Tax revenue, salaries on rise in county's proposed budget

Public hearing set for Tuesday in Murphy

The Owyhee County fiscal year 2013 budget has been set 6.5 percent higher than the current year, and nearly two-thirds of that increase can be attributed to personnel costs.

The Board of County Commissioners will hold the public hearing for proposed budget at 10 a.m. Tuesday inside Courtroom 2 of the Owyhee County Courthouse in Murphy.

The commissioners elected to take the allowed three percent increase in tax levy for FY13 while crafting an $8.16 million budget. The proposed budget is just short of $500,000 more than the current year's appropriation.

Nearly $320,000 of the increase is directly tied to personnel between three percent raises for nearly all employees, an 11.3 percent hike in benefits and plans to make a few new hires. The county will add more than $200,000 in salaries in FY13.

Feds propose changes to county post offices

Reduced hours in Murphy, Bruneau on list of ideas

Two Owyhee County post offices could be reduced to part-time outposts under a new proposal.

The suggested reduction in staffed hours of operation for many rural Idaho post offices — including the county seat of Murphy and Bruneau — is part of the U.S. Postal Service's five-year plan to help curb spending in the gargantuan federal agency.

According to a May 9 letter from Postmaster General Patrick R. Donahoe to Sen. Mike Crapo (R-Idaho), the public affected by the reductions will have an opportunity to shape the hours of operation for the Bruneau and Murphy post offices.

Apparently surveys and town hall discussions are to be planned, but Bruneau resident Ginny Roeder said last week that no one she

Two Homedale High School classmates will be among the first batch of World War II veterans to visit Washington D.C. as part of a new Idaho organization.

Ray Mansidor and Shirley Thomas Law will board a flight next Wednesday and travel with 23 comrades in arms to visit the nation's capital as part of the inaugural Honor Flight of Idaho.

Law and Mansidor, both of whom graduated from Homedale High in 1942, recently attended their 70th class reunion dinner at the Owyhee Lanes and Restaurant.

Next week they'll be taking a trip to a place both have visited before, but this time around they're both in a place of honor.

Megan Smith honored at Western Idaho Fair

The Owyhee County Fair's large animal round robin champion pulled out another honor at the Western Idaho Fair in Garden City.

Megan Smith, daughter of Rock and Laurie Smith, was named reserve grand champion large animal showman in the 4-H Division at the regional fair last week. Representatives from seven counties took part in the competition.

Smith also finished fourth in the Western Idaho Fair's Small Animal Super Round Robin. She is a member of the Wilson Butte 4-H Club.

Airstream Club visits Homedale RV Park

Christmas came early this year for members of the Idaho Unit of the Wally Byam Caravan Club International. On Friday, 14 couples from across southern and western Idaho gathered at Snake River RV Resort outside Homedale, brought together by mutual love of Airstream trailers.

For the uninitiated, most Airstream trailers are recognizable as the iconic aluminum pods, symbols of the American Road Trip. Airstream owners are eligible join the WBCCI, which is named for the founding manufacturer of Airstreams. During the weekend, members of the Idaho Unit met for their annual Installation Rally for the new unit president.

The recently retired president, Judy Canada of Meridian, decided this year they would celebrate with Christmas in August. After a dinner at Owyhee Lanes in Homedale, members of the club got together to listen to Christmas music, open small stockings and socialize.

This month also marks the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Idaho Unit. Members meet for a monthly breakfast in Boise and hold seven rallies a year, plus the yearly International Rally, which this year was held in Missouri.

According to Judy, the club always tries to make sure they do some good in every town they stop at. Often times this includes patronizing local business. In Homedale, they also planned on visiting the town's antique and thrift stores.

This isn't the club's first trip to Homedale.

"We come here every couple of years," Duane Canada said.

"This is one of my favorite places to go," Judy said.

The group arrived at the RV resort Friday evening and shared Christmas stockings and ice cream cones. On Saturday, they took a tour of Mike Gooding's hop farm, and later had a Christmas banquet and a game of White Elephant. Sunday was the day the club installed its new set of officers. The ceremony was presided over by Hazel and Adolf Knopp, regional presidents, who trekked down from Calgary, Alberta to join the rally. Later that day, rally attendees had the opportunity to pick plums and go shopping in town.

Resort manager Dave Ellis said he enjoys having the group visit, describing them as "clean and quiet."

"It's always a big benefit to the business," Ellis added.

Having officially passed the role of president to Jerry Settle on Sunday, Judy now serves as rally chairman.

"(The president) helps pull things together," Settle said.

Outage darkens downtown Homedale

At approximately 8 p.m. Monday, much of downtown Homedale lost power. According to a representative from Idaho Power, an estimated 1,100 customers — including several businesses — were without electricity for about an hour.

The outage affected customers from Ustick Road to Pioneer Road, north to south, and Batt Corner Road to Johnstone Road. east to west.

The cause was determined to be an aging underground cable in the area that failed, causing a broken circuit. Crews restored power to the Homedale-Wilder area by 9 p.m.

Library's monthly artist tabbed

Friends of Lizard Butte Library are getting ready to commemorate their Artist of the Month for September, Aileen Coles.

Coles began painting watercolors at age 7 and loved it so much she went on to get a Bachelor's of Fine Art in painting from Boise State University in 1985. Coles is a longtime resident of the Marsing area currently residing about two miles south of town on the west side of the Snake River.

According to Coles, although she hasn't exhibited since she was still in college, she has sold more than 50 paintings during her nearly 30-year career.

"I want to get more into it now that things are slowing down a bit," Coles said.

Coles likes to vary her painting style across genres, not wanting to confine herself to just one type of painting or one variety of paint.

She calls her style "contemporary eclecticism," because "I like so many different genres of painting," Coles said.

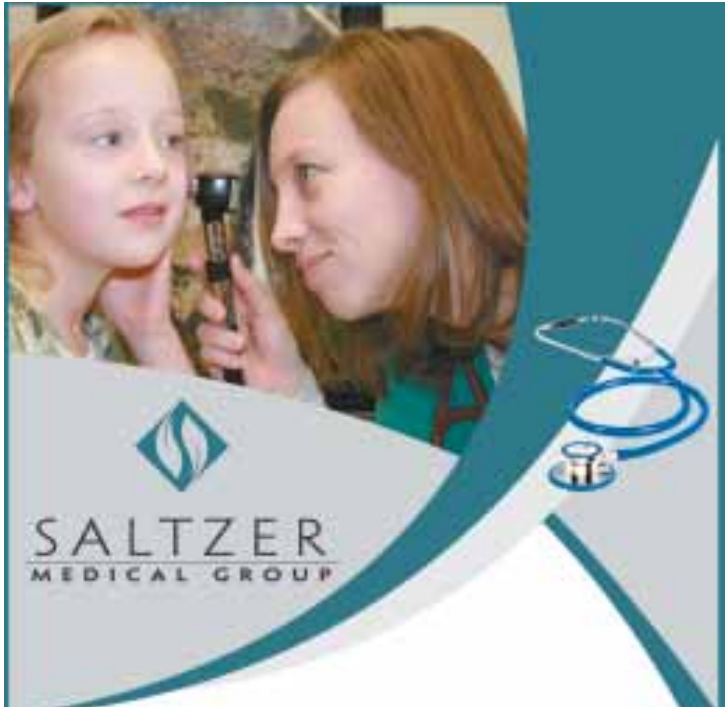

Coles typically works in acrylic and watercolor but also explores mixed media. She paints from several different subjects, ranging from still life and landscape to abstracts and expressionism. She says she doesn't have the patience for oil paints.

