County speaks up on BLM's Great Basin fuel loads proposal

The Board of Owyhee County Commissioners has weighed in on the Bureau of Land Management's Great Basin fuel breaks plan.

Commissioners sent a letter to the BLM Idaho state office during their July 29 meeting in Murphy, commenting on the programmatic environmental impact statement for the fuel breaks.

The commissioners noted that the EIS is similar to the assessment environmental from the Soda Fire fuel breaks proposed in 2016.

While acknowledging the importance of fuel breaks, the commissioners noted a large problem may exist.

"We recognize, however, that the greater problem underlying the increasing size, frequency, and intensity of fires lies in fuel loading across the landscape," the letter reads.

A fuel load is the amount of flammable material available to feed a wild fire.

The commissioners assert that simply creating fuel breaks without reducing loads will not get the job done.

At the same time, the commissioners threw their support behind the federal agency's proposal to use targeted grazing as a tool to reduce fuels.

But the BOCC remained consistent with local ranchers' views that more flexibility in grazing permits would also help keep fuel loads down.

"The BLM needs to reverse its current direction with regard to suspended use (animal unit month)," the letter reads. "Currently the BLM is attempting to take position that AUMs that have been placed into suspended use are no longer maintained was effective July 15. as available for future decisions."

The county believes that the BLM's position on AUMs is unsupported by law or regulation.

The letter notes that there are significant risks to the use of the region-wide system of fuel breaks proposed in the Great Basin project:

- The BLM's long-term ability to maintain the established fuel breaks given the uncertain nature of federal funding.
- The "fragmentation of habitat and increased ill effects on populations such as the Greater sage-grouse."
- The spread of invasive
- Increased public access to primitive roads, potentially leading to more opportunities for fire starts and introduction of unwanted plants.
- The county is unsure if the BLM intends to construct fuel breaks on its land adjacent to roads claimed by the county (per RS 2477, which established "the rightof-way for construction of highways over public lands, not reserved for public use"). The county asserts that there is potential impact of using public funds on private land relative to establishment of a public right-of-way.

The commissioners are willing to support the Great Basin EIS if the BLM can provide a degree of certainty that fuel break management can mitigate the county's concerns.

Marsing mayor, city council pay raises proposed in FY 20 budget

Budget hearing planned next Wednesday

Salary increases for elected officials are among the proposals in the Fiscal Year 2020 budget for which the Marsing City Council will hold a public hearing next Wednesday.

Citizens can have their say on a $4,104,913 budget during the council's 7 p.m. meeting at City Hall, 425 Main St.

As part of the appropriation process, council members will consider an ordinance to establish ness salaries for the mayor and city council.

A 16.7 percent pay raise is proposed for city council members, while a 4.2 percent increase has been put into the budget for Mayor James Ferdinand.

Ferdinand, who is in the final year of his first term, currently makes $7,200 per year, payable as $600 per month. A $25 monthly raise is proposed, which would increase his salary to $7,500.

The town's elected officials also propose a $25-per-month salary increase for council members.

Chris Even, Tony Malmberg, Marie Herman, and Rachael Percifield currently earn a salary of $1,800 per year ($150 monthly). The new annual salary for each council member would be $2,100.

Even and Herman, both two-term councilpersons, are up for re-election to four-year terms in November.

If included in the finalized budget, the new pay rates would go into effect on Jan. 1.

Other highlights of the more than $4.1 million FY 2020 budget include $1,511,182 for general funds:

- Administrative $830,718
- Streets & Highways $344,593
- Parks & Recreation $277.871
- Planning & Zoning $58,000

Special funds will amount

• Water — $1,391,501

to $2,593,731:

- Sewer $1,041,252
- Irrigation $68.108
- Sanitation $92,870

Jolyn Green will be sworn in as new city clerk and treasurer. Green stepped down from the city council at the May 8 meeting, and consequently assumed the position of deputy city clerk.

Longtime Marsing City Clerk/Treasurer Janice Bicandi retired in July.

Council members will also consider the business license application of Henry Castellon and Rebecca Jones for Skyline Remodeling, LLC, located at 15 Butte Lane.

City attorney Stephanie J. Bonney, code enforcement officer Harvey Gist, sheriff's Cpl. Atanacio Montes, maintenance supervisor Philip Gibson, Ferdinand, and a representative from Civil Dynamics will present their monthly reports.

Included in the mayor's report will be a request for computers for Gist, Gibson, and himself. According to Green, the computers for each are obsolete and need to be replaced. She said that new computers have not been priced.

The council will consider changing the date for next month's meeting from Oct. 9 to the first Wednesday (Oct. 2) because of a scheduling conflict. Green and deputy clerk Kim Even will be attending a Caselle accounting conference in Las Vegas, as will councilpersons Chris Even and Rachael Percifield, who will represent the City of Homedale, where she is a deputy clerk. Homedale chief clerk Alice Pegram also will attend.

The City of Marsing is paying for the clerks' trip to the conference, but Councilman Chris Even is paying for his trip out of his own pocket.

The City of Homedale is paying for Percifield and Pegram.

Obituary

Margaret Ann Ethington

Margaret Ann Ethington, 71, passed away peacefully in her home on Sunday, July 28, 2019, surrounded by her family in Homedale, Idaho.

