Three-way mayoral race set in Homedale

Fink back in picture; all three cities to hold council elections

If no write-in candidates come forward in the next three weeks, there will be only one mayoral race in the county's municipal elections Nov. 8.

Incumbent Keith Green is the only candidate who filed in Marsing, and sitting city council person Tammy Payne has submitted paperwork to seek the position currently held by Paul Spang in Grand View.

Spang, who suffered a stroke in January, will not seek another term.

Harold Wilson will seek re-election to the chief executive job in Homedale, but he'll see another three-way race with former mayor Paul Fink and Samuel Page supplying the opposition. Four years ago, Wilson ousted Fink on a ballot that also included Charles Garrison.

Mayoral and city council candidates had until Friday to declare for the general election.

Both Homedale council incumbents whose terms end Dec. 31 – Aaron Tines and Eino Hendrickson – each will seek four more years. They'll be challenged by former Homedale Police officer Steve Atkins and Vonnie Harkins.

In Marsing, incumbent Stella Bush will seek re-election, and former Owyhee County Sheriff's deputy Chris Even also has filed. Marie Marsing When the events of September 11, 2001 unfolded, the high school students who organized Friday's remembrance in Marsing were in the third grade.

Although two of the Marsing High School seniors said they vaguely remember the attacks that claimed thousands of lives, they wanted to pay tribute to those who served and are presently serving the community.

"I was in third grade when 9/11 happened," student council vice-president Shelbi Ferdinand said. "I honestly don't remember everything that happened. I remember hearing about all the people who served and went to the World Trade Center site to help."

Graham excited to be Bruneau Round-Up grand Marshal

Longtime resident ready to ride a "Mule" into arena in old-fashioned western attire

Fern Graham

When 90-year-old Fern Graham got the call that she was going to be the Bruneau Round-Up grand marshal, she didn't know what to think.

"I just couldn't believe it. How in the world did they figure that one out?" she said. "It is a great honor and I feel so blessed. I teased that I don't have a horse or a cow, but I will be riding a Mule into the arena with my boys."

Graham said she is excited to wear her pink satin and black lace-trimmed "old fashioned" dress as she enters the rodeo arena riding in the bed of a Kawasaki Mule with her son Leon and Roger.

"I am going to be dressed up like I'm in the 1800s," she giggled. "It will be nice to have my two boys next to me as I make my entrance, even though I won't be on a horse. I will be on a Mule."

Having raised her three children in her home across from City Park in Bruneau, that she and her husband Earl bought in 1954 for $2,600, the 4-foot-8 Graham is a frequent sight around the small community in her golf cart with her son Leon as they deliver baked goods, pick up groceries and attend church.

Bird into a wire sparks the first of many fires for county crews

Three grass fires burn between Friday and Sunday

Volunteer crews around the county were busy last week with a rash of fires, including a haystack blaze triggered by an electrocuted bird.

Friday was the busiest day as firefighters from both Homedale and Marsing responded to separate large blazes in the afternoon.

Homedale crews were dispatched to the area near Hogg Road and Market Road after 4 p.m. Friday and set the full force of the department on a grass fire that scorched 15 hillside acres.

About 2½ hours later, Marsing crews douse a similarly sized fire near the intersection of Thompson and Edison roads.

That fire nearly consumed an abandoned house and did destroy an old station wagon and storage shed. Firefighters were able to beat back the flames to save two residences.

Early Thursday morning, Homedale firefighters worked to extinguish a blaze sparked in seed-processing equipment at Treasure Valley Seed Co. on U.S. Highway 95 north of the Snake River.

The fire was reported to Canyon County emergency dispatch at 5:49 a.m., according to HFD chief Scott Salutregui. The cause of the fire in the northeast corner of one of the company's buildings was unknown at press time.

Flames broke through the building's north-facing roof.

corner of the building where they had a seed-cleaning outfit and an elevator-type deal," Homedale assistant chief Tom Pegram said.

Pegram said 13 firefighters battled flames for about two hours. Two of the firefighters were from the Wilder outfit.

He added that an employee arriving early for work reported the blaze and that the company's other business wasn't interrupted.

"They were able to continue their operation with other parts of the facility," Pegram said. "It was just the one part of the building that couldn't be used. The fire completely demolished that machine."

Homedale crews were sent out again Sunday after 5 p.m. on another large grass fire on the far edge of the district off Homedale Road.

The week's fire calls began Sept. 12 when Murphy-Reynolds-Wilson crews were dispatched to a hay fire in Oreana about 10 miles outside of Grand View.

About 75 percent of the haystack was saved as firefighters contained the blaze to an area located next to a electrical transformer stand and power pole complex.

Officials said the fire was sparked late in the morning when a bird flew into the power lines.

Prosecutor releases details about recent OCSO search warrants

Corn fields targeted after “anomalies” are spotted during drug flyover

Last week, law enforcement descended upon two area farms after an aerial search for marijuana grows.

After a concerned resident called The Owyhee Avalanche asking about officers searching a corn field near his home, Owyhee County Prosecuting Attorney Douglas D. Emery provided insight into the search warrants for the fields outside of Homedale.

According to documents provided by Emery, the two search warrants were issued by Magistrate Judge JR Shiller on Sept. 6 after a sworn verbal affidavit by Owyhee County Sheriff’s Deputy Dustin Moe the warrants were issued and enforced the following morning.

Emery said Moe took part in a Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) flight observation course recently, and with assistance from the Idaho National Guard, did a flyover in certain parts of the county looking for marijuana.

“Essentially (Moe), with the assistance of a helicopter crew from the National Guard ... found some anomalies in the areas of the field,” Emery said. “They took photos and marked the GPS coordinates of the fields, and we obtained search warrants.”

Nothing was found during the two searches, Emery said.

The first property searched was near Graveyard Point Road and Nielson Lane south west of Homedale. The concerned resident that called the newspaper said they saw personnel from OCSO along with the Homedale Police Department and a Homedale Ambulance near the corn field.

According the search warrants provided by Emery, the second location was on East Market Road near Hogg Road between Homedale and Marsing.

Emery said the photos that were taken during the flyover displayed some “very visible anomalies” in the interior of the fields. In the searches, the areas in question were areas that the seed didn’t take or fertilizer wasn’t utilized properly, leaving the sections of ground different than the other areas, Emery said.

“I think this time of year up until it starts to frost (OCSO) will do one (flight) a week,” Emery said. “The National Guard and the Civil Air Patrol helps with the flights.”

Daryl Crandall didn’t respond to a phone message or email from The Avalanche.

Emery said at the point the search area is cleared, the material is subject to release.

“I think at the point the facts are out there, I think it is important for the people to know what is going on,” Emery said. “At the point where they have the situation contained, that sort of information can be released.”

Homedale schools set pay-for-performance standards

District could receive $4K per certified position

If all the marks are met, the Homedale School District could receive $240,000 in additional state revenue through the new pay-for-performance program.

That works out to $4,000 per full-time certified staff position.

One day before the Sept. 1 deadline, the school board approved its local performance plan to submit to the state Department of Education.

The pay-for-performance legislation calls for local benchmarks along with the statewide goals, Homedale superintendent Tim Rosandick said.

The statewide goals are tied to the growth of student scores on the Idaho Student Achievement Tests as well as student excellence.

“Most of the state money is on the growth side, not the excellence side,” Rosandick said.

“They’re rewarding teachers who help kids grow on performance on the ISAT form the prior year.”

A school will earn a full state share, or $2,000 per full-time equivalent (FTE), if students’ ISAT growth ranks in the top 25 percent statewide. The other $2,000-per-FTE potential is tied to the local benchmarks. Schools must achieve a fraction of their goals in both state and local benchmarks to qualify for any bonus.

The program won’t begin until next school year, after the spring ISAT cycle. Rosandick said the school would disperse the bonus money in December 2012 after state payments are received in November.

The other half of the full payment would be generated if goals set locally are achieved.

A committee of trustees, administrators and staff devised the local pay-for-performance plan approved during a special Aug. 31 board meeting.

The local goals are set up by grade level at each school.

Middle school pay-for-performance compensation is based on how student proficiency levels improve in the spring and winter testing for the Direct Writing Assessment (DWA), MAZE reading and Math Concepts and Applications.

The local pay-for-performance standards for Homedale Elementary School will be based on students’ performance on winter and spring Idaho Reading Indicator testing and spring DWA.

The high school local pay-for-performance standards are tied to improvements in the 10th-graders’ average ISAT score for reading, math and language; student attendance benchmarks, spring 2012 DWA results and how well the school meets Adequate Yearly Progress in the graduation rate. Performance on end-of-course test scores is an optional variable.

The district’s Pay for Performance Oversight Committee devised the local plan that the school board approved last month.

The committee consisted of Zone 2 Trustee Tim Quintana, Rosandick, middle school teacher David Correa, elementary school teacher Jan Bianchi and high school teacher Mike Greeley.

“Staff members were given a full opportunity to grade these,” Rosandick said, adding that the state Department of Education must sign off on the plans for each school.

County treasurer works in D.C. to preserve PILT

Richards meets with Labrador, others today

Owyhee County Treasurer Brenda Richards is in Washington D.C. this week as part of a national delegation trying to preserve federal funding for counties.

Richards is part of the National Association of Counties' annual PILT Fly-in.

She says that, although NACo mounts a Payment In Lieu of Taxes lobbying effort each year, this week's visit is most crucial to Owyhee County and other government entities because of the uncertain future of the compensatory payments for the loss of property tax revenue because of federal lands.