The new exhibit opens Saturday at the Lizard Butte Library, 111 S. 3rd Ave. W., in Marsing. Coles said most of the work being shown is older material, but she hopes to have a new painting finished in time for the opening.

Despite being an accomplished painter, Coles is now looking for new mediums to explore.

"One of these days I'm going to write a book for my granddaughter," Coles said.

Anita Johnston is retiring after 31 years with the Farm Service Agency. Her retirement party is scheduled for Thursday in Marsing.

County FSA office to close Friday

Owyhee director set to retire

Friday is the last day for producers to do business at the Owyhee County Farm Services Agency office in Marsing, and it's also the final day on the job for County Executive Director Anita Johnston.

Johnston is retiring as the Owyhee FSA office consolidates with the U.S. Department of Agriculture agency's outpost in Caldwell.

During the consolidation period, producers were asked to file a request to transfer to the most convenient location for them. The accounts of ranchers and farmers who haven't made a specific request will be transferred to the Canyon County office in Caldwell. As of Sept. 1, the office — located at 2208 E Chicago St., Caldwell — will be known as the Ada/Canyon/

Owyhee County office.

The Owyhee office phone number, (208) 896-4384, will be active until Friday. Beginning Monday, Owyhee producers working through the office in Caldwell must call (208) 454-8695.

Johnston's retirement party will be held from 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. Thursday at the Marsing office, 250 N. Bruneau Hwy. She is retiring after 31 years with the agency. Cards can be sent to the Caldwell office, care of Kyla Pearson.

Gwen Miller, a part-time employee in the Owyhee office, will transfer to the consolidated office in Caldwell.

Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack marked the Owyhee office as part of a round of closures in May. Staff reductions throughout the state preceded the announced closure of four county offices. The moves were part of a sweeping plan to cut expenditures in the USDA.

Supreme Court shoots down Green's appeal

He had sought a reduced sentence on lewd conduct

A Marsing man has lost his bid for a reduced sentence stemming from his conviction on sexual abuse charges a year ago.

The Idaho Supreme Court accepted a motion to deny Lee Edd Green Jr.'s appeal on Aug. 21. He sought a reduction on the grounds that a 15- to 30-year state prison sentence was excessive for the three felony convictions.

Green entered a guilty plea more than a year ago on two counts of lewd conduct with a minor under 16. He entered an Alford plea to felony injury to child.

Green also was ordered to pay nearly $15,000 in restitution to his victims. He's currently housed in the Idaho Department of Correction facility in Boise.

With the plea agreement, Owyhee County Prosecuting Attorney Douglas D. Emery dropped other lewd conduct charges.

Court records show that as part of the agreement, Green waived his right to appeal, and that was reason the state Supreme Court dismissed his appeal.

DUI sentences handed down

Three motorists received punishment recently for Driving Under the Influence arrests.

Magistrate Judge Dan Grober handed down two of the sentences

Corey Duane Kent of Caldwell, who was born in 1959, was placed on one year of probation during an Aug. 20 hearing.

His driver's license was suspended for six months. Kent was sentenced to six months in jail, but Grober suspended 178 days and credited the defendant with the two days he had already served.

He was ordered to pay $650 in fines and court fees.

Owyhee County Sheriff's Deputy Dustin Moe cited Kent for misdeemeanor DUI on June 12.

Wilder resident Jennifer K. Maggard, whose birth year is listed as 1979, has the option of serving two days in jail or serving house arrest by electronic monitoring. Grober ordered her to report for incarceration by 6 p.m. on Oct. 15.

Cited for misdemeanor DUI on April 9 by Homedale Police Officer Jeff Jensen, Maggard received her sentence on Aug. 15.

The rest of her six-month jail sentence was suspended, and she was placed on 12 months' probation.

Maggard had her driver's license suspended for six months and she was ordered to serve 24 hours of community service and pay $674 in fees and fines.

Third District Judge Molly J. Huskey sentenced Roger Dale Witt Jr., born in 1967, to an amended charge of misdemeanor DUI after his second such offense.

Witt originally was charged with felony DUI for two or more offenses after HPD Sgt. Mike McFetridge arrested the Weiser resident on June 6.

All but two weeks of a one-year jail sentence was suspended, and Witt was credited for the 14 days he has already served behind bars.

He must pay a $1,000 fine and $182.50 in court costs.

Witt's license was suspended for a year, and he has been placed on one year's probation.

Man sentenced for misdemeanor check fraud after guilty plea

A Notus man originally charged with four felonies for writing bad checks in Homedale will serve two years' probation after a guilty plea to reduced charges.

Jacob D. Rhodes, who was born in 1990, was originally charged with four felony counts of no account checks. However, he was sentenced on Aug. 21 in Third District Court in Murphy on three misdemeanor charges of writing checks with insufficient funds in his U.S. Bank account.

District Judge Thomas J. Ryan ordered the supervised probation for Rhodes, who was accused of writing $622.74 in bad checks at Paul's Market in Homedale between June 10 and June 19 of last year. District Judge Molly J. Huskey signed a restitution order requiring Rhodes to repay the money to Paul's Market.

He was credited with 17 days served in jail, and Ryan suspended the remainder of a six-month jail term.

Rhodes also must pay $337.50 in court costs and fines.

Marsing FFA kicks off with bale toss

Submitted article

On Aug. 21, the Marsing FFA hosted the annual Kick Off BBQ to celebrate the new year. As always there was plenty of food, friends and fun.

At the opening ceremony, this year’s officers took charge and introduced the upcoming events for the exciting year ahead.

Also recognized were the Marsing FFA teams going on to nationals this fall. The three teams include the Sales team (Cody Rhodes, Grayson Kendall, Gabe Miranda and Garret Briggs), Ag Communications team (Courtney Rhodes, Tyler Jensen and Logan Jensen) and Marketing team (Elena Miranda, TaylorRae and Tanner Fisher). We as a chapter and community are excited for, and wish the best of luck to our team this fall.

For the night’s entertainment, we had our annual hay bale-throwing contest. The contest was split into four divisions: youth, adult, female FFA members and male FFA members.

Starting with the adult division, it was exciting to see our very own, brand new principal, Norm Stewart, pick up a bale and try his hand at one of the traditional “sporting” events. And for his first time, Stewart made quite the impression, throwing 34 feet and winning the adult division.

Moving on to the FFA “Men”, Justin Glenn took first with his throw of 36 feet, 1 inch. On the girls’ side, TaylorRae Fisher won the division with an effort of 19 feet and 5 inches.

Finally, in the youth division, Mason Hall, had the farthest throw of the night (surpassing both of his parents). He amazed everyone with his throw of 48 feet.

Silver City Open House approaches again

The residents of historic mining town Silver City are preparing for their annual open house.

The Silver City Open House, scheduled for Sept. 15-16, will feature 10 building around town. The event gives visitors a rare opportunity to see the interior of the town’s buildings.

The tour will include the school-house, which was built 120 years ago, and the 1898 Our Lady of Tears Catholic church.

According to “Early Records of the Episcopal Church in South-western Idaho, 1867-1916” published by Boise State University in 2006, the Catholic church started as St. James Episcopal Church.

The Episcopalians later donated the building to the Catholic church.

Eight other buildings are on the list, too, including the restored Stoddard house.

Admission is by donation, suggested at $10 for adults and $5 for children younger than 12. Proceeds help finance the winter watchman for the town.

The 1863 Idaho Hotel will be open for food service, snacks and drinks as well as lodging by reservation.

Students earn college honors

Bill and Florence Shenk of Adrian have a lot to be proud of. Three grandchildren are returning to college this fall to continue studying Elementary Education. All three ended the spring semester with academic honors.

