Homedale K-9 officer loses cancer fight

The Homedale Police Department bid farewell to its canine officer Goose on Thursday.

A special detail of HPD officers accompanied their four-legged colleague after he lost his battle with cancer.

The Czechoslovakian Shepherd was 10.

A week earlier, Goose's partner, Officer Karl Kingston, confirmed Goose's illness after he and the dog had made the rounds at the town's middle school and elementary school.

"For being the school resource officer and being in the schools, he's been the perfect dog for that," he said.

"He'll lick the kids in the face or flop on his back to get his belly rubbed."

One of Goose's final calls to duty was riding in the Marsing

High School Homecoming parade on Sept. 28. He and Kingstone were part of a "Hometown Heroes" float.

Kingston's partner of seven years dating back to their Owyhee County Sheriff's Office days, Goose recently underwent surgery to remove his spleen and perform a biopsy. The drug detection-certified animal had become

Marsing High School students fight tobacco use

Group working to raise minimum age receives grant

A student group at Marsing High School has gotten a financial boost to spread its anti-tobacco message.

MHS health and physical education teacher Monique Smart is the advisor for the “Huskies Against Tobacco” (HAT) group.

Last week she was awarded $750 from the American Lung Association’s “Support Teens Against Nicotine Dependency” (STAND) grants committee.

Monique Smart

Smart said the grant money will be used to educate students and community members about the proposed “Tobacco 21” policy change and the dangers of using tobacco products.

“We are a part of the state-wide effort to raise the minimum sales age for all tobacco

The walls of Marsing High School hallway hold some of the 540 paper dolls representing people who die because of secondhand smoke. Submitted photo products to 21, and will be advocating to add tobacco-free zone signs in community playground areas,” she said.

A state Senate panel killed a plan to raise the legal smoking age from 18 to 21 in March. It would have applied to cigarettes, cigars, chewing tobacco and alternative nicotine products such as electronic cigarettes.

Smart added that HAT puts an emphasis on dispelling misconceptions about electronic cigarettes and secondhand smoke.

HAT has about seven regular members including:

- Isaias Alvarez
- Jedediah Crandall
- Jaime Montes
- Jennifer Murillo
- Marissa Paz

Kevin Pena
Jessica Sevy
Smart said Jennifer, Marissa and Jessica helped write the grant application, and other students gave input.

Smart and two HAT members will attend the 2017 STAND Grant Workshop in Boise on Nov. 2-3. She said it hasn’t been determined which students will go to the event, but Jennifer and Jessica are the group leaders.

Smart said there will be plenty to talk about during the two-day event.

“At the workshop, we will begin to outline our plan for using grant funds to support Tobacco 21, implement smoke-free areas in our community and learn how to combine current resources without grant money,” She said.

“Groups share past success and failures, and brainstorm activities and ideas we can bring back to our communities.”

The HAT group at MHS was formed during the 2016-17 school year.

Smart said she takes the anti-tobacco message seriously, because she doesn’t think most people understand the dangers of secondhand smoke and electronic cigarette vapor.

“Tobacco is heavily used in our rural community,” she said.

“Many students have voiced concern over their parents’ use of tobacco and secondhand smoke. Adults and students alike are under the false assumption that e-cigs (vaping) is harmless.”

During the past school year, HAT helped to get electronic cigarettes added to the list of banned items in the school handbook and set up information booths about Tobacco 21 at parent-teacher conferences, among other anti-tobacco efforts.

“We displayed 540 paper dolls in the school hallways to represent the 540 people who die every day because of secondhand smoke-related illness,” Smart said.

HAT’s grant application stated, in part:

“We believe our group should be part of STAND because we are surrounded by a community that uses tobacco. Marsing is a smaller community, and we have so many kids influenced that we want to help them. We can have a large, positive influence in lives to help end adolescent smoking now.”

MHS prepares for annual Cause Week

Marsing High School students and faculty want to send a message that October is a month for giving back to the community.

The third annual “Cause Week,” organized by the student council, starts Monday with a “Socktober” drive. Students are encouraged to donate new, packaged socks for women’s and children’s homeless shelters in the Treasure Valley.

The next day’s theme is “They’ve Got You Covered.” Students will be able to wear hats inside the high school in exchange for a cash donation to raise funds for Marsing Fire and Emergency Medical Services equipment.

Student council advisor Lennie Freeman said the school raised $116 for Marsing Fire and EMS during last year’s Cause Week.

Next Wednesday’s “Christmas in October” drive will gather money to help Boise radio station Mix 106 with its elves program to buy toys for boys and girls staying at St. Luke’s Children’s Hospital.

Freeman chose St. Luke’s because she wanted something students could connect to.

The effort on Thursday, Oct. 19 is titled “Cancer Sucks.” Blow Pops lollipops will be sold to benefit Boise’s Susan G. Komen Race for the Cure.

Voter registration deadline looms

Homedale council only contested election so far

Time is running out to pre-register to vote in the Nov. 7 general election.

The voter registration deadline is 5 p.m. on Friday. Registration will be available again when the polls are open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 7.

November elections will not be necessary for fire and cemetery districts in Owyhee County because no write-in candidates came forward.

Results from Tuesday's deadline to mount a write-in campaign for municipal elections were unavailable before press time.

At this point, the only contested municipal election is shaping up in Homedale.

Appointees Jerry Anderson and Shane Muir will seek full four-year city council terms, while former councilman Tim Downing and public library board member Michael Aebischer have also filed nomination petitions.

The top two vote-getters will win four-year terms on the council.

Mayor Gheen Christoffersen is the only man to file for the chief executive position and at this point will run uncontested for a second four-year term.

In Marsing, only one of the two sitting councilpersons whose terms are expiring will seek election.

Jolyn Green, who was appointed after Aron Streibel resigned, has filed nomination papers.

Cory Percifield won't seek a second four-year term.

Because only one candidate has emerged for the two available seats, the city council will have to appoint someone if no one had stepped forward as a write-in candidate by Tuesday's deadline.

Grand View will have a new person on the council come January after incumbent Melvin Freckleton decided against seeking another term.

Incumbent John Morrison and resident Daniel Martinez have filed nomination papers.

Both positions have two-year terms.

Mayoral appointee Ed Collett, who took over from Tammy Payne last year, will seek a fresh four-year term in Grand View. He is the only person who filed in time to appear on the ballot.

Citizens have until 5 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 27 to apply to the clerk's office in Murphy for a mail-in absentee ballot. Absentee ballots must be received in Murphy by 8 p.m. on Election Day to be counted.

The Board of County Commissioners has set the polling places for the Nov. 7 election:

North Homedale — Senior center, 224 W. Idaho Ave.

South Homedale — Magistrate courtroom, 31 W. Wyoming Ave.

North Marsing — Phipps-Watson Marsing American Legion Community Center, 126 W. 2nd St. N.

South Marsing — University of Idaho Owyhee County Extension Office, 238 8th Ave. W.

Grand View — Eastern Owyhee County Library, 520 Boise Ave.

Hats off to Homedale TOPS contest

The Homedale "Taking Off Pounds Sensibly" (TOPS) club recently asked The Owyhee Avalanche to judge a "Cutest Hat" contest. The winning entry was created by Darlene Merchant (left), and Julie Truesdell was runner-up. The Homedale club will wear their hats to a regional TOPS meeting in Nampa later this month with Merchant leading the local ladies at the event.

Scouting for Food set in GV area

Boy Scout Troop 73, which serves Grand View, Bruneau and Oreana, is planning its annual Scouting for Food community service.

The food drive will benefit the Rimrock Community Food Pantry and local churches.

The effort will run from Oct. 21 to Oct. 28.

"We will set out bags on the 21st or pick up food also and can come pick up bags on the 28th," one of the local scoutmasters, Doug Thurman, said.

Thurman said all the food collected will stay in the three communities, and the scouts will pick up food in any of those towns.

Anyone who doesn't receive a bag from the scouts can call Thurman at (208) 834-2442 to set up a donation.

Homedale dog ordinance could undergo change

Revised ordinance wouldn't single-out dangerous breeds

With the city attorney fearful of possible lawsuits, the Homedale City Council has examined making changes to the town's animal control ordinance.

Paul J. Fitzer led a workshop prior to the Sept. 28 council meeting to outline reasons for the proposed changes.

The council could adopt a new ordinance today that will eliminate breed-specific language in the current code.

The meeting begins at 6 p.m. inside the magistrate courtroom at City Hall, 31 W. Wyoming Ave.

As counsel for other cities in Idaho, Fitzer has dealt with the possibility of a constitutional question regarding what one attorney has characterized as discrimination against owners of dog breeds such as pit bulls.

Fitzer told the Homedale council members that they could either take the risk that the civil liberties attorney would file suit and then challenge the assertion in court, or they could save the headache of attorney fees and what could be a prolonged legal battle and just generalize the language in the current ordinance.

"If you want to draw a line in the sand and go to war, I'm happy to fight it," Fitzer said.

But Fitzer warned that the city's insurance carrier – Idaho Counties Risk Management Program – won't cover legal fees. He also said that Third District Judge Candy Dale has "hinted" that the breed-specific ordinances don't pass muster with the state constitution.

