Uda receives Homedale honor

Park dedicated for woman who did much for city

The secret's finally out.

After months of clandestine planning, friends and family surprised longtime Homedale contributor Bette Uda with an engraved stone renaming City Park in her honor.

The stone was unveiled Monday night when her family took Uda to a dedication ceremony attended by current city officials and people whose lives have been touched by her half-century of work in a variety of capacities.

"I have always thought she deserved to be recognized for her dedication, but I was also looking for a way to let the generations yet to come know of what she has meant to Homedale," Bette's son, Terry, said.

Terry's dream to honor his 87-year-old mother evolved after a February phone conversation with friend Jeff Bull.

"I was basically thinking out loud about ways to honor Mom. I mentioned the idea of having a park named after her," Terry said. "The more I thought about it, the more it made complete sense since she took care of the Homedale parks for so long."

Homedale Legion sponsors park ceremony

Students at Marsing High School have organized a remembrance assembly commemorating the 10th anniversary of the attacks on the United States that took place on Sept. 11, 2001.

On Friday, students and teachers will host an appreciation assembly at 8 a.m. in the gymnasium at Marsing Elementary School. Along with the students and staff, community members are invited to attend the remembrance.

The assembly will focus on remembering the sacrifices that firefighters, emergency medical service personnel and law

Emergency services personnel will be remembered with a traditional ceremony Sunday to begin Homedale's commemoration of the 10th anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

A program sponsored by the George D. VanDerhoff American Legion Post 32 in Homedale begins at noon at City Park.

"The ceremony will begin with recognition of the emergency services personnel who were lost that dreadful day with a century-old firehouse tradition, the ringing of the 'Four Fives'," VanDerhoff Legion Commander Robert Keaveny

Mtn. View Church of the Nazarene also marks 80th anniversary during Sunday event

Sunday's Family Fair and Round-Up will honor perseverance and commitment.

The fourth annual Mountain View Church of the Nazarene event at the Owyhee County Fairgrounds will salute "Our Heroes in Service", and organizers have invited firefighters and emergency service personnel from Vale to Jordan Valley and the mayors of all the region's towns — including Homedale, Marsing and Wilder — to attend as guests of honor.

"We'll be honoring all civil servants in the area and honoring our service people," event publicity officer Jo Howell said.

The opening ceremony will include a somber remembrance of those who perished in the Sept. 11, 2001 terrorist attacks and those who have fought and died since then.

Admission is free for the daylong event of worship, reflection, food and games, which runs from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Door prize drawings take place at 1 p.m., 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. at the Tumbleweed Theatre. Every person who comes through the gate gets a ticket. Prizes range from $200 gift cards for fuel (Matteson's) and food (Paul's Markets) to a couples getaway to the Ashley Inn to a spa package to dinner for two at McGrath's Fish House.

City candidates begin to file

Friday is final day to enter city elections

Irrigation district filing begins Friday

Prospective city office candidates have until Friday to file nomination papers. All three mayoral positions in Owyhee County are on the Nov. 8 ballot.

There are two city council spots each up for election in Homedale and Marsing. Both are four-year positions. Incumbent Eino Hendrickson and former Homedale Police officer Steve Atkins have filed to seek slots on the Homedale council. Former multiple-term mayor Paul Fink will challenge incumbent Harold Wilson for the chief executive's job. In Marsing, incumbent Stella Bush will seek re-election to the council, and former Owyhee County Sheriff's deputy Chris Even also has filed.

No other filings have been reported in either city's election. Grand View will have three council positions on the ballot, including a pair of two-year terms and a four-year term. City Clerk Helana (Lani) Race reported Wednesday that former city councilperson Opal Ward has declared for November's election. Ward is the current president of the Grand View Water and Sewer Association board of directors. She served on the city council from 2007 to 2009.

Hopefuls have until 5 p.m. Friday to file for the election. Petitions are to be turned into the clerk at City Hall for the respective elections. Candidates have until Sept. 23 to withdraw from the election. The deadline to file as a write-in candidate is Oct. 11.

Voter pre-registration is available until Oct. 14. Election Day registration will be available. The deadline to request a mail-in absentee ballot is 5 p.m., Nov. 2.

Irrigation elections

Friday is the first day qualified candidates can pick up nomination forms for the Division 2 directorship of the Grand View Irrigation District.

If more than one person files paperwork, an election will be held on Nov. 8. The candidacy filing deadline is 3:30 p.m. Sept. 29.

Petitions will be available from district secretary Dixie McDaniel at 645 Idaho St., in Grand View. For more information, call the district office at (208) 834-2350.

Buster Ridley is the Division 2 incumbent in Grand View.

The Gem and Ridgeview districts in western Owyhee County and Malheur County already has announced filing deadlines.

Candidates for Gem Division 1 and Division 2 directorships and for the Ridgeview position currently held by Garold Johnston of Adrian can file with secretary Connie Chadez until Sept. 29.

Gem Division 1 Director Kelly Lootens of Marsing and Division 2 Director Dave Shenk of Homedale are up for re-election.

Nomination petitions for both district elections can be picked up at the South Board of Control office, 118 S. 1st Ave. W.

For more information, call (208) 337-3760.

Malheur elections

The candidate filing period for Malheur County's 2012 primary election begins Thursday.

Voters in the Jordan Valley and Adrian areas are eligible to participate in the May 15 primary.

The filing deadline is 5 p.m. on March 6.

Local offices on the ballot include County Commissioner No. 2, sheriff and assessor. Nomination forms are available at the county clerk's office in Vale or online at www.oregonvotes.org. County candidates may file by declaration, submitting a $50 filing fee or by nominating position.

All three carry four-year terms with only the commissioner office, currently held by Republican Louis Wettstein, being a partisan position.

Brian Wolfe, who took over when Andy Bentz retired last month, is currently sheriff. David Ingram is the incumbent assessor.

District Attorney Daniel Norris and Circuit Court Judge Patricia Sullivan both are up for re-election to their non-partisan posts. The DA serves for four years, while judges serve for six.

At the state level, Dist. 30 state Sen. Ted Ferrioli and Dist. 60 Rep. Cliff Bentz, both Republicans, face re-election. Senators serve for four years, and representatives for two.

Nomination petitions for the DA, judge and state Legislature elections are to be filed with the Secretary of State's office.

Owyhee elections

Owyhee County Clerk Charlotte Sherburn said that Idaho's Secretary of State Office hasn't released the 2012 election calendar yet.

Owyhee County offices set for the May primary ballot include those currently held by Sheriff Daryl Crandall, Prosecuting Attorney Douglas D. Emery and District 1 Commissioner Jerry Hoagland.

Tweens and teens library activities return

With the start of the school comes the resumption of the Homedale Public Library's Tween & Teen Progra each Tuesday.

The September theme is "Around the World."

Tuesday — Tweens and teens will learn about maps, flags, and governments around the world. Each of the tweens and teens will draw their own map of a country from their imagination, design a flag for their country and decide what type of government their country will have.

Sept. 20 — The group will learn about different armies from around the world and from history. They'll also learn about the dress of the soldiers and citizens of different countries from around the world. Using the countries and flags from the previous week and the knowledge gained, participants will design soldier uniforms, and dress and costumes for the everyday citizens of their fantasy countries.

Sept. 27 — The group will hold a scavenger hunt. Using the library, the tweens and teens will answer questions about different parts of the world and questions about what they learned from the previous two weeks. The first participant (or team) to answer all of the questions correctly wins a prize.

The Tweens and Teens program is open to ages 10-17. Hourlong programs start at 6 p.m. each Tuesday.

Snacks are provided each night.

All crafts created by Tween & Teen participants will be displayed at the library.

Donations to keep the program going also are welcome, according to coordinator Sara Martin.

Call Martin at the library, 337-4228, afternoons from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. for more information.

The library is located at 125 W. Owyhee Ave.

Story Time set for Friday

Story Time at Homedale Public Library will feature "A Splendid Friend Indeed" by Suzanne Bloom. The preschool reading and activity time begins at 10:15 a.m. on Friday.

This week's story features Bear and the difficulties he has trying to read, write or think as his buddy, Goose, bothers him.

There will be songs, refreshments and crafts.

Call the library in the afternoons for more information.

South Board of Control manager Ron Kiester looks at a map of the work expected to begin in a few weeks on area canals and laterals.

Irrigation season to end no later than Oct. 21

With above-average snowpack and a wet spring, local irrigation districts will keep water flowing in local canals until October.

The joint board consisting of Ridgeview and Gem Irrigation districts along with South Board of Control made a collaborative decision to keep irrigation flowing until Friday, October 21, SBOC manager Ron Kiester said.

Keister said the exact day might change depending on the weather. “If it starts raining and gets colder we could make the shutoff earlier in October,” Keister said.

Last year, SBOC shut off irrigation water on Oct. 8.

Irrigation district set to begin work upgrading, revamping system

Federal grant allows South Board to install nearly 10,000 feet of pipe

Irrigation lines on the western side of Owyhee County will start to see some activity in early October as the South Board of Control begins installing nearly 10,000 feet of enclosed pipe to upgrade is system and conserve water.

Ron Kiester, SBOC manager, said the paperwork for the WaterSmart grant offered through the Bureau of Reclamation is in the process of being signed and will allow them to begin work on two-year project.

“We received a $300,000 matching grant which allows us to convert laterals to gravity pressurized irrigation,” Kiester said. “Most everything we match with will be through the installation process of the project.”

Keister said during the course of the two-year project between 600 and 700 acres of farm ground will be converted to a pressurized system. With the new system, the 29-year irrigation veteran expects some producers will be able to utilize more of their ground.

“Last year when we enclosed some of the other areas, some farmers were able to use five to six acres of land after the project completed,” Kiester said. “Once we got the pipe in, it opened up some ground where the old laterals ran across property and farmers had ponds for their pumps.”