Andrea Shenk is returning to Western Oregon University for her third year and has been on the Dean’s List for two consecutive years. Her parents, Paul and Alyce Shenk, are also residents of Adrian.

Kaitlin and Bill Wortman are also grandchildren of Bill and Florence Shenk. The siblings, who hail from Nyssa, Ore., will be returning to Treasure Valley Community College for their second year. Bill Wortman ended the spring semester on the Honors List, which requires a grade-point average between 3.5 and 3.749. Kaitlin ended on the Dean’s List, which requires a GPA between 3.75 and 3.99.

Other TVCC students from the area received academic honors in the spring. Evan Sneider of Adrian joined Wortman on the Honors List. Also from Adrian, Madolynne Vancorbach and Hillary Heller made the Dean’s List. MaryJane Ellsworth-Griffin of Adrian earned a spot on the President’s List, meaning a GPA of 4.0.

✓ Budget: Sheriff nominee plays role in shaping budgets for OCSO, jail

“They haven’t had a raise, from what I understand, for about three or four years. They haven’t had anything,” BOCC chair Joe Merrick said of county employees’ compensation.

With the levy increase, the proposed tax revenue is up 16.8 percent from FY12, when the county collected $2 million.

The projected tax revenue increase is $337,258, or slightly more than what the increases in employee costs will be.

“Almost all of the departments have kept that fiscal responsibility, and that has allowed us to at least give the raise in wages,” District 1 Commissioner Jerry Hoagland said.

Merrick said that the commissioners elected to take the tax levy increase because of the uncertainty of the federal government’s Payment In Lieu of Taxes program. Owyhee County has been receiving 100 percent of its allotment from the feds to compensate for the tax-exempt Bureau of Land Management acreage in the county, which accounts for about 78 percent of the total acreage.

Hoagland and District 2 Commissioner Kelly Aberasturi brought the bad news back from an Idaho Association of Counties conference in Lewiston earlier this year.

“What they were hearing up there at that conference is we could be getting as much as 60 percent of what we’re getting now,” Merrick said.

For FY12, the county received $1,245,549 in PILT funding. Owyhee County has received more than $1.15 million annually since FY08.

In recent years, the county has used every dime of its PILT payment, which usually arrives near the tail-end of the fiscal year, to fund operating expenses.

Previously part or all of the payments were placed into a trust for future expansion of county facilities. The downturn in the economy, however, made that a luxury.

By taking the three percent increase, the commissioners hope to avoid a situation where they’ll have to make cuts if the PILT money dwindles.

“We’re trying to stay in a situation where we’re not dragging the bottom of the barrel or (where we) run out and not have anywhere to go or any sources to take up the slack,” Merrick said.

Once again, the sheriff’s office and county jail accounts for a good portion of the budget. The sheriff’s office budget is set for a 10.6 percent increase to $1.26 million.

Some deputies will get the three percent raises, but there will be no raise for the sheriff.

All planning for the sheriff’s office budget was done with Republican nominee Perry Grant, Merrick said, adding that Grant did not want a raise. The board never met with incumbent Daryl Crandall, the District 3 commissioner said.

“I thought Perry asked for a fairly reasonable budget,” Hoagland said.

Added Merrick: “Perry said, ‘I’ll take all I can get, but I’ll work with whatever you can give me.’”

Grant is scheduled to face independent candidate Richard “Dick” Freund in the November general election.

There are some new positions built into the sheriff’s budget, including $15,000 each for a narcotics officer and a family crimes investigator and $22,736 for a victims advocate, but Merrick said those positions will be filled only if grants are obtained to fund the salaries.

Grant already has begun the grant-writing process in an attempt to fund certain aspects of the office, as the commissioners discussed one grant application Monday and reiterated that all such proposals must go through the BOCC for approval.

The new budget calls for a net increase of $29,500 in the jail appropriation, or a 3.8 percent increase over FY12 to $806,840.

Nearly $44,500 has been budgeted to hire two more detention deputies. Merrick said the appropriation accounts for only about nine months’ worth of salary for two jailers, who will be brought on with the new administration in January to bring the county jail into compliance with Idaho Sheriff’s Association standards. Merrick said the job openings will be posted beginning in January.

✓ Post offices: Federal plan doesn’t appear to affect other county locales knows in the area has been contacted either in person or via mail.

Furthermore, the only news that anyone has received about the plan has come from the employees at the post office.

Under the plan, the post office lobbies and P.O. boxes would be accessible during normal business hours. However, staffed window hours would be reduced. The schedule would be determined based on customer use, Donahoe’s letter said.

The window hours at Bruneau and Murphy could be cut in half from eight hours a day to four hours a day. Additional study is needed before any decisions are final, the postmaster’s letter to the senator states.

“I don’t have a problem with them cutting (the hours), but it definitely needs to be open,” Roeder said.

Roeder said a four-hour window of operation would be inconvenient for folks who have to plan a trip to the post office around their work day. She suggests keep the Bruneau Post Office for eight hours a day on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

The contraction of hours is just another blow to the folks who depend on the Bruneau Post Office, Roeder said.

The Bruneau postmaster, Sue

Ellen Law, took another job, the area has a new route driver and the part-time rural letter carrier who delivered to Grasmere and other remote areas quit.

According to the postal service plan, public input will be gathered through surveys mailed to all homes and businesses served by the Murphy and Bruneau post offices.

Three other ideas will be proposed in the surveys. Each option would preserve postal service to the community while the physical building would be closed. They include:

- Expanded rural carrier delivery, including letter carriers selling postal products such as stamps

- Establishing a “Village Post Office” in a local business or government office with the potential of providing up to 12 hours of service seven days a week.
- Merging the existing post office with a nearby post office. This would seem to be an option only in Bruneau where Grand View’s postal outlet is relatively close. There isn’t a post office in the vicinity of Murphy to provide a convenient merger.

According to the postmaster general’s letter, preserving the two Owyhee postal outposts would allow the community to maintain the facilities as gathering places, preserve the ZIP Code and maintain the community name.

The Postal Regulatory Commission will review decisions on closures and reductions, and the USPS should implement final proposals in fall 2014.

Postal services in Marsing, Homedale and Grand View apparently would not be affected by this element of the USPS five-year plan.

— Sen. Mike Crapo (R-Idaho) discusses the changing postal service and the possible impacts to Idaho’s rural communities in his weekly commentary, see Page 17.

✓ Veterans: Tour will visit war memorials, Arlington National Cemetery

“I never even thought I’d make the trip (but) it’s just wonderful,” Mansisidor said. “I think it’s a great thing.”

Mansisidor visited the capital with his wife and children on a family trip decades ago.

Law was discharged from the Navy in Washington.

The Honor Flight of Idaho group will visit the World War II Memorial and war memorials for Korea and Vietnam. The veterans also will take in the Lincoln Memorial and Washington Monument and spend time at Arlington National Cemetery.

Mansisidor, who served in the Army Air Corps, nearly didn’t make the flight plan, even though he applied to be part of Honor Flight of Idaho in 2009 when organizers were getting the state group off the ground.

He was sitting at the monthly coffee Aug. 7 at the Warhawk Air Museum in Nampa when the veterans selected for the flight were asked to move into another room.

Mansisidor didn’t know if his name was on the list and admits he was really more curious about whether some old classmates were going. He didn’t budge until his buddies told him to go check it out.

As it turns out Tom Ryan and Jim Tracy weren’t on the list, and it didn’t seem that Mansisidor would get to go even though he had applied.

He approached Honor Flight of Idaho director Lance Stephensen, who couldn’t find his name on the list.

“Then he said, ‘Wait, there was a cancellation and we have one place left. Do you want it?’” Mansisidor said. “And I said, ‘You bet!’”