Homedale Police Chief Jeff Eidemiller bristled at the idea that an attorney out to change several towns' ordinance language was forcing the city council to once again change the animal ordinance.

After seeing the ordinance changed to first ban chickens and then accommodate citizens who want backyard coops, Eidemiller said he hopes that if the ordinance is rewritten again that this would be done efficiently enough to eliminate the need for future updates.

"I will stand by what you guys decide," he told the councilmen, "but I just want to fix it for the last time. I don't want to keep digging up old dirt."

The proposed new ordinance language provides specific definitions for "dangerous dogs" and "at-risk" dogs rather than singling out those breeds believed to be dangerous, such as pit bulls.

Under the new ordinance, an "at-risk" dog would be defined as an animal that bites a person without provocation. The bite needn't bring serious injury.

A "dangerous" dog is any breed that has inflicted serious injury with an unprovoked bite or has been deemed "at-risk" previously and then bites or attacks someone without justified provocation.

Fitzer said he adopted the dangerous dog definition in the proposed ordinance from Idaho law.

But the new ordinance also would give police officers latitude to decide if a dog is potentially dangerous. For example, a dog who is merely "nipping at someone's heels" could get a pass.

The ordinance would require the owner of a potentially dangerous dog to pay more for registration and also carry liability insurance. The dog owner's property also must be posted with warning signs.

"We're not banning any breeds," Eidemiller said.

Fitzer also said that dogs who are merely protecting property by merely barking from behind a fence won't be in danger of being labeled at-risk.

"The Corgi behind a fence running up and down is no problem," Fitzer said. "It's just annoying." — JPB

Homedale council could end long-standing bi-monthly meetings

Tonight's Homedale City Council meeting could start a trend.

The council meets at 6 p.m. inside the magistrate courtroom across the lobby from City Hall, 31 W. Wyoming Ave.

Council members are set to discuss the annual cancellation of their second meetings in November and December because of the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays, respectively.

It may not be the only change to meeting protocol that will see a vote, though.

The council wants to examine eliminating the second meeting of the month altogether, ending a practice that began about 25 years ago under one of Mayor Paul J. Fink's administrations.

Lately, city council meetings have averaged less than 30 minutes in length, and some has run as short as 15 minutes, City Clerk and Treasurer Alice Pegram said.

If the proposal is adopted, the meetings on the fourth Thursday of the month would be dropped and the council would only meet at 6 p.m. on the second Wednesday of each month.

Pegram said the change could also save the city money on paying city attorney Paul J. Fitzer to travel to a second meeting each month. City department heads receive overtime for the meetings, too.

The council also will discuss changes to Fitzer's criminal prosecution contract with the police department. — JPB

Richard G Madariaga

Richard G Madariaga. Born August 06 1925. 92 years young. Richard began his life so many years ago alongside his family of 11 brothers and sisters. He was one of the younger, more mysterious children. He always went on about how athletic and how tough his brothers were. He especially took a liking to his brother Sab. His favorite story to tell was how big yet aerobatic he was. Sab was a bartender in Jordan Valley, and back then Jordan was really happening. One day came along a group of sailors. Must have mistaken the Owyhee for the Mississippi. There was one sailor who came in with a lot of energy. He began tumbling through the bar and did front flips while landing on his feet. He then jumped flat-foot on the bar and made the following challenge: If anyone in the bar could do what he did then drinks around were on the sailor. Fitting as it were, Sab stepped out from behind the bar a bear of a man. He said,

"I accept this challenge," and everyone watched in dismay. Sab made all of those turns and flips as grandpa would say and then he, too, jumped up on the bar as that sailor had had his day.
Richard was always running at a high pace. He always had something to do and people to impress. He, too, was a very strong man although he would not ever admit to that. He also fancied impressing all of those around him. He liked to be center of attention out on the town. He would sing you a song and tell you how it was. He always went on about dancing all night on the town. Richard enjoyed his sports as well. His favorite sports were baseball and basketball, neither of which could pull him away from his true love on the back of a horse as a cowboy. To hear it from grandpa, he would tell you he had offers to play any professional sport he wanted but he chose being a cowboy. Richard found the love of his life, Evon "Bonnie, during the dreaded snowfall of '48 and '49. She would tell you that she was the one who found him back in those years. Grandma always said that they moved out here to get away from the snow. Grandma and Grandpa were a great pair. She complimented him and he to her. The ranching life found them moving around a lot. From Jordan to Fairfield to New Plymouth and then back. Richard and Evon raised four wonderful children. Each unique in their own way. Richard traveled a lot and saw a lot of country, but always found his home to be in the Jordan Valley. He was a great mentor in the community, and he had ties all around him. It seems everywhere he went he either had friends or he quickly made them with his great stories.

In his time as a rancher he learned many crafts. Grandpa's greatest craft was in his rawhide riata. Richard was well-known for braiding great ropes, and many of the cowboys in the area would seek them out. He built ropes to the very end of his days, and the tough, old, mean-looking but very flexible ropes fit his personality to a key.
I could continue to go on, however, I will end with this. One of the most remembered stories grandpa always told me was on how we screwed up the moon. His Dad was a great worker of the moon. He would grow by the moon. He would work animals by the moon. He did everything by the moon. Grandpa said, though, that we messed up when we sent a man to the moon. Nothing ever was the same. We never had the winter like '48 and '49 again. The world was going down. I think Grandpa found in the end though was it wasn't a problem with the moon it was a change in lifestyles. I think he found great joy when I would start to explain how our family started using the moon again to work. Everything can full circle, and I think that is where we are now. Grandpa, you go in peace. Be with all of those that you always spoke of and you now are the one that we may speak of as well. Rest In Peace.

A Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated at 10 a.m. on Saturday, Oct. 7, 2017 at St. Bernard's Catholic Church in Jordan Valley, Oregon. Burial followed at the Jordan Valley Cemetery. Arrangements are under the direction of the Nampa Funeral Home, Yraguen Chapel. An online guestbook is available at www.nampafuneralhome.com

Fun fall youth workshops planned

For some, saying farewell to summer is like saying goodbye to a friend that you only get to visit with once a year. However, for some of us saying goodbye to summer means saying hello to fall. I anxiously await the crisp, cool fall air all summer.

Janelle Thompson

This is the perfect season to enjoy the beauty of Owyhee County. Fall carries more gold in its pockets than all the other seasons. There are trails waiting for you to explore, orchards that produced a bountiful harvest that are just begging us to enjoy and more pumpkin spice scents and flavors than we know what to do with. This time of year is a great time to pause after the craziness of the summer months and enjoy the change of seasons as well as the holidays that are just around the corner.

The Owyhee County Extension Office is planning some great workshops for our youth this fall. First is our Halloween Cookie Decorating Day. It will be held from 3:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 19 at the Owyhee County Extension Office in Marsing. This free, fun-filled afternoon is open to youth ages 5 to 18 years old. Sign up before the Monday, Oct. 16 deadline.

In November, we will be hosting an Introduction to Sewing series. This workshop will cover the basics of sewing while we work together to make a quilt that will be auctioned off during the annual Marsing Disaster Auction in February.

This workshop series will take place at the Extension Office in Marsing on Nov. 1-2 from 3:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m., and from 9 a.m. to noon on Nov. 3. The cost is $10 per youth and will include all the needed supplies as well as a snack.

This workshop is open to boys and girls ages 8-10. The registration deadline for this Introduction to Sewing series is Friday, Oct. 20.

A stroll starts another year of learning for Grand View students

A short walk down Main Street opened a whole new world for Grand View Elementary School’s youngest students.

Ms. Maya Davis’ kindergarten and first-grade class visited the Snake River for their entry event into the school’s Project-Based Learning curriculum.

“The entry event is designed to get students’ curiosity up and questions going regarding their Project-Based Learning lesson for this fall,” elementary school principal and Bruneau-Grand View schools superintendent Ryan Cantrell said.

“Entry events tend to be memorable, brief, and often novel to students.”

Davis and some adult volunteers escorted the students to the river, and the teacher asked the crucial question: “What makes a river a river?”

Students drew water from the river with syringes and used a magnifying glass to examine particles found in the water.

Cantrell further explained the entry event gives students a shared experience to make them wonder more about the driving question and engage them in the ensuing classroom learning.

“By generating questions rather than answering them, the entry events get students interested in the topic at hand and helps to carry the project forward in the coming days and weeks,” Cantrell said.

Quilts up for grabs in a raffle this week at the Homedale Public Library. One quilt (left) was made by Homedale City Council member Jerry Anderson, the other was donated by Sleepy Hollow Quilt Shop in Marsing.

Library board seeks grant support

Quilt raffle to be held Monday

Rallying community members to get behind a plan to expand the Homedale Public Library is the top priority for library board members this month.

Proponents intend to file another Idaho Community Development Block Grant (ICDBG) in hopes of building a 3,600-square-foot, standalone addition to the library. Last year’s application was denied.

A Oct. 3 meeting, library administrator Sharla Jensen asked board members to start gathering letters of support for the project.

“The more we have, the better,” Jensen said. “They can be formal letters, they can be notes, whatever. The more people we have writing in saying how much we need this new library, the more our score will go up.”

