Roll-over blocks Idaho 78

Man taken to hospital after accident

Owyhee County Sheriff's Deputy Jeff Wasson investigates a one-vehicle roll-over on Idaho highway 78 as a driver from TNJ Towing in Marsing cleans up the scene on Sept. 28 south of Marsing. For more on the accident, see Page 2.

Mayor: OCSO counter "unacceptable"

Marsing operating under old law enforcement deal

With the City of Marsing still waiting official word, Sheriff Daryl Crandall presented a counter-proposal to the county's law enforcement agreement.

Crandall unveiled his version of the fiscal year 2011 contract during the Sept. 28 Board of County Commissioners meeting in Murphy. Marsing Mayor Keith Green and Councilperson Marie Hipwell were in attendance.

The sheriff's rewrite of the contract would obligate the Owyhee County Sheriff's Office to 171 hours in a 28-day period (30 hours of code enforcement, 60 hours in the schools and 81 hours of traffic enforcement).

Crandall's proposal shaves 66 hours off the original proposal of 237 hours, which was an increase of nine

Business property taxes in Homedale could skyrocket

Most commercial property bills may be higher

While most residential property owners could see reductions in their tax bills, county commercial property owners might not be so fortunate when notices arrive next month.

According to analysis by The OwyheeAvalanche, property taxes could go up in most classifications of business properties in Homedale and Marsing. Grand View business property owners could see mixed results.

The sharpest climb could be for industrial parcels within Homedale's city limits. Taxes could be as much as one-quarter higher than last year, including a possible increase of 45.4 percent in the share used to support city government.

Taxes paid by business property owners to the City of Homedale could go up drastically across the board — 32 percent for retail space

Voter registration will be allowed at the polling places on Election Day.

Homedale residents Kelly Aberasturi and Jaymie Mercado appear will appear on the ballot as District 2 commissioner nominees for their respective parties. Incumbent George Hyer, who lost the Republican primary to Aberasturi in May, has launched Armas is scheduled for a review hearing on Friday.

Medlin is scheduled for a sentencing hearing on Oct. 21.

One-vehicle wreck blocks Idaho 78

Charges are pending after a roll-over accident south of Marsing sent a man to the hospital.

Marques Gamaro, 50, is suspected of driving without a license and without insurance, according to the Owyhee County Sheriff's Office.

The Marsing man was taken to a Canyon County hospital after he rolled the 2002 Ford F-15 he was driving on southbound Idaho highway 78 feet away from mile-post 14.

In a faxed response received after an Oct. 1 public records request, OCSO Sgt. Bev White said charges are pending against Gamaro, who was transported by Marsing Ambulance after the accident on the morning of Sept. 28.

Owyhee Sheriff's Deputy Jeff Wasson said Gamaro was traveling southbound around 7 a.m. when his vehicle left the roadway. The four-door pickup truck rolled when he overcorrected, Wassons said.

Murphy-Reynolds-Wilson Fire Department responded and provided traffic control as Wasson investigated. The highway was reduced to one lane for about two hours. Cpl. Lynn Bowman also was on scene.

Homedale author set to release novel

Fantasy adventure story to be first in five-part series

The catalyst for Frank Hanson's journey as a fantasy writer was — fittingly enough — a dream.

"Michelle (Hanson's wife of 22 years) woke up and sat at the computer and wrote the name 'Sally', and I looked at her and said, 'I just had a dream about the same character,'" Hanson said of the origins of his "The Extraordinary Tales of Sally King" series.

The four-year Homedale resident says the first book in what will be a five-book series, "Battle for Ungar and the Dark Swamp", is set for release Oct. 15. It's available for pre-order on Amazon.com and at www.createpace.com/3336058. The 162-page adventure novel lists for $24.99.

The target audience probably is teenagers, the author said, although he thinks readers of all ages will enjoy the tale.

Michelle says there is interest from the Homedale Public Library to carry the title as well.

The Sally King series marks the first novel for Frank, who began writing about six years ago after quitting an unfulfilling job at the Freightliner truck manufacturing plant in Portland.

He first dabbled in writing by creating an original reality show called "Desparado" that he said was looked at by a television production company.

"It was a catalyst in confidence in the fact that he was on to something creative," Michelle said. "After working 17 years in the truck manufacturing plant, he saw that he could tap into his creative side."

The creative side also includes poetry and short stories.

"When a short story hits, I don't like to lose it, so I'll write it in an hour and then go back and work on it," he said.

Frank wrote the first Sally King book in about a year. He said he finished it soon after leaving Freightliner.

"I just prayed on it and starting writing on it, and had an incredible journey and learning experience," said Frank, who said he drew inspiration from the Lord when characters and ideas seemed to wane.

"It just surprised me how enjoyable it was, how the characters kept coming and coming and developing. It was definitely a gift, but it was a joy to experience the first-time creative side."

He's about three-quarters of the way through the second book dealing with the Land of Sogar. Each book will tell of Sally King's adventures in one of five different lands in a hidden world called Padagram.

Frank said while parallels might be drawn to popular fantasy adventure series such as Harry Potter and the Chronicles of Narnia, the storyline in the Sally King series doesn't send mixed messages.

"I wanted to have a book with a clear line between good and evil that was still fantasy," he said. "Sally doesn't step into the bad, and the bad doesn't step into the good except through attempted deception."

The overarching message from the series is that every person is important and significant, regardless of how they may feel about themselves. To push that point home, Frank devised Sally as a person small in stature who is tasked with saving her world.

"I wanted to go along the same precept as (Lord of the Rings author JRR) Tolkien," Frank said. "I wanted her to be the littlest and most insignificant person to save the five lands of Padagram."

Jewett honored for career of youth advocacy

The prestigious John Shuler Award hangs in her office and bears her name, but Doris Jewett deflects the credit to those around her.

Owyhee County’s chief probation officer received the recognition at last month’s 23rd annual Idaho Juvenile Justice Association conference in Boise.

“It’s sort of what they refer to as a lifetime achievement award,” Jewett said of the award given annually to one person in the state who has had a significant impact on youth and the services delivered to children and their families.

According to the nomination letter submitted by county probation officer Ivy Cardenas, Jewett has worked as an advocate for women, children and families for most of her adult life.

In 13 years as chief probation officer in Owyhee County, the Bruneau High School graduate has overseen an expansion of the department in services as well as a growth in its physical footprint in Homedale.

But Jewett said the award is more reflective of the teamwork in the department, which also includes probation officers Cardenas and Josh Schumacher ways, and a lot of things we do to help is what she’s allowed us to do in Probation.”

Schumacher is approaching his seventh anniversary with the department, and says that Jewett’s efforts are especially important given the economic situation many face in Owyhee County.

“She definitely shows a huge commitment to the juveniles in our area,” he said. “Especially being in a lower-income area, you really have to put in the extra effort. Not only does she do that, but she finds others who will get programs started and help put food on the table.”

Jewett said the award puts her and her colleagues in “pretty good company”, including that of 2007 award winner Thomas J. Ryan. The former county magistrate and now a Third District Court judge, Ryan presented the award to Jewett at the conference at the Holiday Inn Airport.

“That’s what really makes it special because, to me, he is the epitome of juvenile justice,” Jewett said of her former boss. “He’s one of the most ethical people I know.”

The relationship with her first boss also affected Jewett during her acceptance.

“I cried. I was totally overwhelmed,” she said. “It still makes me cry. I was totally unprepared.”

and facilitator and grant writer Tessa O’Donnell.

“It is a joint effort. I just happen to be the lucky recipient,” Jewett said.

In her nomination letter, Cardenas outlined Jewett’s efforts to help families and youth in Owyhee County through more than just traditional probation services.

The programs include the Closet of Dreams, which is housed at the probation office on the corner of West 2nd Street North and West Idaho Avenue in Homedale. The room full of formal wear and accessories provides an inexpensive option for youth looking for prom attire or job interview clothing, Cardenas said. Rentals are $10, and the department is always looking for donations of clothing.

Until budget cuts forced its closure, Jewett also oversaw the ASSET program, which kept suspended or expelled students in class and learning rather than home or on the streets being unproductive.

“I think we helped a lot of kids get through school who wouldn’t have gotten through school,” Jewett said. “We helped a lot of families.”

Cardenas became emotional when discussing the impact Jewett has had on her career and how she approaches her job. She began in the county probation department when Jewett hired her as a secretary a decade ago.

“She’s taught us that people get put on probation, but there are other things going in their lives because they don’t have enough food or they struggle to pay their water bill or their kids don’t have clothes for school,” Cardenas said.

Natural resources committee seeks new members

Terms have expired for advisory panel

Officials are working on updating a citizens panel that played a key role in establishing the county’s coordination protocol with the federal government.

The Board of County Commissioners was scheduled to discuss reappointments for the Owyhee County Natural Resources Committee during Tuesday’s weekly meeting. But committee director Jim Desmond said he would also like to recruit new voices for the group that watches out for issues that could impact resource and land use in the county.

“I’d be happy to have some new blood,” Desmond said. “(Applicants) have to demonstrate in writing their desire to serve and some level of expertise on natural resources in Owyhee County.”

Desmond serves as the county government’s liaison for the panel, members of which are appointed by the commissioners. He doesn’t have a vote on the committee.

He also said that many of the people have out-served their terms of appointment, and that’s why another round of reappointments have been scheduled.

County ordinance allows as many as 60 members on the Natural Resources Committee and no fewer than 20.

“There have been times when we’ve been up in the 50s,” Desmond said.

The committee formed to create the county land use plan as the first step in forcing the federal government to recognition Owyhee County government as a coordinating agency. It also has its roots in the Bureau of Land Management’s original Owyhee Front Resource Management Plan, which dates back more than a dozen years.