Margaret was born to Ralph and Thelma Miller on September 12, 1947 in Nampa, Idaho. She grew up in Nampa and was the oldest of four children. She went to Vallivue High School and was a part of the first graduating class of the new school. She went to Ricks College and then met the love of her life, Allen Ethington, at a young adult dance. They were sealed for time and all eternity in the Oakland, California Temple of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints on May 2, 1967. Mom always said that she would never marry anyone that was from Homedale, a farmer, or a returned missionary and she fell for a man that was all three! They started their marriage in Orem, Utah where she worked for Mountain Bell as a telephone operator. They moved back to Idaho a few years later to work and to be closer to family. Allen and his brothers started a dairy farm operation, and Margaret was in charge of feeding the baby calves where she gained a love for them and for all cows in general. When they stopped dairy farming, she worked at West Valley Medical Center, the Wilder Clinic, and finally at Caldwell Urology, where she eventually retired. Margaret made lifelong friends wherever she went and was very friendly, kind, generous and caring. She liked to tease people and had a way of putting everyone at ease around her. Her life revolved around her family, and she was always very concerned about their welfare. She was very service-oriented and served in many callings in the church where she taught children, youth and adults.

Margaret loved collecting cow decorations, sewing, quilting, ceramics, doing crafts, the color red, traveling, and taking pictures of animals, landscapes and her family. She was a very accomplished pianist and organist and loved to play duets, solos and accompany for musical numbers.

Allen and Margaret were happily married for 43 years and had three girls: Gina, Dawn and Amanda (Mandy). She was always so proud of her girls, and whenever anyone would ask her if she ever wanted to have any boys she would always tell them that she wouldn't trade any one of her girls for a boy! She was especially proud of her grandchildren and had a at ZeyerFuneralChapel.com.

special love for all of them. She always tried to be there to support them in whatever they did. Allen and Margaret taught their girls how to work hard and encouraged them to develop their talents. They gave their family lots of love and support. Their legacy will be the good qualities they instilled in their kids and grandkids and having us carry on in their stead. We will miss you dearly, Mom!

Margaret was preceded in death by her husband Allen Ethington; parents Ralph and Thelma Miller; sister Patricia Henry; and brother Richard Miller. She is survived by her children: Gina (Jeff) Casper of Lincoln, California, Dawn (Kent) Murphy of Kimberly, Idaho and Amanda (Joel) of Homedale, Idaho. She is also survived by her 11 grandchildren, 1 greatgranddaughter, and sister Diane (Darwin) Brown. Funeral arrangements will be under the direction of Zeyer Funeral Chapel in Nampa, Idaho. The family would like to thank all the caregivers, doctors, and friends for all the kindness and compassion that they gave to Margaret throughout her brave battle with cancer.

Funeral services were held at 11 AM, Saturday, August 3, at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints located at 708 W. Idaho Ave. in Homedale. A viewing was held at The Church from 6 to 8 PM, Friday, August 2 and again at The Church from 10 to 10:45 AM prior to the services. Condolences may be expressed

Fair's junior livestock program imparts life lessons on county youth

The purposes of 4-H and FFA market animal projects are to help teach kids responsibility, teach the value of hard work, and to give them some life experience raising livestock. Scott Jensen Market livestock projects provide some excellent learning opportunities for kids. There is a meme that is shared frequently on Facebook this time of year: "We don't use kids to raise livestock. We use livestock to raise kids." I think that is a great summary purpose of the 4-H and FFA livestock projects.

The Owyhee County Fair market livestock shows begin noon today with the goat and sheep shows.

The beef show will be held at 8 a.m., on Thursday. There were 58 market steers entered this year!

The dairy show will begin at 3 p.m., on Thursday.

The swine show will get underway at 8 a.m., Friday.

At 10 a.m., on Saturday, the large animal round robin will be held.

The Owyhee County Junior Livestock Sale will begin about 1 p.m., on Saturday in the Livestock Barn.

A buyers' lunch precedes the auction at noon. This lunch is paid for by the kids from the proceeds of the sale of their animals.

There are three ways you can support youth at the sale.

First, you can purchase the animal outright to have it consumption. The sale committee will see that it is delivered to the custom butcher of your choice.

The second option is to purchase the animal and then "turn it back to the floor." You would then pay the difference between the bid price and the floor price. The animal is then sold/delivered to the floor buyer.

The third option is to do an "add-on." To add on to a youth, you simply complete an add-on form for one or more kids and submit the form along with payment to the sale committee.

If you would like to bid on a project animal but cannot attend the sale, please contact a sale committee member or our office and we will gladly help you.

The sale committee will disperse funds to the kids when all the money has been collected. The sale committee collects a small commission from the sale of each animal and from each add-on to cover the expenses of putting on the sale and buyers' lunch.

Market livestock projects provide an excellent learning opportunity for our youth. I encourage you to show your support during the junior livestock shows at the Owyhee County Fair and at the Owyhee County Junior Livestock Sale on Saturday at the fairgrounds!

Author, Homedale native raises funds with fun in Silver City

Local author Jacquie Rogers again used her Silver City gathering to raise awareness and funds for a cause close to her heart.

The annual event, dubbed "Much Ado About Silver City," which ran from July 19 to July 21, raised $800 for the Children's Tumor Foundation, which is a neurofibromatosis research organization. All told, in the four years Rogers has put on this event, nearly $2,000 has been raised for CTF.

also occurs from spontaneous mutation," Rogers said. "Spontaneous mutation, like my daughter's, occurs once in every 3,000 births."