She added that people can also leave messages of support for the plan on the library’s Facebook page.

A public hearing on the library expansion will be held at 6 p.m., on Wednesday, Nov. 8 at Homedale City Hall, 31 W. Wyoming Ave. It’ll be part of the month’s regular city council meeting.

The deadline to file the grant application is Nov. 17.

Last week, Jensen also told board members about a quilt raffle to raise financial support for library programs.

Two quilts are up for grabs in the drawing that will be held Monday. Homedale city councilman Jerry Anderson made one; Sleepy Hollow Quilt Shop in Marsing donated the other.

“If you want to stop in and buy a ticket, please do,” Jensen said. “It’s a dollar a ticket, or six for five. They were hanging at the farmers market, but now they’re hanging in the library.”

She also gave board members a brief update on library membership numbers.

“At the end of last fiscal year we had 2,562 and right now we’re at 2,814 active card users,” Jensen said.

She intends to include the figures showing growth at the library in the ICDBG application.

Retired HES secretary nominated

A longtime fixture at Homedale Elementary School could soon join the Homedale Public Library board.

During last week’s library board meeting, chair Dawn Whitney said she talked to Pam Gibbens, who said she would be happy to fill the seat that Carolyn Grooms is leaving behind.

Grooms’ term expires at the end of the month, and she won’t extend her tenure.

The board members unanimously approved sending Gibbens’ name to the city council for approval.

The city council is expected to vote on the recommendation during its 6 p.m. meeting Thursday inside City Hall, 31 W. Wyoming Ave.

Whitney said a lot of Homedale folks met Gibbens while she was the secretary at HES. Gibbens retired from the school’s front office in the spring.

“Everybody knows Pam,”

she said.

Board member Michael Aebischer agreed.

“She’s well-known, and everybody likes her,” Aebischer said. “I personally think she’d be a great asset for our library.”

Gibbens said she didn’t hesitate at Whitney’s invitation to join the board.

“She asked, and I said I’d do it,” she said. “I always like to try to help out in my community.”

Eagle man accused of DUI, pot possession

A motorist who crossed into the oncoming lane was arrested on suspicion of drunk driving early Sunday morning.

Misail Cordova-Salazar, 29, of Eagle was pulled over in front of Marsing High School on 8th Avenue West around 2 a.m., Owyhee County Sheriff Perry Grant said.

Grant said the responding deputy was driving south behind Cordova-Salazar, who was behind the wheel of a gray 2006 Honda Accord.

The man was pulled over after the deputy observed the vehicle swerving back and forth and then driving completely into the northbound lane.

Cordova-Salazar has been charged with four misdemeanors — driving under the influence, marijuana possession, drug paraphernalia possession and providing false information to a law enforcement office.

The man’s blood-alcohol content measured .093, Grant said.

Man sentenced for felonies in Owyhee, Canyon counties

A Mountain Home man was sentenced on felony cases in two counties last week.

Colton Scott Osborn has been placed on a rider after sentencing hearings in Owyhee and Canyon county cases.

In both instances, Osborn was given a state prison term of between two and six years. But the presiding judges also put Osborn in the Idaho Department of Correction program through which he can avoid a longer prison term if he meets certain criteria.

Osborn was sentenced on drug and theft charges in Owyhee County on Oct. 2.

He entered a guilty plea to felony counts of grand theft and methamphetamine possession in July.

In the Canyon County case, Osborn was sentenced Oct. 2 on one felony count each of burglary and grand theft.

He had entered guilty pleas to those charges in July as well.

Teen rolls car four times outside Marsing

A teenager refused medical attention last Wednesday after he rolled his vehicle off the road near Marsing.

Owyhee County Sheriff Perry Grant said 18-year-old Evan Anderson appeared to have suffered a head injury when his black 2001 Pontiac Grand Am rolled four times after leaving the roadway on Idaho highway 78 near Old Bruneau Highway.

Grant said Anderson was westbound Idaho 78 after 8 a.m. when he drove off the right shoulder of the highway while negotiating a curve.

He corrected his steering twice, Grant said, before driving off the right shoulder again, colliding with an embankment and rolling the vehicle.

Marsing council expected to renew OCSO, water contracts

Deals with three Owyhee County entities could dominate tonight’s Marsing City Council meeting.

The gathering will take place at 7 p.m. inside City Hall, 425 Main St.

On Friday, Marsing City Clerk Janice Bicandi said the agenda for tonight’s meeting includes reviews of agreements with the Owyhee County Sheriff’s Office and the Gem Irrigation District.

Bicandi said a memorandum of understanding with the Marsing School District regarding a sidewalk project on 8th Avenue West is also on the agenda.

Bicandi explained that the contracts for law enforcement services with the sheriff’s office and billing and maintenance services with the Gem district are both up for their yearly renewal.

The MOU with the school district involves an easement agreement for the sidewalk that would begin at Bosma Lane on the west side of 8th Avenue West and extend to a point near the high school.

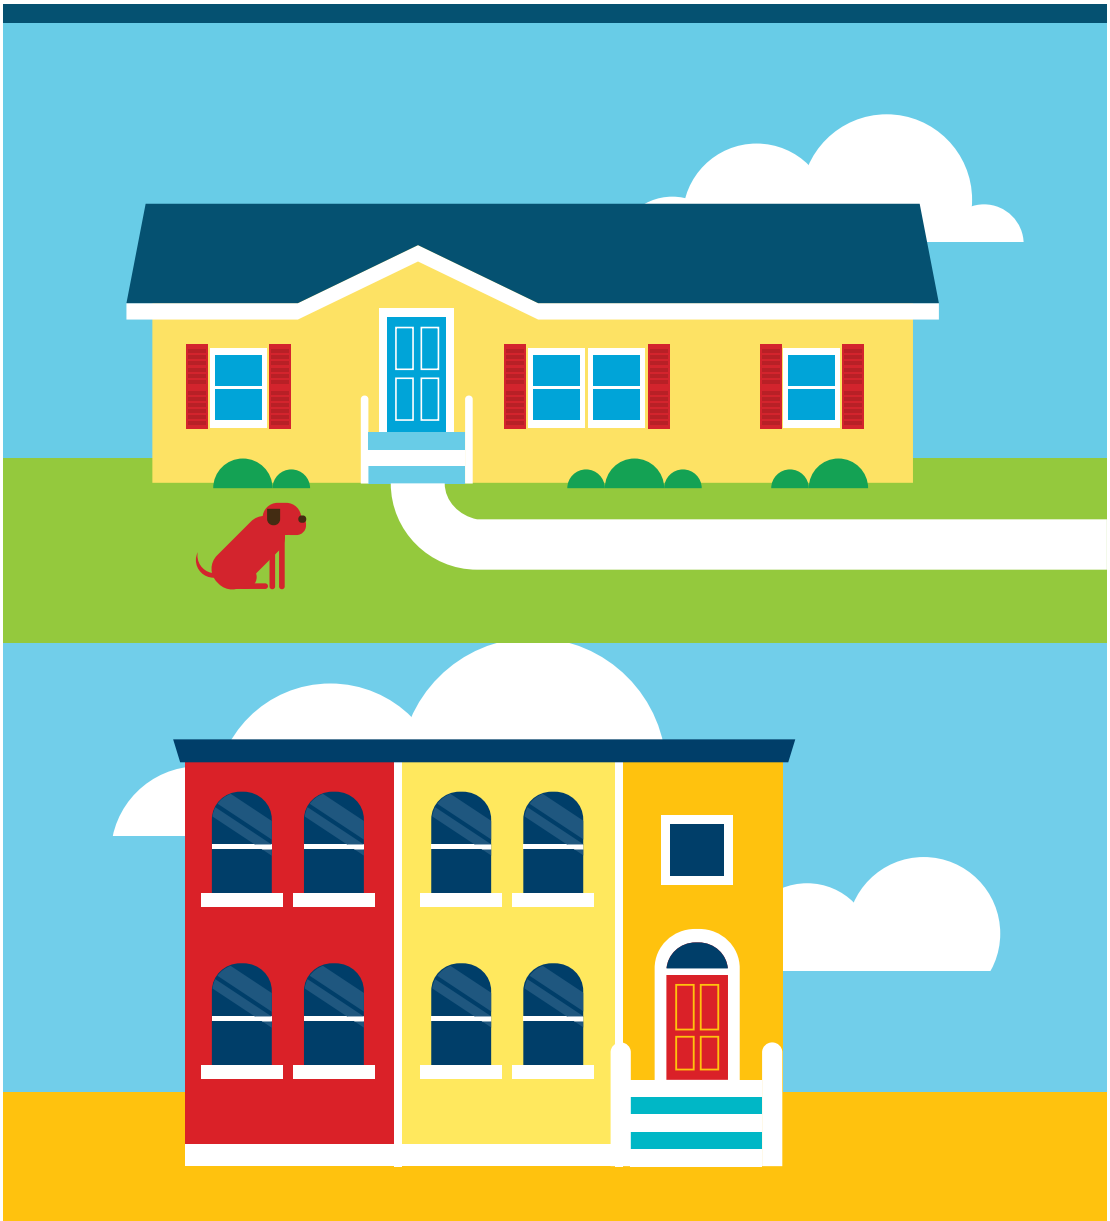

The sidewalk project is part of the Idaho Transportation Department’s $3.8 million effort to improve Idaho highway 55 next year.