Desmond said the first group of NRC members were predominantly ranchers and landowners, but there was a “scattering” of recreationalist groups represented. Ranchers Don and Gene Davis as well as Owyhee County pioneer family member Tom Skinner were original members.

Today, avid bicyclist Tyler Welsheimer and recreational hunter and fisherman Paul Walden are among the user-group representatives.

Retired federal biologist Karen Steenhof also is part of the current committee, a subcommittee of which is the Owyhee County Sage-grouse Local Working Group chaired by Grand View’s Donna Bennett.

Committee members serve two- and three-year terms, Desmond said.

Other subcommittees have been formed over the years as issues have warranted. A temporary committee was seated when the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service began proceedings that led to the eventual listing of the Bruneau Hotsprings Snail on the Endangered Species List.

The group also has worked on the county’s plans for natural resources and wildland fire.

The committee meets at 7:30 p.m. on the first Tuesday of each month inside Courtroom 1 at the Owyhee County Courthouse in Murphy. There are occasional special meetings for the committee, which is chaired by Ernie Bahem.

The committee also examines certain planning and zoning matters for impacts on species, water and vegetative resources.

The committee usually makes recommendations to the BOCC, but in P&Z matters it reports directly to the Planning and Zoning Commission.

Anyone interested in serving on the NRC can submit a written request to Desmond at P.O. Box 38, Murphy, ID 83650 or by e-mail to OCNRCDIR@aol.com. Applications must include a person’s involvement, interest or expertise in any of the multiple uses of federally and state-managed lands and a knowledge of the “custom, culture and economic stability of Owyhee County.”

The NRC will review the applications and make appointment recommendations to the BOCC.

✓ OCSO: Sheriff says layoffs loom if Marsing contract isn’t ratified hours over the 228-hours-per-month commitment in FY 2010.

The 171-hour package would include time for both regular deputies and sheriff’s Posse members, Crandall said. Marsing would pay the same $76,385 it paid last year for the 228 hours.

“I’ll just say it’s an unacceptable contract,” Green said. “The hours were reduced; the pay stayed the same.

“Pretty much everything, in my opinion, was not very acceptable.”

Green said Hipwell and Crandall tried to meet Friday in Murphy, but Hipwell’s work schedule wouldn’t allow the time away.

Green and Hipwell hadn’t seen the Crandall’s counter-proposal before he stepped to the podium at the BOCC meeting.

“Essentially nothing was said in City Hall. That’s why I’m here: just to hear what’s going on,” the mayor told the commissioners.

Green said he will bring another proposal to the city council at its next meeting, which is scheduled for 7 p.m. on Oct. 13. He gave no details, except to say: “There are other avenues that are being explored.”

The sheriff told the commissioners that not coming to an agreement could result in layoffs.

Crandall said he had sent the rewritten contract to county Prosecuting Attorney Douglas Emery for review.

“I was assuming that he would send it to Marsing,” the sheriff said.

After making copies for the commissioners, Green and Hipwell, Crandall began his presentation:

- He said he is agreeable to the opt-out clause that gives either the county or the city the opportunity to terminate the contract with 30 days’ written notice.
- He outlined a protocol for the monthly council reports given by Deputy Jeff Wasson, including an inventory of the number of contacts made during patrol hours and number of citations issues during dedicated patrol times.

“There has been some unhappy people about what they’ve been receiving from us at the city council meeting, so what I’ve attempted to do is lay out exactly what each report to the Marsing City Council will contain so that we don’t have any misunderstandings or inconclusive evidence, so that they would know exactly what they’ll be getting each and every week from us as far as the reports,” the sheriff said.

- He itemized a “dedicated hours” schedule that features how deputies and Posse members would spend their time fulfilling the school portion of the contract. It will include sporting events, extra-curricular activities and “any activities related to a school function.”

The 30 hours per month for code enforcement would include time for making reports, filling out citations, investigating code violations and court appearances for both deputies and Posse.

The balance of the monthly allotment — 81 hours — would be spent on traffic enforcement and include reports, investigations and processing of arrests. Again, time spent by deputies and Posse members would be counted.

Crandall asserted that the city should only receive revenue from crimes committed during the “dedicated time” of the contract, which he said would be about 6.1 hours per day apparently set at the sheriff’s discretion.

Other county officials — Emery and County Clerk Charlotte Sherburn — told Crandall that state law requires revenue go to the city for all activity and all hours.

“You need to read the code, Daryl,” Sherburn said to the sheriff.

In the case of city code violations, 90 percent of the proceeds are to be returned to the municipality, Emery said.

“That’s for code enforcement, but any traffic violations or state laws violated outside of the dedicated time would come to the county,” Crandall said.

The apportionment is also 90 percent for traffic violations with similar language for some other violations outlined by Idaho Code 19-4705.

Green said no other meetings are planned on the subject until the council meets on Oct. 13.

“It goes back to we kind of feel it’s our contract and it’s extra money that we’re giving the county, therefore, you guys can come and visit us,” Green said.

“You are our elected officials. You are full-time officials. You can come and see us.”

The sheriff’s office continues to provide coverage to Marsing under the FY 2010 contract because, as Emery said, the pact cannot be terminated without written notice from either side.

“I’ve already been told we’re out of contract once, which is an untrue statement,” Green said. “The actual contract said it will follow-through unless we cancel it.

“Basically, we’re still under contract. I need Sheriff Crandall to understand that. He can’t go tell my citizens that we do not have a law enforcement contract.”

Wii bowling back in GV

The Eastern Owyhee County Library in Grand View is looking for people of all ages to go bowling —Wii bowling, that is.

The library encourages people to put four-person teams together in time for the start of Wii bowling leagues again on Monday.

Adult teams are open to 18 years and older, teen teams are comprised of ages 13-17, and youth teams are open to ages 5-12.

The bowling can take place any time the library is open, and competitors need only ask the librarian on duty to get started.

The season lasts eight weeks with three lines per week. Participants may bowl with their team members every time, or they may come in an bowl on their own if it's more convenient.

Last spring's league champions included the 3 Ds in the youth group and the Four Wonders in the adult group. No teen teams registered in the spring.

For more information on the library and its programs, call (208) 834-2785.

Local pharmacist places in AQHA world championship show

Hometown pharmacist Leanne Givens and her horse, Twist N Shout Again, brought home fourth place from the world's largest American Quarter Horse Association championship for amateur exhibitors age 50 and older.

Givens of New Plymouth has worked at Paul's Market in Homedale for 2½ years greeting patients with a smile, her cowboy hat and boots. She is no stranger to the horse world, taking over the family business Givens Quarter Horses from her parents Jake and Muriel. The business was started in 1948.

"I have never known life without horses," Givens said. "I think I fit in around here well. I have truly enjoyed worked here. Those I serve are primarily farm and ranch people. So, I'm not embarrassed to wear my boots and cowboy hat to work around here."

Givens parents instilled in her a love for horses and a passion for raising "top-notch" Quarter Horses. The 60 years of work that they put in continues today with herself and husband, Jack Colwell, at their ranch in New Plymouth.

"The win in Amarillo made me sit down and be ever so grateful of the work my parents put in," Givens said. "The goal with all our horses is to continue the work my parents did."

The AQHA Adequan Select World Championship show was held in Amarillo, Texas, on Aug. 29 through Sept. 4. The event saw 1,100 competitors from the U.S., Canada and Austria. The competition was open for amateur exhibitors age 50 and over.

"Wow. It was a stunning competition on a world-class level. This was not your basic horse show that we normally go to," Givens said. "Gentlemen wore suits, and ladies were in very decorated attire. When I went to park my pickup and trailer, I felt like I went down there with my little wore out tricycle pulling up with a cardboard box. My stuff is pretty basic."

Of the 1,100 competitors that qualified for the event, Givens was the only person who was registered as exhibitor, owner and breeder of her six-year-old stallion. Twist N Shout Again, a sorrel stallion, was one of four qualifiers in the aged stallion finals.

"I fully realized the evening I drove into the fairgrounds in Amarillo the difference in economics at the competition," Givens said. "I'm a basic poor child from Idaho. I have grown up pulling weeds in the field, irrigating, digging postholes, feeding and tending livestock. My background is hard work and dirt under the fingernails."

Givens said she felt a "little out of place" at the competition due to the amount of money that was visible in the parking lots and in the stands.

"I was suddenly competing with people who have so much money they are trying to find ways to spend it," Givens said. "I don't have to figure out ways to spend money. I am always looking for ways to earn more, so I can continue to compete. The difference in economics really slapped me upside the head. I realized that my starched white shirt was really garden variety."

The grass roots operation that her parents started has produced many AQHA champion horses. Their first big win was with Cookie Mount, which was the first AQHA champion in the Northwest. Givens said that this was the best win for the family, though, considering the "stout" competition.

When Givens' mother first saw Twist N Shout Again, she told her that she should never sell the horse.

"My mother had a knack for picking horses. She told me never sell the horse," Givens said. "Her line was 'Now, honey, you must never sell that one'. And I am so glad I followed her advice."

Big Owyhee presence at ICA Finals rodeo this weekend

Nearly 25 men and women with ties to Owyhee country are scheduled to compete Friday and Saturday in the 2010 Idaho Cowboys Association Finals Rodeo.

The rodeo takes place at the Idaho Center Horse Park in Nampa.

The pre-rodeo begins at 5:30 p.m. with the rodeo following at 6:30 both nights. Admission is $10 in advance or $12 at the door. Children ages 6-12 get in for $5, and children 5 and younger are free. Get advance tickets at most Treasure Valley D&B Supply locations, Farm and City Supply in Nampa, Bean Saddlery, Idaho Cowboy Supply and Peterson Stampede Dodge.