Money was raised through a charity auction, with Rogers' brother, Ken Walker, acting as auctioneer.

She said that it was difficult to get an exact number of attendees to the event because no official registration was carried out, but Rogers estimated that more than 50 people trekked to the historic mining town for her weekend

"We sold out the (Idaho Hotel), several camped, and we had a lot of folks who came only on Saturday from the Homedale and Marsing area,"

She said that she knew for sure of attendees from Texas, Ohio, Washington state, Oregon, Wyoming, California, and Utah.

Rogers and friends, including authors Roberta Whittemore, J.S. Andersen, and Sean Dwyer, held the "World's Worst Melodrama," in which several unsuspecting attendees were recruited for parts.

"This year's was the worst ever, so it was well-received,"

Other activities at this year's event included music by Matt and Eli Paxton, and historic tours from Chelle Gluch, who took folks around in her pickup and regaled folks with stories about Col. William Dewey, an Owyhee County pioneer.

OWYHEE WEED WATCH

Name: Spotted knapweed (Centaurea stroebe L.)

Description: A biennial or short-lived perennial beginning as a rosette. One to three feet tall with a tough tap root. Usually two or three stems will rise from the rosette with multiple branches above. Will produce an urn-shaped seed head at branch tips with pink to purple flowers. Seed heads appear spotted as the bract tips turn dark brown or black at maturity. Usually much taller than other knapweeds present in the area and will have a more open structure. Leaves and branches have a blue-green or muted green color, particularly later in the season.

Habitat: Often called a pioneer species, it prefers sites with some kind of soil disturbance to get established. Found in permanent and ephemeral streambeds, gravel piles, roadsides campgrounds and similar environs.

Origin: Most likely arrived in North America with alfalfa seed from Eurasia. It is particularly abundant in southern France and Spain. It can be found scattered throughout the Near East as far as the Caucus region. Has been in Oregon since the 1930s and in Malheur County since the 1970s in limited amounts.

Control: Spotted knapweed can be controlled with common herbicides; 2-4,D, Glyphosate, and Dicamba, among others. Fall-applied Clopyralid (Transline, Redeem, Curtail) also works very well while preserving perennial grasses. Aminopyralid (Milestone) has also been used to effectively control spotted knapweed. Spreading only from seed, any mechanical control should be initiated before flowering. If plants are removed below the growing point (at least one inch below soil surface), they will not usually re-sprout. Biological control: Insects have worked well in areas that have large populations.

Remember, when using herbicides always read and follow label directions on any chemical. It's the law!

$\sqrt{\mathbf{Fair}}$: New contests sprinkled amongst traditional competitions this year

Grace Clay of the Owyhee Rough Riders receives her ribbon after completing the Junior Division Bareback Equitation competition in Monday's Owyhee County 4-H Horse Show.

Horse Show taking place in the rodeo arena on Monday and Tuesday.

Owyhee County Fair and Rodeo Queen contestants underwent speech and fashion evaluations Monday night.

Horsemanship judging will take place at 5:30 p.m., next Wednesday in the rodeo arena.

The horsemanship contest comes 90 minutes before the Idaho Cowboys Association slack kicks off the county rodeo.

The rodeo runs through Saturday with gates opening at 7 p.m., on the final three nights. Pre-rodeo festivities start at 7:30 p.m., and the competition gets underway at 8 p.m.

The queen coronation is scheduled during the Friday performance.

There are some new events and attractions at the fair this year:

• The corncob toss takes place at 4 p.m., today at the Tumbleweed Theatre. The contestant throwing a corncob the farthest will win the competition.

• A new children's event, the Veggie Car Derby, takes its cue from the old Veggie People contest. This activity, set for 11 a.m., on Thursday near the Tumbleweed Theatre, allows youth in three age groups to build a racecar with fresh vegetables and then race for the win.

Age groups include 8 and younger, 9-14 and 15 and older.

- An animal imitation contest will be held at 4 p.m., on Thursday at the Tumbleweed Theatre. This contest is open to all ages and requires animal imitations, primarily by sound.

$\sqrt{\text{Rodeo:}}$ Several local ropers run tonight

But there are enough professional competitors from Owyhee country to consider the ICA events local as well.

Marsing's Austin Williams returns Friday to compete in bareback. The 2017 Owyhee County Rodeo buckle winner is one of only five competitors in the bareback field this week. He's rated fourth in the 2019 standings.

This year's leader, Tyler Smith, is the only competitor scheduled to ride Thursday.

Bo Pickett, a Homedale High School graduate, is scheduled to compete in tonight's slack as a tie down roper.

Aaron Marts, another Homedale man, also will rope tonight.

Adrian's Quincy Pendergrass is set to make her breakaway roping run Wednesday as well.

Marsing city engineer Amy Woodruff will take off in breakaway roping during slack, too.

Jordan Valley teenager Tayler Eiguren will compete in today's breakaway roping, too.

Melba's Janey Reeves, the 2013 Owyhee County Rodeo ICA breakaway roping champion, will rope during today's slack as well. Reeves competed in her fifth consecutive College National Finals Rodeo in Casper, Wyo., early last month.

A University of Idaho graduate student, Reeves rode into the CNFR with the Northwest Region championships in breakaway roping and goat tying.