Bicandi said regular departmental reports will also be on the agenda tonight.

This scene from Thursday’s Boise Cascade 60th anniversary celebration at the Homedale plant will be repeated later this month when the Saint Alphonsus mobile health clinic engages folks as part of Homedale High School student Kaden Henry’s senior project.

Sr. project highlights good health

A Homedale High School 12th-grader has organized free health screenings for the public.

Kaden Henry’s senior project will bring the Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center’s mobile health screening motor coach to Gooding’s Farm from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 21.

Henry said he has set up the screening for the farm’s employees, but anyone can come take advantage of the service.

Gooding’s Farm is located at 26694 Dixie Road in Parma.

The St. Al’s mobile staff offers free flu shots, blood pressure checks, blood glucose testing and body mass index (BMI) information.

Severe weather training workshop coming to Marsing

Folks are invited to learn what to watch for in the case of extreme weather conditions at a gathering in Marsing later this month.

The severe weather spotter training will begin at 7 p.m., Monday, Oct. 23 at Marsing Middle School on 8th Avenue West.

Marsing ham radio operator Marlene Moore is helping to organize the event.

“It’ll be in Room 1 of the middle school,” Moore said. “There’s room for at least 30 people in there.”

The event is free and no registration is required.

The workshop is co-sponsored by Owyhee County Emergency Management and the National Weather Service (NWS).

Moore said the NWS is requesting that all counties start reaching out to communities to provide free training on severe weather events, “so that community members can be educated in spotting risky weather,” she said. “So that they can report those findings to the National Weather Service. Sometimes things are happening here in Marsing that aren’t happening in Boise.”

The workshop is open to everyone. The training will include definitions and climatology of severe weather, cloud and storm recognition, storm hazards, safety tips and weather reporting procedures.

Owyhee County emergency services coordinator Jim Desmond said there are no plans to send any county employees or elected officials to the workshop, but they are welcome to attend if interested.

“We have done several previous iterations of this training in various locations around the county, including at a natural resources committee meeting last year and a session for the Owyhee rangeland fire protection association in Jordan Valley,” Desmond said.

He added that the county prepares for severe weather events as part of its All Hazard planning process.

“The plan addresses all known hazards, including severe weather events, and considers opportunities to mitigate various hazards,” Desmond said.

Aviva Braun, a National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration meteorologist in Boise, will lead the workshop.

Braun reiterated that the training is intended to educate the public about what severe weather looks like, and how to protect oneself when it occurs.

“Additionally, we try to get people excited about reporting what they see to our office, as we lack a clear view of our mountainous areas, and appreciate reports from a trained general public,” Braun said. “This training is also meant as a way to reach out to the communities that we serve and make our office accessible.”

Moore said weather forecasts are often based on data provided from observers on the ground.

“If they’re at a park and they see certain cloud formations that indicate a potential downburst, they’ll recognize those conditions so that they can get people out of the weather,” she said. “People can serve their community by providing that information to the National Weather Service.”

Anyone with questions about the workshop can call Moore at (208) 649-5276.

For more information about the NWS spotter program, go to www.weather.gov/boise.

Trout stocked at C.J. Strike access points

Fishermen just got 52,000 reasons to love C.J. Strike Reservoir even more.

Idaho Power released last week more than 120,000 rainbow trout in the Snake River fishery, including more than 52,000 at C.J. Strike.

The Strike plant occurred in two spots — the Cottonwood and Jack’s Creek access points.

The fish released this week were raised in the Hagerman Valley and average 10 to 12 inches long. In a press release, Idaho Power said that fish that aren’t caught right away can grow several inches per year, especially in C.J. Strike, which provides excellent food and habitat for trout and other game species.

The balance of last week’s fish stocking was carried out at Lower Salmon Falls Reservoir near Bell Rapids (15,000 fish) and 4,00 fish at Centennial Park near Twin Falls.

Some of the fish released at Centennial Park and Bell Rapids have jaw tags. Anglers who report catching one of these tagged fish will have their names entered in an annual drawing for $1,000.

“The tagging program helps the company evaluate the success of our stocking efforts,” said Idaho Power fisheries biologist Ben Reingold.

Anglers who catch a jaw-tagged fish should note the tag number, the date the fish was caught, the location and whether the fish was released. Call 1-800-388-6011 to be eligible for the drawing. For more information about tagged trout or Idaho Power’s numerous fish programs, visit idaho-power.com/fish

The trout planting is part of Idaho Power’s obligation to provide recreational opportunities as a condition of federal licenses to operate hydroelectric facilities on the Snake River.

Bowhunter bags big buck

Chase Fillmore, a 17-year-old senior at Jordan Valley High School, took his third buck with a bow in his lifetime. He shot the 7 x 6 on Sunday, Sept. 24, while out with his dad, Clint Fillmore. The pair was hunting about seven miles outside of Jordan Valley. Chase has been hunting with his dad since he was 8 years old. He said the latest animal, which scored 216 3/8 for Pope and Young, will be memorable because it was a once-in-a-lifetime buck that he plans to have mounted. Submitted photo

Youth hunters will first harvests or anyone with a trophy animal can submit a photo to The Owyhee Avalanche by emailing jon@owyheeavalanche.com or mailing a photo to P.O. Box 97, Homedale, ID 83628. Include information on the hunt, the hunter’s name, age and hometown, and name of parents if the photo is of a youth hunt.

Resource conservation boards hold joint meeting

Watershed council, weed management group talk MOU today

The Jordan Valley Cooperative Weed Management Area is a complicated beast that helps landowners in two states battle noxious weeds.

Each year, the JVCWMA and the OWC holds a joint meeting. The cooperative weed management area, although it has an independent office in Jordan Valley, is actually part of the OWC, Morrison said.

Today, the two boards will meet at the JVCWMA office, 508 Swisher Ave., in Jordan Valley for their annual joint meeting. The meeting starts at 4 p.m.

On the agenda is renewing the memorandum of understanding that allows the JVCWMA to got through watershed council for grants from the Oregon Department of Agriculture and the Oregon Watershed Enhancement Board (OWEB).

Because the JVCWMA straddles the Idaho-Oregon state line, the organization’s coordinator, Eric Morrison, has to master two protocols when seeking grant money to fight weeds.

When it comes to grant money for Oregon-based projects, Morrison enlists the help of the Owyhee Watershed Council as a fiscal agent.

The Owyhee Cattlemen’s Heritage Foundation handles grant money received for Idaho projects from the state Department of Agriculture.

“The Owyhee Watershed Council has spearheaded the MOU and its revision,” Morrison said. “Over time as situations change, there needs to be revisions in how organizations interact and work together.”

The MOU has been in place for about seven or eight years, Morrison said.

Morrison encourages the public to turn out for the public meetings to provide input on the policies and projects to be carried out and to identify other areas of need in the fight against noxious weeds.

The JVCWMA regular meeting day is the fourth Monday of each month.

“There are typically eight meetings a year depending on what is needed and how the calendar falls with holidays, Big Loop Rodeo and other events or workload,” Morrison said.

Other topics on today’s agenda include:

- Parsnip Peak annual grass project
- Leafy Spurge treatments
- Annual operating plans
- Winter weed seminar

The latest JVCWMA meeting announcement showcased Medusahead, an introduced winter annual grass.

According to the association’s handout, Medusahead matures later than other annual grasses and prefers clay soils because they retain a cooler temperature later into the season.

Medusahead grows in dense colonies and is easily identifiable from a distance because the plant is lighter green compared to other grasses. At maturity, it appears shiny or glowing in sunlight because of a high silica content.

The plant has no value as livestock forage, but it appears in over-grazed or burned rangeland.

JVCWMA, which gleaned its information from “Selected Noxious Weeds of Eastern Oregon, concentrates on Medusahead because of the danger of increased fire frequency. The species’ duff layer can burn several times over.

Eradication methods include fire or intensive early grazing followed by herbicide treatment. Landowners may want to consider reseeding when necessary.

Chemical options include glyphosate on actively growing plants before the boot stage, Plateau pre- or post-emergence, Matrix, and Landmark pre-emergent.

E. Owyhee County Library Friends plan meet and greet

The Friends of the Eastern Owyhee County Library will hold a meet and greet Tuesday.

There will be door prizes and a 50/50 donation prize jar, and refreshments will be served during the event.

The meet and greet will run from 5 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at the library, 520 Boise Ave., in Grand View.

The Friends of the Eastern Owyhee County Library (EOCL) made final preparations for the meet and greet during its Sept. 17 meeting.

The group meets at 7 p.m. on the third Tuesday each month at the library.

During last month’s meeting, Friends of the EOCL discussed buying magazine racks and selling the 2018 community calendar. How to use the proceeds from calendar sales also was examined.

The election of new officers has been postponed until the November meeting.