"If PILT funding is decreased or completely taken away, the amount will have to be raised through the private tax base," Richards said. "By attending this PILT 'fly-in', I hope to be able to help impress the importance to our Idaho counties' economic stability of fully funding PILT."

"I hope to be able to help impress the importance to our Idaho counties' economic stability of fully funding PILT."

— Brenda Richards
Owyhee County treasurer

Owyhee County has received more than $1.2 million each of the past two years, and is guaranteed only one more full payment for fiscal year 2012. Officials worry that when the PILT Act of 1976 comes up for reauthorization again that Congress will either decrease payments below 100 percent levels of today or do away with the program altogether.

The Board of County Commissioners has placed recent payments directly into annual budgets to avert raising the tax levy each year. Previously, some PILT funds were diverted to a fund to build money for a new county courthouse.

"(With PILT payments) being put into the County's Budget revenue line, it is substantial to the county taxpayers," Richards said.

Richards flew to D.C. on Tuesday and this afternoon will visit federal government officials to discuss how PILT helps counties, including all 44 in Idaho. The Reynolds Creek rancher who serves on the Idaho Association of Counties public lands committee will visit with U.S. Rep. Raul Labrador (R-Idaho), who serves on the House of Representatives National Resources Committee and the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform.

Richards returns Thursday.

Local history buffs honor Givens Hot Springs

The Ancient & Honorable Order of E Clampus Vitus Snake River Chapter No. 1811 placed a historical marker at Givens Hot Springs on Saturday.

The fraternal organization, whose members shout "Satisfactory!" to show approval of speeches, embraces Snake River Chapter No. 1811 also became chartered in a ceremony later in the day.

✓ Graham: Community fixture has lived in same house since 1954

"Leon is my right-hand man. He is 64 and goes everywhere with me," Graham said. "We go and deliver my maple bars and canned goods to people in the community while we ride around on my golf cart."

Known to her seven grandchildren, 11 great-grandchildren and four great-great-grandchildren as the "Energizer Bunny", she loves being part of the Bruneau community, she said.

"I am always busy and always running," she said. "I still can for all my kids. There are some of the kids from the community that still bring me items to can for them. I have been canning for them since they were younger and running around with my kids."

In 1958, Graham began working for Bruneau elementary school as a cook.

"They built the school house in Bruneau in 1958, and I was one of the first cooks at the school," she said. "I was paid $8 a day for five hours. That was probably better money than my husband Earl was making. I was there for five years."

From 1963 to 1964, she lived in Sacramento while Earl and Roger worked for Kaiser Engineers. While in Sacramento, Graham said she was tired of sitting in the house and wanted to stay busy.

"I went out driving around and ended up going to dental school," she said. "After we moved back to our house in Bruneau, I worked as an assistant in Mountain Home for six years."

Following her dental career, she began working at the Bruneau Post Office as a clerk and moved up the ranks when the Postmaster retired. She spent 12 years as the Postmaster before retiring.

After her husband Earl died in 1986 from complications of diabetes, she was remarried in 1990 to Bud Rutherford of Mountain City, Nev.

"Bud and I got a camper and went all over the place. We went up to Canada and just traveled," she said. "That darn cancer took him, and he died right in my house in 1996."

Graham said her life hasn't been simple and she "has to stay busy".

"Bob Tindall was a good friend of mine. We tangled up in the winter of 1996 and we ran around together and would go play pool," she said. "We used to go to the Round-Up together and after he moved to a nursing home I kind of stopped going to the rodeo."

For her 80th birthday in 2001, she was given an "Energizer Bunny" costume and rode into the 300-person gathering on a four-wheeler to surprise the family and friends that had gathered.

"Everyone calls me the Energizer Bunny because I am always doing something for someone and staying busy," she said. "My niece once asked me 'Why do you do all this?' I told her I want people to come to my funeral. I make pies and maple bars and take them all over town. I love watching people's faces light up when I come in to deliver them."

"I'm really happy to be the grand marshal for the Round-Up. It is a good way to see all the people. I hope that I can last the night and go to the rodeo as well."

Abigail Dee Schultz

Abigail Dee Schultz, 9, peacefully passed away September 2, 2011 at her grandparents’ home on Cove Road in Weiser, Idaho.
Abby was born March 24, 2002 in Grangeville, Idaho to Thomas William Schultz and Ellen Lou Roberts Schultz. She spent her first years of life at Slate Creek, Idaho near Riggins where her dad was employed by the U.S. Forest Service. Later they moved to Garden Valley, Idaho on a new assignment with the Forest Service. In 2004 the family moved to Boise to be closer to doctors, due to Abby’s health challenges. A few years later, they moved to Weiser to have the support of family and to be closer to the majority of her cousins and families. Through her Boise, Wilder and Weiser families and wonderful friends, community and school system, Abby experienced all of life that a little girl in her delicate condition could experience.

Abby was a delightful little girl, fun to be around. She loved camping and fishing with her dad and mom, all aspects of nature made her happy. Flowers, bird’s nests, newly hatched hawks, humming birds, deer and fawn, and even rattlesnakes gave her enjoyment. Riding on the bike trail with her family brought pleasure.

She looked forward to the “Beat Coach Pete” race, which she participated in every year, always taking the opportunity to meet the coach and her favorite players and get autographs. Watching BSU games was a wonderful time for her. She always knew they would win.
Abby loved anything to do with family. Whether it was branding days, holiday parties, going to the movies, sleepovers, playing board games, making cookies, or going to football and volleyball games, she was always ready to go.

Attending school was her favorite activity. She loved the interaction with her teachers, aides, bus drivers and friends. Everyone was especially kind and patient with her. She loved learning new things and took pride in her work. Summer vacation was not her best time of year.
She loved her Heavenly Father and her Savior, Jesus Christ, and attending church and learning about them brought her great joy.
Her passing is bittersweet for all who knew her. Joyful because she is free from a body that was confining for her ambitions and desires, but sad because we will miss her love and association. Thank you for teaching us, Abby.

She is survived by her parents, Tom and Ellen Schultz of Weiser, her loving younger sister Emily, her new brother Grayson, Grandparents Steve and Kathie Schultz of Wilder and Lloyd and Dee Roberts of Weiser, great-grandparents of Boise and Homedale, 21 cousins and many aunts and uncles and great aunts and great uncles.
A memorial service was held on Wednesday, September 7, 2011 at 10am at the Weiser Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints Stake Center. Burial was at Hillcrest Cemetery in Weiser, Idaho.

Christian country musician slated to perform in Marsing

Reynolds Creek ranches beckon OCHS field-trippers

Two ranches with historical significance were showcased during last month's Owyhee County Historical Society field trip.

On Aug. 20, about 35 OCHS members visited the Carson Ranch and the Noble Ranch, both of which are near Reynolds Creek.

District 1 Commissioner Jerry Hoagland, a Wilson-area rancher, now owns the Carson Ranch, which was established by Williams Thomas Carson around 1863.

Hoagland hosted the society's stop at the sight and described the location of the original buildings and talked about the history of the ranch.

Carson built a way station for travelers because his road was the first in the area and was heavily traveled.

The second stop on the group's tour was the Noble Ranch, which is now owned by John and Cathy Romero and once was owned by former county commissioner Dick Bass.

Bass was on hand and told some stories about Robert Noble, the spread's original owner.

Bass also filled in the visitors on the construction of the Noble Horse Barn, which is on the National Register of Historic Places.

The field trip also included a potluck in the Romeros' yard.

Officials cross fingers that HHS gym roof is covered

District could take huge monetary hit if insurance doesn’t come through

Dealing with a cash reserve battered by years of revenue cuts, school district officials are hoping their insurance policy covers Homedale High School gymnasium roof repairs

A forensic engineer from insurance carrier CNA was scheduled to analyze the compromised roof structure Tuesday, Homedale superintendent Tim Rosandick said.

While there is no preliminary estimate on how much it will cost to repair the cracked, bent and separated joists, Rosandick said the “worst-case” scenario could be substantial if the insurance company doesn’t cover the claim.

“Several hundred thousand dollars,” he said Monday afternoon.

He added that it’s premature to discuss the financial impact until a definitive cause is determined. But the district is still “worst-case scenario planning”.

“What if we only have our resources available to us, and what if somehow this claim is denied?” Rosandick asked. “We’ll have to really sharpen our pencil and find a way.”

Meanwhile, the gymnasium has been shuttered for at least two months.

Officials created a safety zone, making the gymnasium and adjacent locker room and weight room off-limits until failing joists in the main part of the building can be replaced.

“The gymnasium situation has been a little discouraging, especially for our volleyball and football teams. They are feeling quite displaced, and the seniors in particular are struggling,” HHS principal Luci Asumendi-Mereness said.

“Not having a locker room, a place to gather that is private and safe, is difficult. We will continue to reassure our students that ‘this too shall pass’ and the people making the decisions are doing so with the best interest of our students and staff in mind.”

Weight-training and physical education classes will be held outside as weather permits, and the volleyball team will play its remaining home schedule at Homedale Middle School.

In all, the required shoring up of the 39-year-old gymnasium roof will affect scores of students, Asumendi-Mereness said.

“It is an adjustment and will continue to be,” she said. “We will need to be creative as we continue to plan for weather situations, and how we will accommodate nearly 180 kids in these classes throughout the day.

“It will be a challenge, but the students and staff here will rise to the occasion.”