She'll also compete in barrel racing during the ICA slack in Homedale.

Reeves' younger sister, Julia, is also in today's breakaway roping, and she's fifth in this year's ICA standings. Julia attends Boise State University.

Homedale-area roper Katie Jo McFarlane will compete in breakaway roping on Saturday.

Another former champion, Scott Roeser of Marsing, is one of eight men scheduled to compete in steer wrestling during Wednesday's slack.

Two Jordan Valley cowboys
— Sam Mackenzie and Brandan Mackenzie — will steer wrestle Friday.

Another Mackenzie, Ryan, competes Saturday.

Local team ropers are taking on the ICA challenge, too.

Wednesday teams with Owyhee ties include Dusty Easterday and John Schutte, and Richard Eiguren and Bryan Grenke.

Adrian's Mike Pendergrass teams with Ira Walker today.

Marts and Boden Truman will compete Wednesday.

Jason Miller and Sam Riley will enter the ICA team roping today, too.

The local ICA ropers trend will continue Thursday with Marsing's Kirby Cook and Kelsey Cook scheduled to be the first out of the chute. Kirby is second in the ICA standings among headers this summer.

Daxton Jim, a southern Owyhee County resident, will team with Rob Webb on Thursday. Arock, Ore.'s Shawn Lequerica will compete with Victor Ugalde on Thursday.

Homedale's Lawsen Matteson will rope with Kade Taylor on Thursday as will Josh Mackenzie with Randy Carson.

Several locals will ride Saturday, including Adrian's Bryan Reay with Taylor Duby; Tim Mackenzie and Ben Badiola; and Jerad McFarlane and Jaylen Eldridge.

Young Sage Badiola of Homedale will compete in Thursday's barrel racing.

Adrian's Sydney Davis and Katie Davis are set to run the barrels on Friday.

The ranch bronc division has several locals as well, including Zach Tindall (Thursday), John Hackler (Friday) and Tyler Elsner (Saturday).

The wild horse race, typically set for Friday night, has been cancelled because of a lack of teams, organizers said. The wild cow milking will go on as scheduled Friday.

$60,000 lower than the current budget of more than $5 million.

The council meeting will start at 5:30 p.m., at the Riverside Park RV site as council members scope out a place for the community garden Homedale Farmers Market president Denise Dixon has proposed.

The budget hearing is the first item of business once council members return to City Hall, 31 W. Wyoming Ave.

If the budget is passed as presented, $796,548 in general fund monies will be transferred to several departments. That's a 19.4 percent increase (or $129,350 more) than was transferred for FY 19.

The breakdown of general fund assistance for the departments includes:

- $533,155 for law enforcement, up $44,438 (9.1 percent) from the current appropriation
- $97,074 for parks and recreation, up 27.7 percent or $21,085 from FY 19.
- $60,030 for the city library, up $2,140 or 3.7 percent.
- $57, 632 for streets and highways, up 29.2 percent ($13,030).
- $48,657 for irrigation, which marks the first general fund help for that perennially flagging fund since at least FY 18.

Several departmental funds are set to increase over the FY 19 totals, but most of the increases are aligned with possible grants, which may not be awarded but have to be recorded as anticipated revenue.

The city library, for example,

Proposed lot splits reflect more development

The Homedale City Council has a busy meeting scheduled next Wednesday outside of the annual appropriations public hearing.

Council members will discuss two proposed lot splits — at 120 N. 2nd St. W., and 20 W. Owyhee Ave. The elected officials could take a vote on the proposals, too.

Following up on the 5:30 p.m., field trip to the Riverside Park RV area, the council also will discuss the placement for the community garden proposed by Homedale Farmers Market president Denise Dixon. Again, council members could settle on location for the garden.

The council also could award a sewer extension project in the 300 block of East Owyhee Avenue. The extension is necessary for the development of property in that neighborhood.

During public works supervisor Bret Smith's report, the council will continue its discussion on expanding the town's RV park, which would include electrical upgrades and additions.

Two ordinances will be discussed, too:

- An ordinance that would make all city code violations misdemeanors
- An ordinance regarding the discharge of weapons in the city limits

A Homedale Assembly of God Church representative also will visit with the council about a proposed music concert at Bette Uda City Park.

The usual departmental reports will be heard during the portion of the meeting held inside the magistrate courtroom at City Hall, 31 W. Wyoming Ave.

After action is taken to pay bills, the city council is scheduled to enter into an executive session to discuss possible litigation or an issue that could become litigious. Records exempt from public disclosure may also be discussed during the executive session.

could see $300,000 in grant monies in FY 20, which in part reflects the continuation of the Idaho Community Block Grant that was awarded for the expansion project. There will still be bills to pay on the construction early in the fiscal year even though work is expected to be completed prior to Sept. 30, which is the end of FY 19. Another $25,000 could account for the U.S. Department of Agriculture Rural Development grant that online early in the next fiscal year.

The police department budget is set to increase about $38,000, but a $40,000 grant is part of the anticipated revenue.

The biggest line item increase for HPD is the software budget, which will rise from $3,400 in FY 19 to $29,000. The police department and Owyhee County Sheriff's Office have started moving toward computer-aided dispatch in their patrol vehicles.

A $35,000 grant line is recorded in the general fund proposal. The general fund is set to increase $170,000 to $1,025,711 in FY 20. But about $116,000 of that increase is tied to city support to other funds could be sought for the parks department, the budget for which is set to rise less than $8,000.