The project will focus on the 5.7 canal and the 4.3 lateral, and will eliminate the nearly three miles of the 4.3 lateral with 27- and 24-inch pipe. The 5.7 canal and 4.3 lateral begin off of Gulley Road outside of Homedale.

“The open lateral will become a closed system,” Kiester said. “This will create a gravity-flow pressurized system and eliminate a lot of the upkeep on the canals and laterals.”

Throughout the two-year project, Kiester said crews would install as much pipe as time allows during the non-growing months.

Last year, South Board received a $42,000 regional WaterSmart grant that allowed for new screen filters and pipe to be installed for the start of the gravity-flow pressurized system. That work will be completed with this year’s award.

“They don’t just hand these grants out,” Kiester said. “Off and on, it was at least two to three weeks putting everything together to apply for these grants and get all the information rounded up. There are huge benefits for everyone involved.”

Kiester said with last year’s project and the upcoming one, electricity costs for producers will be cut because they won’t have to use their pumps as much, there will be less maintenance in the spring when they start the flows, and it will allow for more water to be delivered to the farmers.

“There will be a lot less maintenance on the canals and laterals,” Kiester said. “The more you do, the better it becomes. We won’t have to be out there burning and spraying weeds as much, which cuts down on all the chemicals being used.

“The water quality increases dramatically going to the enclosed system. It cuts down on the amount of chemicals used to kill the moss and weeds throughout the canal and lateral system. For the district as whole, it is a huge benefit to everyone involved.”

Buildings in Marsing, Homedale turned on to solar

Final municipal site put online Wednesday

The final touches of putting two Homedale city buildings on solar power have been completed.

Derek Jackson from Aurora Power and Design flipped the switch to start up the solar array on top of the Homedale Public Library on Wednesday.

The final examination by State of Idaho electrical inspector Geret Robinson — also carried out Wednesday afternoon — was one of the last pieces of the puzzle that will allow some public buildings in Homedale and Marsing to generate their own operating power after the installation of solar arrays on the roofs.

Two weeks ago, Mayor Harold Wilson announced that Homedale City Hall had been connected to the Idaho Power grid. The city maintenance shop in Marsing also has been hooked up, although Jackson said Wednesday that some minor work remained.

Scott Gates, renewable energy specialist with Idaho Power, explained that the new setups will feature a production meter and a consumption meter, allowing officials to determine how much energy a building is generating as well as how much it is using.

Jackson said that a Web monitoring system also will be created in the coming weeks so the energy consumption and generation of the buildings can be tracked online, including on computers in city offices.

The project, funded by federal stimulus dollars, was part of a $978,385 Energy Efficiency and Conservation Block Grant awarded by the state Office of Energy Resources and facilitated by the City of Parma. The grant program was part of the federal government’s American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009.

Andersen Construction was the general contractor on the work that included installing solar arrays on city buildings in Homedale, Marsing, Parma, Greenleaf, Notus and Mountain Home.

Homedale’s portion of the grant was nearly $260,000. Marsing’s project cost more than $133,000.

Keep informed.

Marsing science teacher grabs INL grant to aid in classroom experience

Deidra Little receives one of 22 awards statewide

Providing a hands-on learning experience in science is fundamental for the progression and understanding of students. Marsing Middle School teacher Deidra Little will put the wheels in motion to give students this opportunity with her recent grant.

The Idaho National Laboratory recently awarded teachers statewide with 22 INL Mini Grants to improve science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) education in grades K-12.

Through the STEM grants, INL has dispersed nearly $29,000 into Idaho schools.

Heading into her second year in Marsing, Little picked up $1,989 in funding to aid with classroom materials and science projects for students in the middle school.

“The biggest thing is to provide the hands-on learning experiences while making science fun and engaging the students in science,” she said. “I try to provide as many hands-on learning experiences for the students as possible.”

The award is just shy of the $2,000 max for the grant. Little plans on using the bulk of the money to purchase Elenco Snap Circuits and then use the balance to obtain laboratory equipment.

“With Elenco Snap Circuits, you can do at least a hundred different designs with these circuits. Students can design their own pathways and one is an alternative energy solar and wind energy lesson,” she said. “I had a kit on loan from Idaho Power last year. At that station, I had a hard time moving the kids onto the other areas. They really like the snap circuits.

“The students really got it in my head to get more of them for this year. I am totally excited to have them, plus I want to play with them myself.”

Little said the overall objective for the grant will be grouping the kids and having them do project-based learning activities using critical thinking skills while creating a meaningful lesson.

“In the application, I had to provide detailed purpose along with researching the equipment and how I was going to utilize it,” she said. “At the end of the year, I have to write a report detailing how the money was used.”

According to the grant website, funding for INL’s Mini Grant program comes from Battelle Energy Alliance, a nonprofit organization that operates the lab in Eastern Idaho for the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE).

“The money is going quickly after buying the circuits and other parts necessary,” Little said. “I am hoping that I can go for the grant again next year and get a few more things that are needed for the classroom.”

Citizens group to meet on Gateway West

A group of Owyhee County citizens working on suggestions for Gateway West powerline alternatives will hold two meetings this week.

The first public meeting regarding the proposed 500-kilovolt electrical transmission line is set for 7 p.m. today at the Oreana Community Hall, 18092 Oreana Loop Road.

A second meeting will take place at 7 p.m. Thursday at Rimrock Jr.-Sr. High School, 39678 State Hwy. 78 in Bruneau.

Group member Leah Osborn said the public is invited to take part in a discussion for a plan of action on Idaho Power’s proposed powerline, the route of which could cross private property in Bruneau, Grand View, Oreana and Murphy.

The Bureau of Land Management has scheduled a public meeting on the powerline’s draft Environmental Impact Study (DEIS).

That meeting will be held from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 15 at the Owyhee County Historical Museum, 17085 Basey St., in Murphy.

✓ Uda: City comes together to pay tribute to key figure

The first surprise came when Bull called Terry back a week later.

“He called me and said he had talked to some people at City Hall, and they all loved the idea,” Terry said.

What began as an idea to name a street after the first woman to serve on the city council and keeper of the city’s parks morphed into a monument at the East Idaho Avenue open space.

“She was on the council and she put a lot of her work, time and money into that park to keep it clean. She worked personally on it,” Mayor Harold Wilson said. “She meant everything to the city when (Bette and her husband Ben, who died in 2009) lived in town, and even when they left town she worked at the park and took care of it.”

Wilson and his wife, Mary, have known Bette since 1963.

Monday’s ribbon-cutting finalized Terry’s dream. The stone reads:

“Bette Uda City Park. This park was officially renamed in 2011 to honor Mrs. Uda for her selfless dedication to the city.”

The planning and creation of the stone probably was the easiest part of the project.

Terry was determined to keep his mom in the dark about the situation, asking the Avalanche to stay mum after his visit to the city council months ago and then launching a Facebook campaign to spread the word without tipping off Mom. Within a week of the page’s launch, nearly 90 people had visited and added it to their favorites. Many left messages, too.

“No one is more deserving ... She has always been one of my favorite people,” Shannon Johnson wrote.

City public works supervisor Larry Bauer played a role in guarding the secret, too. He posted on Facebook that he would visit the park daily to ensure the tarp remained snug and secure on the rock by which Bette drives each week on her way to work as a Homedale schools cook. It has been in place since the third week of August.

City Park seemed the natural place to honor Bette, who worked tirelessly at the park and also recycled newspapers to get funds for other city- and school-related projects.

“I wish we had somebody today that could work like that,” Wilson said. “She didn’t ask for any help. She did it all herself and put a lot of her own money into the park.

Uda dedicated to making Homedale better

Bette Uda was honored Monday for a lifetime of helping all facets of Homedale life.

“Bette saw what needed to be done, set her mind to it, and didn’t stop until she made it happen and never ever wanted any credit,” Mil Shanley wrote on the Bette Uda City Park Facebook page created by Bette’s son, Terry.

“Just making Homedale a better place was all the thanks she ever needed. She truly loves Homedale, and for Bette, love is a verb.”

The first woman elected to the Homedale City Council, Uda served for 10 years and left only after she and her husband, Ben, moved the family out of the city limits.

During her time on the council, Uda oversaw the city’s parks and recreation department.

She launched a recycling program in the 1970s, turning in newspaper and aluminum cans to finance numerous park improvements, including:

- The concrete pad and a dozen picnic tables at City Park
- Bicycle racks at the parks and the public library
- Stands and canopy at the city pool
- Computers and printers for the public library
- Landscaping at parks and around the city
- Playground equipment

- The City Park tennis courts
- The original “Welcome to Homedale” sign

Uda collected cans from city residents and newspapers from The Owyhee Chronicle. She’s also go out into the county and pick up the recyclable material from farmers.

She hauled the cache to recyclers in Nampa or Caldwell herself — usually in her husband’s pickup truck.

“One hundred percent of these funds went to the City of Homedale,” Terry said. “She would pay for the gas herself. Sometimes she had so many recyclables, we would have to load up Dad’s beet truck.”

Uda’s beautification efforts financed by the recycling stretched beyond her time on the council. Her son estimates she logged more than 1,000 hours of volunteer time during the 15- to 20-year labor of love.

She often enlisted local teens, hiring them for the summer, to help with improvement efforts.

“I worked for a program when I was about 15 to beautify the city, and Bette was my supervisor,” Homedale Middle School teacher Shannon Johnson wrote on Facebook. “She was an incredible role model to me, showing me what true hard work looks like.

“I still see her working in the middle school lunch room and am amazed at her work ethic.”

Uda’s contribution to the Homedale School District continues today. The 87-year-old has been a school cook for the past 30 years.

Uda was one of the founding figures for the Homedale International Smorgasbord and served as chair for the Oriental booth for more than a quarter-century.

She served with the PTA for many years and also supplied the cape and tiara for Homecoming royalty for a decade.