A crew from Beniton

Construction of Boise worked through the night last Wednesday to stabilize the gymnasium rafters and give officials more time to come up with a permanent fix.

Cracked, bent and disjoined beams were discovered during Homedale’s Sept. 6 non-conference volleyball match against Nyssa, Ore., and the following day’s class schedule was cancelled.

“A structural engineer as well as an official from the state Office of Building Safety have established a ‘safe-zone’ at the school and have determined that the school is safe to occupy with the exception of the gymnasium and associated locker rooms, weight rooms, etc.,” district superintendent Tim Rosandick wrote in an email to staff late Wednesday afternoon.

District officials got a better idea of the damage in the gymnasium after a Wednesday morning inspection.

The inspection team included Rosandick, transportation and maintenance director Tom Muir, school board chair Kurt Shanley, Design West Architects representative Bill Hamlin and structural engineer Eric Wolfe of Wolfe Engineering.

School board chair Kurt Shanley said officials are in contact with the district’s insurance carrier to see if the repairs would be covered.

Rosandick said the decision to cancel classes came after Muir noticed an “anomaly” in one of the rafters in the gymnasium during the varsity volleyball match against Nyssa.

Kurt Shanley, left, Tom Muir view the damage while Bill Hamlin and Eric Wolfe discuss the roof repairs in the HHS gym last week.

“We were sitting in the bleachers, and we all started looking at it,” said Muir, who was watching his granddaughter play. “I think it started with the national anthem, and we noticed the flag was crooked.

“And then we looked at the lights and they were leaning.”

After consulting with other school personnel, Muir helped evacuate teams and spectators to the middle school gymnasium, where Nyssa finished off the victory.

The rest of the Trojans’ home schedule will be played HMS, including Tuesday’s 3A Snake River Valley conference season opener against Fruitland, which was played after deadline. The next home game comes Tuesday against Weiser.

Landowners organize to fight for preferred Gateway West route

BLM open house on environmental study set Thursday in Murphy

Organizers of a citizens group that hosted two meetings on the proposed Gateway West electrical transmission line are hoping for a similar turnout for this week’s public meeting on the draft Environmental Impact Statement.

About 50 people showed up last week to learn more about the proposed routes for the 500-kilovolt powerline that will run from Wyoming to Idaho Power’s Hemingway Butte substation near Wilson.

Meetings were held Wednesday in Oreana and Thursday at Rimrock Jr.-Sr. High School in Bruneau.

“It brought everybody together, which was important,” organizer Leah Osborn of Oreana said. “It’s been so long that (some people) were snoozing, and (mapping details) are still coming at us.”

The Bureau of Land Management will hold a public meeting from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. on Thursday at the Owyhee County Historical Museum, 17085 Basey St., in Murphy. The meeting is a chance to learn about Idaho Power’s proposed route and alternative routes for the powerline, which could cross private property in Oreana, Murphy, Grand View and Bruneau.

Maps will be available for viewing Thursday night, and they’re also available for review at the Bruneau Valley District Library (32073 Ruth St.), the Eastern Owyhee County District Library (520 Boise Ave., Grand View), Lizard Butte Public Library (111 S. 3rd Ave. W., Marsing) and the BLM Owyhee Field Office (20 1st Ave. W., Marsing).

Osborn said that people who attended last week’s meetings were educated on how to get involved in the public comment process. Comments on the draft EIS must be received by Oct. 28.

“It’s to get people sort of on board and to encourage them to come to the next meeting (Thursday in Murphy) and really drill (BLM officials) on it,” Osborn said.

Osborn said people who attended the Oreana and Bruneau meetings last week were encouraged to support the alternative route favored by the Board of County Commissioners.

But that route, she said, has been altered in the draft EIS maps, creating confusion for landowners on whether or not they’ll be affected. County commissioners have said that they weren’t properly notified of the changes to the route before the DEIS was published.

“We’re also having trouble with the maps not jibing,” she said. “They don’t match.”

She encouraged those going to the BLM meeting next week to ask federal officials why the county’s preferred route was altered.

Owyhee wilderness permeates next Boise BLM RAC meeting

Motorized access in wilderness areas created by the Owyhee Initiative will be discussed at the Bureau of Land Management Boise District Resource Advisory Council’s final meeting of the fiscal year.

The meeting begins at 9 a.m. next Wednesday at the district office, 3948 S. Development Ave., in Boise.

At least three topics in next week’s meeting involve federal land in Owyhee County.

A subgroup will provide an update on the Owyhee Initiative Board’s Recreation/Travel Management actions.

The motorized access to wilderness discussion deals with part of the implementation actions for the Owyhee Public Lands Management Act.

RAC members also will explore how they will provide comments to the BLM on the draft Environmental Impact Statement for the proposed Gateway West transmission line.

There also will be a review of the fires that have burned in the Boise District this season and their impact on sensitive species.

The managers from BLM entities within the district, including the Owyhee and Bruneau field offices, will deliver reports.

The 15-member advisory panel provides advice and recommendations to the BLM on resource and land management issues for approximately 4 million acres of federal public lands within 10 counties in southwestern Idaho, including Owyhee.

The meeting is an opportunity for the public to ask questions of the citizen-based advisory council or make comments that may assist RAC members in formulating recommendations to the BLM.

The oral comment period takes place at about 11:30 a.m. Written comments are welcome, too.

To receive an agenda or get more information about the meeting, call RAC coordinator MJ Byrne at (208) 384-3393 or 871-1992 (cell).

Byrne said the current makeup of the RAC, which includes Owyhee County ranchers Brenda Richards and Donna Bennett, will change.

“There will be five new members, and a new chairperson will be elected at the first meeting of the RAC during FY 2012,” Byrne said, adding that no appointments to the five positions have been made yet.

Historic bar serves up a shot of history during Silver City Open House

Silver Slipper featured during 15th annual event

In 1864, Silver City was established as a booming mining town. Many of its historic buildings have played host to a variety of businesses and owners. On Saturday and Sunday many of the iconic establishments will be open for tours.

For Vern and Kim Tunnell, opening the doors to the Silver Slipper is a way to share the history of the town with attendees at the 15th annual Silver City Open House.

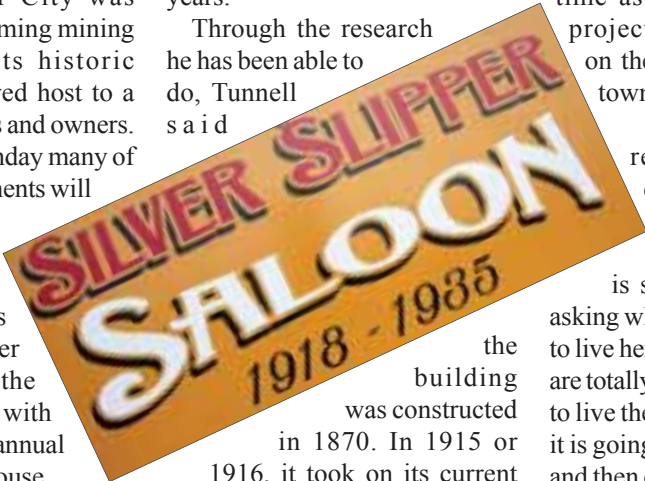

“All lot of it is the history. It is a fascinating place to live, and I am constantly learning more and more history about the place,” Vern Tunnell said. “We get people coming through that have lived there and give us more information about the buildings every year.”

The Tunnells purchased the “miners bar” in 2006 and began working on renovations and maintaining its historical presence on Washington Street, which has played host to a variety of businesses throughout the years.

“The Slipper is a main street building,” Tunnell said. “Any of the buildings along Washington and other streets have been used for a variety of businesses and have had their share of turnover throughout the years.”

Through the research he has been able to do, Tunnell said the building was constructed in 1870. In 1915 or 1916, it took on its current name.

“Before 1915 or 1916, I’m not sure what exactly was in the building,” Tunnell said. “At different points it was a dental office, lawyer’s office and a jewelry store. It was also used at Francis Gary’s Mercantile. Before the town closed up, it became the Silver Slipper again.”

Throughout their five years of owning the Slipper, the Tunnells have updated the bathroom and upgraded the roof-mounted solar system to allow for 110v power. Silver City was one of the first cities in Idaho to have electricity, something that is only available through generators or solar power now, he said.

For the majority of the year, the Tunnells live outside of Homedale but spend as much time as possible working on projects and spending time on their ATVs in the mining town.

“You get a lot of reactions from people during the open house and throughout the year asking if there is stuff for sale to people asking why someone would want to live here,” Tunnell said. “Some are totally surprised anyone wants to live there. A lot of people think it is going to be like Virginia City and then on the other hand people think they are going to come to broken-down buildings and boards on the windows.

“Silver has a lot to offer from camping to ATV riding and panning for gold. The community itself is interesting. Talking with the other owners and learning about the history of each of the buildings is neat.”

During the time they have owned the building, the one thing everyone wants to do when they visit the Silver Slipper is sit at the bar and take pictures.

“We put out a table with a poker game and allow people to sit and get their picture taken,” Tunnell said. “It is fun watching people play the part of being what was primarily the miners bar. The hotel had the big fancy setup, but this was more of the low-key rough-and-tumble bar. It was just a regular bar. The elite went to the hotel.”

Visitors to the Silver Slipper will have a chance to take photos at a poker table and the historic bar during the open house.

During the open house, Tunnell said visitors are welcome at any of the 10 buildings that are open for the weekend. But those homes and buildings that aren’t open should be respected, he said.