Another $25,000 in grants

In other public works line items there are:

- $25,000 for grants in the water fund
- $50,000 for grants in the sewer fund
- $20,000 for grants in streets and highways

As has become customary, the city council has opted to take the allowed three percent increase in the municipal tax levy, raising that revenue line $12,540 to $430,540.

The tax levy increase mirrors the planned three percent pay raise for most city employees. Elected officials are not getting salary hikes in FY 20.

During budget talks, the city council decided to increase the city's economic development budget 40 percent to $35,000. Additionally, a $35,000 economic development grant is anticipated.

Public works supervisor Bret Smith asked for, and received, a 25 percent increase in his equipment replacement budget within the streets and highways fund. That line is now at $25,000.

The increased popularity of the Riverside Park RV spaces is evident in the parks and recreation fund. Budget writers anticipated $8,000 in rental revenue for FY 19, and the city has received nearly $21,000 in the first 10 months of the fiscal year. Two years ago, $6,000 was anticipated, and the city brought in more than $19,200.

Meanwhile, the council approved doubling the repairs budget for the municipal swimming pool, which is approaching its 50th anniversary. The pool repairs budget proposal is $24,000.

Current expenditures in the parks and rec budget show that the city has spent more than budgeted for Riverside Park electricity ($4,200 budgeted, $4,474 spent), vehicle maintenance ($900 budgeted, $2,126 spent), and RV park maintenance ($1,000 budgeted, $4,665 spent).

The council has proposed an increase in the parks and rec capital improvement decorations budget to $2,500. The FY 19 budget line was $1,600. But city officials spent $3,373 on decorations, blowing the budget line by more than 110 percent.

$\sqrt{\text{Marsing:}}$ Recently retired clerk to help transform eatery into City Hall

12 Sandbar Ave.

The city council initially approved the transaction during its May 8 meeting.

In addition to paying the sale price, the city will be responsible for meeting the grant requirements from Idaho Department of Commerce. Marsing Senior Citizens Inc., secured a Idaho Community Block Development Block Grant to purchase the restaurant from former owner John Salove.

The city funds for the purchase will come from the sale of property to AmVac Chemical Corp., on Simpkin Lane, totaling $100,000. The remaining $60,000 will come from the city's Capital Outlay Fund.

According to Marsing Mayor James Ferdinand, those funds will be replenished when the city sells the current City Hall building.

He said that the current building will be put up for sale immediately after the transition to the new location.

Ferdinand said that recently retired Marsing City Clerk and Treasurer Janice Bicandi was involved with the process of purchasing the building and its initial planning.

"(Bicandi) will provide input as we move forward into the renovation phase," Ferdinand said.

He said that plans for the interior layout of the building

According to Marsing May- are still being worked out.

But, as part of the deal made with the Idaho Department of Commerce, Ferdinand suspects a portion of the new City Hall will remain available for the town's senior citizens. As part of the agreement with the state agency, the dining area to be available to the town's seniors during normal business hours. Setting aside for meetings and other gatherings is also part of the deal.

"The Department of Commerce has been great to deal with," Ferdinand said. "Allowing the seniors to use the dining area was part of our plan anyway.

"We want to have a place for them to come. We just had to put it in writing."

The town's elderly population lost its social hub when the Sandbar Restaurant with a Cause closed its doors. The community's Meals on Wheels services were assumed, in part, by the Homedale Senior Center.

The mayor also said if the newly acquired building is sold within three years, the city must reimburse the Department of Commerce $150,000 for the original amount of the community development block grant awarded to Marsing Senior Citizens, Inc., when it purchased the property in 2016.

The rest of the main floor will be renovated to accommodate City Hall staff.

Ferdinand said he hopes to have the renovation job up for bid within the next 30 days.

The mayor has high hopes about the prospects of the move.

"The City of Marsing is excited about this opportunity to renovate the Sandbar building and move City Hall into a facility that is large enough for offices and city council meetings without crowding into our current very small lobby.

"A future plan is to add the ability to rent the kitchen area ... to have local catered meals, as well." — TK

Brian Sheldon, an attorney from the Mountain States Legal Foundation, spoke at the July 27 summer meeting of the Owyhee Cattlemen's Association.

Sheldon visited the Silver City schoolhouse to enlist support from the OCA and the Idaho Cattle Association.

The case in question concerns Mike and Linda Hanley, who were denied a Bureau of Land Management grazing permit in 2009.

On a 2013 appeal, the Interior Board of Land Appeals upheld the decision to not renew the permit. That same year, the Hanleys transferred their property to their daughter, Martha Corrigan, and her husband John.

The Corrigans then applied to transfer the ranch's grazing preference and a grazing permit for the Trout Springs and Hanley Fenced Federal Range (FFR) allotments.

A grazing preference gives a preference to the owner of the base property (the Corrigans since 2013) to obtain a grazing permit over other applicants.

"The BLM says that whenever a grazing permit is not renewed, automatically, by operation of law, your underlying grazing preference is cancelled," Sheldon said.

According to the BLM, the Corrigans were denied the grazing preference transfer because Hanley Ranch was ineligible to receive a grazing permit.

The Corrigans appealed and were denied by the Interior Department's Office of Hearings and Appeals.

Last year, the Hanleys and Corrigans filed for judicial review in federal court.