“He seemed like a really great guy, and I jumped at the chance to get him,” Stephensen said.

Mansisidor, Law, the rest of the veterans and a group of 12 guardians — volunteers who help the veterans during their trip — will spend Thursday, Sept. 6 touring the various monuments and memorials in Washington, D.C. before returning home on Friday, Sept. 7.

Mansisidor said that two more of his friends will be on the plane, too, including a classmate from his school days in Boise in 1932.

As a charter member of Women in Military Service, Law is looking forward to checking out the memorial dedicated to those veterans. It’s located at Arlington.

Law spent two years in the Navy’s Women Accepted for Volunteer Emergency Service

(WAVES) program. Before joining the military branch’s clerical pool, she attended boot camp in New York and yeoman training in Cedar Falls, Iowa. Once training was complete, Law was stationed at Edenton, N.C., and Norfolk, Va.

“I was so thrilled to be in the Navy,” she said. “I thought I was really special, and then when I came home on leave my sister, Judy Tolmie, said, ‘Shirley I was so proud of you.’”

“I enjoyed traveling, and I enjoyed the East Coast.”

She was discharged in the fall of 1946 in Washington D.C.

Marsha Hays

Marsha Hays, 59, of Homedale passed away peacefully after a long battle with cancer on August 22, 2012. Marsha was born October 3, 1952 in Hawthorne, Nevada to Orville F. Haylett and Barbara Kelly Haylett. After her father’s death in 1960, the family moved to Homedale where she attended Homedale Schools and graduated in 1970.

Marsha married her high school sweetheart, Allen Hays, on August 7, 1971 at St. Hubert’s Catholic Church in Homedale. They were a true love story. Together they raised two sons that were the loves of her life. Marsha and Allen spent many wonderful years traveling around to their high school and college sporting events. She was very proud of the fact that they grew up and both are shaping the lives of young adults in their chosen careers. Marsha was blessed with six wonderful little grandchildren. She loved her time spent with the grandkids and spent hours laughing about their antics. They always brought her so much joy and made every bad day so much better.

Marsha worked for US Bank for a total of 25 years and the City of Homedale for 16 years. She was a lifelong member of the Catholic Church where she held the offices of Parish Council President and Parish Council Secretary. She was a Eucharistic Minister and on the Human Resources Committee before her illness.

The family always joked that Marsha brainwashed her nieces and nephews from birth into believing that she was their favorite aunt. She worked very hard to live up to that honor and always tried to make them know how special they were to her. Marsha made it a priority to attend any event they were involved in and be there for them. A true testament to Marsha being the “favorite aunt” was when she would have any kind of celebration at her home. Her nieces and nephews would make the effort and time to be there. Marsha was the party planner in the family, often hosting thirty or more people. It was always a fun day spent with family and friends with many laughs, lots of teasing, and slightly exaggerated stories. They never wanted to miss out on one of her special gatherings.

Marsha was the most loving wife, mother, daughter, sister, grandmother, aunt and friend. It didn’t matter if you knew Marsha for fifteen minutes or fifteen years, she would make you feel as though you had known her your whole life. Marsha had a smile that warmed your heart and a witty sense of humor that would light up a room.

Marsha is survived by her husband of 41 years, Allen Hays, her children, Josh (Tammy) Hays, Luke (Ylonda) Hays; her grandchildren, Hunter, Molly, Grace Elizabeth, Maris, Hudson, and Brooks; mother Barbara Haylett; in-laws Robert and Mary Lou Hays; brothers Jeff (Max) Haylett, Greg (Karla) Haylett, Kirk (Jolene) Haylett; sister Michele (Larry) Spath; brother-in-law Robert (Susan) Hays; sister-in-law Marcia (Cary) Hoshaw; uncles Bob Kelly, Bill Haylett; aunts Nathelle (Bob) McKee, Donna Haylett. Numerous nieces and nephews.

Preceded in death by her father Orville Haylett. Maternal grandparents Fred and Anna McPheeters Kelly. Paternal Grandparents Dan Haylett and Lula Babbitt.

Rosary Devotion was held at 7:00pm Friday, August 24, 2012 at Flahiff Funeral Chapel in Homedale. Funeral Mass for Marsha was held at 11:30am Saturday, August 25, 2012 at Our Lady of the Valley Catholic Church in Caldwell. Interment followed at Marsing-Homedale Cemetery. Condolences for the family may be left online at www.flahifffuneralchapel.com.

Pauline Pearl Hibbs

Pauline was called to heaven by her loving Lord and Savior on August 15, 2012, surrounded by her family, after a long, healthy and happy life. Pauline was born September 9, 1918, in Venus, Nebraska to Leonard and Nancy Herman.

She spent her childhood in Nebraska and began her teaching career after one year of college. She married Lowell Hibbs, on June 27, 1939. She then began earning her degree in education by attending night classes and summer school, graduating from The College of Idaho in 1965. She taught for 32 years. Pauline’s legacy will live on through the lessons and values she taught her children and grandchildren.

In 1988 Lowell and Pauline moved to Boise to be nearer to their family.

She was a member of Ustick Baptist Church, and loved teaching Sunday School and leading Bible Studies. She also enjoyed reading, playing her organ, gardening, crocheting, playing cards, and spending time with family and friends.

She was preceded in death by her husband of 55 years; three brothers, and three sisters.

The family would like to thank the staff at St. Luke’s Hospital downtown 7 East, St. Luke’s Hospice and Life Care Center of Treasure Valley.

Memorial services were held at 10:30 am on Thursday, August 23, 2012 at Ustick Baptist Church, 14301 W. McMillian, Boise.

Principal reunites with HHS Class of '62

Former Homedale High School teacher Clare Walker was on hand Aug. 11 when the Class of 1962 gathered for its 50th class reunion.

Many of the classmates met that morning for the Buckaroo Breakfast at the senior center and stayed downtown for the Owyhee County Fair and Rodeo Parade.

Walker, who also served as high school principal, met his former students during the parade.

Ellen Lincoln Hughey, a 1962 HHS graduate, wrote in the reunion report to The Owyhee Avalanche that Walker, 86, “continues to inspire us with his wit and energy”.

The Class of 1962 also remembered three fellow graduates who died in the past year, including Beth Breach Smock, Allen Ethington and Carol Cegnar Frasier, as well as a former classmate, Carol Roberts.

Tales of the I.O.N. Country

Model T and Bankers

Three bankers were going with Sam and his wife Florence to the C Ranch in Sam's stripped-down Model T. The Ford was like many others in that the rear half of the touring car body had been removed and a board box put in its place. These pickups were ideal for fixing fence or hauling whatever over rough country, but they weren't designed for comfort. One of the bankers got to ride up front with Sam and Florence, but the other two had to ride in back.

Things went fairly well until they came to the Three Forks Canyon. Sam forgot a very important thing about Model T's equipped with the Ruxtell rear end. It was designed so that it could be shifted down kind of like a modern two-speed axle on a truck. The lower gear made going up hills easier, but when you reached the top you had to shift it back into high, else it jumped out of gear resulting in a run-away.

Two-thirds of the way down, the worst happened and the car was freewheeling, but Sam held it straight and luckily went off the road in a ravine with sloping banks on either side or no rocks. The Ford went down one side and most of the way up the other, then coasted back-and-forth several times before coming to a stop in the bottom. Sam never had a thing to say but just sat there clutching the steering wheel.

One of the bankers who rode it out in back gave Sam heck because he thought he did it on purpose. "Mister, if this is your idea of a joke, I don't think much of it."

More personnel moves for Homedale schools

Middle school musicians start paying fee

More than just teachers have been hired for the 2012-13 Homedale School District school year.