Through it all, Uda’s focus was on the community, and promoting the good aspects of Homedale. She served a local newspaper reporter.

“She would get the names and details, take the photos, go home and write the story and develop the pictures herself,” Terry said. “Then we would jump in the car and deliver it all to the news desk before the deadline.”

Uda also served as Chamber of Commerce secretary and is credited with helping start the Christmas wish list program for Owyhee Health and Rehabilitation.

“I couldn’t even begin to talk about what she has done and continues to do for friends and family,” Terry said.

“I can only hope and pray that I have one-quarter of her ability to give of herself to others.”

✓ Marsing: Fundraiser set enforcement made during the attacks on the World Trade Center in New York.

Marsing student council officers will each take part in reading about America, using the word as an acronym. After the reading, there will be a video tribute honoring first-responders.

After the video, a student council officer will discuss the importance of volunteering specifically in the community and remind attendees how Sept. 11 is a national day of service. After the discussion, a video about volunteers’ efforts after Sept. 11 will be shown.

Students who have parents and family members who are currently serving or have served in the Armed Forces will be recognized.

The schools will recognize the Marsing fire department and ambulance service along with the Owyhee County Sheriff’s Office during the assembly with a plaque thanking them for their service.

A one-minute period of silence will be observed to conclude the assembly to pay respect for military and first-responders.

Students from the three schools are also competing in a penny drive to raise money for the Boise Veterans Administration Hospital. The fundraiser will run through Thursday, and the winner will be announced during the assembly.

✓ Homedale: Remembering events of 9/11 wrote in a press release.

“This tradition stems from when firehouses communicated with the ringing of bells. Four sets of five rings meant that a firefighter was lost in the line of duty.”

The ceremony will remember the first-responders who died on the scene at the World Trade Center in New York City. The people killed in the attack on the Pentagon and in the crash of United Flight 93 in Shanksville, Pa., also will be remembered.

As part of the National September 11th Commemoration, churches are asked to pause for silent reflection at the exact times of the attacks:

- 8:45 a.m. for those who died when American Airlines Flight

11 struck the North Tower of the World Trade Center

- 9:03 a.m. for those who died when United Airlines Flight 175 struck the South Tower of the World Trade Center

- 9:43 a.m. to remember those who died when American Airlines Flight 77 crashed into the Pentagon in Washington D.C.

- 10 a.m. for the people who died on United Airlines Flight 93 when passengers tried to overtake the terrorist hijackers

In addition to remembering the military personnel who have died in Iraq and Afghanistan since the 9/11 attacks, the City Park ceremony also will remember those men and women who are still serving in the Armed Forces.

The City of Homedale will receive a Blue Star Service Banner to be hung in the window at City Hall to show support for the town’s residents on active duty with the military.

“As a nation united, we must remain committed to supporting the men and women of our armed forces as they serve with honor and courage,” Keaveny said.

Keaveny points out that the 10th anniversary commemoration should go beyond attending a ceremony or moments of reflection.

“Everyone is urged to fly your flags that day, and remember the way you felt as patriotic Americans after 9-11, 2001,” he said.

✓ Round-Up: Injured Adrian horseman to recount remarkable recovery

More raffle tickets can be obtained by giving non-perishable food items or cash to the Love INC charity drive held during the Fair and Round-Up. Every $5 donated earns another ticket.

The Family Fair and Round-Up will feature a roping competition and live music, too. Both start at 1 p.m.

Registration for team roping and break-away roping is from 8:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. It costs $15 per entry, and prizes include commemorative buckles for first place and a concho for runners-up.

Ozark Mountain Music and Homedale native Betty Adams, will provide music before the 10:30 a.m. Grand Entry and Cowboy Church in the rodeo arena.

The Grand Entry will feature flags of all the Armed Services and a civil service flag created by church member Eula Dunn.

Pastor Chuck Ryan will deliver his sermon “Jesus, Greatest Servant of All”. The church is celebrating its 80th anniversary.

Adrian, Ore., horseman Matt Zimmerman, seriously injured in a horse-training accident last month, will give a partial testimony about his recovery.

“He had less than a 50 percent chance of living, and he was in church Sunday with a walker,” Howell said. “That was amazing.”

Several church groups will sell food items to benefit ministries:

- The Men’s Ministries will sell a BBQ full meal deal. Hot dog and salad sales from the Dog Waggin’, which is owned by the church’s children’s pastor, Erica Perry, and her husband, Zach, also will benefit the Men’s Ministries.
- The Angel Tree Ministry and monthly homeless shelter luncheon will benefit from the taco booth.

- Breakfast featuring Krispy Kreme doughnuts and dessert offerings such as pie and cobbler and ice cream will be sold to benefit Nazarene Missions International.
- The Teen Refuge Center and its 2012 mission trip will be funded through popcorn and Italian soda sales.

From 2 p.m. to 4 p.m., games and activities for children and teens will be offered.

Melba Lee Friel Yost

The family of Melba Yost would like to invite you to join us for a memorial service to celebrate her life on Saturday, September 10th at 1:00 p.m. at the Fargo Cemetery in Wilder, Idaho. Melba passed away at home on July 30, 2011. She was 25 days short of her 80th birthday.

Melba was born August 24, 1931 in Moundville, Missouri, the eldest daughter of Ora and Fay Friel. She started the first grade in Windsor, Missouri and attended several schools in Washington, Oregon, and Idaho as the family moved where her dad could get a job as an ironworker. She graduated from Homedale High School in 1949 as Valedictorian and was active in cheerleading, drama, many clubs, and editor of the school paper and yearbook. Following graduation she worked as a telephone operator in Boise.

Melba married Charles Edwin Yost on June 24, 1951 in Homedale and moved to the Yost homestead where they lived and raised their family, teaching the kids the value of hard work and importance of strong family relationships, both important qualities of Melba and Chuck. We grew up in the best home and family anyone could ever want, feeling safe and very loved, for which we will be forever grateful.

Melba and Chuck farmed in Homedale/Wilder area for 35 years, moved to Aberdeen with Chuck's job as manager of Aberdeen Springfield Canal Company, and returned to Caldwell in 1997 to spend their retirement years, keeping busy with the activities of their grandchildren. Melba loved family activities, and the family went on many camping and fishing trips and vacations to the beach, one of her favorite places.

She was a Girl Scout leader, helped with 4-H projects, active in PTA, was chairman of the Smorgasbord and other activities, and was a room mother many times. She was an enthusiastic Trojan booster while the kids were in school, attending every sporting event locally and out of town and usually taking a few extra kids along.

She was a member of Homedale Beta Sigma Phi and helped to organize the first kindergarten in Homedale, making tables, chairs and bookcases.

She enjoyed playing bridge and visits with friends. She valued her friendships and was always grateful to receive phone calls from her friend Wasalea, who she said always called at the right time and knew the right things to say. Melba liked remodeling and had a lot of ideas she wanted to try, sometimes taking out a wall here and there. She painted the kids' houses, her nephew's house, and one neighbor's house, and was very handy at roofing. She and Chuck built a two-story playhouse for their granddaughters, something the girls still talk about.

She loved to go to family picnics which included our grandparents, aunts, uncles, and cousins and once said she liked it best when there were kids in the house and it was so noisy you couldn't hear yourself think. Melba enjoyed family reunions in Missouri, Ohio, Oregon, and Colorado and looked forward to receiving Christmas letters telling about the activities of her aunts, uncles and cousins and their kids.

Melba was a perfect grandmother, spoiling her grandchildren and stating it was her right to do so. She colored, put together puzzles, and read to them and was on speed dial for the Washington grandkids who called her many times to tell on their mother.

Chuck and Melba attended every local sport and school event the grandkids were involved in and traveled to Washington for the activities of the grandkids there. After they all graduated, Melba said life was so boring with no games to watch but looked forward to the great-grandkids being involved in their activities. She recently traveled to Portland to see her great-grandson, Peyton, perform his first solo.

Melba enjoyed traveling and she and Chuck went all over the U.S., enjoying the historical sites and architecture and walking in the sand on both coasts. She recently traveled to Ireland with her daughter and granddaughters to explore the Friel family roots.

Melba is survived by daughters Cindy (Gary) Bird and Amy (Dennis) Saijo, son Blair (Laurie) Yost, grandchildren Amanda Theissen, Sheena and Taryn Saijo, Kasey (Samantha), Korey (Rhonda), Chase (Sarah), and Karissa Yost, Kassi (Herbert) McDowell and Tyson (Lisa) Ruff and great-grandchildren Peyton Theissen, Aaliyah, Aayden, Kiyan and Conner Yost, sister and brother-in-law Wanda and Looney Spath, sister-in-law Shirley Friel, sister-in-law and brother-in-law Mary and Bill Marston, and 12 nieces and nephews and their families.

She was preceded in death by her parents, husband Chuck, daughter Alicia Jan, brother Marvin Friel, sister Myrna Taylor, father- and mother-in-law Harold and Edith Yost, and nephew Doug Marston.

Melba was an example to us all to value life and live it to the fullest. She had her first heart surgery at the age of 44, followed by several more through the years, and was determined to not let her health limit her activities. She had been ill recently but continued to spend as much time as possible with her family, enjoying the antics of her great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials be made to your favorite charity.

God looked upon his garden and found an empty place, He put his arms around you and lifted you to rest, you left us beautiful memories, your love is still our guide, and though we cannot see you, you are always at our side.

Virginia "Brownie" White

Virginia "Brownie" White, 89, of Homedale, passed away at home Wednesday, August 31, 2011.

Brownie was born on October 11, 1921 to Elmer and Margaret Haynes in Melba, Idaho and was raised in in the Melba-Glendale area. In 1942 she married Westley Curly White and together they had four children.

Brownie had many hobbies;

she was a craftswoman and a rock hound. She was a member of the Homedale Gem and Mineral Society and TOPS. She also made beautiful crocheted doll clothes. Brownie loved to pen poetry and was an avid reader, going through a book a day for many years.