In June, ICA and OCA enlisted Mountain States Legal Foundation for representation. The Lakewood, Colo., foundation began the process to file an amicus brief.

and who assists by offering information, expertise, or insight that has a bearing in the case.

The court still has to approve the foundation to file the brief.

According to Sheldon, the plaintiffs' complaint is that the BLM violated its grazing regulations in claiming that a grazing preference automatically terminates when a grazing permit is not renewed.

The amicus brief asserts the BLM went against Supreme Court precedent and also violated the Taylor Grazing Act to "adequately safeguard" grazing privileges.

The amicus brief would support the ranchers' quest to reverse the BLM's decision to deny the grazing permit.

Well water testing available at fair

Private well owners will have a well owners will have to: chance to get their drinking water tested during the Owyhee County Fair next week.

The Idaho Rural Water Association will have a booth at the fair Tuesday and next Wednesday.

The booth will be staffed from 3 p.m. to 8 p.m. both days.

Private well owners can bring a sample of their water in a clean glass container, and IRWA staff will screen for nitrate/nitrite levels.

Citizens also will be able to get information on the operation and maintenance of private wells and septic systems. Staffers also will have dye tabs that can be used to check for slow toilet leaks and informational brochures on other topics such as disposing of pet waste.

There will also be fun material for children.

Before bringing a sample in,

- Identify a source that is not connected to a treatment device such as a water softener, carbon filter, or other filtration system. An outside faucet or hydrant works best.
- Use a clean glass jar and lid or Ziploc baggie to collect the water sample. Label the outside with your name or address, date, and well name (garden well, house
- Allow the water to run five to 10 minutes to empty the pressure tank so water comes directly from the aquifer. Doing so will lead to more accurate results.
- Fill the container with approximately one cup of water (eight ounces).
- Keep the sample cool until screened.

The sample will be screen onsite at the fair booth, and results will be available immediately.

According to an IRWA handout, nitrate is the most widespread contaminant in ground water in Idaho. Nitrate is a chemical form of nitrogen found naturally in small amounts in soil and ground water. However, some land use practices and human activities may increase nitrate in ground water to dangerous levels. In areas having shallow depths to ground water, sandy soils, or shallow wells, nitrate contamination an easily occur.

Drinking water that contains high levels of nitrate is especially dangerous for infants under the age of 6 months, unborn children, and adults with low stomach acidity.

Homedale area pioneer chosen as grand marshal

Art Bahem bought his first tractor — a new John Deere Model B — in 1937. He paid $1,475 for the two-cylinder oil burner.

With it, the 86-year-old Homedale area pioneer plowed out an early piece of Owyhee County history. Motorized farming advanced in the following decade, and the Model B collected dust.

But thanks to uncounted hours of restoration by family members, the two old-timers will be reunited Saturday at the Owyhee County Fair and Rodeo Parade in Homedale.

Selected as the 1994 grand marshal, Bahem will be joined by three generations of his extended family. Organized are celebrating "Owyhee County Settlers" as this year's theme.

Bahem retired from farming in 1973. He has belonged to the Odd Fellows and served on the board of the Owyhee Soil Conservation District.

But it was his longtime association with the Lions Club International that got him recognized. Earlier this year he was commended for his generous giving. That, and his pioneering background, attracted the attention of Beta Sigma Phi, the organizers of the Owyhee County Fair and Rodeo Parade.

Buckaroo Breakfast is a fair tradition

Homedale seniors will be serving up their hearty Buckaroo Breakfast during fair week at the senior center parking lot.

Cowpokes, townsfolk and everybody else are invited to sit down to a meal of hot cakes, sausage, eggs and coffee, milk or fruit juice from 7-10 a.m. today through Saturday.

The cost is $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for children under 8 years old.

Ann Prickett, chairperson of the Buckaroo Breakfast committee, said nobody leaves the table hungry.

Sheep are a fair first for Homedale pair

Gene and Ginger King are not exactly sure what to expect at the Owyhee County Fair this week.

The two members of the Shoofly 4-H club are exhibiting sheep in the livestock competition for the first time.

On Thursday afternoon, a judge will scrutinize their efforts.

The two bought their woolly litter mates for $60 apiece in early June, when they weighed between 60 and 80 pounds. Each should tip the scales around 120 pounds at fair time.

The Suffolk bloodline is a proven winner. Assisted by the trained eye of Shoofly leader Susi Larrocea, the sheep were picked from a band that has produced grand champions.

City council deliberates salary question

First reading of Ordinance No. 141 to raise salaries of the mayor and city councilmen was held at the regular monthly meeting of the Homedale city council Monday night.

The ordinance will provide a salary of $50 per month for the mayor and $25 per month for councilmen beginning next January.

Prayer offered for all mankind

With the entire world watching and waiting, three American astronauts, Neil A. Armstrong, Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Michael Collins, made the historic first landing on the moon and returned. Lt. Cdr. John A. Piirto, chaplain on the USS Hornet, Apollo 11 recovery ship, told of the world's gratefulness in prayer:

"Let us pray, Lord God, our Heavenly Father. Our minds are staggered and our spirit exalted with the magnitude and precision of this entire Apollo 11 mission. We have spent the past week in communal anxiety and hope as our astronauts sped through the glories and dangers of the heavens. As we try to understand and analyze the scope of this achievement for human life, our reason is overwhelmed with abounding gratitude and joy, even as we realize the increasing challenges of the future.