A stick horse rodeo for children will be held from noon to 2 p.m. on Saturday, and vendors will be set up for Cowboy Christmas sales both days.

Owyhee County and neighboring communities will be well represented. The top 15 competitors in each division qualified for the Finals.

The top four in novice divisions and the top 10 in the ranch bronc standings also qualify.

Adrian's Carl Seiders is the top seed in the steer wrestling finals. Jordan Valley's Sam Mackenzie is third. Adrian's Bryan Reay and Jimmy Bertalotto and Marsing's Scott Roeser also will compete.

Four of the 10 finalists in the ranch broncs hail from Owyhee country, including second-ranked Dalton Jim from the southernmost part of the county, Jordan Valley's Robert Burney, Bruneau's Matt Tindall and Owyhee, Nev.'s Daxton Jim.

There are also four Owyhee cowboys riding in the saddle bronc competition, including fifth-ranked Wade Black of Homedale, Bruneau's Shawn Morehead, Jordan Valley's Sam Mackenzie and Oreana's Frank Tobias.

Homedale's Luke Jeffries has entered in tie down roping.

Another Homedale resident, Jamie Marts, joins Marsing city engineer Amy Woodruff in the breakaway roping competition.

Adrian's Katie and Abby Davis join Katy Clow of Melba in barrel racing.

Another Adrian Davis — Bobby — pairs with Arock's Shaun Lequerica in team roping. They'll be challenged by David Farris of Homedale, who teams with Daxton Jim, and Jordan Valley's Josh Bruce, who is riding with Jason Duby.

Retiring chief deputy honored by county

New jailer hired; Kingston tabbed for OCSO return

The Board of County Commissioners recognized Bill Detweiler on his retirement as Owyhee County Sheriff's chief deputy.

"He's been the backbone of that whole department," District 2 Commissioner George Hyer (R-Homedale) said during the Sept. 28 meeting in Murphy.

The commissioners unanimously approved Resolution 10-27 gifting Detweiler his service weapon — a Springfield .45, his badge and a card identifying him as a retired member of the sheriff's office.

"I have a lot of respect for his professional abilities, and I like him personally," District 3 Commissioner Dick Freund (R-Murphy) said.

Detweiler retired from his post on Sept. 30. He was succeeded by Kenny Hoagland. The commissioners were scheduled to vote on a pay authorization for Karl Kingston, whom Sheriff Daryl Crandall has tabbed to fill Hoagland's previous position. Kingston served as a part-time replacement earlier in Crandall's administration when Deputy David Green was out on disability.

Detweiler's second stint with OCSO began when Crandall brought him over from the Elmore County Sheriff's Office to serve as his chief deputy in January 2009.

"Chief Deputy Detweiler has been a huge asset to that department," District 1 Commissioner Jerry Hoagland (R-Wilson), the BOCC chair, said.

Freund criticized the sheriff's office for not inviting the elected officials to Detweiler's retirement celebration and lamented Crandall's absence from the meeting when the retirement resolution was passed.

"I think it's sad that the sheriff is not here to make this request for his officer," Freund said.

County Prosecuting Attorney Douglas Emery, who said he did attend the retirement party, commended Detweiler's comportment during his 21 months in the position.

"He added a lot to that department," Emery said. "I can tell you there have been multiple issues in which he has been a level-headed, reasoning individual.

"He's got tons of experience in law enforcement. He's a good man and provided a lot of benefit to this county."

In other OCSO issues, the commissioners approved the pay authorization for Emiliano Gonzalez, who replaces Ross Gruenwald as a detention officer in the county jail. Gonzalez's starting salary is $13.47 per hour. Gruenwald resigned as a jailer on Sept. 23 — about five months after the BOCC approved his salary.

Homedale FFA's qualify for State dairy judging

Harvest Auction brings in big money

by Kylie Farwell, chapter reporter

The Homedale FFA Dairy Team came close to repeating a top performance during the Sept. 22 Boise Valley District Career Development Experience at the Toledo Dairy in Kuna.

Homedale finished second in the 18-team field a year after winning the competition that requires each team to judge six classes of cows on quality.

Homedale's team consisted of Britt Eubanks, Devin Fisher, Colton Grimm, Tell Hyer, Tori Nash, Jace Turner, Cole Twedt, Elise Shenk and Erin Shenk.

Individually, Tori Nash placed second, Jace Turner 10th, Devin Fisher 12th, and Cole Twedt and Colton Grimm tied for 14th. These five will go on to compete at State in Moscow in June 2011.

Auction raises $11,000

The second annual Homedale FFA Harvest Auction was held Sept. 11 in the Homedale High School cafeteria. The event brought in tons of generous support from all areas of the community.

After auctioning off all of the donated items and labor from FFA members, the chapter raised $11,000. The proceeds from the auction will be used to pay for a wide variety of events, such as state competitions, Meet the Need, Gift of Green, Ag Olympics, Scavenger Hunt, scholarships to graduating seniors and much more. Without this fundraiser, the Homedale FFA chapter would not be able to attend statewide competitions because of increased travel costs this year.

Homedale FFA would like to thank everyone who donated and helped out with the auction. A special thanks to Tracy Fisher for cooking beans for dinner, Darr and Laura Johnson and Trent Price for preparing the tri-tip dinner for the evening, Andrea McRae for coordinating the food tables, Steve Nash, Derek Vermeer and Sean Farwell for acting as auctioneers and Sue Williams and Shelley Shenk for helping clerk the auction.

The chapter is grateful to everyone who donated their time and money to help out. All of the support we received will help make the Homedale FFA 2010-11 year a great success.

Local hunters come up big in Alaska

Traveling to Alaska for a hunting and fishing experience of a lifetime has become an annual tradition for a few area sportsmen.

In early September, Ed Leavitt along with Byron Leavitt, Bob Ensley, Kevin Ensley, Troy Neilson and Andrew Bartles traveled Beaver Creek, Alaska, about 50 miles north of Fairbanks.

Andrew Bartles, a Parma High School graduate who now lives in Seattle, took the first shot on a 61¼-inch bull moose. The bull was taken down with well-placed arrow from Troy Neilson.

"It took us 10 trips to pack it to the river where our boats were," Ed Leavitt said. "We packed it in 63, one-gallon zip lock bags."

The hunters were in Alaska for 12 days and floated the river for six. Ed Leavitt, a Homedale resident, has organized and made the trip for nearly 14 years. He said that typically they do the entire trip for under $2,000.

"We always float around the first week of September," Leavitt said. "This river is the longest road-to-road river that you can float. We floated about 124 miles of Beaver Creek."

Leavitt said that the trip is made up of a lot of rough characters and they have a good time floating the river and catching grayling while they watch for the next "big one" to be spotted.

"It has to be a big one for us," Leavitt said. "The pack-out of the meat is always the toughest. The landscape up there is so diverse, and it really can take you out."

✓ Taxes: Industrial property tax rates in Homedale could soar 25 percent

and 18 percent for office space.
In most cases, the taxes paid to help run county government could dip. Overall, though, most tax rates for other districts will possibly increase.

Only the taxable value of the land and improvements is included in the study. Assessment on personal property for businesses was not taken into consideration.

The taxable values of real property for all three classifications — retail, office and industrial — fell between fiscal year 2010 and FY 2011, except for office property in Grand View, the assessment of which remained the same. The results reflect an estimate of what a property tax bill could look like.

County Assessor Brett Endicott provided information on a typical parcel in each category for each town. In the instance of industrial property, parcels in Homedale, Marsing and the rural area outside Homedale's city limits were used. County Clerk Charlotte Sherburn provided the levy rates.

The county treasurer's office must mail notices in late November. First half of the payment is due on Dec. 20; the rest on June 20.

Homedale

Industrial property in Homedale could see the most drastic tax increase thanks primarily to bumps in the city and school tax levies.

While property value on the sample parcel fell seven percent, taxes could increase 25 percent to more than $22,500 with the city being the biggest benefactor from tax revenue at nearly $10,000. Taxes paid to all Homedale-area districts could rise, while the county's share could dip slightly.

The typical retail property tax bill could rise nearly 14 percent to about $1,250, again with the city taking the largest chunk.

Taxes on offices in Homedale could tick up less than two percent to more than $2,250, but the city's share could be as much as $1,000, an 18 percent increase.

Marsing

The sample industrial property in Marsing shows a tax increase of more than $1,050, 16.1 percent more than 2009. But the parcel value provided by Endicott was for improvements only because, he said, the land is owned separately from the business owner. All taxes, except for the county's share, could increase with the total bill possibly weighing in at nearly $7,600. The city and school district could see the biggest pieces of the pie with possible increases of 22.2 percent and 20.6 percent, respectively.

The industrial property value fell slightly between FY 2010 and FY 2011.

Retail property value in Marsing declined 14.3 percent, but the tax bill could go up 6.9 percent, or just more than $150. The largest share of what could be a $2,300 bill, again, could go to the city (about $800) and schools (nearly $900). Taxes on office space could rise 5.6 percent to slightly more than $2,450.

Grand View

Grand View was rated only for property values for office space and retail because there is no industrial property in the town, according to Endicott.

Endicott also reported no change in value for the sampled office parcel. Even so, property taxes could go up as much as 5.2 percent. Because of no change in the assessed value and the slight increase in the county levy, Grand View office building owners could pay more to the county than in FY 2010 (about 4.7 percent or $11). Taxes could go up at a sharper rate for city (27 percent or $17) and fire (23.5 percent or $35). Meanwhile, the county road and bridge levy could fall about 19 percent or $29. The total bill could be nearly $870.