“This is a town just like any other town, so treat it like you would treat your own,” Tunnell said. “(If) the houses that aren’t on the open house, respect it. Don’t go on the porches and look through the windows. It is private property. Don’t go up on their porch and have a picnic because you think the porch is neat.”

Although Silver City has gone through many stages over the years, the property owners care about the history and want to preserve the historic nature of the original county seat for Owyhee County.

“The one thing that holds it all together, it is about Silver City,” Tunnell said. “Just like any city, you have politics, but in the end everyone cares about the town and wants to keep it like it is. Everyone is looking out for the history of the town.”

Camaraderie, community celebrated at school's centennial

by Meagan Fillmore, JVHS
Jordan Valley Elementary School marked its 100th anniversary with a program Sept. 3.

Alumna Kelly Hodson opened the celebration by singing the national anthem. Alumni veterans David Bowers, David Reed, Scott Telleria, and Christopher Tschida presented the flags.

Jordan Valley Elementary was built in 1911 and has been the site for the education of children in the surrounding communities since. Many students have passed through the doors of this exceptional school all asking the same questions, "What will I be? Where will I go? When will I know?" and by the time they've graduated "Jordan Valley used to be just Basque and Irish ... I used to dip the girls' hair in inkwells!" Richard Madariaga recalled of his elementary days.

Everyone at the program enjoyed being able to come back and see old friends and look at the photographs from when they attended and see the history of the school building occupied by generations of Jordan Valley schoolchildren.

Students have found comfort in the aged building and its teachers.

"If one kid was having troubles the others would help out," current Jordan Valley High School student and elementary alum Jordan

The centennial program concluded with door prizes for the oldest and youngest students in attendance. Ester Dempsey, 93, was the oldest former student.

Everyone present expressed joy in being able to get back together and enjoy the history of the 100-year-old educational system which shows that not only the building has stood strong but so did friendships with their classmates who showed up to celebrate.

Jordan Valley chapter earns FFA national ranking

Members of the Jordan Valley FFA chapter have a ticket to Indianapolis after earning the second-highest level in the National FFA Chapter Award program.

With the national two-star ranking comes an invitation to attend the 84th National FFA Convention in Indianapolis. The chapter and its fifth-year advisor Nick Usabel will be recognized during the Oct. 19-22 event.

Jordan Valley is one of only six FFA chapters in Oregon to receive a national ranking.

Jordan Valley has been recognized for developing and conducting a detailed Program of Activities (POA).

Taylor Lucas and Garrett Williams completed Jordan Valley's National Chapter Application and submitted it at the Oregon state FFA convention last year at Crater High School near Medford, Ore. Lucas and Williams were 2010-11 chapter president and vice-president, respectively, and both graduated in the spring. Lucas arranged the chapter's POA.

"A committee at the state level evaluated the application and ranked the application in the gold category," Usabel said.

There are three divisions in the application — student development, chapter development and community development.

Lucas selected three activities from each division and explained the goals of the activities, the plans of action and the results and evaluation of the activities.

"Activities help to develop the student, increase chapter cohesiveness and benefit the community," Usabel said. "It is awesome to see the chapter and the members involved succeed at this level."

Some of the activities highlighted in Jordan Valley's application included annual events such as the Easter egg hunt, appreciation breakfast, leadership camp, battery collection and greenhouse operation.

"Our program of activities is certainly a useful tool that helps us to set goals at the beginning of the year, to get students involved on committees and to keep the chapter moving in a productive direction throughout the school year," Usabel said.

"It's great to receive an award at the national level and to know that FFA members in the program are working hard to meet goals and participate in activities."

Every year, chapters are recognized as having earned a one-, two-, or three-star rating on their application. The three-star rating is the highest level of application a chapter may achieve.

The National FFA Chapter Award program, sponsored by John Deere, is a special project of the National FFA Foundation.

Jordan Valley FFA member Jordan Matteri also has received a silver rating for his Agricultural Processing Proficiency.

Football team opens home schedule with first shutout

Homedale High School's players have chips on their shoulders, and may the football gods have mercy on whoever lines up against them on any given Friday.

Vale, Ore., had that misfortune last week, and the Trojans inflicted physical and emotional pain with a 56-0 non-conference shellacking at Deward Bell Stadium.

Third-year HHS coach Matt Holtry called the victory his players' response to naysayers who post on various Internet messageboards.

"They keep hearing how Homedale only plays 2A teams and Homedale's not all that and all the hoopla is about Fruitland and Weiser," Holtry said. "The only way you're going to get respect is to keep outperforming the other teams and playing our best and playing a higher level of football.

"We're just trying to make a statement that what we have going is the real deal. It's not just a flash in the pan."

The only flash Friday night was the velocity of senior quarterback Trey Corta's personal passing clinic with sophomore wideout Talon Frelove. And Corta's customary triple-digit rushing output.

The 6-foot-2, 170-pound Frelove and Corta teamed up on a lightning-quick hitch pattern all night long. Frelove finished

Huskies avoid close call with Glenns Ferry

Bye week gives Marsing a chance to recover from "injury bug"

Ugly is the only word Marsing High School football coach Jaime Wood used to describe the win over Glenns Ferry on Friday night.

Heading into the road game, Wood was optimistic that they would be able to contain the Pilots' passing offense. After a long first half, Marsing (3-0) keyed in on the passing in the second half and edged the host, 34-20.

"Ugly, ugly game. It is good to win on the road, but that was ugly," Wood said. "Our tackling wasn't there. We have to clean it up. We didn't have the penalties like the last two games, but we have other things to clean up now."

In the opening drive, the Pilots (0-3) marched the ball downfield for a touchdown. After a nearly 20-minute delay as Marsing's James Miller was taken off the field in an ambulance, the Huskies wouldn't reach the end zone until the end of the first quarter.

"We have the injury bug right now," Wood said. "Hopefully with the bye week we will get everyone healthy and hopefully those who are out will come back hungry. Everyone should be healthy for New Plymouth, and that is exciting. We got the injury bug, there is no doubt

Marsing volleyball rebounds with two wins

Coming off a slow start to the 2011 season, the Marsing High School volleyball team rebounded this past week with two conference wins as they prepare for the heart of their WIC schedule.

Hitting the court with an evenly matched New Plymouth team, the Huskies were clicking throughout some long volleys to take the match 25-19, 25-22, 28-26 and move to 2-2 in 2A Western Idaho Conference play (2-3 overall).

"I can definitely see our defense coming together," Marsing coach Loma Bittick said. "The girls are starting to see their roles, and we played more like a team last Thursday."

Senior Andrea Rodriguez led Marsing with 14 kills and three aces followed by Lacey Usabel with 22 assists and two blocks. Lily Bowers racked up 10 kills, and Kathlyn Welch grabbed three digs and one block.

"New Plymouth is pretty aggressive, and it made for some long volleys," Bittick said. "We have some young kids playing some roles that are settling in now."

Western Idaho teams keep Adrian volleyball winless

The start of the Adrian High School volleyball season has been marked with an inability to close the deal.

The Antelopes fell to 0-3 overall Friday night with a gritty 26-24, 10-25, 25-22, 25-19 loss to visiting Liberty Charter from Nampa.

“We’re still struggling to finish plays and the game,” Adrian coach Aimee Goss said. “We had some great blocking and hitting, but not enough to finish.”

Madison Purnell and Annie Bowns each notched three block kills. Purnell led the way with eight kills, and Bowns chipped in six.

Nichole Orosco had five kills and a block kill, while Chelsey Heller drove the offense with 19 assists.

The Antelopes hit the road for the next two weeks, playing at Council on Friday and participating in the Pine Eagle Tournament in Halfway, Ore., on Saturday.

Adrian visits Greenleaf Friends Academy on Monday before opening the 1A High Desert League season Friday, Sept. 23 at Dayville/Monument.

The road trip ends Saturday, Sept. 24 at the Cambridge Tournament.

Thursday: Greenleaf Friends Academy def. Adrian — The Grizzlies exploited the host Antelopes’ weaknesses in a 25-15, 20-25, 25-11, 25-19 non-conference victory.

“We really struggled to have any real momentum except for the second game,” Adrian coach Aimee Goss said. “We really fell behind in serving and we hit a lot of balls out.”

Chelsey Heller, a 5-foot-2 junior, had 24 assists for Adrian, while 5-10 junior Madison Purnell put down 11 kills.

“We had a few bright moments hitting, but on the whole couldn’t put up an offense and Greenleaf did a nice job of finding our holes,” Goss said.

Madison Johnson had eight assists and eight kills for the Grizzlies, who remained unbeaten after three matches.

Trojans’ other Trey trumps Vale

Sophomore QB, stifling defense leads Homedale JV

There’s another quarterback named Trey that Homedale High School fans should keep an eye on.

Sophomore Trey Lane completed 73.7 percent of his passes and had a hand in five touchdowns as Homedale walloped Vale, 60-0, on Thursday in a non-conference game played on the road.

Lane completed 14 of 19 passes for 214 yards and three touchdowns. He also averaged nine yards per carry while racking up 72 yards and two touchdowns on the ground.

Homedale (3-0 overall) finished with 482 yards total offense, including 86 yards and three TDs from leading rusher Jose Lopez and 70 yards on four carries from Colton Grimm.

Logan Jarvis and Angel Cardenas were Lane’s favorite passing targets. Each caught six passes with Jarvis covering 120 yards and scoring three times (36- and 20-yarders in the second quarter and an 18-yard play in the third). Cardenas rolled up 50 yards in receptions.