"This magnificent event illustrates anew what man can accomplish when purpose is firm and intent corporate. A man on the moon was promised in this decade. And though some were unconvinced, the reality is with us this morning in the persons of astronauts Armstrong, Aldrin, Collins. We applaud their splendid exploits and we pour out our thanksgiving for their safe return to us, to their families, to all mankind. From our inmost beings, we sing humble, yet exuberant praise.

"May the great effort, and commitment seen in this project, Apollo, inspire our lives to move similarly in other areas of need.

"May we the people by our enthusiasm and devotion and insight move to new landings in brotherhood, human concern, and mutual respect.

"May our country, afire with inventive leadership and backed by a committed followership, blaze new trails into all areas of human cares.

"See our enthusiasm and bless our joy with dedicated purpose for the many needs at hand. Link us in friendship with peoples throughout the world as we strive together to better the human condition. Grant us peace beginning in our own hearts. And a mind attuned with good will toward our neighbor. All this we pray as our thanksgiving rings out to thee.

"In the name of our Lord, amen."

ILL EFFECTS OF EARLY RISING.

Dr. Hall, the editor of the Journal of Health, whose sound common sense, enlightened by experience and observation, is not to be gainsaid, declaims against the ill effects of early rising, in a very earnest fashion. He declares that it tends to shorten life; that many a farmer boy has converted into an incurable invalid by the practice; that many a girl has been stinted in mind and body by being compelled to rise before the systems had full rest. "All who are growing," he says, "all who work hard, and all weakly persons, should not get up until they feel as if they would be more comfortable to get up than remain in bed; that is the only true measure of a sufficiency of rest and sleep. Anyone who gets up in the morning feeling as if he would give anything in the world to remain in bed a while longer, does violence to his own nature, and will always suffer from it – not immediately, it may be, but certainly in later years by the cumulative ill effects of the most unwise practice. In any given case, the person who gets up in the morning before he is fully rested will lack just that much of the energy requisite for the day's pursuits."

Dr. Hall asserts that as a people we do not get enough sleep and rest; hence our nervousness, instability, irritability, and feeble vitality. He ascribes the premature deaths of working-women, especially of farmers' wives, to a lack of sleep in proportion to their labor.

POLITICAL

On the 3d of next November – less than three months from now – the people of Idaho Territory will be called upon to elect a Delegate to Congress, and to choose district, county and precinct officers to serve during the coming two years. Heretofore, our elections, as for at least Delegates were concerned, have been conducted on party principle, resulting in the sending of Democrats to Congress. But we believe it to be the judgment of our Democratic friends, as well as of the people in general, that, had partisanship been ignored, and Republican Delegates sent to Washington, much more good would have resulted to our Territory. As citizens of a Territory, we should all regard political duty higher than party obligations, or even personal friendship. Territories have no power to influence national politics; no vote to influence Congressmen, nor Presidents, nor aspiring ones. Territories are very dependent upon the party in power at Washington; yet, not having power to strengthen up that party. It is a matter of little difference to it what political results are shown at Territorial elections. It is reasonable to suppose, however, that a delegate in sympathy with the ruling administration should have more influence than one who is not. A Delegate elected in a contest made up mostly of opposition to the administration party, would very naturally not meet with that cordial welcome and favor that one would whose canvass had been made in defense and support of it. In any way it can be received, there is not enough to be gained by electing a Delegate on strictly party grounds to justify doing it. Let us for once try the experiment of sending to Congress a Delegate who is in accord with the ruling administration. Who shall be the man? After taking a careful view of the situation, we are of the opinion Hon. T.W. Bennett, our present Governor, would succeed in securing greater benefits, and more of them, for the Idaho Territory, than any other person, Republican or Democrat, than we could send to Washington.

The anti-smoking device

Many years ago, Dr. Erfan called to tell me his story. He'd spent 17 years inventing and testing a device to help people quit smoking. It involved a small battery-operated unit that clips in your ear like a hearing aid. Whenever the smoker felt the urge to smoke, he pushed a button on the unit. It sent a micro-amp charge that stimulated a nerve in the ear. This nerve caused a release of natural body chemicals, which reduced the need for a smoke.

Human trials had shown very positive results. Enough so that the device was already cleared for use in other countries. But not in the U.S. The FDA was not satisfied. They demanded animal testing. Thus, Dr. Erfan's call. His question, "Was I aware of any animals stupid enough to smoke?"

Food for thought. First, we would have to find a species we could teach to smoke. Then, once they were addicted, we'd have to teach them to push a button the size of a match head whenever they felt the urge.

Certain species, regardless of their stupidity, are eliminated because of lifestyle. Largemouth bass, for instance, whales or sea anemone could never keep one lit.

Other lack suitable anatomical features necessary like prehensile lips; i.e. crocodiles, ducks or hippopotami.

Or ears in which to insert the unit. Penguins are out as are frogs, snakes, millipedes and woodpeckers.

Then the selected species would have to be physically capable of pressing the small button. As you could imagine, even the most dexterous ungulate would have difficulty manipulating its cloven hoof. And I doubt the smartest rhinoceros in the world could reach his ear with his finger.

So, that narrows it down some. I came up with three suggestions for the good doctor. The anteater, the bird-dog and the cowboy.