The retail property tax bill in town could fall about 6.9 percent to less than $980. Taxes paid to city and fire could go up slightly, while taxes to the county, road and bridge and school district may fall.

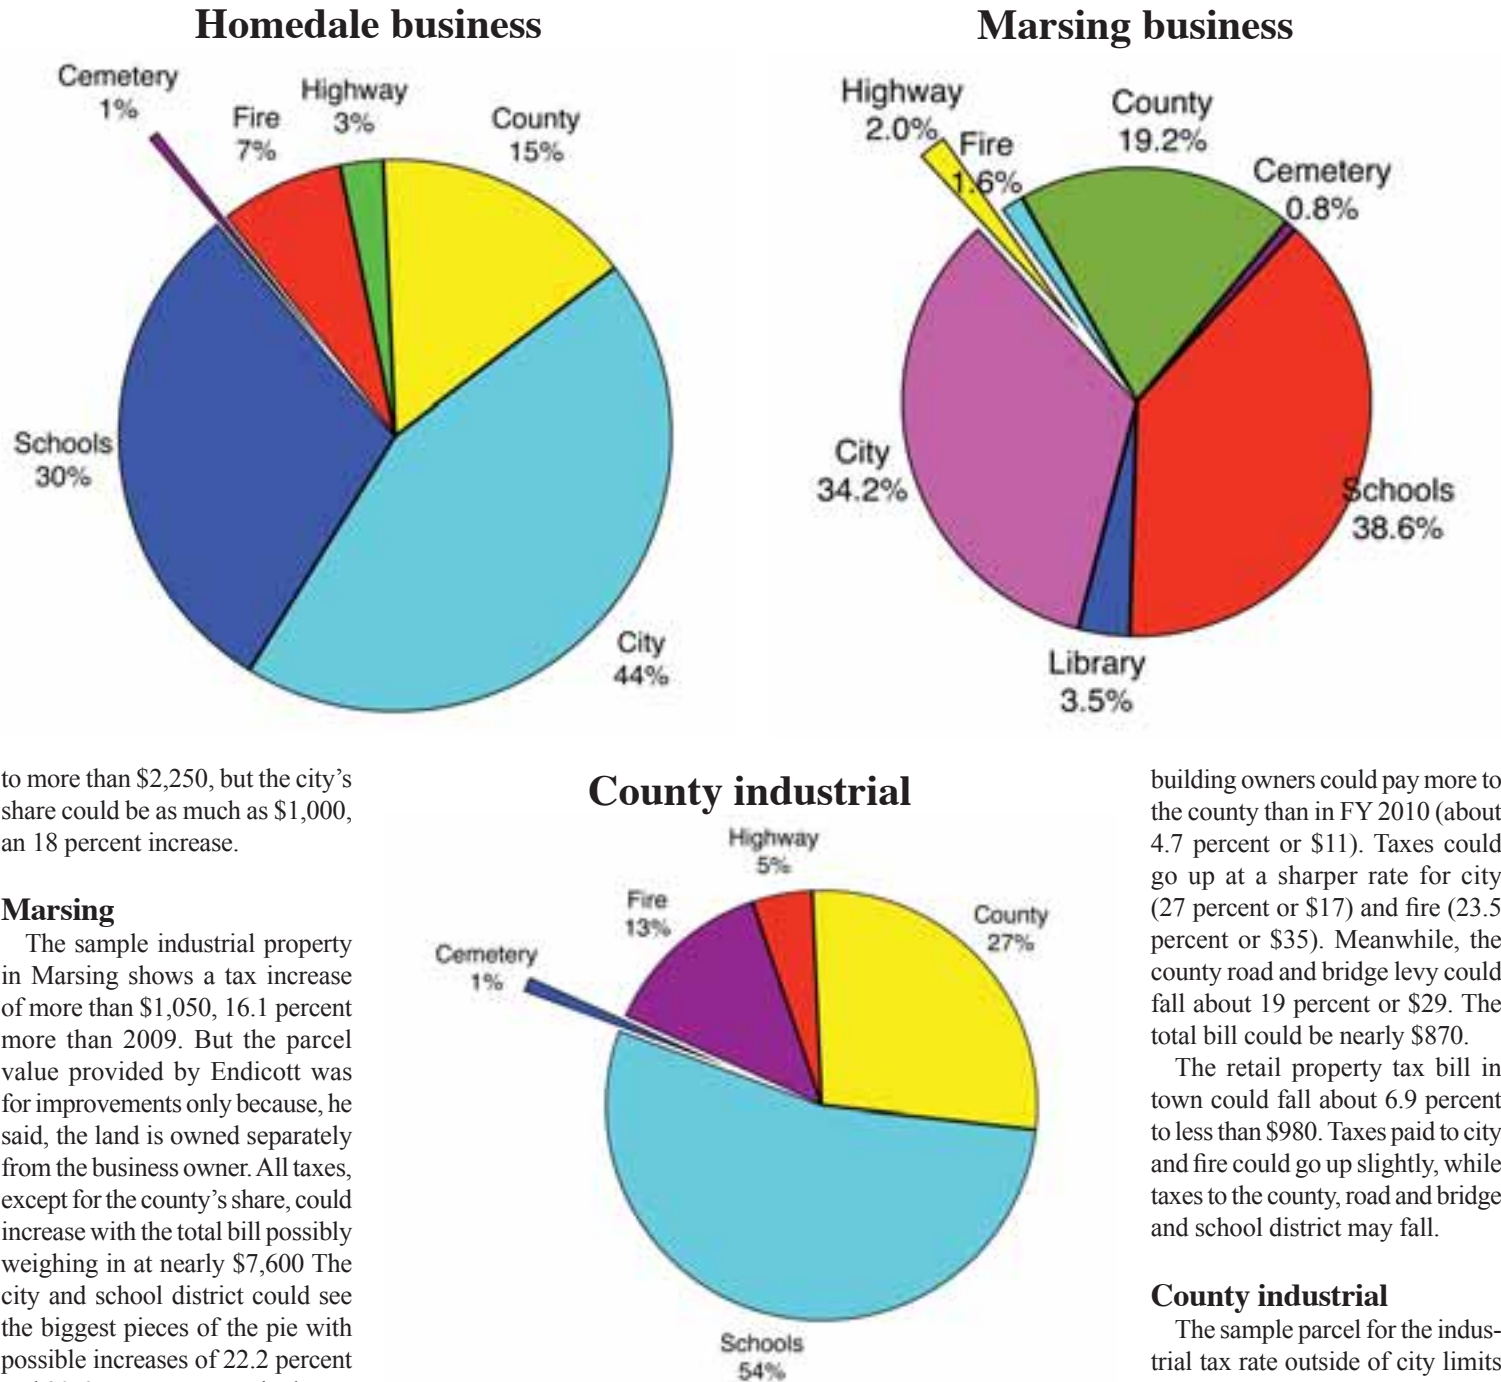

County industrial

The sample parcel for the industrial tax rate outside of city limits is located between Homedale and Marsing. Taxes could fall for industrial parcels in the county by as much as 9.5 percent, or nearly $1,400, to about $13,200.

Taxes paid to the school district could plummet from nearly $7,900 to less than $7,200, and the county tax could fall about $400.

Freshman quarterback Austin Williams gets blocked on all sides as he gets a pass off during Friday's game against Melba. The Huskies routed the Mustangs 39-0.

Huskies prepare for Homecoming matchup against Cole Valley
on Friday night

The Marsing High School football team harnessed the power of their pink socks and undershirts to celebrate breast cancer awareness Friday night, coming away with a 39-0 route of the visiting Melba Mustangs in 2A Western Idaho Conference play. Marsing (2-3 on the season and 1-1 in 2A WIC) forced seven turnovers, including two interceptions that were returned for touchdowns and held the Mustangs offense to 63 rushing yards on the night. "The offensive line was really hitting their stride. Melba was blitzing on us, and that line really took care of Austin Williams," Marsing coach Jaime Wood said.

"We have been working on getting Austin more time, and they really did a great job. I can't say enough about their efforts." During the first quarter, Juan Morales landed a 39-yard field goal to put Marsing on the board. That was followed shortly by an interception from Oscar Ceballos, which he returned for a touchdown. Morales landed three of his five attempts for extra points with one blocked and one falling short. On the night, freshman quarterback Austin Williams completed 11 of 23 for 140 yards, completing two touchdown passes. Williams rushed for a one-yard touchdown in the third quarter to take the Huskies to 39. "Austin had a great game and really took charge," Wood said. "He was great on the night. He threw a pick at the end, but we were going for first downs and not really looking for any more points. Really this is the first time that we have thrown like that all season." Jason Galligan had a 15-yard scamper off a pass completion from Williams late in the first quarter. Williams completed another pass late in the second quarter to Bernardo Galvez for a 15-yard touchdown. Nathan Danner brought in 49 yards on 10 carries with his longest run of 22 yards. Jesus Lino added 32 yards on five carries. During the fourth quarter, the Huskies' junior varsity team was thrown into the game with