Brownie is survived by her four sons, Elmer (Vickie) White, Danny (Vickey) White, Allen (Alice Pegram) White and Denver (Kim Wells) White, her two sisters, Elner Strickland and Iris Parker, one hundred and tootie-two grandchildren, great-grandchildren, nieces and nephews and a whole lot of friends.

She was preceded in death by her parents, husband, brothers-in-law and two grandsons.

A viewing was held at Flahiff Funeral Chapel, Homedale on Thursday, September 1, 2011 from 6:00-8:00 PM. A graveside service was held at the Marsing-Homedale Cemetery at 10:30 AM on Friday, September 2, 2011. In lieu of flowers donations may be made to the Homedale Senior Citizens Center; PO Box 848 Homedale, ID 83628. Condolences may be made online at www.flahifffuneralchapel.com.

COSSA now offers café, catering services

The educational cooperative to which Homedale and Marsing schools belong now serves breakfast and lunch for its students.

School meals are provided at the Canyon-Owyhee School Services Agency campus in Wilder through the COSSA Café and the agency's new Culinary Arts program.

Students enrolled in the COSSA

Academy will receive free breakfast and lunch each school day of the COSSA calendar.

Students in the professional-technical program can eat for $2 per meal, while teachers and guests will pay $3.50.

Lunch time fare also includes a salad bar, which can be added to the free hot lunch for $3 or can be purchased instead of a hot lunch for $3 per student and $3.50 per adult and faculty.

COSSA also offers catering through its Culinary Arts program.

For more information on the new meals service or catering, call COSSA at 482-6074.

The COSSA Café menu appears with other school menus on Page 10, and will be published in the Avalanche whenever provided.

HHS Class of '56 reunites for four-wheeling, fair fun

The Homedale High School Class of 1956 came home for the Owyhee County Fair and its 55th-year class reunion.

The reunion was held Aug. 12-14 and began with a gathering at the Friday night performance of the Owyhee County Rodeo at the fairgrounds in Homedale.

After enjoying the Buckaroo Breakfast and fair and rodeo parade on the morning of Aug. 13, some went for a four-wheeler ride to Silver City, which was led by classmate Lynn Taggart. The rest participated in a bowling party and buffet lunch at Owyhee Lanes in the afternoon.

Taggart hosted a potluck barbecue/picnic all day on Aug. 14 to cap the event.

The next reunion is scheduled for the second weekend of August 2013.

Planning fee for Silver City projects proposed

Public hearing set Monday morning in Murphy

In an attempt to reduce the burden on taxpayers, Owyhee County is considering a fee for historic appropriateness reviews of proposed Silver City improvements.

The Board of County Commissioners will take testimony on creating a $100 application fee during a 10 a.m. public hearing on Monday inside Courtroom 2 at the Owyhee County Courthouse, 20381 State Hwy. 78 in Murphy.

In asking for the establishment of the fee, county Planning and Zoning administrator Mary Huff said that the work to vet applications for Silver City projects currently is paid for solely by taxpayers.

"If the person seeking the use doesn't pay it, then we all pay that," Huff said. "So everybody subsidizes that if the person seeking that service doesn't pay it."

The Silver City Historic District is the only area in the county in which conditional use permits require an initial review by the Historic Preservation Committee. That appointed panel then makes a recommendation to the P&Z board.

She said that the two boards believe charging a fee for the 10 or so applications received each summer would improve the quality of the submittals and cut down on the time spent on each one.

Huff said that the two boards spent, on average, at least five hours researching each Silver City permit application.

"As it is right now, (Silver City property owners) turn it in and hope that it goes then they'll modify and modify until they submit a quality application," Huff said.

"Also, the applicants would be more vested in it and probably show up (to the hearings) so that they can explain some of (the application details)."

Currently, Huff said, Silver City property owners pay only the $25 zoning compliance fee and a building permit fee, both of which are paid by all applications throughout the county.

The anticipated revenue from the new fee would be about $1,000 annually, Huff said.

"When Silver City is open in the summer, there's a huge spike in those applications, and it takes a lot of time," Huff said. "This would be just to help pay some of the way for the process of projects in the historic zone."

The 1988 ordinance that established the historic district authorizes such a fee, Huff said, but no such cost ever has been put on the books.

BLM PUBLIC OPEN HOUSES

Gateway West Transmission Project

The Bureau of Land Management will host public open houses on the Gateway West Transmission Line Project. The draft Environmental Impact Statement (DEIS) was released July 29. Comments on the DEIS will be accepted until Oct. 28, 2011. To view, download or comment on the DEIS, please visit the BLM's project website http://www.wy.blm.gov/nepa/cfodocs/gateway\_west/index.html. Information about the project and interactive maps are available at the companies' project website, www.gatewaywestproject.com.

Idaho Power and partner Rocky Mountain Power propose to build a 1,100 mile 500-kilovolt power line across Wyoming and southern Idaho.

This project is required to meet customer load growth needs as well as increase transmission capacity and reliability for the companies' respective service areas. The project is scheduled to be completed in phases between 2015 and 2018.

Come to the BLM open houses to review the DEIS, ask questions and submit comments or suggestions.

Volunteers put finishing touches on Bruneau Roundup

Long-term improvement plan continues; entries open Thursday

To say the annual Bruneau Roundup is a community event for the tiny Owyhee County burg might be an understatement.

“The whole deal is a big community event,” seventh-year rodeo board president Ross Cameron said. “They say Jordan Valley (the Big Loop) is the spring social event, then Bruneau is the fall one.”

The event, which is approaching its 30th year in its current incarnation, will be held Sept. 17-18 at the Bruneau Rodeo Grounds.

Entries for the open rodeo will be taken by Juanita O’Maley of stock provider Slash T Rodeo from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Thursday. Call backs are 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Tuesday. Call O’Maley at (208) 834-0939 for entries.

The open rodeo includes bull riding, saddle bronc, calf roping, open team roping, barrel racing, wild cow milking, wild horse roping, saddle cow riding and ladies breakaway roping, which is a new offering this year.

The open rodeo, which isn’t affiliated with any sanctioning body, may prove to be lucrative for top performers.

“We added quite a bit of added money to the events,” Cameron said.

There’s $1,000 added in calf roping and $500 added each in the saddle cow riding and wild cow milking.

Entries for local events also will be taken from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Thursday.

First-year rodeo secretary Bobby Jean Colyer will take entries for stock saddle bronc and local team roping. She can be reached at (208) 845-2098.

Mutton bustin’ always kicks off each rodeo performance, but entries are taken only at the start of each day. The rodeo action starts at 12:30 p.m. each day, and Cameron said only the first 30 competitors each day will be entered for the mutton bustin’.

This year’s Bruneau Roundup grand marshal is 90-year-old Bruneau resident Fern Graham.

Cameron said money from the non-profit rodeo is turned back into the rodeo grounds as the improvement project enters its 10th year. As with the event itself, building the rodeo grounds improvements involves the entire community.

Cameron said the old wooden fence has been replaced with concrete posts and steel panels. All the post holes were dug by hand, which shouldn’t come as a surprise to anyone who knows the Owyhee County way.

“This year, we put a lot of work into our facility, and all that takes time and we’re all volunteers,” Cameron said.

Cameron said the rodeo board and past board members all pull their weight to put on the rodeo. This year, in addition to Colyer’s arrival, Travis Prow is a first-time vice-president on the board.

“Both stepped up to the plate and helped out a bunch,” Cameron said.

It’s a family deal with generations of locals helping out, Cameron said.

“I’ve got a great board. They all grew up with the rodeo, and their dads were on the board,” he said. “I’ve got 12 or 15 guys that come all summer long and work, and the older guys who have done the hard work in the past still come out and help with the rodeo.”

There’s more work to be done on the rodeo grounds, but Cameron acknowledges that it takes time and money.

“You drive over there and look out and see a new fence and say, ‘Wow a new fence’, and you don’t realize the work that goes into it,” he said.

On the wish list are new bleachers to replace the wooden seats that were built when the rodeo was resurrected in the early 1980s. Cameron said it’ll cost about $22,000 to put aluminum bleachers on each side of the arena.

While the board is focused on the capital improvement plan, money is still pumped back into the community, including $1,000 to the benefit auction to help in local cattleman Kit Bachman’s recovery from a November car crash or buying hay at the Bruneau Booster Auction.

Other events and attractions that give the rodeo its community-oriented feel, include:

- Food booths to benefit the Rimrock FFA and the local 4-H club.
- A barbecue to benefit the Bruneau American Legion Post 83 building fund. The meal is served at 5 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 17 and costs $8 for adults and $4 for children 11 and younger. The event is held at the Legion Hall, 32479 Belle Ave.
- A street dance held from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Saturday featuring the music of local band Runnin’ For Cover. Admission is $8 for a couple and $5 per person.

A Homedale Luau visitor receives a helping of food during the Luau earlier this month that raised $4,000 for transportation costs.

Homedale Luau raises $4K for athletic transportation

The second annual Homedale Luau netted about $4,000 for the town’s scholastic athletics transportation budget.

Organizer Lori Emry said Homedale High School cheerleaders and H&M Meats staff served 250 people during the Aug. 27 event at City Park.

Proceeds from the dinner as well as the live and silent auctions and cash donations will help fund fall road trips for high school and middle school sports teams.

“The weather was perfect,” Emry said.

KTVB Channel 7 Saturday news anchor Scott Evans was the guest speaker, delivering an address on community involvement. Homedale School District superintendent Tim Rosandick joined high school principal Luci Asumendi-Mereness and middle school chief Amy Winters to give the welcome.

Rich Pickett directed the live auction.

The high school volleyball players performed a hula dance and won the entertainment competition against the HMS football team and the seventh- and eighth-grade volleyball teams.

