-play culture in which powerful special interests (often taxpayer-funded interests) leverage their access to career politicians in order to expand their slice of the public largesse.
It's a favor factory, pure and simple — and rather than governing on principle, both Republicans and Democrats end up being governed by the spoils that come from dispensing those favors.

Look at Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac — a pair of government-sponsored (now government-owned) mortgage giants that were able to use their relationships with career politicians to evade reform efforts during the early part of this decade. Having escaped accountability, Fannie and Freddie's reckless lending helped sow the seeds for America's recent financial collapse.
And look at government's "solution" to this ongoing financial collapse — draconian new regulations over the free market that give these same career politicians even greater power over the flow of capital in America.
Speaking of government "solutions," look at organized labor — which has received billions of dollars via government bailouts and Barack Obama's new socialized medicine bill. Are we supposed to believe that this money is not payback for the $100 million that unions gave to Obama and Democratic candidates during the 2008 election?
Whose interests are being served by these policies? Clearly not those of the American taxpayers, whose personal and financial freedom shrinks with each new government power grab financed by borrowed billions.
And while changing political parties may treat the immediate symptoms of Washington's disease, absent long-overdue reforms like term limits we will never actually treat the disease itself.
Overwhelming majorities of Republicans and Democrats, liberals and conservatives, partisans and independents recognize this reality. It is past time for our politicians to put down their personal interests and follow suit.

✓ Crapo: Control of school programs imperative

payments are crucial to maintaining school services in rural communities with large amounts of federal land ownership, and this assistance has helped prevent the elimination of teaching positions and school closures and sustain vital education programs, such as special education, reading and English Language Learners. In Idaho alone, approximately 137,000 schoolchildren live in counties that receive SRSCA assistance. I will continue to advocate for the extension of SRSCA so families and communities have the resources necessary to ensure access to quality education.

As students get back to school, focus on local decision-making, student access to proper nourishment and ensuring adequate educational resources for all Idaho communities, are key to their educational success. We all want our children to receive the best education possible. I will continue to rely on the guidance of Idahoans and support reasonable, realistic improvements that will benefit Idaho's students.