Rep. Zito visits Marsing today

Dist. 23A Rep. Christy Zito (R-Hammett) will hold the first of two Owyhee County October town halls today.

“Cookies with Christy” will take place from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. at The Sandbar Café with a Cause, 18 Sandbar Ave., in Marsing.

Zito will hold another talk at the same time and location on Oct. 25.

Zito has held regular town halls at the Mountain Home library since the end of her first session in the Idaho House of Representatives earlier this year. The next Elmore County event, which Zito hopes Bruneau- and Grand View-area constituents can attend, will be held at 5 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 27.

She held her first Owyhee County question-and-answer gathering on Sept. 12 at the Phipps-Watson Marsing American Legion Community Center.

Zito’s two-year term as a freshman state lawmaker ends on Dec. 31, 2018.

She will have to run for re-election along with Dist. 23B Rep. Megan Blanksma (R-Hammett) and state Sen. Bert Brackett (R-Rogerson) beginning with the Republican primary in May.

✓ Routing: Last-minute Obama decision fades further into history assessment for the project. All entities involved, except the federal government, recoiled after a Jan. 19 decision granted rights-of-way (ROW) that would have impacted private property and sage-grouse habitat in Owyhee County.

The county, state and three environmental groups appealed the decision.

The next piece of the puzzle was the Consolidated Appropriations Act of 2017, which President Trump signed into law on May 5. The legislation exchanges public land in the Hammett area for acreage within the Morley Nelson Snake River Birds of Prey National Conservation Area and directs the BLM to issue an ROW for segments 8 and 9 along the existing power line down Baja Road in the NCA.

County officials and landowners had fought for that route from the beginning of a Boise District Resource Advisory Council subcommittee process. The subcommittee had recommended that route, but going against earlier assurances that the subcommittee's recommendation would be heeded, the national BLM office rejected any NCA siting.

In last week's letter, county commissioners request that BLM observe the coordination process to which Owyhee County is entitled under the Federal Land Policy and Management Act (FLPMA) to select the route segments to complete the mandated ROW.

"We will make ourselves and our staffs available to meet with BLM as frequently as necessary to ensure that the routes selected are appropriate to the needs of the citizens of Owyhee County and the energy transmission companies," the letter states.

Commissioners also said the power lines should be routed into the Hemingway Substation from the south to minimize impacts to the China Ditch subdivision. The substation in Wilson is the terminus of a 1,100-mile, 500-kilovolt transmission line that will stretch from Rock Springs, Wyo. Idaho Power, which also favored the NCA route, and Rocky Mountain Power are teaming up to bring more power to the western grid.

The letter also states: "The best way for BLM to achieve a reasonable and successful routing for the segments which connect Hemingway Substation to the ROW mandated by the Morley Nelson Snake River Birds of Prey NCA Boundary Modification Act is to work with Owyhee County under FLPMA's Coordination provisions."

Commissioners added that they remain committed to preventing harm to the citizens and economy of the county and remind the federal agency that any crossing of private property requires action by the landowner.

"We have previously submitted statements from more than 70 landowners who indicated that they will not apply for or allow a conditional use permit for transmission line across their property," the letter states.

The BLM expects to complete the EA in the spring of 2018.

✓ Sagebrush: Trump administration seems more open to local concerns

County's total area was affected by the original regulation, District 1 Commissioner Jerry Hoagland said.

While the primary concern was the effect of mining on Greater Sage-grouse habitat in six western states, including Idaho, Hoagland said the announcement was welcome by his cattle-raising colleagues.

"As to the ranchers, the withdrawal is a welcome directive," the Reynolds Creek rancher said. "It would have been one more restriction to any range improvements to benefit sage-grouse and other wildlife. It would have been a guiding principle in permit renewal, and totally contrary to any future flexibility in good range management that the agency is promoting."

The original withdrawal was an Obama-era regulation the scope of which Acting BLM Director Mike Nedd called unnecessary given the small amount of range mining affects.

"The proposal to withdraw 10 million acres to prevent 10,000 from potential mineral development was a complete overreach," Nedd said.

"(Interior) Secretary (Ryan) Zinke has said from the beginning that by working closely with the states, who are on the front lines and a valued partner in protecting the health of these lands, we can be successful in conserving Greater Sage-grouse habitat without stifling economic development and job growth. And that's what we intend to do — protect important habitat while also being a good neighbor to states and local communities."

U.S. Sen. Jim Risch (R-Idaho) said the proposal is another step in returning a local voice to the conversation of managing western rangelands.

"The last administration invited the western governors to create their own Sage-grouse management plans. Those plans were subsequently rewritten on the banks of the Potomac," Risch said in a statement.

"I commend Secretary Zinke for trying to right that wrong. I support Zinke's and Gov. Otter's efforts to adopt Idaho's sage-grouse conservation plan that was created using the collaborative model."

Hoagland was part of the task force that helped craft the state's plan.

He said the Obama administration's original action was overreach and overkill, and probably wouldn't have helped sage-grouse all that much anyway.

"Most of the mineral restrictions could have been addressed when permitting those actions," Hoagland said. "There has been interaction between the bird and human for many years. They are exposed to biologists constantly studying them."

"I don't see the SBFAs changing the interaction component (but) only stopping all other uses that have been going on for decades."

The BLM's proposal corrects a symptom of a larger problem, Hoagland said. Chiefly, he said, the federal government has ignored coordination with local governments as mandated by the Federal Land Policy and Management Act (FLPMA).

"Our biggest frustration was the federal government in any planning action must work with local government if we have a Land Use Planning process, which we do," Hoagland said.

"They did nothing to reach out to Owyhee County for involvement in the Sage Brush Focal Areas, which comprised more than 50 percent of the county, without trying to get us to violate state law."

The commissioner said Owyhee County would have run afoul of the open meeting law had it followed BLM's requested protocol.

Hoagland is optimistic that the focal area withdrawal is just the beginning for the Trump administration, including modifying "faulty Resource Plan Amendments" to better resemble Idaho's state plan for resource management.

"All the money spent on this nonsense should have been applied to control of annual grasses that are the biggest threat to sage-grouse and the fire fuel they create that destroys habitat for all species, even man," Hoagland said.

"Most of the area identified as Sage Brush Focal Areas was already in prime condition with those annual grasses pushing in from the sides. Where a fire has burned, annual grasses move in first."

✓ Chase: Teenagers had cash, narcotics marketing equipment in vehicle the vehicle was transported to Malheur County Jail and booked on a felony eluding charge.

The pursuit began before 3:30 p.m. when a deputy approached the Mercedes parked in the Gem Stop parking lot to check out the report of a reckless driver.

Grant said the 17-year-old boy slammed the car in drive and sped out of the parking lot when deputies discovered he had no license and also detected the smell of marijuana in the vehicle. A deputy was standing in front of the vehicle when the boy sped off, but Grant said the driver maneuvered to avoid striking him.

The suspects led deputies south on U.S. Highway 95 toward the Oregon border.

The pursuit ended when the Mercedes wrecked near the Succor Creek Road turn-off.

Corro fled up a hill with Deputy Jaime Wood on foot behind him. Grant said when Corro wouldn't comply with Wood's commands, a Taser was deployed and he was arrested.

Chief Deputy Lynn Bowman arrested the driver without incident soon after he had exited the vehicle and tried to get away.

Corro has been released from jail in Murphy after posting a $7,500 bond.

He is due in court at 1:30 p.m. Monday to face several charges, including felonies for methamphetamine possession and possession of more than three ounces of marijuana, and misdemeanor counts for drug paraphernalia possession and resisting arrest.

Grant said deputies found more than $1,200 cash on the suspects as well as equipment used to sell illegal narcotics such as baggies and a scale.

New probation secretary hired

Owyhee County chief probation administrator Ivy Cardenas is getting some new help in her office.

During a Sept. 25 meeting, the Board of County Commissioners approved the hiring of Aiesha Zenor.

Commissioners made Zenor’s hire date effective Oct. 2, and set her pay rate at $12.50 per hour.

The position is full-time, and Zenor will work 30 hours a week as secretary.

“The secretary position has always been a full-time position, 30 hours per week, as long as I have been the department administrator,” Cardenas said. “I just completed my second year as the department head.”

Cardenas said Zenor was one of 16 local applicants who applied for the job.

“She came highly recommended for the position by her past employer and/or supervisors,” Cardenas wrote in an email.

“Aiesha previously worked for Lowe’s (Home Improvement) in their customer service department.”

Cardenas added that Zenor has a background in business computer applications and receptionist work.

Zenor replaces Lyndsey Redburn, who is no longer with the department. Cardenas said Redburn worked in the Homedale office for approximately three years.

Cardenas said she is pleased to have Zenor on board.

“Aiesha’s main duties will be those of a secretary,” she said.

“She will also greet and assist clients with their questions, data entry for the various probation tracking programs we currently utilize, as well as helping probation officers with reports and/or preparation of court documents.”

lethargic, and Kingston took him in to get checked out.

Kingston heard back from the veterinarian, who confirmed the illness as a blood cancer called hemangiosarcoma. The disease is usually found either in the spleen or the liver.

The town’s fourth-graders had begun a fundraising drive to help pay for Goose’s medical bills after word of his illness had been received.