“A big thank you go to them for all their help,” Lori Emry said. “Thank you to all of the organizations and individuals who donated food and auction items and to those who purchased items.”

HMS subscription fundraiser aims to add to classroom technology

Boosting technology in the classroom is one of the focal points for this year’s subscription drive at Homedale Middle School.

Students kick off the long-standing annual fundraiser Thursday with a pair of informational assemblies. Seventh- and eighth-graders gather at 1:30 p.m., and the fifth- and sixth-graders will get the lowdown at 2:10 p.m.

HMS students sell subscriptions to national magazines as well as The Owyhee Avalanche, and the school receives a portion of the proceeds.

In the past, money from subscription drive has been used to buy playground equipment for the school.

This year, new HMS principal Amy Winters wants to beef up the school’s technology, and she will include staff members when exploring the options to improve the overall offerings in the building.

The school receives 40 percent of the proceeds from magazine sales and 25 percent of the proceeds from the newspaper subscriptions.

This year’s goal is to reach about $15,000 in gross sales, HMS bookkeeper Margaret Lejardi said.

A new teacher incentive program has been started this year, too.

For every first magazine sold by a student, his or her first-period classroom receives $5.

“We’re trying to get the teachers more involved in getting the kids motivated,” Lejardi said.

The top sellers from this year’s Avalanche subscription drive will earn a pass to Wahooz Fun Center in Meridian. Students get a candy bar for each Avalanche subscription they sell, Lejardi said.

The students will turn in their booklets for subscribers who live out of town on Friday.

Among the rewards for the students during the subscription drive is a prize store. Children will get tickets for each subscription they have sold and then can spend the tickets like money at the prize store.

There are three other turn-in days scheduled, with each highlighted by a reward system for the students with the highest sales.

Tuesday is the first day to turn back subscriptions. For every five orders a student secures, he or she will get a chance to spin a wheel for cash or prizes.

The Thursday, Sept. 15 turn-in day will feature an egg throw. For every five orders, sellers will get an egg toss at a wall full of prizes. The egg is a synthetic version of the real thing that breaks and sticks to the wall, Lejardi said.

The final turn-in day is Wednesday, Sept. 21.

Each turn-in day, students will earn “lucky ducks” that they can place on a keychain and wear around school. Students can win additional prizes if they are spotted wearing the keychain by certain teachers during the lunch hour.

Owyhee Jr. Rodeo entry deadline is today

Entries close today for the third annual Owyhee County Junior Rodeo.

The rodeo begins at 9 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 17 at the Owyhee County Fairgrounds in Homedale.

Toddlers through 17-year-olds are eligible to compete in the rodeo, which will feature 5 years old and younger, Pee Wee, Junior and Senior divisions.

Spectator admission is free. Entries are priced according to age level and whether or not rodeo organizers must provide stock for a competitor.

Events include:

With a look from Corta, Homedale buries NC

Team posts another blowout after slow start

“Sluggish” isn’t the usual adjective to describe a Trey Corta-led Homedale High School offense.

But there’s no doubt that the senior quarterback and his HHS teammates did get off to a slow start Friday at Comstock Field in Middleton.

With the reigning 3A Snake River Valley conference Offensive Player of the Year finding a way to make things happen, Homedale was able to churn out a 48-3 win over a undermanned but feisty Nampa Christian squad.

“I think that when you know that you have a team a little outmatched in numbers alone and you find out their star player is out, I think there is a little bit in the back of your head whether you try to or that maybe you can relax a little bit,” HHS coach Matt Holtry said.

Despite a lack of synchronicity with his receivers that resulted in six dropped or tipped passes and a few missed targets, Corta engineered a 500-plus-yard offensive attack.

“It was just kind of lack of communication at the beginning, but then we started stepping up,” Corta said. “The boys started talking up front, and we started figuring out what they were doing defensively.”

The senior also made things happen at defensive back, but he admits he was just channeling his frustrations from the offensive side of the ball.

He finished with six tackles, two assists and a game-changing interception of NCHS quarterback

Trey Corta looks for some wiggle room as he evades a Nampa Christian defender during Friday's non-conference 48-3 win in Middleton.

Jake Campbell on the first play after Homedale went up 12-0.

His play triggered Homedale’s onslaught that included TDs from Bodie Hyer and Danny Magdaleno for the second time in as many weeks.

“The best thing about Homedale is (that) it’s such a tight-knit community that he doesn’t have to say anything to get the kids. It’s a look in his eye, and the kids know it’s time to step up, it’s game time, it’s time to go, it’s serious time,” Holtry said.

The 5-foot-10, 175-pound Corta wasn’t the only Homedale player delivering punishment.

Ali Garcia, a 6-foot-1, 205-pound sophomore, provided the game’s biggest hit on a fourth-quarter carry preceding Corta’s 11-yard touchdown pass to Talon Freelove for a 41-0 lead.

Marsing's Jason Galligan makes a catch with Valley High School's Casey Ivey intow as he works his way downfield for a touchdown on Friday night in Hazelton.

Huskies dominate Valley, 49-6

Marsing grabs first road win in three years

For the first time in three years, Huskies (2-0 overall) were ranked No. 3 in a statewide media poll for the 2A conference, something that Wood is hesitant to discuss as it brings distractions to the team, he said.

“Really, it is only about keeping our eyes on the next game,” Wood said. “Yeah, it is nice to get noticed. But we can’t lose focus on what we are here to do.”

During the first quarter, the 5-foot-8, 163-pound sophomore quarterback Austin Williams nailed a 40-yard pass to Jason Galligan for the duo’s first touchdown of the game displaying what Wood called inspiring as they look to the rest of the season and the capabilities they have shown in just two games.

“Jason and Austin were awesome tonight. It just fit right tonight,” Wood said. “We will get the other receivers in the mix, but what they have is special. We have things to work on and areas we need to get better at.”

Williams connected on a 50-yard pass in the second quarter to the 6-foot-4, 200-pound Galligan for another strike to the host Vikings. Williams completed two more touchdown deliveries to Justin Glenn and Tristan Jacobi heading into halftime for a 28-0 lead.

“The kids played well, really well,” Wood said. “I gave the game ball to the O-line. It was a good game for them. They got off the ball well and played hard. This is two games in a row we have been able to take a knee at the end

Nielson ignites for 136 yards in Adrian’s season-opening comeback

After giving up one big offensive play, Adrian High School’s defense clamped down on Powder Valley in Friday’s football opener.

The Badgers’ Levi Linton converted his only carry of the night into a 71-yard season-opening touchdown, then the Antelopes held their visitors to 187 yards the rest of the way and rolled to a 44-12 non-league win at Ward Field.

Coach Paul Shenk’s squad forced five turnovers, including two interceptions by Kurt Nielson, to short-circuit Powder Valley’s offense.

Nielson’s catalytic role originated on offense with a 13-yard run for the go-ahead touchdown in the first quarter.

He rushed 18 times for 136 yards and was one of four different Antelopes to post TDs.

Chance Marquez scored on runs of 10 and 24 yards, and quarterback Juan Munoz rushed for eight- and nine-yard TDs and connected with Paxton Shira on a 32-yard scoring play in the third quarter. Mark Ishida scampered six yards for another score in the second half.

Powder Valley ran 16 more offensive plays than the Antelopes, but Adrian’s defense stiffened at the right time all game long. The Badgers converted only six times in 18 third- or fourth-down situations.

Ishida and Dylan Osborn had nearly identical defensive performances for Adrian. Both notched seven tackles, including five solo stops, and carded four assists. Osborn also recovered a fumble.

Adrian’s varsity players take Friday off as the junior varsity entertains Notus. The Antelopes’ varsity squad is back in action on Sept. 16 on the road against Council. Kickoff for both games is 7 p.m.

Lair taking his talents to the next level as he heads to the C of I

HHS grad lands tennis scholarship, will compete in 2012

Always looking for a way to improve not only in the classroom, but in whatever sport he is playing, a recent Homedale High School graduate is moving closer to seeing his hard work pay off.

When Tanner Lair was in eighth grade, he began taking private tennis lessons from now 26-year College of Idaho veteran tennis coach Cisco Limbago. Lair said he remembers when he first started that he wasn't sure tennis was where he would excel, but he quickly developed into a standout athlete and state champion.

"I was never really pushed to one sport or another," Lair said. "I wanted to try all of them and excel at everything that I did. Tennis became something I got really good at, and I have a lot of fun with."

On Thursday, Lair has embarked on his college learning experience when classes begin at C of I in Caldwell. Taking the next step from high school, Lair is excited for the educational experience and the opportunities he will have on the tennis court as a scholarship athlete for the Coyotes.

"The academics at the C of I are great.

They had the programs I wanted to be in, and with tennis it is a great fit," Lair said. "I know that I will have to work hard to succeed. I'm ready to push myself and see where life will take me."

On the court, Limbago is looking for Lair to excel and during the fall the coach expects to see where the former Trojan four-sport athlete will fit in with the team.

"Tanner has really come on in recent years. What has been fun is watching his progress through the years," Limbago said.

"Someone who took things a little more serious and has really worked to develop his game, he has come along way and has a lot of natural ability, and to be able to tone that in and get it going in the right direction has been fun to see."

Limbago expects Lair to battle for either the No. 4 or No. 5 singles spot early on throughout the fall workout schedule. During the fall, the C of I works to develop technique and focuses on the fundamentals of tennis. The 2012 season will begin in January, and the relatively new men's team is hoping that Lair can help fill in and help anchor the program, Limbago said.

"Tanner is a worker and has a lot of talent. We are looking to get him up to the next level, and when he comes up and plays with better talent he will be tougher all the way through," Limbago said. "We are looking for him to make big contributions. We want him to see the college level. Tanner will start off more in the singles ladder and down the road will hopefully be one of our top players in the future years."

Knowing Lair competed in soccer, football, basketball and tennis throughout his four years at Homedale, Limbago is encouraged about the "pure athletic ability" Lair has displayed over the years he has worked with him.