Earlier this month, trustees rounded out the district's instruction staff and also approved other staff changes.

DJ Kessler will teach English to high school juniors and seniors.

Lindsay Miller joined the middle school faculty as a seventh-grade Science teacher for four periods each day.

Both were approved on Aug. 13, nine days before school started.

"The challenge I think for both sides is just preparation time," schools superintendent Rob Sauer said of the short window between the hires and the start of school.

"And if you've had trainings over the summer that you've targeted for your teachers to attend, the new teachers — if they're hired this late in the game — miss out on those opportunities, so you are — on their end and our end — playing a little catch-up."

The school district also has begun searching for a new deputy district clerk after Carri Lauson was reassigned to data coordinator.

Sauer said Lauson will take the lead on uploading information to the State Department of Education. She also will coordinate testing throughout the school district and oversee the district's computerized student management system.

Heidi Ankeny has succeeded Leandra Uranga as the secretary at Homedale High School.

Several extracurricular coaching and advisor positions also were filled during the last school board meeting.

Josh Seward and Tyler Brown were approved as volunteer assistants for the HHS football team.

Three middle school coaches were hired, including Hannah Johnson (seventh-grade volleyball) and James Mertz and Chad Packer (seventh-grade football).

Wendy Aberasturi has been hired as the high school's cheer team advisor.

Two band assistants also have been brought onboard, with Louis Martinez handling the flag corps and Cord Beuer serving as percussion assistant.

HMS band fee OK'd

Middle school students taking part in the band program now will pay the same fee as their high school counterparts.

Trustees approved a $20 band fee for seventh- and eighth-graders to help defray the costs for, among other things, dry cleaning of band uniforms.

High school students already pay the $20 fee.

"It went well," Sauer said of the hearing.

"It's basically just to make (the district policy) consistent between the high school and the middle school because the middle school students are participating in that, too."

Sauer said although school board members didn't receive any comment during the public hearing, there were several parents in the audience who favored the fee.

New challenges greet Homedale's new elementary school principal

Terri Vasquez embraced the small-school community during the first day of classes in Homedale last Wednesday.

The new elementary school principal went classroom to classroom to introduce herself to her new students and discuss expectations for the year.

"I like that better than calling a big assembly," the former Fruitland teacher said. "It's more personal."

After spending all 22 years of her teaching career at Fruitland Elementary, the Adrian native is excited to accept the challenge of her first full-time administrative job in Homedale.

Although Yvonne Ihli's successor has never served as a principal, Vasquez does have experience running Fruitland's summer school.

"Most of the stuff I'm doing now I did in Fruitland," Vasquez said. "I think every school has the same battles they're fighting with lower budgets."

Among the challenges for Vasquez in Homedale is class size. She said that the fourth-grade classrooms will average about 32 students each, which is residual from budget cuts a couple years ago, Vasquez said.

Vasquez also must lead the school into a new era of standardized testing. The state Department of Education is doing away with the Idaho Student Achievement Test (ISAT) and judging a school's performance through Adequate Yearly Progress.

Vasquez welcomes the change. The new Smarter Balanced Assessment Consortium (SBAC)

New Homedale Elementary School principal Terri Vasquez high-fives second-grader Alex Fleming on Thursday morning to start the second day of the new school year.

system retains AYP as a factor, but Vasquez said the new standards push a "teach to mastery" protocol that allows teachers more flexibility in the classroom. Because AYP loomed so large in how a school's effectiveness was evaluated, classroom time was spent teaching to the test rather than helping student absorb the material so that they may retain it and use it beyond the ISAT season.

"We're building to produce instead of spit out knowledge," she said.

Vasquez said the new test, which won't debut until the 2014-15 school year, challenges the students to think rather than giving them a multiple-choice option on every question.

"I'm excited, but it's a lot of work," she said of the changes. "The teachers are on a three-year track."

Even with the new surroundings and new challenges, Vasquez is feeling at home because of some of the goals in place for the elementary school staff in 2012-13.

Homedale is implementing a new reading program to replace Open Court. Although the "Imagine It" program is new at the elementary school, as Fruitland's reading specialist Vasquez helped implement the curriculum there five years ago.

This is the second year of the roll-out at Homedale. The program was introduced to kindergarteners in 2011-12, and second- through fourth-graders will begin this year. First-graders will be brought online in 2013-14.

She's anxious to improve the use of technology at Homedale Elementary, including putting Smartboards and a sound system in every classroom.

"We always talk about bringing schools into the 21st century, but we're 12 years in," she said. "We're here, folks."

Vasquez isn't concerned about how young schoolchildren would get along with the technology.

"Technology is normal to them," she said. "I think we really underestimate what children can do with technology, and that's what I want them to experience."

Vasquez still lives in Fruitland with her husband, Pete, whom she married 25 years after they met in high school. She attended Adrian, and he was at Nyssa. The couple wed six years ago to blend a family that now has three grown children. The couple hopes to move back to Adrian in the future to be closer to Terri's parents, Carl and Jinny Hill.

Cross country returns to Marsing

Only one athlete has scholastic meet experience

For the first time in 12 years, students are hitting the trails with the Marsing High School cross country team. The endeavor began with Spanish teacher and assistant track coach Troy Blackburn.

Blackburn has a passion for running. Before coming to Marsing, he was an assistant coach for La Grande's cross country team. In Marsing, he has been an assistant track coach for three years.

"I love cross country. I didn't push the last couple years because there was no interest, but then a couple of kids asked me about it," Blackburn said.

Blackburn also ran cross country for four years at Eastern Oregon University, competing at

Williams, defense deliver Huskies' win

Defense was key in Marsing High School's season-opening football victory Friday night.

Junior Hudson Sauer picked off Parma quarterback Cesar Gonzalez to thwart the home team's final comeback attempt and wrap up a 15-7 non-conference victory.

Linebacker Charlie Galvez triggered a pair of turnovers earlier in the game to help Marsing maintain momentum.

The Huskies held a 12-0 half-time lead behind the leadership of quarterback Austin Williams. He scored on a two-yard run in the first quarter and then threw a seven-yard scoring pass to Sauer in the second quarter.

Juan Garcia added a 35-yard field goal in the third quarter for the Huskies.

Williams' clock management in the fourth quarter was just as crucial to holding back the Panthers as his team's defense. He kept the offense rolling during a 4½-minute drive during the final 12 minutes.

Marsing held Parma scoreless until Denver Riggs scored on a short run in the fourth quarter.

Black bruises, but Caldwell leaves Homedale blue

Trojans running back gets 141 yards, three TDs in overtime loss

The varsity football teams from Homedale and Caldwell high schools proved Friday that pivotal plays don't have to be big plays.

In a game dominated by short-yardage scoring opportunities, the Cougars scored on a nine-yard pass to claim a 32-26 non-conference win in overtime at Deward Bell Stadium.

Josh Lopez's nine-yard touchdown strike to Ryan Langan was the third-longest scoring play of the game that pitted the 4A Cougars against the 3A Trojans.

Homedale (0-1) grabbed control of the game with three short scoring strikes in the first half.

Senior quarterback Matthew Hetrick celebrated his varsity debut — and return after a one-year absence — with a five-yard touchdown pass to Angel Cardenas to give Homedale a 20-6 lead at halftime.

Calvin Black showed his bruising running style with first-half TD runs of five and three yards en route to a game-high 141 yards on 36 carries.

Black's one-yard plunge early in the fourth quarter put the Trojans up, 26-13.

But over the final 5½ minutes, Caldwell controlled the game and chipped away at the lead.