Weiser tramples Trojans; Parma next

needing one win to make 3A playoffs

Homedale High School visited the next level of football competition Friday night in Weiser. The Wolverines' running backs made their home in the next level of the Trojans' defensive unit. Senior Tyrell Braun averaged nearly 20 yards per carry, finishing with 359 yards and three touchdowns as Weiser ended Homedale's five-game winning streak to start the season. Weiser's 38-14 3A Snake River Valley conference victory at Walter Johnson Memorial Stadium featured teams who began the week in the state media's top five among 3A schools. Homedale (5-1 overall, 1-1 3A SRV) was rated second, and Weiser (4-2, 2-0) had entered the rankings at No. 5 after an impressive victory over Parma a week earlier. Homedale's load of huge games continues this week with the Milk Jug Game. This time, however, the rivalry game not only is on the road against Parma and former HHS coach Greg Asbury. The Panthers, two-time reigning 2A state champions, made the jump into the 3A SRV and are off to an 0-2 start after two blowout losses to Weiser and Fruitland. "Any time you have four out of the top five were ranked in the state — four out of the top five are in our conference — it's hands-down the toughest conference in the state," Holtry said. "But that's fun. As a coach and as a player even, you want to play the best and be in the best conference." Kickoff at Parma is 7 p.m. on Friday. "We've just got to stay focused on our goal, and our goal is to get into the playoffs and to guarantee that, it's to get a W," the coach said. "And that's our focus: Just to beat Parma." "We're not talking Milk Jug, we're not talking coaches. That doesn't matter to any of us. All that matters is that we try to go out there and get a win. That's our focus." With Homedale basically needing one more victory to secure one of the conference's four invitations into the 3A state playoffs, Holtry pointed out to his players that Friday's game against Weiser carried a playoff feel uncharacteristic for the second conference game of the year. "We win one more and we're guaranteed. We basically have our foot in the door," Holtry said. During postgame remarks to his players, the second-year coach called the Wolverines a veteran playoff team and he accepted full responsibility for the way Braun and fellow Spencer Chandler chewed up Homedale's defense for 540 yards and four TDs on the ground. "This one's on me," Holtry told his players after the game.

Marsing volleyball squeaks past Homedale

The Marsing High School volleyball team traveled to Homedale in a non-conference matchup on Sept. 27 to take on the host Trojans and came away with the win 25-21, 25-17, 25-19. Marsing team leaders included Josie Grim with two kills, two aces, two blocks and one dig. Rebecca Cossel brought in nine kills and three digs. Kacie Salove had one kill and 13 assists, and Candy Leon had seven digs. "This past week we have played with more confidence and much more intensity. Their enthusiasm is staying up, and they are playing much better," Bittick said. "We made a lot of changes in our serve-receive. I think having more of a home crowd there helped us stay in the game." Homedale team leaders included Kylie Farwell with 16 assists, Sydney Cornwall added seven kills and one ace. Sarah Maggard had six kills and Megan Barraza had 13 digs.

Adrian shakes off serving woes at home

Teamwork and net play made up for a poor night from the service line Friday for Adrian High School.

Madison Shira notched nine kills and five assists in a 25-19, 25-13, 25-18 victory over Burnt River in a 1A High Desert League volleyball action.

“Burnt River served really tough while we struggled on the service line,” Antelopes coach Aimee Goss said. “We attacked the ball well, and every player contributed, which I’m happy to see.”

Adrian (8-3 overall, 4-0 1A HDL) received five kills from Annie Bowns in a match played on the Antelopes’ floor. Madison Purnell added two kills and four assists.

The Antelopes look to continue their perfect league start with a 5 p.m. home match Friday against Dayville/Monument.

✓ Huskies: Homecoming game Friday

Hudson Sauer pulling down 13 yards on four carries and Tristan Jacobi notching 37 yards on three carries.

“Our defense was key on the night,” Wood said. “We put the JV in during the fourth, and those boys did a great job holding them and not allowing any points in the fourth. Overall for the night, everyone came mentally prepared and physically prepared to win. Everyone did their jobs and did them well.”

Wood has issued a challenge to the student body to fill the north bleachers at the stadium for the homecoming game. If the challenge is met, he said that the students in attendance for the New Plymouth game would get pizza.

“I challenged the student body. Well, bribed them I guess,” Wood said. “It is Homecoming, and we need everyone there to get that atmosphere rowdy. If the kids at the school fill the north bleachers, I will have a pizza party at the New Plymouth game for them.”

David Loeffler, a senior, will be returning for the Huskies after being sidelined with a sprained ankle during the Glens Ferry game.

Wood urged the players after the game that this a good win and one they should be proud of, but “we take this one game and one day at a time.”

“We have to stay focused. They can be proud of their win, but they have to remember that the next game is the only thing that matters,” Wood said. “We can look back on the wins after the season and celebrate them more then. Really, it comes down to one day at a time.”

The Huskies take on Cole Valley Christian for Homecoming on Friday at 7 p.m. Cole Valley is coming off a 36-0 loss at New Plymouth. The Chargers hold an 0-5 record and have been outscored 162-32.

“I think we just need to play. Marsing needs to take care of Marsing,” Wood said. “Don’t get me wrong, we need to focus on Cole Valley, and we will. But, if we keep playing our football we will be fine.”

Marsing volleyball rolls with three recent wins

Team gears up for final home stand before district finals

The Marsing High School volleyball team brought home two wins heading into its most recent match at home last week, finishing off nearly a month of road games with a home court win Thursday.

The Huskies lined up against New Plymouth on Thursday in Marsing and finished off the Pilgrims in three sets going, 25-13, 25-19, 25-16. Earlier in the month the Pilgrims beat Marsing in New Plymouth.

Team leaders for the Huskies included Deidrie Briggs with five kills, two blocks and three assists. Rebecca Cossel added nine kills, Kathlyn Welch had three kills and one block and Shannon Malmberg notched two kills and a block.

“New Plymouth beat us three games to one last time and the scores were really close,” Marsing coach Loma Bittick said. “Over the past month, we have made some adjustments. Making those adjustments has made us a better passing team.”

Marsing finished off their monthlong tour of 2A Western Idaho Conference teams with McCall-Donnelly, on Tuesday beating the Vandals 25-11, 25-11,25-9.

On the night Kacie Salove led the Huskies with three kills, two aces and 14 assists. Cossel added two kills and five blocks with Malmberg recording two kills.

“The intensity coming off the win in Homedale stayed with the girls,” Bittick said. “We stayed up with the pass-set-kill and played our game throughout the match. I was proud of them.”

Throughout September, Marsing notched four league wins. Currently the team sits fourth in 2A WIC play.

“It was a tough month to be on the road the whole time,” Bittick said. “Now, to finish out at home, it will be good. I think there might be some ties in the 2A conference. Anything could happen at this point.”

The next home game for the Huskies is Thursday against Nampa Christian with the junior varsity starting at 5 p.m. and the varsity to follow.

“I think that Nampa Christian is the team to beat. It will be interesting to see how the season finishes out with many of the teams having four wins currently in league,” Bittick said.

✓ Homedale: Milk Jug Game Friday

The shifty Braun bulled behind Weiser’s dominant offensive line then danced through Homedale’s defense, often making fast cuts for sweeping cuts to the sideline to speed away on long runs.

“It’s a lot of making sure we’re aligned right and that we’re technique-sound, and we weren’t tech-sound to stop that offense. That added in with the fact that they’ve got some great backs and their coaches do a great job preparing them,” Holtry said. “Put those two things together, and you’re not going to get the outcome you’re looking for.”

Braun took a pitch and cut in the opposite direction to find a blocker to spark a 50-yard scoring run four minutes into the second quarter. It was the second of three straight TDs as the Wolverines roared to a 24-7 lead.

“It wasn’t necessarily the misdirection,” Holtry said of the key to Weiser’s success. “It was getting beat at the point of attack. They were beating us up at the line of scrimmage, and when you lose the battle at the line of scrimmage, the majority of the time you’re going to lose the game.”

Chandler had put Weiser in front with a 37-yard run earlier in the first half for a 10-7 lead. Chandler wound up with 179 yards on 17 carries.

Braun highlighted a 203-yard second half with scoring runs of 75 and 25 yards.

Homedale grabbed an early 7-3 lead when Zac Lowder made a spectacular catch on Trey Corta’s 26-yard touchdown pass about four minutes into the game.

Hampered by a badly bruised right calf, Corta was limited to less than 200 yards rushing for the first time since Aug. 28. He scored on a five-yard run with six seconds left in the third quarter.

Down by 10 points early in the fourth quarter, the junior quarterback tried to bring the Trojans back single-handedly — and it knocked him out of the game temporarily.

He sandwiched a 23-yard run around completions to Levi Elsberry and Jonny Stacey. After a 14-yard run to the outside, Corta seemed poised to sprint through the heart of the Weiser defense for a 32-yard score. Eighteen yards into his scamper, though, Corta crumpled to the turf and left the field favoring his leg.

Elsberry stepped in for one play, then Corta returned. Elsberry’s 11-yard run to pay dirt was negated by an illegal blocking penalty, and the drive stalled at the Weiser 10.

Corta wound up with 81 yards rushing and 119 yards passing. Stacey was a favorite target, finishing with 47 yards on six receptions. He pulled down three catches during the drive early in the fourth quarter, including snaring a Corta bullet with a great hands-catch at the Weiser 11.

Jordan volleyball gets two HDL wins

Mustangs swept out of Prairie City tournament

Jordan Valley High School’s volleyball team came away with a split during a four-match road trip.

The Mustangs return home Friday for a Homecoming week 1A High Desert League match against Burnt River then travel to Idaho City for a non-league match Saturday.

Jordan Valley began their road trip with a 25-9, 25-10, 25-10 victory over Huntington on Friday in the front end of a league tri-meet.

Shelly Payne and Hayley Caywood had 18 serves each to pace the Mustangs’ victory.

“It was mostly our serves that beat them. Everyone played well,” Jordan Valley coach Chris Elsner said.

Friday: Jordan Valley def. Harper, 12-25, 25-15, 25-13, 25-17 — Payne registered seven kills and two digs, and Noora Pendov added two kills, a dig and a block in another 1A HDL victory.