Kingston said dogs of Goose’s breed were used as patrol dogs along the Communist borders in Europe and as a genetically healthier alternative to German Shepherds.

With Milk Jug win, Trojans can build bridge into playoffs

The bridge that connects the communities may be out, but the importance of the 18th annual Milk Jug Game thrives.

There will be more than pride on the line when Homedale and Parma meet in the latest installment of the high school football rivalry.

Kickoff is 7 p.m. at Deward Bell Stadium, and the Trojans hope history repeats itself.

Homedale has rolled past Parma in each of the past five games, and the past four victories have been the Trojans' springboard into the 3A state playoffs.

Nothing changes Friday, except for the route the Panthers must take to get to Homedale with the U.S. Highway 95 bridge outside Parma still under construction.

Mountain Home's move to 3A reversed

SRV leaders finally get their say

Mountain Home High School will not join the Class 3A athletic ranks next year after all.

After hearing concerns from 3A Snake River Valley conference administrators, the Idaho High School Activities Association board has decided to keep the Tigers in Class 4A.

The IHSAA voted last Wednesday, a day after hearing concerns during a meeting in Parma.

Homedale School District superintendent Rob Sauer and high school principal Matt Holtry and athletic director Casey Grove attended the meeting.

"We voiced our concerns, and they put it back on the table for a revote," Grove said.

Low times put Melba runners on top rung

Melba High School's Owyhee County runners had milestone outings Thursday as the team swept its home cross country meet.

Marissa Cole, who used to attend school in Homedale, notched a personal record of 20 minutes, 35.88 seconds to finish second behind girls' teammate Kylahn Heritage.

Cheylah Volkens, a senior with Owyhee ties, was third in a season-best 20:41.5.

On the boys' side, Owyheean Tristen Stimpson, also a senior, was sixth with a season-low 17:38.3.

Sophomore Abe Riley was 24th with a PR of 19:11.22.

Huskies challenge CVC with district tourney looming

Sixth-seeded Marsing plays at Melba on Saturday

Marsing High School's volleyball team showed streaks of scrappiness last week.

For the second consecutive week, the Huskies snagged a game from a 2A Western Idaho Conference front-runner, but Marsing's losing streak continued.

The Huskies (2-10 overall, 0-9 in conference) competed in the Capital High School Tournament in Boise on Friday and Saturday. No results were provided.

First-year coach Kelsey Kramer's club wrapped up the regular season Tuesday after deadline with a home match against unbeaten conference leader Nampa Christian.

Sixth-seeded Marsing opens the 2A District III Tournament at 6 p.m. on Saturday at No. 3 Melba.

A win puts the Huskies into Tuesday's semifinals against No. 2 Cole Valley Christian at Nampa High School. Marsing will play an elimination game at Nampa High on Tuesday if it falls to Melba in the opener.

Thursday: Melba def. Marsing, 3-0 — The Mustangs' strong service game was too much for the Huskies in a 25-11, 25-15, 25-13 conference loss in Melba.

Emma Clark fired eight aces, and Kori Pentzer added six aces and 10 kills for the Mustangs.

Marsing's defensive highlight came from Katelyn Fewkes, a junior transfer from Columbia in Nampa. She had 11 digs.

Another junior, Gabby Rodriguez, chimed in with two kills.

Oct. 3: Cole Valley Christian def. Marsing, 3-1 — Fewkes served five aces, and the Huskies played the second-place Chargers tough in the second set.

Cole Valley held on to its chance at the second district seed with a 25-12, 23-25, 25-14, 25-4 home-floor victory.

Fewkes added 12 digs, while Rodriguez had four kills, four digs, two aces and three blocks.

On Sept. 21, the Huskies took one set from conference-leading Nampa Christian on the road, too.

Antelopes score 40 points in first quarter, cruise

Adrian/Jordan Valley wasted little time scoring in its final road game of the high school football regular season.

Andy Walker tackled Huntington's Zhoomart Bakirov in the end zone for a safety 39 seconds into the 1A High Desert League game.

Eight seconds later, Wade Bond was in the end zone after returning the Locomotives' ensuing free kick 74 yards for a touchdown.

The Antelopes poured it on from there, scoring 40 first-quarter points en route to an easy 64-0 triumph.

Adrian/Jordan Valley (4-1 overall, 1-1 in 1A HDL) closes its first season as a co-op at Ward Field in Adrian with 4 p.m. games against Harper Charter on Friday and the Prairie City/Burnt River co-op on Oct. 20.

Adrian/Jordan Valley's defense scored later in the first quarter when Zeke Quintero picked off Kyle Kondo's pass and raced to pay dirt.

Bond and Dakota Martin also had interceptions.

Huntington couldn't attain positive yardage against the stingy Antelopes, who held the Locomotives to minus-21 yards total offense. Walker had four tackles for loss and Martin logged three TFL.

Noah Price had a TFL among his six solo tackles.

Adrian/Jordan Valley racked up 361 yards total offense on just 32 plays, while Huntington attempted 37 plays from scrimmage.

All three of Chase Fillmore's pass completions (he only attempted four throws) went for touchdowns, and he piled up 146 yards through the air.

Quintero caught a 43-yard scoring pass with 9 minutes, 55 seconds left in the first quarter then caught a 63-yard pass for Fillmore's third scoring strike in the second quarter. With his only receptions going for scores, Quintero led the Antelopes with 106 yards receiving.

Walker hauled in a 40-yard TD pass in the first quarter.

Bond (35 yards in the first quarter) and Kaden Rhead (13 yards in the second) also had rushing touchdowns.

Michael Babcock, a running back who transferred from Homedale, scored on runs of nine and 28 yards to close out the Adrian/Jordan Valley scoring in the third quarter. The sophomore was Adrian/Jordan Valley's leading rusher with 59 yards on five carries.

HHS volleyball falls to Fruitland, into 3rd

Homedale High School began Thursday night playing for a share of the conference lead.

By the time Fruitland left town with a 3A Snake River Valley conference volleyball victory, the Trojans found themselves needing a Senior Night victory to secure a chance at the No. 2 seed in the district tournament.

Trying to shake the end of their four-match winning streak, Homedale opened against Fruitland with a first-set victory.

But the Grizzlies rallied for a 18-25, 25-18, 25-13, 25-22 win to grab sole possession of the No. 1 seed for the 3A District III Tournament, which starts next Wednesday.

With Parma (7-4, 5-1 before Tuesday) beating hapless Payette in straight sets on Thursday, Homedale (8-5 overall, 4-2 in conference at week's end) dropped to third place. Homedale and Parma met Tuesday after deadline.

The Trojans won their first meeting with the Panthers and a win Tuesday would have been a huge step toward the No. 2 seed in the district tournament.

Homedale still has to get past Weiser in Thursday's conference finale. Coach Jessica Willson's squad beat the Wolverines in four sets at home on Sept. 26.

Parma's remaining game is Thursday against Fruitland (10-2, 6-1). The Panthers are the only 3A SRV team to beat the Grizzlies this season.

As has become her custom, Amaya Carter posted a double-double for the Trojans against Fruitland.

The junior notched 11 kills and 15 digs.

Senior Ashley Burks led the team at the net with 13 kills. She also had a block and assisted on three of the team's seven total stuff shots.

Sophie Nash had one of her best statistical matches of the year, leading the Trojans with 39 assists, 19 digs and three aces.

Paige Carter had 10 kills, and she, Jayci Swallow and Josey Hall served two aces each.

Serve receive defensive highlights included 12 digs from Allison Shenk and five from Lauryn Fisher. Paige Carter chipped in three.

Note: Homedale's subvarsity teams will play host to the 3A Snake River Valley tournaments Monday.

Trojans Randall, Johnson crack top 10

Her coach says she's been on the cusp of something great for the past few weeks.

On Thursday, Lainey Johnson fulfilled Homedale High School cross country coach Heidi Ankeny's hunch.

The senior posted a personal-best time of 22 minutes, 0.15 seconds to finish ninth in the Melba Invitational.

Sophomore Matthew Randall collected the Trojans' best finish in the boys' race, running a 17:53.5 for ninth.

Fellow seniors Ember Christensen and Senna Benschop backed up Johnson with PRs as the Homedale girls finished fourth in the team standings.

Christensen ran a 24:36.58, and Benschop — a Dutch exchange student — was right behind her with a 22nd-place time of 24:37.68.

Another senior, Hannah Egusquiza, ran her fastest five kilometers of the season (26:39.18) to finish 32nd.

Sophomore Ashlyn Miller grabbed a PR at 30:29.05, and another runner from The Netherlands — senior Tess van Zonneveld — was clocked at 33:07.

Homedale junior Ricky Soto collected another PR in the boys' race, finishing 27th in 19:22.61. Sophomores Caleb Smith (21:30.18), Jake Beebe (21:39.05) and JD Waltman (26:57.22) also had career-fast times.

Sophomore Gage Purdom set his season-low time at 20:37.18, and freshman Joey Egusquiza ran a 21:15.58.