"Athletically, he has big upside. He has range and is quick," Limbago said. "I think we just need to get him to consistency. He can be a top player, he is a little green right now, but we will work with him. Academically, we will do well for Tanner at the C of I. Pairing both the academics and athletics, Tanner will be pushed, and we will help him develop into a well-rounded young man."

The son of Brenda and James of Homedale said he plans on pursuing a degree in physical therapy with the possibility of coaching in the future.

"I like helping people. But I will take tennis as far as it will let me go. I'm not sure how far I can go unless I try and work hard at it, and that goes for my education as well," Lair said.

Turnovers trigger Homedale JV's big third quarter

The defense answered the call Thursday night in the third quarter of Homedale High School's junior varsity football home game.

Sophomore defensive backs Angel Cardenas and Eric Mullins notched interceptions, and Bo Pickett recovered a fumble to spark a 29-point period that fueled Homedale's 49-12 non-conference win over Nampa Christian.

Homedale held Nampa Christian to 129 yards total offense at Deward Bell Stadium and forced three third-quarter turnovers, including the interceptions by Cardenas and Mullins on successive third-quarter possessions.

Mullins returned his pick of NCHS quarterback Jacob Rogers for a touchdown.

Four different Homedale players scored in the third quarter.

Jose Lopez collected the first of his two touchdowns on a 43-yard run just 39 seconds into the second half.

Lopez, a 6-foot, 160-pound freshman, and Colton Grimm (5-8, 175, fr.) both topped 100 yards rushing and scored a pair of touchdowns for Homedale (2-0).

Homedale put up 49 consecutive points after Nampa Christian opened the scoring on Rogers' 29-yard pass to Tommy Taylor.

Grimm sent Homedale out front with a 73-yard run to pay dirt with 45 seconds left in the opening quarter. He finished with 142 yards on three carries, including a 55-yard TD run to cap Homedale's monstrous third quarter.

Lopez, meanwhile, kept pace with his backfield mate and then some. After his TD early in the third quarter, he punched a score in from the three-yard line on the first play of the final period.

Lopez led all rushers with 171 yards on 16 carries. In fact, Homedale's ground game more than quadrupled Nampa Christian's output with 425 yards.

Sophomores Curtis Stansell, Nathan Leslie, Lucas Flaming and junior Nick Ryska led Homedale with five solo tackles apiece. A 6-1, 175-pound defensive lineman, Leslie was the team's top tackler, adding four assists.

Rough start for Marsing volleyball

Huskies go 0-3 in first week of the season, hosting Pilgrims Thursday

Coming off a rough start in the opening week of play, veteran Marsing High School volleyball coach Loma Bittick is encouraged with the progress the team made during its three-game skid.

“We are going to be learning and building as we go,” Bittick said. “We have some inexperience in some spots, but I am pleased with the progress we have seen from Tuesday to Thursday. I saw improvement with our team leaders from Wednesday night’s game to Thursday.”

On Thursday, the Huskies traveled to 2A Western Idaho Conference rival Melba for their second league match of the season and battled to four sets, going 25-16, 25-21, 23-25 and 25-19.

Leading the way for Marsing was senior Andrea Rodriguez with 10 kills and one block against the Mustangs. Lacey Usabel picked up the pace, helping the Huskies score with 20 assists and one block. Lily Bowers picked up six kills and two blocks, Deidrie Briggs also grabbed a block against Melba.

“There are three girls who really stood out on Thursday when we played Melba,” Bittick said. “Lily is learning the defense transitions really well, and Becky Carter is learning the back-row defense. Lacey has come a very long way with setting and getting to know her hitters better and getting the ball to them.”

Wednesday: Parma def. Marsing, 25-12, 25-22, 25-18 — In their home opener, the Huskies took on the visiting 3A Snake River Valley conference Panthers, who took the three sets.

“I think some of our younger girls were a little nervous,” Bittick said. “Our leaders weren’t pulling us together.”

On the night, Usabel racked up 13 assists, Bowers knocked down four kills and Briggs and Rodriguez each had three kills.

Tuesday: Cole Valley Christian def. Marsing, 25-6, 25-20, 25-15 — With the Huskies on the road for the first game of the 2A WIC season, the Chargers came out ready to play and dominated.

“Our passing and serve receive was very weak,” Bittick said. “Cole Valley was placing the ball well and we just weren’t doing our job. We were quite nervous at this game.”

Usabel picked up seven aces on the night with Rodriguez knocking down three kills and Briggs adding two. Chelsea Thomure grabbed a stuff block against the Chargers

Eastern Owyhee closed to sage-grouse hunting again

Sage-grouse hunting grounds are restricted again this year when the short season begins next month.

Owyhee County areas east of the Bruneau River will be closed once again, continuing a policy that was first put into place to combat the devastation of West Nile Virus on the bird’s population.

Owyhee County west of the Bruneau River is open to sage-grouse hunting for the seven-day season that begins Saturday, Oct. 1.

The season has a one-bird daily limit with two in possession after opening day.

Waterfowl hunting season in Owyhee County runs from Oct. 15 to Jan. 27 for ducks and dark geese. Scaup season runs from Nov. 5 to Jan. 27.

The hunting season for snow geese and Ross’ geese will be open from Nov. 6 to Jan. 27 and then from Feb. 18 to March 10.

Purnell punches nine kills in Adrian’s opening loss

A strong debut by returning player Madison Purnell couldn’t prevent Adrian High School volleyball’s season-opening loss Friday.

Purnell recorded nine kills, but Powder Valley swept the Antelopes, 25-21, 25-14, 25-19, in a non-league match.

“I was pleased with a lot of things for our first match, and one against a really tough opponent,” Adrian coach Aimee Goss said.

Another returning player, Annie Bowns, had four kills and a block kill against the visitors from North Powder, Ore.

Carla Combe served six aces, and Chelsey Heller dished 17 assists.

“Our second game, we let down a little, but if we clean up a few areas of our game, the match could have been much tighter,” Goss said.

“We have some things to work on in the coming weeks, but I’m excited for the potential this team has to be successful.”

The Antelopes play host to a couple of 1A Western Idaho Conference teams in non-league action this week. First up is Greenleaf Friends Academy on Thursday then Liberty Charter on Friday. Both matches begin at 6:30 p.m.

On Saturday, Adrian travels to compete in the Cambridge tournament.

Jordan Valley can't net win in coach's debut

She didn't prevail in her debut with her alma mater's volleyball team, but Jordan Valley High School coach Sarah Bengard saw some bright spots.

"We didn't come up with the win, but it was good competition before we start our league games," Bengard said after Friday's 25-17, 25-12, 20-25, 25-20 non-league loss to Pine Eagle.

Bengard, who graduated from Jordan Valley in 1999 after two accolade-laden seasons, said her team came alive in the third set against the visitors from Halfway, Ore.

Turning in a complete game seemed to be the biggest hurdle for the Mustangs in their season opener.

"We served the ball really well, but just couldn't seem to get our passes to the setter," Bengard said.

Hayley Caywood and Andi

Warn piloted the offense with six assists and five assists, respectively.

Warn and Stephanie Youren notched two aces apiece from the back line.

"As a team we only missed two serves all night," Bengard said.

Meagan Fillmore had a team-high four kills, followed by two each from Christina Rogers and Hayley Caywood.

Warn, Jessi Carson and Sharayah Cline delivered one kill each.

"One of the youngest team members, freshman Sharayah, had a really good defensive game," Bengard said.

"We will continue to work on strategic skills, and we're looking forward to our next home non-conference match with McDermitt."

Jordan Valley meets McDermitt, Nev., at 5 p.m. Thursday.

Spartans can't beat Mustang's 300

The (not-so) new guy on the block helped Jordan Valley High School open its football season with a win Friday.

Carrying out adjustments made by first-year defensive co-coordinator Jerry Wroten, the Mustangs' defense clamped down on visiting Pine Eagle in a 40-28 non-league victory at home.

"Jerry Wroten's adjustments at halftime were crucial in our win," fourth-year head coach Tim McBride said. "After halftime, Pine Eagle only scored 14 points."

While Jordan Valley stopped the Spartans, Pine Eagle had no answer for quarterback Ty Warn, who rushed for 308 yards on 27 carries. The Mustangs rolled up 438 yards on a 10-plus-yards-per-carry clip as Tyrel Lucas added 122 yards on nine totes.

"I was really proud of our offensive line," McBride said. "They did an outstanding effort opening holes for Ty Warn and the other running backs."

Jordan Valley proved it could move the ball through the air, too. Nate Easterday made seven catches for 115 yards.

Jordan Valley rallied from a 14-8 deficit with 16 unanswered points in the second quarter.

"This was a really good game for us. Pine Eagle was really big and physical," McBride said. "I was really proud of our team even when they got behind in the first quarter. They did not lose their composure."

Lucas and Blaine Moran paced the defense with eight tackles apiece, while Ben Telleria and James Dowell had seven stops each. Telleria also notched an assist.

"Wyatt Trautman played an extraordinary role on the defensive line," McBride said. "He created the ability for others to make plays."

Jordan Valley travels to Canyon County on Friday for another non-league game. The Mustangs take on Greenleaf Friends Academy at 7 p.m. It's the season opener for the Grizzlies, whose first-year coach, Doug Anders, used to be at the helm at Homedale Middle School.

Greenleaf, which didn't win a game in seven tries a year ago, also features junior Dalton Penrod, a Homedale product.

✓ Homedale: Corta pulls in a 277-yard, three-touchdown showing on Friday

yard run, lowered his shoulder pads and played the role of Dick Butkus against Nampa Christian's Jeff Butkus. Garcia sent the 6-1, 172-pound defensive back to the ground while finishing the run that set up Freelove's second TD grab of the night.

"I'm just looking to get more yards for team," Garcia said. "Do what's best so we can score and get us a victory."