Meagan Fillmore (five kills), Jessie Carson (four kills) and Christina Rogers (six kills) paced the offense. Caywood had three tips, 13 assists and two digs.

Saturday: Spray def. Jordan Valley, 25-22, 25-22, 25-20 — In the first of two matches for the Prairie City Invitational, the Mustangs fell in straight sets to another 1A HDL squad despite nine kills from Fillmore. Caywood added six assists.

Mitchell swept the Mustangs in Jordan Valley’s second tournament match, 25-18, 25-15, 25-9. No statistics were available.

“We just kind of came apart and couldn’t get back in the games,” Elsner said. “We will do better next time.”

Trojans soccer enters postseason Saturday

Lengthy conference losing streaks have put Homedale High School into a win-or-else situation when the 3A District III soccer tournaments start Saturday.

Both the boys’ and girls’ Trojans teams were 0-7 in 3A Snake River Valley conference play prior to Tuesday’s regular-season finales at Weiser.

Coach David Correa’s squad carries the No. 5 seed into the opening game of the girls’ tournament at 10 a.m. Saturday in Fruitland.

The HHS boys are the fifth seed and start their district tournament at 10 a.m. Saturday in Payette.

Both teams must win to move into the double elimination portion of the tournament, which gets under way on Tuesday with 5 p.m. games at the respective sites.

Antelopes cruise to fourth straight after fast start

Purnell’s only completions go for scores

A 36-point first-quarter explosion propelled Adrian High School to an easy non-league football game Friday.

Jeremy Price scored three times, Blake Purnell tossed a touchdown pass and Mark Ishida found the end zone to kick off the Antelopes’ 76-30 destruction of Union at Ward Field in Adrian.

The Antelopes (4-1 overall) won their fourth straight game against a Bobcats squad that is winless in five games this season.

Purnell played a part in five scores for Adrian. The quarterback threw a pair of touchdown passes to Paxton Shira, covering 40 yards in the first quarter and 20 in the fourth quarter. Those were his only completions of the game.

Purnell also scored on runs of 23 yards with 35 seconds left in the first half, 65 yards on the first play of the second half and 22 yards later in the third quarter.

Adrian rolled up 642 yards total offense, including 552 on the ground. Price finished with 216 yards and four touchdowns on 11 carries. Purnell added 176 yards on eight attempts.

Kurt Nielson, who scored on a five-yard run on offense, stopped two Union drives with interceptions, and he led the Antelopes with 7.5 tackles and three assists.

Ishida added seven tackles, while Danny Livas chimed in with 6.5 tackles and three assists.

Parma sweeps Trojans

Volleyball team extends Fruitland to four

Coach Janel VanDyke continues to see improvement from her Homedale High School volleyball players.

Kylie Farwell posted 11 digs and 16 assists Sept. 28 in the Trojans’ 3A Snake River Valley conference loss on the road at Parma.

Bryce Osborn and Megan Barraza added 14 digs apiece in a 25-22, 25-13, 25-20 loss to the Panthers.

“The girls played really well against Parma,” Van Dyke said. “I feel like we played as a team and our defense was the best I have seen it.”

Sydney Cornwall had six kills and four blocks, while Osborn also chipped in five kills.

Sept. 23: Fruitland def. Homedale, 25-19, 22-25, 25-12, 25-14 — Sydney Cornwall had seven kills and four blocks, and Caitlyn Johnson dished six assists and delivered eight digs in a conference setback at home.

“We had some great moments during the Fruitland game,” Van Dyke said. “We are improving and learning from each game.”

HMS seventh-graders move into first place

Homedale Middle School’s seventh-grade football took over sole possession of first place last week.

The Trojans walloped Weiser, 22-0, on the road Sept. 28 to improve to 3-0 in the 3A Snake River Valley conference. The Wolverines and Trojans had entered the game tied atop the standings.

Homedale (3-0 at week’s end) is now tied for the lead with Ontario, Ore., which knocked off Fruitland, 27-13, last week. The Trojans met Ontario with sole possession of first place on the line Tuesday after deadline.

The HMS eighth-grade football team edged Weiser, 12-6, to improve to 2-1. The Trojans, who won the game on a late touchdown, ended the week a game behind conference-leading Fruitland.

The regular-season finale for both squads comes Tuesday in Payette against McCain. The seventh-graders kick off at 4:15 p.m., and the eighth-grade contest follows 15 minutes after the conclusion of the opener.

The conference playoffs are scheduled for Oct. 19, but the location has yet to be determined.

Homedale swept Weiser at both grade levels on Sept. 28. Both of the Trojans’ eighth-grade teams and the seventh-grade A squad improved to 4-1. All three teams swept their Weiser counterparts, 2-0.

Homedale hosts prep rodeo

The District II high school rodeo season kicks off in Homedale this weekend.

The rodeos, set for 9 a.m. Saturday and Sunday at the Owyhee County Fairgrounds, represent a departure from recent years.

Fall rodeos have been held in New Plymouth at the Payette County Fairgrounds, but this year the season openers for the 2010-11 schedule have been moved to Homedale. The Homedale dates for the spring, usually early May, could still be held.

This weekend’s rodeos will attract competitors from all over southwest Idaho, including from high school rodeo clubs in Homedale, Marsing, Rimrock, Jordan Valley and Adrian.

According to the District II Web site, HHS student Rosie King serves as the student event director for pole bending, and Dalton Jim, who lives in Owyhee County but attends high school in Nevada, is an alternate director in saddle broncs.

Mike Pendergrass of Adrian is an adult event director for team roping.

Marsing JV stays perfect in league play with Melba win

The Marsing High School junior varsity football team notched its second win in 2A Western Idaho Conference play against Melba on Thursday night, beating the Mustangs 22-20 in a hard-fought second half.

Dillon Danner passed five times for 37 yards, completing two touchdowns and one interception during the game. Danner ended the night with 195 yards rushing. Freshman Hudson Sauer ran for 123 yards and completed a pair of two-point conversions.

“We got off to a good start and went up 8-0, and then pretty much dominated the first quarter,” Marsing coach Brad Hill said. “In the second James Miller broke his arm. He broke it somewhere near his elbow.”

Tristian Jacobi rushed for 24 yards and caught two touchdown passes and ran an 80-yard kickoff return for a touchdown. Sophomore Justin Glenn had 16 rushing yards on the night.

Jacobi recorded seven unassisted tackles and helped out on eight tackles with freshman Brayden Glenn, who had seven assists and six solo takedowns.

Charlie Galvez pulled in six tackles and seven assists.

“The third quarter we were ugly, and that about sums it up, ugly,” Hill said. “We weathered the storm in the fourth quarter and got down within the 10 and turned it over. We then got a roughing the kicker call and Melba scored on the next play taking it to 22-20. Hudson ran the ball extremely well and we hung on to win the game.”

The junior varsity takes on Cole Valley on Thursday at 4:30 p.m. at Settlers Park in Nampa.

Trojans’ JV wins sixth straight

Homedale High School broke out the quick-strike offense Thursday night to maintain a perfect junior varsity football season.

The Trojans scored in just one play on two straight first-half possessions to trigger a 40-28 3A Snake River Valley conference victory over pesky Weiser at Deward Bell Stadium.

After the offense scored on a pair of one-play drives, Homedale (6-0 overall, 2-0 3A SRV) widened its lead in the third quarter when the defense fell on fumble in the end zone by Weiser running back Flint Hickman.

The Wolverines snagged a 14-6 lead on Austin Grothuas’s 72-yard catch-and-run on a pass from Brady DeYoung.

But Homedale chipped away at the Weiser advantage over the remainder of the first half.

On the next play after Grothuas’s TD, HHS freshman running back Casey Hansen rumbled 78 yards.

Six plays later, Homedale had the ball again after the Trojans’ defense recovered the first of Hickman’s two fumbles. On the subsequent play, sophomore Kade Eiguren hauled in a 24-yard scoring strike from Matt Hetrick. Homedale converted the two-point PAT to take the lead for good, 20-14, heading into halftime.

Hetrick threw another scoring pass to Talon Frelove, covering 16 yards in the third quarter, and Hansen capped the scoring with a six-yard fourth-quarter jaunt.

Hansen finished with 139 yards on 17 carries. Hetrick threw three TD passes, including a 10-yard to Frelove for the Trojans’ first score.

Kenny Harper and Hansen paced the defense with seven tackles apiece. Harper also had a quarterback sack. Riley Qualls had a sack and recovered one of Hickman’s fumbles. Tyler Scott fell on the other.

On the edge of common sense The glory of cowboyin’

“... and the old man gave his orders, ‘Boys, go at them from the jump, no use to go for fancy riding now.’ ”

That great line from “The Man from Snowy River” by Banjo Paterson crossed my mind as I started into the thorny brush and wicked mesquite thicket on a steep slide of rocks and tangled undergrowth, chasing a big bony cow the color of a rusted coal barge.

By then we’d been in the saddle for six hours. It was 95 degrees, mid-September, grass going to seed, and every plant within 50 miles that had a stamen was pollinating!

We left the pigweed-covered corrals at daylight pushing 72 cows and assorted calves. I noticed that the ugly light-brown brockle-faced 6-year-old cow — whose history included: deserting her first calf, tearing down fences, getting loose on the highway and raising only one calf who looked like a seahorse in a paper bag — did not have her new calf. Great. We cut her back to the corral, so when we found her calf we could reunite them.