Curtis Stansell was the other Trojan to score, rolling in from four yards out with 100 seconds left in the game for the final score.

The Trojans racked up 25 first downs, while the defense held Vale to just five.

The Vikings lost five fumbles, while Vale quarterback Colton Friend completed all five of his passes for 73 yards.

Homedale limited Vale to just 23 yards total offense as a balanced defense pushed Vikings’ ball carriers back for negative yardage. Vale lost 50 yards on the ground.

Dane Jacobs paced the Trojans’ defense with six tackles, while Grimm and Lucas Flaming picked up five apiece. Grimm and Miguel Montejano each had a sack.

Nathan Leslie recovered all five fumbles Vale ball carriers lost.

Homedale’s JV is back on the road Thursday, taking on New Plymouth in the final non-conference game of the season.

Jordan Valley outlasts Greenleaf Friends griders

Warn’s fourth-quarter TD proves the difference

Ty Warn scored from five yards out in the fourth quarter Friday as Jordan Valley High School survived a non-league football slugfest.

The score was the last of five TDs in which Warn played a part as the Mustangs outscored Greenleaf Friends Academy, 42-36.

“Ty Warn is doing a great job leading the offense,” Jordan Valley coach Tim McBride said.

Warn trampled the host Grizzlies for 226 yards on 24 carries, including an 88-yard dash to the end zone for Jordan Valley’s only first-quarter score.

Greenleaf, in its first year under coach Doug Anders from Homedale, held a 22-6 lead after the first 12 minutes.

The Mustangs (2-0) stormed back by outscoring the Grizzlies, 28-6, over the second and third quarters.

Warn fired two TD passes in the second quarter — seven yards to Nate Elsner and 10 yards to Nathan Easterday — and scored on an 11-yard run in the third period.

Elsner, meanwhile, tossed a 20-yard touchdown to James Dowell to start the second-half scoring.

“This was a very tense, hard-fought game,” McBride said. “James Dowell played end for us and played exceptionally well.

“He had some really big catches in crucial times for us.”

Dowell hauled in three balls for 64 yards, while Easterday had three receptions for 61 yards.

The Mustangs finished with 276 yards rushing, including another 45 from Blaine Moran on nine carries.

Jordan Valley is off this week before beginning the 1A High Desert League season at 3 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 23 on the road in Unity, Ore., against Burnt River.

“We’re going to continue to work hard and get better, correct some things and get ready for our next game,” the fourth-year coach said.

New Mustangs volleyball coach sees progress

Jordan Valley still winless despite valiant third sets

The first win has yet to come for new Jordan Valley High School volleyball coach Sarah Bengard, but she has found some bright spots.

The Mustangs battled hard in the third set but lost, 25-17, 25-18, 26-24, to host Greenleaf Friends Academy on Friday. It was the second time in as many days that Jordan Valley had pushed its opponents into extra points in the decisive frame.

“We played better as a team this game. They were a tough team,” Bengard said. “We didn’t come up with the win, but I was proud of my girls. We fought to the very end.”

Bengard said better passing was a key to her team’s improved performance.

Meagan Fillmore smacked a team-high eight kills, while setter Hayley Caywood delivered two kills. Sharayh Cline, Andi Warn and Christina Rogers also had kills.

“Freshman Stephanie Youren saw a lot of playing time and served awesome for us, including one ace serve, which was tough to do against Greenleaf’s defense,” Bengard said.

Madison Johnson served five aces for the Grizzlies, who were playing a tri-meet against visitors Jordan Valley and Adrian.

Jordan Valley hits the road for Unity, Ore., to meet Burnt River in a 1A High Desert League match on Friday, Sept. 23.

Thursday: McDermitt, Nev., def. Jordan Valley, 3-0 — The Mustangs stretched the Bulldogs in the third set in what could be the start of a trend of not giving up easily.

Jordan Valley had defeated McDermitt in a scrimmage earlier this season. This time, the Bulldogs prevailed 25-17, 25-18, 26-24.

“It was a good lesson to the girls to never underestimate a team,” Bengard said. “We couldn’t seem to pull it together.”

Warn, a freshman, responded well to a new assignment as Bengard moved the Mustangs into a 5-1 alignment with only one setter.

“Andi Warn was put into a new position from setting to play the middle hitter position, and she did a great job with seven kills and three big blocks,” the coach said.

Rogers notched a season-high eight kills, and Fillmore chipped in four. Rogers also had a couple ace serves.

Youren began a week of contributions by stepping in for Jessi Carson, who missed both matches because of illness.

“Stephanie served the ball really well and had three digs in the back row,” Bengard said.

Cline added a kill and two digs.

Sept. 6: Marsing def. McCall-Donnelly, 3-0 — On the road for their first outing coming off a three-match skid, the Huskies were able to deliver a stellar performance to claim their first 2A WIC win of the season.

“When you travel, things can happen that you don’t predict,” Bittick said. “We got our legs under us early and played well.”

Marsing held off the host Vandals over three sets, going 25-13, 25-22 and 25-16 for the win. On the night, Deidrie Briggs led with five aces and five kills. Bowers picked up four kills and two blocks, and Becky Carter knocked down eight aces.

On Tuesday, Marsing starts a four match homestand as they hit the heart of its 2A WIC campaign when they host Nampa Christian beginning at 5 p.m. with the junior varsity. On Sept. 22 the Huskies will host Cole Valley Christian to round out the week.

“We saw Nampa Christian play at the Kuna tourney. They were strong and ended in the top eight,” Bittick said. “We expect (Nampa Christian and Cole Valley) to be powerful and they have some experienced players coming back.”

✓ Trojans: Connect across the board in blowout win

with 178 yards receiving after catching 14 of his quarterback's 18 completions.
The duo's 16-yard hookup 86 seconds before halftime gave the Trojans a 34-0 lead.
Freelove's performance could have been even more devastating if he had held on to what would have been a 45-yard bomb 42 seconds into the second quarter.
But Corta's slight overthrow was a far cry from the frustrating night the two players had a week earlier against Nampa Christian, which seemed to be another motivator Friday.
"We worked a lot more on passing for me. I threw to Talon and all my other receivers for a good 20, 25 minutes before practice. That's about all we did," Corta said.
"We just continued to rep and rep and rep and rep on those little, short passes."
Those "little, short passes" turned into a 69.2 percent completion rate, 219 yards and another quarterback rating north of 100 for Corta.
Freelove was overwhelmingly Corta's favorite target Friday, but he also found Brett Shanley, Calvin Black and Timmy Scott for key receptions.
"It's nice that we've been playing with each other our whole high school career and Optimist and middle school," Corta said of his receiving corps. "It makes things a whole lot nicer."
Not necessarily for opposing defenses.
Sophomore Ali Garcia picked up two more rushing touchdowns as part of a 76-yard performance, and Kade Eiguren scored another TD.
Vale's frustration showed early in a game that got chippy quickly.
The Vikings were whistled for a late hit on Corta on the PAT attempt after the senior scored the first of his four touchdowns with 6 minutes, 37 seconds left in the first quarter.

A two-yard touchdown by senior quarterback, who finished with 150 yards on 12 carries, early in the second quarter was set up when a Vale defender stomped on his helmet a play earlier and received a personal foul penalty.
Both teams were penalized a total of 21 times for 186 yards, with Homedale getting the brunt of it. Twelve infractions cost the Trojans 130 yards. There were at least two instances of offsetting personal foul penalties.
Holtry said his players are drilled not to retaliate because of the impact a game disqualification could have on a shallow roster.
"We've got to play smart. We talk about that as a team, playing with your head, and our kids did a good job of that tonight, I thought," Holtry said.
Hard-nosed senior defenders Timmy Scott and Bodie Hyer let their hitting do the talking. Hyer racked up a season-high 10 tackles to go along with three assists, and Scott added seven tackles and three assists.
To top it off, the Trojans pitched a shutout after coming within one play of pulling off a whitewash each of the first two weeks of the season.
"If they're not used to teams scoring on them, they don't like that feeling when teams do," Holtry said. "So I think the more low-scoring games and the more shutouts that we get the more our defense is going to tighten up more and more when teams get close to scoring."
"They don't want to give up those points. They take pride in that."

Homedale vs. New Plymouth

The Trojans' second consecutive game at Deward Bell Stadium is Homecoming and Homedale's final non-conference contest of the season.
The new-look New Plymouth Pilgrims stand in the way as Homedale tries to cap a perfect non-conference season.
The Pilgrims are 0-2 and have scored just 20 points since Raymond Evans took over for Brady Harris, the quarterback who graduated in the spring after leading New Plymouth to the 2A state semifinals in two consecutive seasons. Evans, a senior, won a 2A wrestling state championship as a freshman at Marsing.

"They lost a lot of players to graduation last year, but they still throw the ball well," HHS coach Matt Holtry said.
"We'll have to be able to defend the pass. This will be a good challenge for our defensive backs."