Though rattled at times in the first and third quarters by Nampa Christian's misdirection rushing attack, Homedale's eager defenders managed to stifle their hosts' drives with key, punishing tackles.

Bodie Hyer recorded a team-high seven stops, while Robert Evans' pursuit and sack of Campbell on Nampa Christian's first play from scrimmage sent the message that the host squad would have no passing game to offset whatever running attack it could muster without the services of injured tailback Austin Holton.

Campbell completed only two passes for 12 yards. Nampa Christian was able to chew some yardage with a misdirection ground game, but averaged just 3.8 yards per carry and 170 yards total offense.

"It's this team," Holtry said of the defense's aggression. "They have that desire to compete and be the best and play hard, and they played hard."

Homedale went until the final play again before allowing a score. Zak Johnson nailed a 34-yard field goal as time ran out.

While Nampa Christian's scoring drought lasted the entire game, Homedale was in the unusual position of finishing the first quarter with no points on the scoreboard.

Corta shook Homedale out of a scoreless funk and kicked off a 28-point second quarter when he ran 12 yards into the end zone on the first play of the period. On Homedale's next possession, he turned in the run of his 277-yard, three-touchdown night when he pulled away from a pack of defenders when he was seemingly stopped cold in the middle of a 22-yard run.

"Trey's special in the fact that his God-given talent, he doesn't take it for granted, he's not boastful about it," Holtry said. "He works just as hard as everybody else, and he gets just as excited when other guys make big plays."

He capped that electrifying drive with a 10-yard toss to Freelove.

"I was very happy after the first quarter how the kids responded and kind of realized, 'Hey, we need to start playing out our level if we're going to get this done'."

Vale, Ore., at Homedale

The Trojans open the home portion of their schedule at 7 p.m. Friday against a traditional Oregon powerhouse that has managed to continually make the 3A state playoffs despite coaching turnover.

Members of the 3A Eastern Oregon League, the Vikings opened their season Friday with a 25-19 non-league loss to La Grande.

Vale is playing for Steve Luby, the Vikings' third new coach in as many seasons.

Homedale coach Matt Holtry says he doesn't know much about the current incarnation Vale.

"We're not sure exactly what they run yet," he said. "We do know it's Vale (and) they have a very rich tradition in football."

"They play hard. Every time we've played them, it's been a good game the last two years."

Visiting Homedale barely got by Vale, 26-21, last year. In 2009, The Trojans squeaked out another close one, 34-27, despite 298 yards passing from Ryan Ryska that included four TDs to sophomore wideout Trey Corta.

✓ Marsing: JVs gain valuable varsity time of the game. That ties last year, and it feels pretty good."

After the break, the Huskies continued to roll past Valley as Austin Glenn picked up a three-yard run early in the third to push the score to 35-0. Williams picked up a three-yard run for a touchdown followed by a strong defensive stand by the Huskies and a tackle by Galligan that forced a fumble Angel Lorea recovered for a touchdown.

"Defense is huge for us," Wood said. "The guys stepped it up tonight and are taking pride in what they are doing. They don't want to give up points and are taking everything they are learning to heart. Our kids came ready to play, and it was an overall team effort."

Despite a 30-8 loss for the junior varsity prior to the start of the varsity game, Wood pulled the starters and began inserting JV players on both sides of the line. The second-stringers gave up an eight-yard run to Urian Rocha for a touchdown for the Vikings.

"We have been on the other end of games like this before," Wood said. "I feel bad for the other team, but we weren't passing and running up the score. We gave them a chance to put some numbers on the board."

MHS at Glenns Ferry

Glenns Ferry dropped its second game of the season to Parma last week, 20-13.

The Pilots (0-2) will host the Huskies (2-0) at 7 p.m. on Friday. Marsing coach Jaime Wood said this week during practice they will continue to take the season one game at a time.

"I know that Glenns Ferry is going to pass," Wood said. "We will hit it hard on the pass coverage and get better as we take it one game at a time each week. We can't lose focus of our goals or look too far into the season. It really comes down to one game, each week, and that is what we have to focus on."

Last year, the Huskies hosted the Pilots and were held scoreless throughout the first half and much of the third quarter. Marsing eventually overcame the deficit with an 80-yard kickoff return for a touchdown by Miguel Leon and a successful two-point conversion connection by Austin Williams to Dakota Hill for the win.

"We need to be ready to play on the road," Wood said. "We play a tough road schedule this year. The team has to focus on each game and be ready to play on the road. We don't play at home until the end of September. We can't lose focus on the goals we have set."

September 10, 1986 Bud Jewett chosen Grand Marshal of Bruneau rodeoThe Bruneau Round-up board of directors has chosen Bud Jewett as Grand Marshal for this year’s rodeo, to be held Sept. 20-21. Bud has lived most of his life in Bruneau Valley. When a young man, he worked as a cowhand around Three Creek, Idaho. He worked in ranching, farming, sheep and heavy equipment operation to support the large family he and his wife Grace raised. He is now retired, living in Bruneau. His sons, Tim and Steve, and daughter Ella Mae were very instrumental in the revival of the Bruneau Round-up three years ago. Jumbo, owner of Jumbo’s Sinclair, is his son-in-law.The B.R.A. is awarding a trophy buckle, designed by Dan Jolly, in each event, plus an all-around buckle to the high money winner, who must be entered in a rough stock and roping event. These buckles are being sponsored by local businessmen.Marsing Lions’ program applaudedA relatively new program that is taking North America by storm and is beginning to expand to other continents as well is having its affect on the Owyhee County community of Marsing.“Skills for Adolescence,” a Lions Club International project aimed at helping young people become aware of the effects drugs and alcohol can have on them, is being taught in the sixth- and eighth-grade classes at Marsing according to Bob Larson, publicity chairman for the Marsing Lions Club.“The program is more than just facts about alcohol and drugs. It helps young people deal with the underlying issues that can lead to drug use,” he said.To get the program off the ground, the Marsing Lions have spent nearly $2,000 from fundraising functions and donations. This money has been used for books, to send five people to a seminar in Twin Falls, to send two teachers to a three-day workshop in Vancouver, B.C., and other related expenses.The program is taught daily during health class for one semester. “It deals with communication between children and parents, how to say ‘no’ to drugs, and makes the students aware of the consequences of abuse of drugs,” Larson said.Huskies stomp Grizzlies 30-12The Marsing Huskies had a smashing 30-12 success over Greenleaf Grizzlies Friday, September 5. According to Coach Ray Murphy, the offense and defense sputtered a little during the first half, made some mistakes, but during the second half they played better football.“First games are always the toughest,” said Murphy. “We have physical facility, we just need to work on mental confidence,” he said.According to Coach Murphy, the game turned out to be a team effort. How the reverend Briton got his information, or why he fixed upon the proportion of twelve to one instead of twenty to one, we are not informed; but it adds a new horror to the lower hot settlements to know that when pain and anguish wring the brow there, the ministering angels will be scarce. We are scarcely convinced of the statement, however. We think that when a man is going to the devil he generally contrives to drag at least one woman with him.DEATH OF HON. D. G. MONROE. We are again called upon to chronicle the death of one of Owyhee’s most esteemed and respected citizens, Hon. D. G. Monroe whose spirit winged its flight at the gathering of the twilight shades on Tuesday evening last. Stricken down in the prime of a useful and busy life, being only 36 years of age, his loss is keenly felt and deeply regretted by a wide circle of friends and acquaintances. His mortal ailment was typhoid fever with which he had been afflicted about two months. He was a native of the State of New York, but, prior to his advent on the Pacific coast, had resided several years in Illinois, where a mother, sister and brother are now living. Deceased was one of the early settlers of this camp and has two brothers residing here at the present time. He was elected to the Idaho Legislature from Owyhee County in 1866, and again in 1870, having been President of the Council during its last session. ## On the edge of common sense Farming: A life-changing experience

Keith was driving me into Edmonton, Alberta on Highway 26 from the west. The large grain and cattle farms began to shatter into smaller pieces of property; 40 acres, 20 acres or 12 acres. The countryside was still green and well-kept with fields of five horses or three cows. Usually it included a nice home with landscaping and a manicured entrance.

"More farm ground is disappearing every year," Keith said, noting the loss of big farmsteads. He was right, but it has been going on since the pilgrims set foot in Newfoundland; it is the inexorable roll of civilization.

These smaller plots — "ranchettes" — are a stage in this progression. But I've noticed one very positive side of those new "rural lifestylers." With the intention to teach their children some connection to the land and livestock, or for their own sake, they take on projects like gardening, raising sheep, llamas, rabbits, goats, ducks, horses or cows. And regardless whether it is an organic garden, a litter of pigs or one calf, once they get their hands dirty they begin to have an inkling of what it takes to make food out of dirt and water. It is a life-changing experience.

I think that before any person is tricked into sending money to PETA, the Humane Society of the United States, ALF, ELF or any of those two-faced groups whose goal includes the elimination of modern farming practices, that person should be allowed to raise at least one baby Holstein calf from birth to edible, or to grow enough vegetables in one summer to feed a family for just seven days.

Once they are engaged in the process of raising food, they will appreciate that farming is a complicated process that guarantees risk, pitfalls, hard work and commitment. But they will also comprehend the sense of accomplishment of becoming part of nature, not just the skim on the top. This experience will qualify them to examine with a keener eye the often sleazy, forked-tongued and gratuitously morbid supplications for money, money, money from the animal rights grubbers.

Our twenty-acre-neighbors will gain the ability to distinguish their local Humane Societies, county agents, district agriculturalists and veterinarians from the National Beggars Association of ANTIs who haven't raised a calf, had it butchered, or fed their family for a week from their own labors in the soil.

My advice to you farmers and ranchers who miss the old days is to befriend your new neighbors and offer to teach them Beginning Agriculture 101. Let them experience the deep pride one gets from personally participating in one of life's most basic occupations. They will learn where food comes from. And, I repeat, it is life changing.