ON THE 25TH OF OCTOBER, 1858—the late William H. Seward delivered a speech at Rochester, New York, from which the following historical extract is taken: “Shall I tell you what this collision means? They who think that it is accidental, unnecessary, the work of interested or fanatical agitators, and, therefore ephemeral, mistake the case altogether. It is an irrepressible conflict of opposing and enduring forces, and it means that the United States must and will, sooner or later, become either entirely a slaveholding nation or entirely a free labor nation.”

MINING NOTES—The proposed project of tunnelling Florida Mountain is one of vast importance to this section of the country, and the sooner the enterprise is commenced the more certain will be the approach of prosperous times in this vicinity. Our best and most experienced mining men entertain the belief that the interior of this mountain is one vast network of true future veins, of which the Knoll ledge, as developed thus far, is but an ordinary sample. At a greater depth, the ledges will undoubtedly prove to be better defined, greater in extent, and showing up more prolifically in gold. The diggings that have been encountered on the streams directly below this mountain during the past few years, furnish the best of evidence of the great wealth that exists there, and the certainty that the fountain head has a liberal share of the precious metals that generations yet to come must reap the advantage of. The gold taken out of these streams for several weeks is directly traceable to this mountain, whose formation is such as to furnish the very best evidence of the existence of ore bodies there on a large scale and in great profusion. The running of a tunnel as proposed by a new Company, which we are pleased to learn is now in a fair way to be organized, will tap the ledges at a depth of several hundred feet, and aid in bringing to light the hidden wealth embodied in the heart of a mountain hitherto revealing such splendid indications. We believe that no more profitable mining enterprise could be engaged anywhere at the present time, and its inauguration, now so anxiously looked for, will be one of the events that can be safely set down as the dawn of better times for Owyhee. At the Potosi, sloping is being protected on an extensive scale. Both north and south the ledge is growing larger and richer as the work progresses and there is every prospect that a profitable winter’s work will be done at this mine. At the Belle Peck, the main tunnel is being run into the mountain and good progress is being made with the work. Notwithstanding all the drawbacks that have been encountered in working this mine for the past few months the owners are not disheartened. That part of the ledge which the present work aims to reach soon will, it is believed, turn out to be an immense bonanza.

HORSE THEFT—Fred Bussy, well known throughout the Mississippi Valley, and hailing from Chicago, arrived here from Trout Creek on Wednesday, where he has been trading stock for the Stage Company for some time. Early on Thursday morning he went to the Idaho Stables and took a horse belonging to John Catalow, and mounting him, started in the direction of the Boise country. The Sheriff got wind of the affair and dispatched A. Shaw after the offender, who was captured and brought back to town. Bussy will be tried at the present term of Court, it having been decided, we believe, to summon a new Grand Jury.

Cole Valley's second half spoils MHS defensive effort

Chargers take control with four TDs

The second half haunted Marsing High School again Friday night.

Cole Valley Christian used four unanswered touchdowns after halftime to pull away, 35-6, in a 2A Western Idaho Conference game played at Meridian High School.

The Huskies (1-4 overall, 0-3 in conference) never led against the Chargers, but trailed by just a point at halftime.

Cole Valley's second-half explosion marked the third time this season that the Huskies played a tough first half only to have a rough ending.

Similar scenarios played out against Melba and Orofino, first-year coach Kenny Mace said.

"I believe that our guys are still in the process of learning how to compete. They aren't accustomed to being in games going into the fourth quarter," Mace said.

Marsing was within two scores at halftime in all three games.

Orofino led, 16-8, Melba owned a 10-0 lead, and Cole Valley Christian was clinging to a 7-6 advantage.

"I don't want to take anything away from those team, and I don't want to say that we should have won, because we didn't. However, we have had opportunities in each of those games that we, for some reason or another, couldn't quite take advantage of," Mace said. "This is a game of inches and timing. We seem to be an inch or two off and too early or too late at times. We are improving. You can see it on film and in the way we practice.

"I believe that our guys are coming into the second half and letting the situation become bigger than their training. We begin to play

'not to lose football' instead of 'fail forward fast football,' and we hesitate, or over-think something, which causes us to forget about the read and assignment."

Mace remains optimistic, though, because of those first halves and those practices.

"We have been able to break many glass ceilings this season," he said. "This is another one we are up against and must break through.

"We are capable. Everyone in the program has been working very hard. It's not a lack of effort by any means, but merely a lack of execution. That's on me, and we will get that cleaned up."

The door was open early against Cole Valley. The Chargers (4-2, 2-1 and in a four-way tie at the top of the 2A WIC) couldn't get anything started in the first quarter, gaining just 30 yards in its first three possessions.

Joseph Ineck's tackle for loss on a fourth-down play ended Cole Valley's first drive.

Clancy King picked off a pass to halt the next possession.

The Huskies couldn't capitalize, going three-and-out, but the defense stopped Cole Valley again after just three snaps.

"We have to stay with what our kids know and can play fast in; with that, we have to have a variety of looks in order to confuse offenses and coordinators," Mace said. "We have to find that balance of being simply complicated on defense to add variety and different looks."

The Chargers broke through in the second quarter after Marsing quarterback KC Haney fumbled a snap at his own 20-yard line.

One week after running hard against New Plymouth (shown), Marsing's Dwight Sevy broke the 100-yard mark — and into the end zone — against Cole Valley Christian. Photo by Dan Pease

Even in this instance, though, Marsing's defense seemed up to the task until Cole Valley converted a 4th-and-13 chance with a 23-yard touchdown pass.

Mace said the play came down to great placement by the Cole Valley quarterback against the Huskies' correct coverage.

"We had the right coverage to defend those routes. They had a very talented quarterback. He threw a great ball, and his receiver high-pointed it," Mace said.

"Enrique (Quebrado) was in decent position and right with the receiver, but couldn't locate the ball to try and knock it away."

Marsing shook off a near-disaster on the first play of the ensuing drive and scored its only touchdown of the game on Dwight Sevy's 3-yard run.

"We encountered some adversities on that drive. We fumbled and fell behind the chains a couple of times," Mace said.

The drive was prolonged when Haney rolled out and hit Z-back Dawson Walker on the sidelines to convert on third down.

"You could see our confidence after that conversion rise," Mace said. "We began resetting the line of scrimmage and we began getting three, four and five yards a carry until Dwight busted a toss play to get us inside the 10 and then he finished the drive with a TD."

Cole Valley prevented Adonis Stelzried from reaching the end zone on the two-point conversion try to preserve a 7-6 lead.

After dodging a bullet on a fumble on the drive's opening play, the Huskies grinded down the field on the scoring drive, but it was Sevy's carries for 15 and 23 yards that did the bulk of the damage.

The 23-yard run immediately preceded the touchdown run.

Sevy wound up with 104 yards rushing on 15 carries, and his longest run of the game was that 23-yarder to set up the score.

Cole Valley scored on its first two drives of the second half to take control of the game.

Marsing's offense managed just 24 plays and 81 yards on seven possessions after the intermission.

The Chargers capitalized on an interception by Stelzried in the fourth quarter and then returned Haney's fumble 38 yards for the game's final score with 1 minute, 47 seconds left in the game.

Huskies dot top 20 in Mtn. Home cross country meet Marsing High School's boys finished second among small schools in the Mountain Home Invitational at Legacy Park.

Senior Matthew Lee and sophomore Reynaldo Aguirre broke the 20-minute barrier to finish sixth and seventh among small-school competitors in the boys' cross country race.

Lee ran a 19-minute, 39.1-second five kilometers to finish 32nd overall.

Aguirre's 19:48.4 was seventh-best among small-school runners.

Junior Sefora Arriaga, Marsing's only female competitor, was seventh in the small-school rankings at 27:38.6.

Dalton Withers finished 11th in the boys' small-school race in 20:22.9, and fellow senior Landry Villa was 12th in 20:24.9.

The Huskies' top-20 showings continued with freshman Troy Miller grabbing 14th in his division with a time of 21:12.5, followed by senior teammate Elijah Brown, who was 15th in 21:12.8.

Another freshman, Isai Arriaga, captured 18th in 21:59.6, and sophomore David Aguilar was 21st in 23:34.8.

A pair of first-year runners also turned up in the top 25 for coach Robin Simpson as sophomore Cade Brackett took 23rd in 24:23.8, and freshman Isaac Prado was right behind him in 24:41.

Isaiah Burgos, a sophomore, was 25th in 24:53.5, senior Brody Archer was 26th in 25:05.5, and sophomore Manuel Ramos crossed the line in 29:07.7 for 29th.

Victory Charter, a 1A

Western Idaho Conference school, won the small-school boys' championship.

On the edge of common sense José and the hoodoo cow

We run this ol’ cow in the squeeze chute, she rattled and fought all the way
Then rammed a hind foot through the side bars and managed to cow-kick José.
He dropped the syringe he was holdin’. It stuck in the toe of his boot, ‘Least, now he’s protected from Lepto. He gave her the gringo salute!

She thrashed and created a shambles of everything not battened down.
She moved the whole chute off its footing and knocked poor José to the ground.

We finally, somehow, got her captured and squeezed with her head stickin’ out.
My job was to check on her dentures. I carefully reached for the snout.
She buried her nose to the hubcaps and watched with her little pig eye ‘Til my body leaned into the strike zone then she swung her head like a scythe!