✓ Huskies: Move to 3-0 on on the season

about it."
At the time of the injury it was believed that Miller had broken ribs during a play and was transported to an area hospital. At the end of the game, Wood received an update that Miller had bruised ribs.
"The biggest thing about our guys that we will work on is we can't have the letdown in the fourth quarter," Wood said. "If someone makes a stand to come back, we have to take care of business. We should have only given up six points."
With a breakout performance, sophomore Charlie Galvez chipped away at the Pilots' defense in his 24 carries. The 5-foot-7, 170-pound Galvez racked up 126 yards on the ground putting the Huskies in position to score on numerous occasions. On defense, he intercepted an errant throw from Pilots quarterback Adrian Martinez and returned it for a touchdown at the end of the third quarter.
"We rode his shoulders the whole time," Wood said. "Charlie isn't blazing fast, but he grinds it out. Here we are three games in and we are riding his shoulders. He just got in there and punched it out."
Glenns Ferry fought until the very end with Martinez connecting with Michael Willis for two touchdowns late in the fourth quarter. The Pilots held the Huskies within the 10-yard line in the final seconds of the game to prevent another Marsing touchdown.
Sophomore quarterback Austin Williams completed 12 of his 23 passes for 200 yards. The 5-foot-8 Williams connected with 6-foot-4 Jason Galligan on five different occasions throughout the night. Galligan racked up 138 yards. Williams also targeted Justin Glenn and Tristan Jacobi for a touchdowns.
"Charlie and Tristan did their jobs in positions that they don't normally play," Wood said. "Everyone shuffled around this week with the injuries. This shows me that we have good athletes, and good athletes will make plays no matter what position they are in."
On the scoring offensive for the Huskies, Hudson Sauer and Glenn picked up a touchdowns. Following Galvez and his interception for a touchdown, Jacobi would also snag a Pilots pass and return it for a TD.

"It feels pretty good to start the season 3-0 and match the wins from last year," Wood said. "Our biggest trouble here in Marsing has always been Marsing. If our guys take care of the ball and play the game that I know they can play, they will be fine. We just have to play Marsing football."
With the Huskies heading into a bye week, Wood said the team will focus on "getting back to the basics" as they prep for the Pilgrims' Homecoming on Sept. 23.
"We beat (Glenns Ferry) by 14 points. Two of those touchdowns came from interceptions and two of theirs came from our line letting down. We should have only given up six points. We will work on the basics these next two weeks to clean up our game in order to be ready for New Plymouth."

✓ Marsing: Students salute veterans with donation to Boise VA hospital

Student council officers presented, before their peers, an emotional tribute to the men and women who serve the community of Marsing as volunteers with the ambulance, fire department and personnel from the Owyhee County Sheriff's Office.

"It is a great way to thank the emergency personnel from the community," student council president Deidrie Briggs said. "I know that many of the other students don't remember a lot of what happened except for what they see now. This is a way to keep it in our minds and remember the efforts of 9/11."

During the assembly representatives from the Marsing fire department and ambulance service and OCSO were recognized with a plaque thanking them for the service to the community.

"We wanted to thank the people who help us everyday," Ferdinand said. "These people give a lot of their time, and it is important to thank them for their service."

and my wife has a husband." Steadied by a walker, Zimmerman told of his recovery from life-threatening injuries after an Aug. 8 horse training accident.

"As I was laying on the arena floor, I thought, 'This is it'," Zimmerman said. "But God had a different plan for me."

Zimmerman's testimony, a prelude to a longer presentation he'll make at the Homedale-area church on Sept. 25, included recognizing emergency medical service providers from Adrian and Nyssa, and was part of the over-arching theme that resonated throughout Homedale on Sunday on the 10th anniversary of the Sept. 11 terrorists attacks.

As the morning Cowboy Church service portion of the Nazarene celebration was dedicated to recognizing the role of emergency workers and the armed forces personnel, so to was a solemn event at Bette Uda City Park on the other end of town.

Remembering firefighters lost in rescue efforts following the Sept. 11 attacks, Homedale Fire Chief Scott Salutregui struck the four fives on a gleaming American Legion bell to initiate the George D. VanDerhoff Post 32-sponsored tribute at the city's war memorial.

Post commander Robert Keaveny organized the remembrance and served as master of ceremonies.

"Part of the mission of the American Legion is to help people remember certain events. It's part of our makeup. It's part of our preamble to our constitution," he said.

"We will never forget our association in the Great War", and this is a great war that we're in." Speakers at the City Park ceremony included:

- Mayor Harold Wilson, who issued a proclamation memorializing those people who died in the attacks on the World Trade Center in New York City and the Pentagon in Washington, D.C., and those who perished aboard United Flight 93 while averting another commercial airliner attack.
- Capt. Charles Garrison, a member of the Idaho National Guard's 116th Calvary Brigade Combat Team, reminded the 90 people gathered on a sweltering day that the War on Terror has affected not only the all-volunteer force of servicemen but also their families back home.

Capt. Charles Garrison of the Idaho National Guard, a Homedale resident, speaks about the all-volunteer military fighting the War on Terror during Sunday's 9/11 remembrance at Bette Uda City Park.

• Acting Homedale Police Chief Sgt. Mike McFetridge, whose boss Jeff Eidemiller recently returned from a tour with the 116th in Iraq, led a moment of silence to remember the victims of the attacks and the fallen service members in the ensuing wars in Afghanistan and Iraq.

• District 2 Commissioner Kelly Aberasturi spoke of the Flight 93 heroes 93 and those who died in the attacks.

"That's why we are here — to honor those who have given the ultimate sacrifice whether they be firefighters, police or military personnel or our (Emergency Medical Technicians)," Aberasturi said.

Keaveny questioned whether the events of Sept. 11 were already slipping from the nation's consciousness. But he also remained confident that the country will continue to fight back, saying that the terrorists were counting on the United States to be "a nation of selfish materialists that doesn't have resolve."

"On this patriot day, let us remember that our armed forces continue to pursue those terrorists," Keaveny said.

On behalf of the American Legion, Keaveny presented Wilson with a Blue Star Banner that will hang in City Hall's window as a reminder of the town's strong contingent of men and women serving in the wars.

Wilson, Garrison, McFetridge and Salutregui also placed a wreath at the city's war memorial, which was adorned with a photo of U.S. Navy Reserve Lt. Cmdr. Ronald Vauk, a Nampa resident and Keaveny family friend who was killed in the Pentagon attack 10 years ago.

Keaveny applauded the public for coming out to the event.

"I'm glad to see that people from the community still haven't forgotten," he said.

Homedale FFA’s road to nationals begins with Harvest Auction

The first step in the Homedale FFA chapter’s trip to next month’s national convention begins with the Harvest Auction.

Every year Homedale FFA holds an auction to fund it many activities, including a trip to the Oct. 19-22 national convention in Indianapolis for 10 chapter members.

The Harvest Auction event, better known to the Homedale chapter members as the Slave Auction, will be held Saturday, Sept. 24 inside the Homedale High School cafeteria. A tri-tip steak dinner will be served at 6 p.m. with the auction beginning at 6:30 p.m.

The Slave Auction comes from the fact that eight hours worth of labor from each FFA member will be auctioned.

Other auction items include produce, livestock, pies and gift items.

“The Homedale FFA greatly appreciates our community supporting us, without you we wouldn’t be able to accomplish all of the things we do,” chapter advisor Lori Idsinga said.

Homedale FFA will go to the national convention as a two-star winner in the National Chapter Award. Homedale is one of only eight chapters statewide to receive recognition in the competition.

The national convention will attract 53,000 FFA members for competitions, leadership workshops and keynote speakers.

Harvest Auction proceeds support other Homedale FFA activities, including Career Development Events, trips to state convention and state CDEs, community service projects such as Meat the Need and Gift of Green.

New this year, money will be used to fill care packages that will be sent to service men and women serving overseas.

Baxter Black, DVM

On the edge of common sense Doggin' days at ol' Cheyenne Rodeo as a spectator sport has been growing in attendance. Maybe it is because it is live-action, close to home, reasonably priced and rated PG. NASCAR has a similar appeal. As rodeo moves into the ranks of other professional sports, you notice a consistency in the show. The Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association runs a tight ship.

Most of the excitement comes when a tie down roper puts one down in 7.6 seconds. Or when a ranking saddle bronc rider makes a classic ride. Or a barrel racer wins by 1/100th of a second! In other words, when a champion shows you how it's done.

But most often the most memorable event that fans remember is when Billy Joe hung up in his bull rope and became a propeller! Or Jamie was fired from his bareback horse and became a lawn dart! Or when Jose the heeler broke the barrier and roped the line judge!

However, most pro rodeos have reduced the "unknown factors." It keeps the competition finely tuned. Then there is Cheyenne Frontier Days! They throw in several ringers: green cattle, a 30-foot barrier, and an arena as long as the White House lawn! These additions don't affect the rough stock riders much, unless one of the bareback horses becomes Sea Biscuit! But ... it turns the normally machine-like timed events into rough stock performances as wild and unpredictable as donkey basketball!

Imagine the tie-down roper tense in the box. He nods for his calf. The chute opens, the roper's horse quivers, the rope is buzzing, everyone is holding their breath ... and the calf strolls out, lazily. Meandering into the arena, looking at the crowd, imagining his mother is out there somewhere, seconds tick by ... then he crosses the magic 30-foot barrier AND THE WHEEL COMES OFF THE WAGON!

Their steer wrestling event is even more exciting. The dogger nods his head. He and the hazer, wound like springs, watch the big steer break out of the box like he's got heel flies in his pants! They wait the interminable microseconds. By the time the steer hits the 30-foot barrier, he is going at the speed of beef! It takes our fearless cowboys another 20 or 30 yards to catch up. The questions arises, "What does it feel like to push your horse into a dead run, flat out, nostrils flaring, tail flying and jump off him into a four-legged horned calf-skin torpedo weighing 600 pounds?" Imagine standing on the hood of your car, getting your buddy to get it up to 35 mph, then reach out and grab a telephone pole!