From Washington We must honor 9/11 lost by keeping America strong

For Americans, Sept. 11, 2001, was a defining moment. It impacted all of our lives in one way or another, not only altering our sense of security but also reinforcing our resolve and unity. On this 10th anniversary, like many others, my prayers continue to be with the victims and all those who lost loved ones. I am also grateful and mindful of the many Americans sacrificing to secure our freedom and our nation. Our American-bond that helped us through the recovery after September 11 can guide us through the challenges our nation faces today.

America was attacked because it is a bastion of freedom. Our freedoms, resources, innovation and economic system have positioned America as a leader throughout the world. As such, we will remain a target. Rather than retreating, by remaining true to our ideals, we are resolved to succeed and persevere. While we continue to address the threat of terrorism, we must do all we can to ensure that America remains an exemplar of a government that works and an economy that creates conditions for prosperity and growth. On this important anniversary, let that memory galvanize our efforts to strengthen our nation, maintain conditions for peace and work for a government that meets its responsibilities and focuses on the betterment of the country.

I often hear frustration from Idahoans and others that the hyper-partisanship and divisiveness in Congress are affecting progress. It is a stark contrast to the unity and comity across government and the people that took hold following September 11. Many want elected officials to not give ground on important issues; however, they could do without the unnecessary and time-consuming bickering. I agree. Congress has more work to do to set our nation on a sound path, and we must work together to get this done. We also cannot waste additional time.

As we pay tribute to our fellow Americans who lost their lives on September 11, we must not forget the effects that they had on our lives and nation. Let us honor them by strengthening our country. We can disagree on the best ways to get there. That is healthy, but we must not let this disagreement hinder progress. We are in it together. September 11 reminded Americans that we are one people. Particularly on its anniversary we should be mindful of that fact and that our government is one of the people, by the people and for the people. Not losing sight of that will help us advance.

— Republican Mike Crapo is Idaho's senior member of the U.S. Senate. He is in his third six-year term and has served in the Senate since 1999. Prior to that, he was a three-term Idaho Second District congressman.

Letters to the editor BOCC handled sheriff's fuel issue appropriately

I would like to personally thank the Owyhee County Commissioners. They held an open hearing regarding the sheriff's office and its fuel budget. At the hearing, they listened to several constituents both for and against giving the sheriff's office more money.

Several "facts" were presented by the sheriff which seemed to be incomplete or inaccurate. The commissioners and the public asked several very well-founded questions regarding the situation. The responses to the questions were less than complete, and some were even answered with a question.

At the end of the hearing, the commissioners did not make a decision. Instead, they decided to review all of the information presented to them and make an educated decision. The choice to wait and see was the right one. In an economy where everyone is buckling down on their budgets, our government should be no different.

By the commissioners listening to their constituents, reviewing facts and not making a snap decision, our form of government worked properly.

Owyheeans urged to speak up on Gateway West siting

We implore every citizen of Bruneau, Grand View, Oreana and Murphy to attend the Gateway West public meeting set for Murphy on Sept. 15 at the Owyhee County Historical Museum, 17085 Basey St.

Bureau of Land Management officials will be on hand to explain alternative routes and receive our comments regarding our preference and concerns in the siting of this 500-kilovolt transmission line.

We have placed the latest maps at the county Planning and Zoning office and the museum in Murphy; the Eastern Owyhee Library and Y-Bar Café in Grand View and the Bruneau Valley Library in Bruneau.

The BLM has not yet chosen a preferred route. The citizens of Owyhee County have until Oct. 26 to postmark their comments to the Bureau of Land Management Gateway West Project, P.O. Box 20879, Cheyenne, WY 82003 or email Gateway\_West\_WYmail@blm.gov.

Owyhee County citizens do have a say in where the permanent 500kV line is sited. Please let your voice be heard.

Financial management Prepare for health challenge by saving, getting debt-free

Dear Dave,

My husband needs a liver transplant within the next two years because he has Hepatitis C. We make about $70,000 a year, but we have $25,000 in debt.

He's still able to work right now, and we have health insurance, but how can we prepare for the operation and medical bills?

— Nikki

Dear Nikki,

God bless you guys. It's going to be tough, because you're going to face a lengthy loss of income, and sky-high medical bills even if everything goes well. I'm really sorry you have to go through this. Life can be hard enough without major health issues knocking you for a loop.

The good news is that there's something you can do about all this, and it all starts with saving. First, set aside an emergency fund of three to six months of expenses as quickly as you can. In your case, I'd recommend leaning toward the six-month side. Second, you guys need to have no life for the next year or two, and get very serious about paying off as much debt as possible after you get your emergency fund in place. I'm talking about following a very strict budget, and living on rice and beans. Bottom line? The less debt you have, the better off you'll be.

Wouldn't you love to be debt-free and have six months of expenses in the bank before they perform this operation? You can do it, if it becomes important enough to make it priority one!

— Dave

Dear Dave,

I've always been intrigued by the restaurant business and wanted to open one of my own. Recently, the opportunity presented itself to open a McDonald's franchise. I really want to do this, but it would take years for me to save up the money. Is it OK to borrow money to start a business?

— Jim

Dear Jim,

It will take longer to save up the money and open the business debt-free, but that's exactly what you should do. Most small businesses fail within the first five years. One of the main reasons for these failures is the struggle to repay debt.

If you're into restaurants, try starting small with a catering business out of your home. This will give you a taste of managing your own food service business, and let you know if you really like that kind of work.

It will also give you the opportunity to make and save some money. That way, when your restaurant dream becomes a reality you can honestly say that you own the business instead of it owning you!

— Dave

Dear Dave,

I attend a small church with about 100 members. There is a $97,000 mortgage at 8.75 percent on the building, and the note was signed only by the pastor.

In the event of default, are the members of the congregation liable?

— Charlene

Dear Charlene,

Unless you signed the note, you are not liable. If the pastor signed the note personally, or on behalf of the congregation, it would actually depend on the wording in the note as to who is liable in case of default.

But this whole situation is kind of silly, and I'll tell you why. If everyone in the congregation gave an extra $83 a month in their tithe — that's only about $20 more every Sunday — you could have this mortgage knocked out in a year! There's absolutely no reason for your church to be in debt 12 months from now.

This is a prime example of what happens when a church adopts the same mentality as the rest of the world. The Bible itself warns us that the borrower is slave to the lender!

Affairs of the state Prudent budgets avoid tax hikes

The 2012 Legislative session is still more than four months away, but already two clear philosophical paths have emerged on how Idaho ought to raise and spend money in the new year. Both were on display this past week, one from retired state economist Mike Ferguson, the other from his former boss, Gov. C.L. "Butch" Otter.

Ferguson announced that he'll head a new "Idaho Center on Fiscal Policy" to project state budgets. The goal, as he explained it, will be to base state revenues on fairness, efficiency, adequacy and stability. The new center is backed in part by the Northwest Area Foundation, whose goal is to reduce poverty in the region. This looks like an effort to establish what the "needs" are in Idaho, and then to project a state revenue plan to bring revenues up to that level, either by trimming tax exemptions or raising taxes directly.

It's a classic "spend and tax" approach to state budgeting, reminiscent of the gubernatorial campaign of Democrat Keith Allred, for whom Ferguson crunched numbers prior to last fall's election. We might describe it as "Common Cause Lite" in honor of Allred's fig-leafed, partisan interest group. If Allred had been elected, Ferguson might still be proposing budgets to fund needs from poverty to food stamps to welfare benefits, and proposing tax raises to meet those needs.

But that's not how the election turned out. Otter buried Allred in the governor's 2010 race, and legislative Republicans added to their conservative majorities. In effect, Idahoans said, "not so fast" to the spend-and-tax model. This past week, Otter made it clear that, as long as he's in office, Idaho will take a more conservative approach to budgeting, building in the in-place and reduced levels of state spending as a "new way of doing business" in the state. "We are not going to grow back at the same rate as the economy grows," he declared. "I find it better to ... underestimate a little bit."

In this model, Otter explains, budgeting will continue to be tight and underestimating state revenues will be the norm. The goal, he said, will be to have expenditures come in a bit below budgets, thus allowing for adjustments at the end, but avoiding mid-year holdbacks, which would be needlessly disruptive.

This second approach is precisely what the Legislature did in the 2011 session and provides a sound budgeting model for the coming year. Budgets in 2011 were set knowing the state might well surpass them slightly. Indeed, at the end of the fiscal year on June 30, the state's surplus was about 3.7 percent, some $85 million above plan. Most of that was then immediately sent to the public schools and community colleges, as the Legislature directed.

This kind of prudent, fiscally responsible budgeting allowed the state to balance the budget and avoid tax increases. The Ferguson-Allred approach, by contrast, would have led to an inflated budget based on wants, for which taxes would likely have had to be raised to fulfill.

Think about these two ways of approaching your family budget. Do you set spending as a family above your known income? Down this path is debt, over-spending, expenses you can't afford and all measure of financial pain.

Or rather, do you set expenses a bit below your known income, allowing for a bit of a cushion, investment and savings for a rainy day? Which is the better way to get ahead in this world? If you take the first route, you have no way to handle a big car repair, leaky roof or a blown-out well pump. If you do the second, you have a cushion for unintended consequences and a better future for tomorrow.

We all know the needy are, well, in need. There is no end to what we could do to help these fellow citizens. The Ferguson approach puts their needs first, setting their "budget" in place and then taxing others to cover it.

But our general citizenry also has "needs." The need to have stable, known taxes which do not rise. The need to have a prudent and fiscally responsible budget model in state government. The need to know that someone will not be allowed to reach into their pockets every time a new "need" is identified.

Learn to live on less than you take in, says the old adage. Save the difference. Otter's and the Legislature's model, and from our perspective, is a better one for Idaho.