The vet plunged himself to the armpit, in search of a pregnancy there.
I prayed every year she’d be open, if God would just answer my prayer “Big calf!” Came the cry from the backside. Like always I drew the short straw.

It looked like another long winter with Darth Vader’s mother-in-law.
José and I watched her departing. We’d spent quite a while with this bunch
And knew that ol’ cow for a hoodoo that dang sure would eat a man’s lunch.

She’d climb up yer rope like a viper and make a man hunt a new job
And any poor fool that dismounted could wind up on her shish-kabob.
I reminded José how we’d saved her that time she got stuck in the bog.
I lost a good rope in the process, she wallered José like a hog!
“You nearly got drowned, Amigo.” “Verdad. Muy mala, that cow.
If we’d have leaved her for the lobos, my foot, she would not be hurting now.”

The boss was surveyin’ the wreckage, “I think this here tailgate is broke.
“Say, José, did she git all her shots?” José eyed the boss then he spoke,

“She’s missing the one she’s most needing. La puerca’s too much with her tricks.”
“You mean,” asked the boss, “Vitamin A?”
“Oh, no, Señor, thirty-ought-six!”

Eyes on Owyhee Forum highlights election choices

In a tense political time in which many people do not believe their vote means anything, one need only look to the closest form of government to see why representative democracy works.
And, in seven days, the best way to vet a candidate will be offered by The Owyhee Avalanche and the Homedale Senior Center.
From 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. next Wednesday, the senior center will play host to a Homedale city council candidates forum moderated by yours truly.
The two appointed sitting council members — Jerry Anderson and Shane Muir — will share the dais with challengers Michael Aebischer and Tim Downing.
There are four-year terms at stake, and the top two vote-getters will earn spots on the council.
The four candidates will receive questionnaires this week that will be used to build The Owyhee Avalanche’s pre-election coverage. Responses to the questions will be published in the Nov. 1 edition, six days before the Nov. 7 election.
But the questions candidates will see in those mailings hopefully won’t be the only ones they will face as the calendar winds down to the important day.

Next week’s forum probably will feature some of the same questions that will be answered in the Nov. 1 Avalanche, but residents are encouraged to submit their own questions in time for next week’s forum.
If you’re curious about where a candidate stands on a municipal matter, or if you just want to get a better idea of their government philosophy in general, take a moment and write down your question or questions.
The questions will be asked at the forum with an identifier of a first name. No last names will be used.
Send your questions and your first name to managing editor Jon P. Brown at The Owyhee Avalanche. P.O. Box 97, Homedale, ID 83628. You can also drop them off at the Avalanche office, 19 E. Idaho Ave., fax them to (208) 337-4867 or email them to jon@owyheeavalanche.com.
Get the questions to the Avalanche by noon next Wednesday.

State Legislature As seasons change, focus shifts to January at the Statehouse

It is amazing how summer and 100-plus-degree days turned to frosty mornings in just a matter of hours. As summer ends and fall begins, this is a good time to reflect. Looking back on the year, I am amazed at the experiences that have been.
As I reflect on the legislative session, I believe one of the best aspects of the experience was working with other legislators. Though we were not able to get a hearing for the Castle Doctrine bill, I was able to work with other legislators and get 20 co-sponsors for the bill. That is almost a third of the House of Representatives. I was able to speak with and work with most everyone in the House to accomplish this.
It was also gratifying, though we were not successful, to have a small part in the cosmetology licensure change. To be able to work with other legislators and know that we could do something to make life better for our citizens is indescribable. To be able to carry the trailer bill, to have it go through the House Business Committee and pass on the floor of the House, was awesome. To know that, if it had been successful, so many Idaho residents would have been able to earn more. It is imperative to have restrictions that make no sense removed from these bills. I called the Senate side of the Business Committee many times and walked to those offices, working to get a hearing on the Senate side. It just didn’t happen. Next year.
I loved going to my little office so early in the morning before the hustle and bustle of the day began. There was something almost reverent about walking the silent halls of our great Capitol building. Driving in before daylight, the meaning of “government of the people, by the people” came to mind many times. As the mornings would progress, and more and more the halls were filled with voices and action, I was reminded again of the greatness of a process where citizens have the opportunity to fully participate in their governance.

Though I was asked many times if, as a freshman legislator, I was overwhelmed, the joy of service overshadowed any challenge in that area that I may have known. I was so thrilled to be there, to be a voice for the conservative values of the people who chose me to represent them. What a great honor.
I look forward to the next session. I am already working with those on both sides of the aisle to bring good legislation that, perhaps, will lessen the burden of government and represent the values that as Idahoans we hold dear, values learned, in part, working hard on that little ranch of my great grandmother’s in Stone, Idaho. Thank you again for the opportunity to serve. Please contact me anytime. I am your voice.

Financial management

Give college-bound son financial freedom, but keep an eye on him

Dear Dave,
My son is about to go off to college, and I'm concerned about how he'll handle his money when he gets there. We've taught all our children how to use your envelope system, and to save and give, but I'd like some advice on how he can safeguard his finances a little better.

— Ashley

Dear Ashley,
If you haven't already covered it, he needs to learn to utilize a debit card and reconcile a checking account. Set the account up in your name and his, so you can follow what's going on in the account. If there's an issue, this gives you easy access so that a minor incident doesn't become a huge problem.

Right now, the best way for him to learn is to make educated, informed decisions on his own and to stand on his own two feet. You're there for guidance at this point — not control.

I'd let him use a debit card, cash, and have a few simple envelopes for expenses. Also, he needs to report back to you monthly what's going on with the budget.

What I'm talking about here isn't control; it's a simple, regular review and coaching session on finances.

DAVE Says
by Dave Ramsey • www.davesays.org

This is an exciting time in your lives. You've laid a foundation, and it's time for this little one to spread his wings a bit. Together, you can make sure he's learning and living the way a young man should!

— Dave

Dear Dave,
What is your opinion on leasing cell phones?

— Monica

Dear Monica,
In most cases, leasing something is just another way of financing. I wouldn't lease anything, apart from a building or office space for a business in the short term.
There are almost always hidden conditions and a few "gotchas" hidden in the fine print of leases. Besides, leasing a cell phone? Really? Come on! If you can't pay cash for something like a cell phone, it means you can't afford the phone.

It's as simple as that!

✓ Forum: Candidates' answers to peoples' queries best barometer

I'm looking forward to hearing from the candidates on several issues, including the proposed expansion of the public library, their ideas to keep the city budget manageable, how to go about improving pedestrian safety for the town's schoolchildren, steps that can be taken to finally turn the Peterson property into a park, how best to maintain the town's infrastructure, and how to keep the crime rate low in town in the wake of difficult times trying to attract police officers.
There probably are many other concerns — both big and small — that Homedale residents have about the town in which they've chosen to live.
Let's hear them and make next week's dialogue as productive and informative as possible.
See you there.

✓ Milk Jug: Trojans have won 7 straight victory all but secures a post-season berth.

Both teams are 1-1 in the 3A Snake River Valley conference, and Friday's game probably will decide the second seed into the state playoffs.

Homedale (4-2 overall) is coming off a bye. Parma (3-4) outslugged winless Payette, 61-42, in 3A SRV play Thursday.
Homedale owns a 13-4 lead in the series and holds a seven-game winning streak.
The Trojans have outscored

Parma, 274-55, during the win streak, including pitching three shutouts.
Homedale crushed Parma, 35-6, in Canyon County a year ago.
Parma's last victory was a 30-13 road triumph in 2009.

✓ Move: Reversal follows special meeting

"This time, the IHSAA board members had our comments and concerns to look at before they voted."
In a remote voting process, the IHSAA board of governors reversed its original decision to drop Mountain Home from the 4A Southern Idaho Conference into the 3A SRV for a two-year cycle that would have started with the 2018-19 school year.

The board voted, 13-2, to keep Mountain Home in the 4A ranks.
According to Sauer's report at the trustees' meeting Monday, Mountain Home administrators also attended the Oct. 3 meeting.
Sauer said Mountain Home's two-year average enrollment is 952, which is more than 300 over the maximum to be eligible to drop to 3A. The enrollment is also 600 students larger than Homedale.

"That is like us petitioning down to play 1A," Sauer wrote in his school board meeting report.
By attending last week's meeting, the Homedale administrators upheld their stated mission, Sauer wrote in his report.
"While it might be good for Mountain Home, it is not good for the student-athletes in Homedale, and it's our job to protect our student athletes," he wrote. — JPB

Jordan Valley holds No. 3 seed for district
Jordan Valley High School junior Nicole Terry (left) jumps to block a Crane spike as sophomore Becky Mackenzie tries to help out Saturday in Jordan Valley. Crane prevailed in four sets to maintain a half-game lead in the 1A High Desert League over Adrian. Jordan Valley (9-7 overall, 3-2 1A HDL) has the inside track on the No. 3 seed for the 1A District 8 Tournament thanks to Friday's four-set victory over Prairie City. The season ends this weekend with a home match against Monument/Dayville on Friday and a road encounter with Huntington on Saturday.