Laren Walker, who opened the game with a 36-yard scoring run, found pay dirt twice in the final quarter, including a four-yard run with 17 seconds left in regulation.

Xavier Hernandez, who had a stellar defensive game for the Trojans, blocked Cameron Gabiola-Weitz's extra-point attempt after Walker's third touchdown to preserve Homedale's chances for the season-opening win.

Finally home, Trojans ready to raise the roof in volleyball

Coach eyes top-three finish in conference play

The Homedale High School volleyball team begins the season in transition in some respects.

For starters, the Trojans had to get used to playing on their home floor to start the season after spending the 2011-12 campaign in the cramped quarters of the middle school gymnasium.

Major roof repairs closed the HHS gym for the fall season a year ago. In fact, the repair project was completed only a few weeks ago with the finishing touches on the roof, new scoreboards and a refurbished floor.

"Last year was a very challenging year," Trojans coach Janel Van Dyke said. "We lost use of our gym, but the Lady Tros battled every game."

tackles to lead the Trojans' defense. Brad McCain chipped in six stops, while Nathan Leslie, Kenny Harper, Angel Cardenas and Dayne Jacobs had four apiece. Caldwell pulled out the victory on its second possession of the first overtime. The Cougars' strong second half overshadowed Hetrick's varsity debut. The senior completed 10 of 15 passes for 147 yards and the TD pass to Cardenas. He finished with a quarterback rating of 120.7.

Mustangs volleyball ready for full throttle in Halfway

Team captains Hayley Caywood and Andi Warn lead the Jordan Valley High School volleyball team into its season opener Friday. Sarah Carson's second season as the Mustangs' coach begins with a 5 p.m. MDT non-league match in Halfway, Ore., against Pine Eagle. The match is part of the Endowment doubleheader with the Jordan Valley football team. Carson said she has one experienced senior on the club this season. The coach said inexperience and a lack of height will be two barriers the team will have to work through. The Mustangs' strengths include teamwork and serving, she said. Jordan Valley opens the 1A High Desert League season at 6 p.m. Tuesday against archrival Adrian. The game takes place on the Antelopes' home court. — JVHS student Natasha Keller contributed the information for this report.

Blackburn believes in his newly formed team, despite the fact that only one member has run cross country before. Junior Logan Moore competed as a seventh-grader with the Homedale Middle School squad. Several of the athletes have experience running track for MHS, including Dillon Danner and Ofelia Herrera. Both have competed at the 3,200 meter at the 2A track and field state meet.

Blackburn doesn't feel the need to have tryouts or make cuts. "We take everybody," he said. The Huskies' first season of competition in more than a decade begins at 4 p.m. Thursday on the road for the New Plymouth Invitational. This season is comprised of eight meets, culminating at the 2A District III championship meet in McCall on Oct. 17.

The atmosphere at practice is relaxed and familiar. According to Blackburn, he already knows all of his team but one from either track or his Spanish class. Blackburn appears to have several nicknames among the students, including "Blackberry" and "Señor Bébé." Conversation during warm-ups was casual and good-natured. After stretches, Blackburn separated the kids into groups based on how sore they were from the

For Blackburn, notoriety comes second to the students' personal success.
"We have 14 kids here who wouldn't have joined a sport otherwise, and now they have the opportunity to succeed," Blackburn said.

"Both teams have a lot of untapped talent, and it depends on how the athletes use the talent."
Blackburn's coaching philosophy is a simple one.
"We run hard, we race hard, we do well," he said.
Blackburn's emphasis on personal success doesn't mean he's not excited about the competition.

Despite the newness of the team, which spans from freshman to senior, he thinks they'll do well in competition.
"Overall it looks to be a promising first-year team," Blackburn said.
He's looking forward to taking the team to the Catherine Creek Scamper in Union, Ore., on Sept.

✓ Volleyball: Trojans drop season opener vs. Mustangs

"The strength and integrity they displayed has been an intangible example to our entire program and community."
Although the Trojans began the 2012-13 season without six seniors from last year's squad, the team showed the same fortitude early in Thursday's season opener against Melba.
After playing the Mustangs close for the first two games, Homedale broke through with a big Game 3 win before losing the non-conference match at home, 25-22, 25-21, 10-25, 25-12.
Two returning varsity players were in new positions during that season opener.
JuleAnn Badiola, a 5-foot-5 senior, debuted as an outside hitter after spending her junior season at libero.
"Her experience and leadership will be most needed this year," Van Dyke said.
Emilee Hann had a couple key kills through the night Thursday as the 5-9 senior settled into her new role as right side hitter.
"Emilee played middle for us last year, but her strength is at the right side position," the coach said.
"Her blocking is essential for us to be successful."
Another returner from whom Van Dyke expects pivotal leadership is 5-7 junior middle hitter Kaylee Rupp.

"She was one of our best hitters last year, and we will definitely need her expertise on the court," the coach said.
Van Dyke anticipates a squad built on teamwork, which lends itself to a strong passing game.
"We have a handful of excellent passers," she said.
"Our goal is to be intense and never give up on any ball. Our on-court game should be exciting this season."
One of the Trojans' five seniors is a newcomer to the varsity team this season, but 5-1 right side hitter/defensive specialist Whitney Uria will provide depth and order.
"Whitney is a versatile player," Van Dyke said. "She is a great digger/passer. We definitely need her calmness on the floor."
With a full season in the relatively spacious HHS gym on the horizon, Van Dyke expects the Trojans to finish in the top half of the 3A Snake River Valley conference.
"We are really excited to get going this season," she said. "The Lady Tros have made goals, and they expect to achieve them."
"This group is very determined, and I know that this season will be defining for all of us." —JPB

On the edge of common sense Tranquilizing feces

Jerry had what was called a suspect herd. His next-door neighbors had Brucellosis problems and because Jerry shared a common fence, he too, was required to be tested. The neighbors sold out and let the land set the requisite time. Meanwhile Jerry brought in 20 half-Gertrudis heifers to his place. He evaluated them and concluded two out of three had no brain.

The government showed up to test them. They insisted on using their clanging banging government-issue head catch, instead of what the cattle were used to. Thus a riot ensued in which all 20 crashed through four fences and three farms and crossed the Flint River. Two of the half-breeds were never found!

Six months went by. The neighbor restocked with Red Angus cows and a bull. Jerry continued to cruise the county in his spare time searching for his prodigal heifers and, sure enuf, one afternoon he saw one amidst the neighboring Red Angus! She must have found her way back and blended right in. Jerry called his neighbors, two older brothers who ran a tight ship and were proud of their operation. He explained about locating his heifer and asked if he could saddle up and cut her out. “Nope,” said the brothers, “No, horses. Don’t want no horses stirrin’ up our cattle.”

“How ’bout a tranquilizer dart gun?” asked Jerry.

“OK, but don’t you be trompin’ around our pasture chasin’ dem cattle. You can shoot from a fence and we’ll carry her over in a bucket loader.”

Jerry went to his local vet who outfitted him with a tranquilizer gun. He loaded the dart and gave Jerry the .22-caliber blank cartridge, and verbal instructions. The blank pushes the dart out of the barrel and a plunger injects the tranquilizer upon impact. For the next three weeks, he did “drive-bys” morning and night in search of a clean shot at the heifer. He carried the weapon in his truck.

One evening after teaching his sixth-grade class, he drove by the pasture. There she lay under a tree chewing her cud! He pulled off the road, slipped on his coveralls, cradled the rifle in his arms and, army-style, did a low crawl like a sniper through the swamp grass and mud. Reaching the fence, he observed, once again, how well the brothers built their fences; galvanized woven panels with a strand of barb wire both top and bottom. He never figured they would have put a hot wire on the inside. That was overkill. Retaining his prone position, he stealthily pushed the barrel of his tranquilizer gun through the fence. Well, he was wrong about them seeing no need to add hot wire.