Everything went as you might expect with five cowboys trying to push a herd cross-country through mesquite, catclaw, buckthorn, arroyos and rocky ridges. Within the first miles, two cows went back looking for their calves. They’d been weaned, but they forgot. It was easier to let them go than having to take the whole crew to keep them with the bunch. We’ll get ’em later. Then one big calf came up lame and couldn’t keep up. We tried to drop her and her mama back but she wouldn’t stay, so we cut out another pokey pair for company and they stayed.

Every time we’d cross a deep arroyo or mesquite “orchard” it took a full dose of hoo-rahin’ and brush poppin’ to beat them out of the cover. It was hot already, and they were lookin’ for shade. By noon, we’d reached the Back Well. They filled up with water and we started them into some really rough country, brand-new to the cattle.

I felt like Lewis and Clark! Two miles later, over big tracts of creosote bush and whitethorn I could see the large cut bank where the rain-filled water tank was. I had a vision of Moses looking over the Grand Canyon and thinking, “We’re almost there!” It took an hour to drive the cows that last quarter-mile. That’s when I noticed that my mucho ugly brown cow had jumped the corral fence and made the eight-mile trip with us, with no calf, of course.

An hour back to the Back Well. We’d arranged for a 20-foot gooseneck to pick us up. Of course, it got stuck in the sand. An hour later, our rescue arrived. We unloaded, unhooked and pulled it out in pieces. To top it off, back at the corrals we noticed buzzards circling and found the brown cow’s calf.

As I write this, my nose is running, my knee is swollen, my shirt looks like I’ve been in a sword fight. I’ve got a gouge on my right arm, a slash across my cheek and a memory of my wore-out horse trying to roll in the muddy tank with me still in the saddle. I guess he just didn’t appreciate the glory of cowboyin’!

Not important ... but possibly of interest The pickup dog

When I was younger, I had a dream. Actually I had a lot of dreams. But there was one particular dream I concentrated on because it was attainable and pop singer Olivia Newton John wasn’t. My dream was to have a pickup truck and a pickup dog.

My dream pickup was a full-sized, made-in-the-USA model, equipped with a gas-guzzling V-8 engine. It didn’t have to have any fancy chrome roll bars or high-intensity spotlights. In those days, a “real” pickup had dents and scratches on the body and a Handyman jack and a worn irrigation shovel thrown in the back. And, of course, you had to have a pickup dog.

Dogs and pickups always have been a natural combination. Pedigree doesn’t mean a thing. What all pickup dogs have in common is a love of adventure. Some dogs seem to take to pickups better than others. An Australian shepherd is a natural. A Chihuahua isn’t. Of course, the argument can be made that a Chihuahua isn’t a dog in the first place.

A true pickup dog is born to the job. He will gladly sell his soul for a ride in the open bed of a Ford 4x4. From his post of privilege, high above the road, he can bark insults at passing vehicles and lord it over the pedestrian members of his own species. And his presence serves a purpose. A pickup dog considers the truck bed and anything in it his personal responsibility. A stranger who tries to violate that area of responsibility will probably need stitches.

Nowadays, there is a growing movement to ban pooches from riding in pickup beds because they might fall out. Animal advocates play an important role in our society, and their efforts have helped reduce abuse. But the average pickup dog isn’t forced to climb into a truck. He wants to be there. And I would bet if Fido could talk he would say he would rather have three good years with the wind in his face, roaming the countryside in the back of his master’s truck than live to a ripe old age on the end of a chain in somebody’s boring backyard.

There was a period back in the old days when we had a pickup that met my criteria. It was a big ol’ 1975 Ford three-quarter ton four-wheel-drive. Although we kept the truck for a decade, we never did get a pickup dog that didn’t get carsick.

Twenty years passed. During that period, I sometimes had a pickup, but it always a four-cylinder compact model. When I retired earlier this year, my first act was to find another full-size truck — one large enough to pull a travel trailer.

Pickups have changed during the past 25 years, and so have my tastes. I have to admit I could care less about having a “real” truck now that I have been exposed to power windows, power mirrors, power locks, power steering and air conditioning.

Our modern pickup even has an official pooch. Asher the Dog loves going for a ride. Like me, however he has developed a taste for the finer things. His idea of “roughing it” is for me to roll down the window in the back seat a little. But he refuses to wear a seat belt. Even a dog has to draw the line somewhere.

From Washington Trade barriers hinder Idaho business

Creative Idaho businesses are producing innovative products meeting the needs of consumers around the world.

PakSense manufactures and exports to 60 countries smart labels used to determine the quality and safety of products, including food and pharmaceuticals, during shipping. Exports are 25 percent of PakSense’s sales. Another Idaho company, Meyer Industries, produces a machine to humanely and environmentally-eliminate burrowing pests. Exports account for nearly half of the company’s sales and more than 30 percent of the company’s jobs. Last month, both small businesses’ export successes were recognized through U.S. Chamber of Commerce awards presented at a jobs and trade forum I co-hosted.

We hear criticism of trade, and there are negative impacts. However, exports of U.S. goods and services support U.S. jobs. Nearly one-fifth of manufacturing workers in Idaho depend on the export of goods and services for their jobs, and export-supported jobs pay statistically higher wages. Idaho companies exported more than $3.88 billion in goods and services during 2009. Replicating export successes and eliminating barriers, such as high foreign tariffs, on U.S. goods and services, are critical to improving the competitiveness of Idaho and U.S. companies, strengthening the U.S. economy and increasing U.S. jobs.

Identifying steps to achieve the goal of U.S. export expansion is an objective of the President’s Export Council (PEC), to which I was appointed. The PEC, comprised of private-sector appointees, Cabinet officials and a bipartisan group of 10 members of Congress, advises the White House on trade policy. The PEC is considering policy recommendations seeking increased U.S. access to markets. Expanding exports of U.S. goods and services has also been a focus of the Senate Finance Committee’s Subcommittee on International Trade, Customs, and Global Competitiveness, on which I serve as ranking member.

Reducing tariffs on exports of U.S. goods and services kindles business growth and competitiveness. Advancing pending free trade agreements (FTAs) with Colombia, Panama and South Korea, which provide equal access to those markets for U.S. goods, is essential to many Idaho companies. It has been estimated that, if implemented, the FTA negotiated with Colombia would increase exports of U.S. products by more than $1 billion. Idaho producers would benefit from the removal of duties on peas, lentils, dry beans, apples, cherries, potatoes, wheat, barley, prime and choice cut beef and dairy products through the agreement. The FTA with South Korea is estimated to boost exports of goods by nearly $11 billion. Additionally, the FTA with Panama would provide duty-free entry for 88 percent of U.S. exports of goods and services. These FTAs provide important market growth potential for U.S. producers, and many are rightly asking for prompt approval.

Unfortunately, the agreements have been stymied for years awaiting concrete administration action to address mostly politically motivated concerns with the agreements. Currently, the U.S. is sitting virtually idle as nations are actively pursuing trade agreements

Taking a trip could trip up your path out of debt

Dear Dave,
My husband says we can't travel to Illinois for a family reunion next summer if we're not out of debt by then. He thinks your rule is no vacations while you're getting out of debt. I think if we plan and save, it would be worth it to go. Who's right?

— Ann

Dear Ann,
It must be your family reunion we're talking about! Seriously, he's right in this case. No vacations while you're getting out of debt. You guys need to roll up your sleeves and get the job done. Still, I'm not going to be an ogre or anything about this kind of trip. I mean, we're talking about family. So, I'm OK with it if you guys work together and spend next to nothing to make it happen. But if traveling to Illinois involves $1,000 worth of plane tickets, then you're staying home, girl! If I were in your place, I'd be staying home. That's how you get out of debt. You have to get angry at it. You can't just roll along living life as usual. Live like no one else, so that later you can live like no one else. I know, you're thinking life's too short to not have some fun. Well, you're right. Life is too short. It's way too short to live your whole life being broke!

— Dave

Dear Dave,
Would you agree that pride is our biggest problem when it comes to debt?

— Brian

Dear Brian,
That's a really interesting question. I think pride is definitely toward the top of the list, but I'd say the biggest cause of debt is immaturity. One really good definition of maturity is learning to delay pleasure. When you can't wait to buy the video game, or the car, or the iPhone, then that's a sign of immaturity. It's like a 4-year-old fussing and whining, "I want it right now!" Give me a break! That kind of stuff makes me sick. But you know, pride may be the biggest reason people keep debt. People who walk around worrying about what everyone else would think if they got rid of the big house or the fancy car — worrying that everybody else would think they're broke — now that's pride. But it definitely enters into the equation.