Talk about exciting! It was like watching the Hulk tackle Shrek's donkey!

Suffice it to say that each performance ended with the Wild Horse Race. What else did you expect? When you took one look at those characters entered up, they made the Pittsburgh Steelers defensive line look like fashion designers for Dancing with the Stars!

If you've heard the term "Cowboy Up!" Cheyenne Frontier Days is how you spell it!

Sen. Mike Crapo

From Washington USDA anti-spud mandate could hurt schools' bottom line

When you consider its ability to grow even in poor soils, its affordability, storability, quantity of vital nutrients and its suitability as an abundant food energy source on limited land, it is no wonder the potato has been a staple food source for thousands of years. The potato has also been characterized as a "hidden treasure" by the Food and Agricultural Organization for its vital role in providing food security and eradicating poverty.

Responsible for 30 percent of our nation's potato production and valued at more than $784 million, Idaho potato production's importance to our economy is well-known. The potato is also grown all over the world, and has a long history of sustaining world populations. It originated in Peru, where it was utilized by the Incas as a food source. The potato was later taken to Europe via Spain by returning sailors and became an affordable food. It fueled workers in the Industrial Revolution and rural populations in Ireland and other areas. The potato is also grown and consumed throughout Africa and Asia.

Despite the internationally recognized nutritional significance of the potato, the Obama administration has taken undue steps to restrict its use in nourishing American children, and the media has jumped on the bandwagon. On Jan. 13, 2011, the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) published its proposed rule updating nutrition standards in school lunches and breakfasts. The rule adds more fruits, vegetables, whole grains and fat-free or low-fat milk to school menus and limits the amount of "starchy vegetables" that may be served to one cup per week. This would include potatoes, corn, green peas and lima beans.

It makes little sense for the USDA to restrict vegetables, such as potatoes, that we know are nutritious and children will eat. With only 110 calories, a potato contains more potassium than an equivalent-sized banana and more fiber than a serving of broccoli. In addition to being nutrient-dense, potatoes are a cost-effective use of school meal program dollars. For less than five cents per potato, school meal programs can meet nutrition requirements on several fronts. Additionally, with our nation's current fiscal challenges, the rule is far from cost effective. The USDA's own estimates indicate that the cost to schools will increase by $6.8 billion over five years. The USDA should not be removing a healthful, affordable source of nutrients from school lunches. That is why I have joined my colleagues in expressing strong opposition to this proposed rule.

In his book titled, "The Potato: How the Humble Spud Rescued the Western World," author Larry Zuckerman, notes that one acre's worth of potatoes provides more than 10 people with their annual energy and protein needs. The potato is truly an efficient, nutritional treasure. Families and local school districts are far better equipped than a federal bureaucracy to decide whether potatoes are the right choice for students, and the potato should remain an option for American families.

by Cliff Kincaid

"In a multinational race to seize the potential riches of the formerly icebound Arctic, being laid bare by global warming, Russia is the early favorite." So says the Christian Science Monitor. "At stake is an estimated one-quarter of all the world's untapped hydrocarbon reserves, abundant fisheries, and a freshly opened route that will cut nearly a third off the shipping time from Asia to Europe."

What the paper neglected to note is that the U.S. has exclusive rights to this region because Americans were the first to the North Pole. There is no Russian advantage, despite their planting a flag there in 2007. There is also a dispute, of course, whether the "warming" is man-made or not.

"Within the next year," the paper went on, "the Kremlin is expected to make its claim to the United Nations in a bold move to annex about 380,000 square miles of the internationally owned Arctic to Russian control."

In fact, the Arctic is not "internationally owned" and the U.N. has no jurisdiction over the area unless and until the U.S. gives up its rights by ratifying the U.N.'s Law of the Sea Treaty.

As we have pointed out in the past, "American explorers staked an American claim to the North Pole in the early 1900s and U.S. nuclear submarines traveled below the Pole and broke the ice in the 1950s. Russian claims [to the region] are fraudulent and should be seen and rejected as such."

What makes this relevant and newsworthy is President Obama's push for ratification of the Law of the Sea Treaty, which would indeed put the region under the jurisdiction of global bureaucrats.

The Russians tried the same gambit under President Bush, who also pushed the treaty, and we warned at the time that the Russians "are hoping to reap a financial windfall amounting to hundreds of billions of dollars' worth of oil revenue. With State Department support, the U.N. will take its cut, and the U.S. will end up being even more dependent on Russia and other foreign sources of oil. The entire scenario, however, can be disrupted by the American people objecting to this scheme and convincing the Senate to reject UNCLOS [the U.N. Convention on the Law of the Sea]. They will have to remind their Senators that Reagan, who was right on the Panama Canal Treaty, was also opposed to UNCLOS."

As a result of grass-roots pressure, the treaty was never brought up for a full Senate vote. Conservative opponents sought 34 votes to stop it (a treaty requires 67 votes for passage).

As long as the U.S. remains a non-party to the treaty, our rights are enforceable by the U.S. Navy. But once ratification takes place, we are at the mercy of foreign interests, including Russia and China, as well as international lawyers and bureaucrats.

Today, the U.S. Navy fleet consists of 284 ships, down from a high close to 600 under Reagan.

The Journal of International Security Affairs has more bad news for the U.S. An article by Gal Luft notes, "Despite the significant geopolitical and geo-economic interests the United States has in the Arctic, Washington has treated the region with insufficient resources and even less policy attention. Russia, meanwhile, is pursuing a path of aggressiveness and unilateralism. The number of icebreakers essential for safe navigation in the Arctic is one measure of American neglect of the region. The United States has only two, compared to Russia's fleet of twenty-nine,

Financial management

Five-year-old quickly learns key to financial fundamental

Dear Dave,
Several months ago, my 5-year-old son told me he wanted a Nintendo DS. He does little things around the house for me, and at his grandparents' place, so I told him he'd need to save his money and buy it. Well, he did! He's got enough for the console, but not to pay the sales tax. Should I help him out?

— Nina

Dear Nina,
Are you serious? Yes, you should pitch in and pay the sales tax! It's not like he's 15 or 20. This kid is just five years old, and he's a financial rock star. I think we can cut him a little slack on this one.
The older they get, the more hardcore you need to get as a parent when it comes to financial responsibility. But this child is already learning a great principle that will last him the rest of his life. If you're willing to sacrifice a little bit, you can accomplish anything.

Don't let this be a one-shot deal. He needs a new goal right now, so go out and find something he's as excited about as that Nintendo DS. Then, let him start working on that one.
I'm telling you, if we could send some people to Washington who understand what your son already understands, this country would be in great shape!

— Dave

Dear Dave,
Is it always a good idea to put the maximum amount of money you can afford into a down payment when buying your first home?

— David

Dear David,
Absolutely! Even though most people can't pay cash up front for a home, you always want to make as big a down payment as possible on any home you buy. Making a down payment of at least 20 percent helps you avoid private mortgage insurance, plus the whole idea is to pay that sucker off and become debt-free as fast as possible. Also, avoid 30-year mortgage plans. Stick with a 15-year, fixed-rate loan.
Now, when it comes to putting money toward your down payment, make sure you don't touch your emergency fund of three to six months of expenses or your retirement savings. Those things are off limits. But scrape together any other extra cash you can, pile it up, and apply it to your down payment. You'll be glad you did!

— Dave

Dear Dave,
My mom and dad are terrible with money. They're getting older, so I'd like to see them start saving something for retirement. How can I teach them your principles?

— Suzanne

Dear Suzanne,
I hate to say it, but you probably can't. My grandmother used to say, "Those convinced against their will are of the same opinion still." When you start trying to talk to your parents about money, you run into what's called powdered butt syndrome. Once someone has powdered your behind, they usually don't want your opinion on money or anything else.
Still, as parents get older, especially if you have a particular skill or expertise, they might ask your opinion from time to time. It may be hard for them to take you seriously, though, even if you're a world-renown expert. To them, you're always going to be their little girl.

It's great if they will listen to you, but you'll probably have better luck getting them in front of someone knowledgeable in the field. I'm talking about someone who isn't you, even if they're not quite as smart as you!

Silver City property owners to be commended for work

Last Sunday (4 Sept.) my wife, myself and her parents visited Silver City. As a past member of the county preservation committee, I was pleased to see the property owners' progress in maintaining and preserving the "Queen City of the Owyhees".
Making permanent what was constructed during the boom and bust era of mining is no small task. Those who are up to the challenge deserve credit from those who admire what is one of the best-preserved "ghost towns" in the West.

seven of which are nuclear."
With Obama and Secretary of the Defense Leon Panetta preparing major cuts in national defense, it will be up to Congress to make the case for funding new icebreakers for the U.S.
The 202-page UNCLOS treaty document was described by the late leftist Sen. Alan Cranston (D-Calif.) as "the most far-reaching and comprehensive system created thus far by the global community." UNCLOS mandates a global tax on corporations that exploit ocean resources, an International Seabed Authority to collect the revenue, and an International Tribunal on the Law of the Sea to govern ocean affairs.
Harvard law professor and international lawyer Louis B. Sohn, who himself advocated world government, was a key author of UNCLOS. He offered a detailed proposal to transform the United Nations into a world government in his book, World Peace Through World Law. He declared that he wanted this world government to maintain hundreds of thousands of troops, military bases and be armed with nuclear weapons. The purpose, he said, would be to disarm "each and every nation and to deter or suppress any attempted international violence."
This "world authority" would also require a "United Nations Revenue System," drawing taxes from "each nation" of the world, he said. UNCLOS was a step in his scheme.
Nevertheless, both Alaska senators, Democrat Mark Begich and Republican Lisa Murkowski, support its passage. Begich recently held a hearing, "Defending U.S. Economic Interests in the Changing Arctic: Is There a Strategy?," which became a vehicle for promoting acceptance and ratification of the treaty.
Begich and Murkowski had previously appeared at a Council on Foreign Relations meeting, "Adapting to Climate Change in the Arctic — Coordinating a Federal, State and Private Sector Response," where Murkowski talked about "the necessity for ratification of the U.N. Convention on the Law of the Sea."
At the same time, Murkowski said that while she had pushed for funding to "refurbish" the Polar Star and Polar Sea icebreakers, the Coast Guard was merely studying "whether or not we need to rebuild or replace these polar class fleets" and she wondered whether the Obama administration regards new icebreakers as a national priority.