Being well-grounded he made contact: gun barrel to hot wire. A jolt shot through his body so hard his porch light came on! Even with his soles on fire and his body buzzing like a chain saw, he was determined. He slithered in the mud, limped and took his best shot. Unfortunately, the wadding in the blank had been exposed to the humid air so long, when he pulled the trigger, it puffed, popped out about eight feet, and nosed-dived into a hubcap sized cow-pie. The dart poofed daintily and injected 2cc of Rompun intrapoopily.

“That’s how we do it in Tennessee,” he said.

Family Fair and Round-Up

Pass on heirlooms of values and principles to preserve Godly heritage

by Chuck Ryan

I have two prize possessions that were handed down to me by my mother that were my dad’s. One is an old clock that now sits on my mantle. My father told me that he remembers when he was a boy staying at his grandmother’s and that same clock kept him awake at night. I remember hearing it chime many times as a boy myself.

I love that old Ryan heirloom; however, the second item that was handed down to me was my father’s personal Bible. It is worn and tattered but filled with many of his intimate personal notes written in the margins and numerous key passages of scripture about the meaning of life underlined, as seen through the eyes of his creator God.

My father, Charles L. Ryan Sr., was killed in 1990, two years after I arrived in Homedale. He was the giant of man in my life. When I was a boy, he was the super hero that could “whip your dad”! He was the one who took me hunting and fishing, gave me a love for the outdoors and taught me about my God. He also (along with my mom) taught me how to respect and do right towards my fellow man. Today, I am so thankful that he passed on to me a great Godly heritage that has become the compass of my life.

On Father’s Day this year I preached a sermon entitled, “Things I Remember My Dad Said.” I made a copy for each of my daughters. It is my passion, ambition and goal to pass these same principles and values that comprised my heritage to my four daughters and four grandkids (hopefully I will have many more and great grandkids and great-great ...). The hope is, they will add to what my dad taught me and what their mother and I taught them, and “pass it on” to their children.

When he was killed it was not the beautiful clock on the mantle that I clung to but the old worn and tattered Bible of my dad’s. It was part of my Godly heritage that has sustained me in times of crisis.

Many of us hope we will be the recipients of the prize family “heirlooms”. It may have been our great granddad’s saddle or the handmade quilt that grandma was wrapped in at birth. When viewed they have the power to take you back to another place and time or awaken deep feelings and warm memories of a person we loved dearly. They remind us of our family heritage! However, the gift that has stood the test of time is the Godly values and principles we learned as children. They are ageless and will provide answer to guide us in the present life and prepare us for the life to come.

A Godly heritage is not only vital to the salvation of an individual but that of a nation. An alarming fact is that a nation’s Godly heritage is only one generation away from extinction. It must be passed on!

— Chuck Ryan is the pastor of the Mountain View Church of the Nazarene. The church’s annual “Family Fair and Round-Up” theme this year is “Heritage and Heirlooms, Pass It On”. Ryan invites folks to take part in the event on Sunday, Sept. 9 at the Owyhee County Fairgrounds to celebrate “Heritage and Heirlooms” and to be challenged in the morning (10:30 a.m.) Cowboy Church Service to “Pass It On”.

Financial management Getting financially fit while single is a perfect idea

Dear Dave,

I've been working the Baby Steps and doing a budget most months. But how does someone who is single stay motivated and focused with something like this? It feels sometimes like it would be easier if I had someone holding me accountable.

— Rick

Dear Rick,

The first thing is to make sure you do a written budget each month. Not once in a while, not most months — every single month. If you don't draw the out-of-bounds markers, there's no way to know when you've stepped over the line, right? A monthly, written budget becomes your self-accountability tool, especially when you're single.

Still, there's nothing wrong with introducing a little accountability into your life. You don't have to be married to be accountable to someone other than yourself. Ask a good friend or maybe even your pastor to have a look at your plan and see what they think. Just make sure this person is someone who knows a little something about money and finances.

Honestly though, Rick. I think doing the Baby Steps and following my plan can be easier for single people. Think about it this way: You don't have to talk someone else into coming along for the ride. You also don't have to come to an agreement with someone else on everything financial. All you have to do is get serious, look in the mirror, and say, "Quit being stupid with money!" In other words, you just have to do it.

Admittedly, you don't have the built-in accountability in a singles situation. But on the other hand, you don't have someone calling you a doofus when you mess up!

— Dave

Dear Dave,

My brother was killed earlier this year, and my mom is finalizing his estate. He had a couple of federally insured student loans through Sallie Mae totaling $8,000 at the time of his death, and the attorney probating the estate says Mom now has to pay off those loans. Is that correct?

— Callie

Dear Callie,

I'm so sorry to hear about your brother. But no, your lawyer is not correct. Payment for federally insured student loans is not due upon the borrower's death. They are waived.

I'm going to give you two pieces of advice. The first is to fire your attorney. We're talking about basic knowledge when it comes to probating an estate here. If he got that wrong, there's no telling what else he's told you that's off the mark.

Second, you can take care of this by sending a copy of the death certificate to Sallie Mae. I'll warn you ahead of time that it may take a while to jump through all their hoops. I mean, you're dealing with the federal government. They're not exactly known for getting things right the first time. But once you're declared permanently disabled or you pass away, federally insured student loans are discharged and not held against the estate. Don't pay it!

Sen. Mike Crapo

From Washington Get involved to help Postal Service get back to black

As the son of a former postmaster, I have great respect for the role of post offices in our communities. Given the U.S. Postal Service's (USPS) problematic financial situation, many may be wondering about the continuation of their services. It is a fair question as discussions continue about how to maintain services while enabling the Postal Service to balance its budget. The importance of this service, especially in the rural communities that rely on local post offices for business and efficient postal services, requires close consideration of the views of those most affected by the proposals.

Throughout the 237 years of the Postal Service's existence, Congress has enacted legislation affecting the operation of the Postal Service. This includes Congress designating the USPS as a self-supporting entity and directing the USPS to provide prompt, reliable and efficient service to all communities.

The law states that the Postal Service "shall provide a maximum degree of effective and regular postal services to rural areas, communities, and small towns where post offices are not self-sustaining. No small post office shall be closed solely for operating at a deficit, it being the specific intent of the Congress that effective postal services be insured to residents of both urban and rural communities."

Unfortunately, the Postal Service has been experiencing serious financial challenges in recent times related to declining mail volumes and the difficult economy. The Postal Service recorded a financial loss of $5.1 billion in fiscal year 2011. On Aug. 2, the USPS experienced its first ever default after failing to submit a required $5.5 billion payment for future retirees' health benefits, and another $5.5 billion default is expected next month. These losses have forced difficult decisions and discussions about how to maintain service while also reducing spending in order to balance the service's budget.

As part of the discussion, the Postal Service proposed initiatives to close thousands of facilities. This raised concerns throughout many rural communities. However, in May, the Postmaster General released details of a new five-year plan that seeks to preserve the majority of rural post offices, partly by reducing operating hours. The plan includes a list of specific post offices to receive reduced office hours. A list of Idaho post offices with reduced hours can be accessed at http://www.crapo.senate.gov/documents/post_offices.pdf. The Postal Service also indicated it will enable rural letter carriers to provide full-service to their customers, including selling stamps and money orders, providing package and mailing services, and enabling some customers to gain home delivery where it is not currently available.

I encourage those interested in this issue to continue to share your comments through the opportunities made available by the USPS. All final decisions regarding post office closures or reduced hours will be reviewed by the independent Postal Regulatory Commission, and the USPS expects to have its final proposals implemented by the fall of 2014.