Affairs of the State

Taxes, education show policy differences

We are in that blissful, six-weeks-out period before the November election and in Idaho once again, the fault lines between the two political parties have pretty well jelled to see the probable outcome. The differences can be seen in their different views on taxation and government spending, mostly on education. Voter preferences between Democrat Keith Allred and incumbent Republican Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter have barely changed from an early summer poll to a more recent one. Otter continues to enjoy an 18-point margin, just as he did in July, with less than 10 percent undecided. Despite the fall campaigns of both, voter opinion now seems pretty much set. In the legislative contests, the smart money says the GOP will add seats to its current 52-18 margin in the House, and may do so to its 28-7 Senate margin. Privately, Democrats suspect they will take another thumping in Idaho elections, but are keeping up a good front so as not to overly scare off even more Democratic voters from the Allred-Otter race. Allred is arguably a weaker candidate than the Democrats would have preferred, a decidedly wonkish former college professor, academic and liberal lobbyist who is wholly devoid of either business or government experience. But he's the candidate they have, no other lamb having trotted forward to bleat "take me." Idaho's political debate this fall is again about taxes and government spending, mostly as it relates to education. Allred faults Otter and the Legislature for cuts to education and failure to "close loopholes" in tax collections. He clearly means to narrow or repeal some (but not all) existing tax exemptions and to try to force the Legislature to raise taxes to support higher levels of spending on education. Otter defends the trims to government as essential to balancing Idaho's budget as Idaho's Constitution requires and trumpets the balanced budget with no major tax increases as consistent with the prudent approach to government Idaho has long expected from its state leadership. Come Nov. 2, we will see who is right on these differences, but if Idaho's political history, the mood of the electorate and the polls are any guide, Otter's view is likely the prevailing one. There is no popular call for significant tax increases. In my time in the Legislature, I have rarely had anyone say, "Steve, we want you to go to Boise and raise our taxes." I'm not hearing any of that this fall from my constituents in District 23, western Twin Falls and Owyhee counties. The current mood of the electorate is also a good indicator. People in Idaho are on fire today about deficit spending, excessive government intrusion into people's lives and higher taxes. The Obama-Democratic tide of 2008 has crested and will now be rolled back, not just in Idaho but across the country. Spenders, in whichever party, will be replaced by conservatives, just as they were in the spring primaries in Idaho. This does not bode well for Allred. Allred says current sales tax exemptions are all "on the table," but he hasn't mentioned several from which he or his family business may well benefit. One production exemption covers materials used in production of goods for resale, including, it would seem, the educational materials produced by Positive Action, a Twin Falls company started by Allred's mother that sells self-esteem educational materials to schools. It seems unlikely Allred will call for removing that exemption. Nor is he likely to touch exemptions for materials produced by non-profit entities, such as reports and policy papers from his own lobby, The Common Interest, or the exemption schools get for buying educational materials, such as those produced by Positive Action. We'll wait for his announcement on these and other items, but it seems likely he'll focus on removing exemptions that benefit others. So much for his call that "everything" is on the table. Indeed, it's a fair question of which sales taxes Allred and these entities actually pay. When legislators return to Boise in January, we're likely to face a slow economic recovery, which will mean we will need to keep our pencils sharp. Even with a static recovery, costs continue to rise and just "staying even" with Idaho's governmental costs means we will need to find further cuts and maybe revenue. Further trims to state government costs are likely, while tax increases, if any, will likely be minimal and focused. This is the kind of fiscal responsibility Idahoans expect of their government, and that is what they will continue to vote for and receive. Elections have real consequences and this one, although intense, is really no different. If Allred wins, taxes are going up. It's pretty much as simple as that, and that's why Allred won't win.

— Rep. Stephen Hartgen (R-Twin Falls) represents Owyhee and western Twin Falls counties in the Idaho House of Representatives.

✓ Crapo: Innovation is best for our nation's workers and small businesses

throughout the world leaving U.S. producers, businesses and workers at a competitive disadvantage. A productive and speedy elimination of market barriers to U.S. innovation is best for our nation's workers and small businesses. I will continue to press the administration to progress in working with Congress to advance the agreements. Even with our successes, there is enormous further potential for Idaho exports. Idahoans are producing inventive goods and high-quality agriculture products sought around the world. Idahoans are exporting television equipment to Malaysia and France, vegetables to Hungary, aircraft parts to Kenya, furniture and bedding to India, photography equipment to Italy, fertilizer to New Zealand and much more. Letting loose U.S. innovation by removing impediments to U.S. export growth, including advancing free trade agreements, can best ensure the full realization of this potential.

Snail considered for endangered list

Add this to the list of interesting things about Owyhee County. The US Fish and Wildlife Service is currently considering an “endangered species” designation for the Bruneau hot springs snail.

The snail (family Hydrobiidae) can be found in several hot springs near Bruneau and their immediate outflows. The animal in question reaches only 5 millimeters in length and the first known collection of the species were made in the early 1950s by Dr. Dwight Taylor of Tiburon, Calif.

“We’ve never had a snail or invertebrate on the endangered species list in Idaho,” said Jay Gore, assistant field supervisor for Fish and Wildlife Service in Boise. The snail is a completely different genus and species from those recorded and while it is normally a coldwater snail, has managed to adapt to the hot water environment of the springs, he said. While the snails are not presently threatened, the Federal agency is concerned about agricultural use of water above the springs that could completely drain the various springs, said Gore. A number of snails have been taken to aquariums at Boise State University in the event that they must be introduced into more springs.

Owyhee County receives PILT funds

Owyhee County picked up $318,521 from the Department of the Interior for “payment in lieu of taxes” of PILT payments, around $6,000 more than expected, said County Clerk Barbara Jayo.

The money was a share of $101,093,318 which was distributed to 1,917 local government units, in compensation of the fiscal impacts by the presence of tax-exempt Federal lands within their boundaries. Idaho received $7,320,888 of the total.

The Owyhee payment was $6,000 more than anticipated and will go into the current expense fund for the county, said Jayo. 3,658,720 acres of Federal land in the county, at 10-cents an acre, produced the sum with a certain holdback, she said. The money is influenced by a population ceiling also. Twin Falls County, with a larger population, was given $457,372; Elmore County with fewer government lands but the existence of the Air Force base, received $569,967, she said.

Miller takes bronze in competition

A Marsing-raised man displayed a rare amount of courage in the face of a painful injury at the Six-Day Enduro competition in Spain last week, the acknowledged Olympics of off-road motorcycle racing.

Jeff Miller, 21, Boise and formerly of Marsing, competed in the event, taking a possible bronze medal, although his foot was broken during the last three days. The Six-Day Enduro was held from Sept. 30 through Oct. 5 and covered up to 250 miles of grueling off-road racing each day.

News of Jeff’s accomplishments arrived each day over the phone from Alp, Spain in the Pyrenees Mountains, said Jolene Miller, wife of Jeff’s father, Roy. The racers were given only 15 minutes in the morning and the evening to repair their motorcycles. Any major break, such as transmission, would have spelled the end for the competitor.

Grand View community happenings

Connie Collett of Grand View, recently traveled to Washington, D.C. to attend the National Campaign against Toxic Hazards. She and other concerned citizens from around the country, brought water and dirt samples from more than 100 residential sites near hazardous waste dumps.

The delegation presented Congress with a petition, containing more than a million signatures that called for stronger Superfund law.

They wanted clauses added to the law concerning citizens’ rights, mandatory schedules for cleanup, and permanent treatment technology, safely disposing of water at the source.

Connie is currently co-chairman of Citizens for Control of Toxic Waste in Grand View.

Two runs made by fire dept.; damage minor

The Homedale Rural Fire Department was called out twice this week. Friday night the truck was called to the Austrian settlement, where a fire had started burning a chicken coop belonging to Mr. and Mrs. John Fisher. The blaze was under control when the firemen arrived.

A fire burning out of control in pasture land just across the railroad tracks from Cook’s Crop-Boosters called the department out Monday afternoon. Firemen were able to put the fire out in the south end of the pasture but had to come back through town in order to reach the fire in the north end, which had just reached a corral as they arrived on the scene.

N. E. George, chairman of the Owyhee County Farmers for Kennedy-Johnson Committee, has named the following persons from this area to serve as members of his committee: Mrs. Helen Chadez, Neil Walker, G. T. Parker, Ross Evans, Ray Goin, Carl Holmes and Ralph Lineberger. Members from other sections of the county will be named at a later date.

The committee, to be organized of farm men and women, will contact the families of the county and urge their support for Kennedy in the election.

Trojans’ record broken; edged by Marsing 14-13

Marsing’s Huskies bounced the Homedale Trojans from the undefeated ranks Friday with a 14-13 SRV-B league gridiron victory. The defeat was Homedale’s first since 1958 and ended the Trojans’ win streak of 13 games.

It was Marsing high school’s Homecoming game and marked the Huskies’ second win of the season. The winning touchdown came in the fourth quarter when Harrison Welty cracked over from the two and then added the victory-clinching extra point with two minutes left in the game.

George Purdom put the Trojans out front in the opening quarter, and in the second period he tallied again from the eight to make the score 13-7 at halftime. Tom Breshears scored Marsing’s first TD in the second quarter on a four-yard run.

Flag presented to junior high by Rep. Budge

Rep. Hamer Budge, R-Idaho, presented a 50-star flag to Homedale junior high at a special junior high and Lincoln school ceremony held Tuesday afternoon on the front lawn of the grade school.

After the introduction by Principal Clare Walker, Congressman Budge gave a short talk in which he stressed the role of the students in the greatest country, our flag as the symbol of that greatness, and the keen need for the students to have a deep feeling of interest and appreciation of our country — which offers far more for all than any communistic form of government. Mr. Budge then presented the flag, which had flown over the U. S. Capitol last July 4, the day this flag became official.

Larry Stansell, student body president, accepted the flag in behalf of students and staff members of the junior high. Jim Love, sergeant-at-arms, and Larry Brown raised the new flag while the junior high band played the national anthem. Jim Love then led the group in the pledge to the flag.

Supt. Richard Frazier, Roy Vance, Mr. Walker, president, accompanied Rep. Budge to the speaker’s platform.

Following the ceremony the congressman met with the student council and talked about the life of a congressman and life in Washington, D.C.

Refreshments were served by the council under direction of Mrs. Edwena Regan.

“COAL OIL” Johnny Steele is said to have received a letter requesting his instructions concerning twenty thousand dollars which he deposited in a New York bank during the high day of his prosperity and which he had utterly forgotten. Ever since we read this paragraph we have been trying to remember if we ever put twenty thousand dollars anywhere and then forgot about it. We have been so careless when we have had these little sums about us, that such a thing seems extremely probable. Anybody who finds such a sum belonging to us will hear something to his advantage by calling at this office with the money in his pocket. No questions asked.