"You cannot be an Arctic nation and not have sufficient assets when it comes to icebreakers. So we're certainly going to do all we can to advocate that position," she said.
The Christian Science Monitor piece is an indication that the media support the "treaty trap" option favoring the Russians and not the building of any new icebreakers to counter the Russian advantage. "Among other things," the publication noted, "Moscow plans to build at least six more icebreakers and spend $33 billion to construct a year-round port on the Arctic shores."
By contrast, it said, "The US, which has not signed the UN Convention on the Law of the Sea, under which any territorial divisions would be made, is also beefing up its regional military might." It did not define "regional military might" or the nature of the existing Russian advantage.

Trustees learn district in red, await audit

Trustees of the Marsing School District learned last Tuesday during the regular monthly meeting of the board that the district is in the red. Just how much the district has overspent will not be certain until the audit is presented next month, however.

“The news was no surprise to the board, but for the first time in several years we know where we are,” Superintendent Richard Johnson said in a Tuesday interview.

Johnson was quick to point out that the board has not overspent its budget, however. “The problem is that the budget was not realistic,” he said. As an example Johnson pointed to the first item on the budget, “Estimated beginning balance $60,000.”

“We know now that the figure should have been around $6,400. You’ll find errors similar to that throughout the budget,” the superintendent said.

The errors are a carryover and accumulation of several years’ figures, he said.

Johnson cautioned that he is not pointing fingers at individuals. “I’m not saying who’s to blame. There’s nothing to be gained by that at this time. We will know where we are (when the audit is presented) and how we got there. We do know that it didn’t happen in one year, but over a series of years. We can now trace it back. For the last three years we’ve been going down hill,” Johnson said.

Johnson cautioned the community not to panic. “There’s a lot of rumors floating around about who did what, that the district is about to go belly up, and on and on. At this point we’re only interested in correcting the loopholes (in the system), setting out a plan to get back on track, and continuing to provide a sound educational system,” he said, adding that he does not foresee the board asking for an additional tax levy to bail out the district.

Owyhee 4-Hers place high at Western Idaho Fair

District 4-H demonstration contests were held at the Western Idaho Fair in Boise. Owyhee County was represented having eight district delegates.

Jody Brandau, Gold, Melba; Heather Good, Silver, Melba; Amy Burrie, Gold, Melba; Natalie Burrie, Gold, Melba; Adam Edmiston, Gold, Homedale; Mike Griffith, Silver, Homedale; Toni Belknap, Gold, Homedale; Judy Middleton, Silver, Wilder.

Natalie Burrie won top honors in intermediate division. Her prize is a $50.00 4-H Congress Scholarship from the Idaho First National Bank.

Trojans wallop Vale 33-6

Jim McMillan’s Homedale Trojans came home last Friday with another victory under their belt, this time from the Vale, Oregon team, where the score ended 33-6.

The Trojans now stand at a three-win, no-loss tally.

Trojan back Ryan Nash led the offense’s push on all five touchdowns, stacking up 204 yards.

The Homedale squad was also assisted by passes, with QB Rob Cook going in the air for nine tries, eight of which were completed. Receiver Jason Haylett made five of those receptions.

Huskies fall to Mustangs

The Marsing Huskies fell hard to their across-the-river rivals, the Melba Mustangs, last Friday night on the Owyhee County field. The game ended at 26-6 in favor of the Mustangs.

Melba closed out the first two quarters with 6 points each, ending the half-time play at 12-0. The Huskies came back in the third quarter to earn their only touchdown, but that, too was matched by a Mustang TD plus the extra point. The Mustangs repeated the 7-points in the fourth period, ending the game at 26-6.

Homedale Trojans open ’61 season with 33-0 win

The Trojans, SRV-B league co-champions with Marsing a year ago, opened their 1961 season Friday afternoon with a 33-0 victory at New Plymouth.

Homedale’s first touchdown came on a runback of the opening kickoff and the Trojans were in command the rest of the way. The Trojans put the game out of New Plymouth’s reach with a 20-point explosion in the third quarter.

Cloud seeding successful in Owyhee project

An average increase of 21 per cent in precipitation in the Owyhee drainage area has been produced by cloud seeding during the last three seasons, according to an evaluation report presented to the North and South Boards of Control at a joint meeting at Nyssa, Ore., Tuesday evening by North American Weather Consultants of Santa Barbara, Calif.

Board members voted to resume cloud seeding on November 1 as the third season of a five-year program.

Although the past season was one of the driest on record in the area, cloud seeding in the Owyhee drainage area produced 90 per cent of normal rain fall and 100 per cent of normal snow pack over much of the target area as against 40 and 50 per cent of normal rainfall and snow pack in most surrounding areas, according to charts based on U.S. Weather Bureau official records.

Trojans eye 3rd straight championship

Champions for the last two years in the Snake River Valley B League, the Trojans of Homedale will be trying for their third straight football title this season. The Trojans opened their title bid last Friday when they scored a 33-0 win over new Plymouth.

Coach Deward Bell has 13 lettermen back from the 1960 squad which finished with an 8-1-0 season record and tied Marsing for first place in the league. The Trojans, who were undefeated in 1959 when they won the title, lost only to Marsing in 1960.

SOUTH MOUNTAIN. South Mountain District is just now attracting more than ordinary attention and bids fair, all at once, to assume a prominent place among the mining camps of our Territory, and of the Pacific coast. It is situated in Owyhee County, 6 miles from the Oregon and about 14 miles from the Nevada boundary line. Also about 6 miles from Camp Three Forks Owyhee. The mines of that district are silver bearing galena and are of immense width. The first locations were made by S. M. Wessels in the fall of ’68. Messrs. Wessels & Hardy own two of the principal claims, the Original and the Galena. The Original is 100 feet in width, contains 30 per cent of lead and assays from $36 to $648 per ton in silver. The Galena is 7 feet wide, contains 77 per cent of lead and assays from $250 (the lowest) to $320 per ton in silver. S. M. Johnson also made two new discoveries in that district on the 7th instant, which they call the Golconda and Hope. The Golconda is 50 feet wide, contains 46 per cent lead and assays on an average $70 per ton in silver. The Hope is 5 feet wide and richer than the Golconda. Besides galena, the ores contain red oxide of iron and are of splendid quality for smelting. There is an unlimited supply of water and timber in abundance in the immediate vicinity of the mines.

LOST IN THE MOUNTAINS. A dolorous story reaches our ears of how our esteemed legal friend, Hon. F. E. Ensign, got lost while on his way to South Mountain one day this week, compelling him to seek the friendly shelter of a sagebrush during the long hours of the wearisome night; how the hooting of owls and the howling of coyotes filled his soul with mortal dread and kept him awake; how, with a pen-knife, he cut his way through dense thickets and interminable jungles, reaching Farneman’s ranch in woe-begone condition the next day; then finally, after a two days’ rest, how he reached Silver City again in safety. Mr. Ensign says that he now can sympathize with Mango Park and Dr. Livingstone. It was certainly an oversight on the part of Springer & Ragan in not furnishing the honorable gentleman with a horse that knew the way to South Mountain.

THE REASON. We are compelled to issue on brown paper this week because the Northwestern Stage is so heavily engaged in the fruit trade that it couldn’t bring our white paper from Winnemucca. Nevertheless, we have better sense than to growl, because paper will keep and fruit won’t, you know!

GRAND LODGE BALL. The Masonic Fraternity of Silver City will give a grand ball in Jones & Booney’s new Hall on the evening of October the 4th. Particulars next week. The Grand Lodge of Idaho Territory will convene here, Monday Oct. 2d. A splendid time is anticipated.

THE MILLS are all pounding away and are being supplied with immense quantities of wood, indicating a lively and prosperous fall and winter run.

BULLION SHIPMENT. Wells, Fargo & Co. shipped from here during the past week 20 bars of bullion, valued at $19,576.

INFORMATION WANTED. Samuel Murphy desires information of his brother Jas. Murphy, who is reported to have been killed a short time ago, somewhere between Placerville and Silver City. Anyone possessing any knowledge on the missing man will confer a favor by addressing the Avalanche office, Silver City, I. T.

LOCAL HINTS AND HAPPENINGS. Gilmore and Winchester are fitting up a livery stable on the corner of Clinton and Second streets.

On Monday night three road agents “went through” French Pete on the Oro Fino grade, but didn’t get any coin.