The answers are far from simple in finding methods for the Postal Service to preserve its important services and prevent it from operating in the red. However, the importance of the Postal Service to our communities necessitates continued effort to uphold this service. The Postal Service indicates it delivered 168 billion pieces of mail in 2011, facilitating approximately $10 trillion in commerce. I encourage your continued input as we work together to ensure that post offices maintain their roles in our communities and our nation's economy.

County budget higher; so will be taxes

The proposed 1988 budget for Owyhee County government is up from the 1987 budget by $193,729, and the amount to be raised by taxes will be increased $364,934, according to figures published in this week’s Avalanche by county clerk Barbara Jayo.

But in all reality, Jayo said Tuesday, the 1987 budget adopted by the commissioners is not the figures the county operated from. In the course of the year, the county lost its portion of revenue sharing funds, and “the county didn’t operate on the adopted budget this year, because the money expected was not there”, she explained.

Next year’s budget is $2,747,202, compared to the 1987 budget of $2,553,410, the publication shows.

Historically the county has received approximately $120,000 in the RS fund. The money has been used in various budgets, particularly in the solid waste disposal, With the RS funds no longer available, the county is faced with a crisis in funding this state-mandated expense. This year (’87) the solid waste budget is $92,620 and next year’s totals $131,071.

“We’ve been using revenue sharing money (for solid waste) because we were caught with a low levy when the one percent freeze hit,” the clerk said. In addition to the maximum allowable tax increase of 5% per year, county commissioners are working on a levy for maintenance of the several county solid waste dumps. Jayo said details are not confirmed, but she expects the commissioners will adopt the ordinance in the near future.

Although the amount to be raised by taxes for next year’s expenses will go up $364,934, the increase to the average property owner will not be so significant, due to a $17,000,000 valuation at the DeLamar Silver Mine, the clerk said. County property valuation dropped about $2,000,000, she added.

Former co-publisher, Kenneth Colley, dies

Word was received this week of the death of former Homedale-Wilder newspaper publisher, Kenneth H. Colley, at a Corvallis, Oregon hospital of a heart attack.

His father, R.H. Colley, purchased the Owyhee Chronicle in 1932, and Kenneth was associated in the family business. Following his death in 1948, Grace Colley took over the reins with the family still helping out.

In 1941, Kenneth and his older brother, Everett, became publishers of The Owyhee Chronicle. Kenneth left the Chronicle in July, 1942, to become the publisher of The Wilder Herald which he had purchased in partnership with his brother, Everett.

Kenneth resumed publication of The Herald until September 1946, when it was leased to Roy Anderson of California, until January 1957. In September 1956, Kenneth entered law school at Willamette University at Salem, Oregon, after 14 years of proprietorship with the Wilder Herald.

On March 1, 1975, the Colley brothers sold their two papers to the present publisher, Joe E. Aman.

In 1978, Everett Colley with his brother’s permission donated the printing equipment that was still stored in the Herald building to the Canyon County Historical Museum in Nampa where it was the core of a printing exhibit. Everett preceded his brother in December, 1981, of a heart attack.

Ambulance makes runs over week end

The Homedale ambulance made two runs over the week end and was called on a third case.

The longest trip was to Boise at 8:30 p.m. Monday evening when Orville White was taken to the Veterans hospital by Tom Morris and Dick Fry.

The drivers were unfortunate in having a flat tire during the run. No passersby offered them help in changing the tire, although they were parked with red lights flashing. Mr. White was given oxygen during the trip.

Sunday at 4 p.m. the ambulance rushed Elmer Lonsdale to the Caldwell hospital from a farm home near Graveyard Point southwest of town. He was suffering considerable pain in one shoulder. Larry Smith made the run alone with the ambulance.

The ambulance was called to the Watson Packshed at 11:30 a.m. Sunday where a worker, Mrs. Art Byington, fell and broke her wrist. Aaron Bright and Johnny Shanley answered the call, but Mrs. Byington had already been rushed to Caldwell by private car.

Sandra Milligan sells 2,000 tickets, named queen

Other entrants, who received tolled leather purses, were Brenda Prow, State Line Grange; Kay Deming, Bruneau, Grand View and Wilson 4-H clubs and Grand View Lions Club; Nancy Lenvanger, Homedale L.D.S. Relief Society, and Sue Eidemiller, Homedale American Legion Auxiliary.

BE CHEERFUL.—Look on the bright side. It is the right side. The times may be hard, but it makes them no easier to wear a gloomy and sad countenance. It is the sunshine, and not the cloud, that makes the flower. The sky is blue ten times where it is black once. You have troubles, so have others. None are free from them. Trouble gives sinew and tone to life — fortitude and courage to man. That would be a dull sea, and the sailors would never get skill, where there was nothing to disturb the surface of the ocean. What though things look a little dark, the lane will turn, and night will end in a broad day. There is more virtue in one sunbeam than in a whole hemisphere of clouds and gloom.

LOCAL MINING RECORD.—We took our usual tour over War Eagle Mountain this week; and, from careful personal observation of the various mines and the large amount of work going on, we feel justified in asserting that the mining prospect of our camp is brighter and more encouraging than for several years past. Not only are the new mines of great promise being opened up, but long-suspended operations in several of the older claims have been resumed, and are being pushed forward with the utmost confidence and energy. Enterprises formerly abandoned on account of losses entailed through inexperience and the then prevailing high prices of labor and material, have lately been resuscitated with every prospect of fully realizing the hopes of their projectors. Owing to the reduced cost of the cardinal elements of production, more perfect knowledge of the business, and a greater economy and caution in operating, our mill-men are enabled to work a lower grade of ore with profit than formerly they were able to do. Taking everything into consideration, the miner, the merchant, and our citizens generally, have reason to rejoice over the season of prosperity that is now about to dawn upon our camp.

THE SNAKE RIVER RAILROAD.—Popular sentiment throughout Idaho and Eastern Oregon is almost unanimously in favor of the projected railroad from Salt Lake, down Snake River valley, to Portland, Oregon, by way of the Dalles. Our people are now pretty fully aware of the important fact that it will take a railroad to increase the population of our Territory, and develop our mineral, agricultural and manufacturing resources, in every useful and profitable manner. Colonel Chapman has, and is now devoting his indomitable energy in behalf of this road. He personally attended to the work of procuring the aid or favor of the General Government to the project during the last session of Congress. He had an up-hill struggle at every turn. Because of the gigantic land grants which had been voted to certain lines of railroad in many states in former years, and because of the demagogical howl set up by scheming politicians against any further aid by the Government to railroads, the last Congress was very averse to granting even the slightest favors to any railroad project. But in spite of all these obstacles Colonel Chapman succeeded in having a bill passed to give the right of way to the projected road, and he is quite sanguine that Congress will yet grant public lands under suitable regulations and restrictions to aid in the construction of the road. To advance and render more likely such a measure, a great deal can be affected by the ensuing Legislatures of Idaho and Oregon. We therefore earnestly hope that our Legislators (whether Democratic or Republican, it matters not) will use every legitimate effort by which the work can be promoted and the object attained. The people of our Territory are perfectly willing that a liberal grant of lands should be made in aid of this railroad; and we are certain that, if the Congressional Committee to whom such matters are referred, could be induced to take a trip down Snake River valley, they would not object to the granting of lands in aid of the project. A careful consideration of the effects already experienced from the opening of railroads in other regions shows that trade and business is immensely stimulated by the greater economy of transportation offered, inducing an increase of population and of the travel of passengers, and these as well as freight, may, moreover, be drawn in from other channels of travel.