Even granting the anteater a modicum of intelligence, none of the three species suggested have been known for their good judgment. In addition, all are creatures of habit, work close to the ground and have a symbiotic relationship with another species that could be helpful in the collusion.

There are some who might question the anteater's ears, but you gotta admit he has smoker's lips!

On a flyer I had called up Dr. David Kessler, Czar and Mahatma of the FDA at the time, to find out what animals he might suggest that would satisfy their criteria. I had understood him to be a crusading anti-smoker, and I thought this might be just what the doctor ordered.

But anyone who has dealt with the FDA knows they move with the speed of a glacier. Their motto, "No decision is a good decision."

I'm still waiting for Dr. Kessler to return my call. I can only hope Phillip Morris is on hold, too.

Senators working to end invasive, illegal robocalls

Nearly everyone has received those calls in the middle of dinner, in the middle of getting kids to sleep or in the middle of trying to finish a project. We stop what we are doing. We hurry to answer the phone only to hear a long pause followed by an automated voice trying to defraud us of our money. The calls are beyond annoying. They are invasive and can be financially destructive. Legislation I am backing would help end what are known as robocall scams.

The non-partisan Congressional Research Service described robocalls as "any telephone call that delivers a prerecorded message using an automatic (computerized) telephone dialing system. ... The majority of companies who use robocalling are legitimate businesses, but some are not. Those illegitimate businesses may not just be annoying consumers — they may also be trying to defraud them."

The problem is growing as scammers shift to new tactics. The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) warned about "one ring" robocall scams explaining some scammers use "one ring" calls from what appear to be somewhere in the United

Online addiction

Frequent social media use seems detrimental, dangerous

Social media is just like mom's apple pie. It's not good to eat a whole pie every day.

More than 3 billion people are social media users worldwide. While social media helps keep the world connected, social media addiction is becoming a global problem that keeps growing. As of 2018, one-third of the global population used social media.

Internet and social media addictions continue to grow as our dependence on technology increases. More than 210 million people suffer from internet and social media addictions worldwide.

A 2018 study found that teens who spend five hours per day using their phones were almost twice as likely to exhibit depressive symptoms than counterparts who dedicated only one hour on their phones. The relationship between excessive mobile use and depression appears to be strongly inked to gender with 58 percent more females than males experiencing depressive symptoms. A recent study containing more than 23,500 participants between the ages of 16 and 88 found that being a young single female was most strongly associated with displaying addictive social media behavior. Addictive social media behavior was also strongly related to narcissistic personality traits and low self-esteem.

Social media addiction doesn't just affect behavior during the day; it even damages the ability to sleep. A study found that 71 percent of Americans sleep with or next to a mobile device. Some 47 million people in America do not get enough sleep, and 55 percent more teens were sleep-deprived in 2015 than in 1991. Exposure to screens before bed is a large factor in exacerbating sleep disorders. Thirty-five percent of people using phones less than average experienced sleep difficulty compared to 42 percent of those with average or above-average phone usage. Forty-five percent of people check social media instead of sleeping and roughly 10 percent of teens check their phones more than 10 times per night.

Fifty percent of people driving are checking social media. Ninety percent of drivers admit to using smartphones behind the wheel. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reports that each day nine people are killed and more than 1,000 are injured as a result of smartphone use while driving. According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, teens are the largest group reported for distracted driving.

More than 240 million Americans check Facebook daily, or 74 percent of all Americans. The majority of Americans use Facebook, and most users check the app daily. Approximately 68 percent of Americans have an account and 51 percent report checking Facebook several times daily.

Question — Is it possible you might accomplish more of what you want and need to do if you would spend less time on social media? Another question — Is social media making you a better and happier person?

Is it possible you should cut back on your daily portion of social media?

Micro-investing: Small money in, small money out

Dear Dave,

What is your opinion on micro-investing apps like Acorns and Betterment? Are these good vehicles for building wealth in the long term, and are there any major drawbacks to these types of services?

- Alex

Dear Alex,

I'm not saying there's anything really wrong with Acorns or Betterment, but they do different things. Acorns is more of an invest pennies, round-up kind of program, where Betterment is kind of a robo-investing deal.

Here's the thing: Microinvesting is going to create micro-wealth. And the big downside is you're going to feel like you did something important. The way you end up with money is by investing money. The way you end up with more money is by investing more money. You can argue all you want that using things like these create extra money. Yeah, but not really. The returns are still micro. An app doesn't make two dollars turn into 20 dollars.

It's OK to use apps like that. I'm not mad at them, and I don't think they're a rip-off or anything like that. What worries me about these kinds of things, in an investing sense, is they give the illusion that you've done something significant with your money.

— Dave

Dear Dave,

My husband and I have been married five years, and we've decided we want to have children. We've both been working full time since our wedding, and we were wondering if we should adjust our emergency fund and retirement investing to accommodate all the upcoming life changes that go along with having a bigger family.

— Rachel

Dear Rachel.

When it comes to an emergency fund, I'd stick with what I recommend in the Baby Steps. A good emergency fund of three to six months of expenses should be fine. If you feel safer leaning toward the six-month side, that's fine. As far as investing is concerned, that's Baby Step 4. This means 15 percent of your household income going toward retirement. None of that really changes.

Now, with another person in the house, your day-to-day expenses are going to increase. That'll make it even more important to make sure you're living on a written monthly budget. What you don't want to do, is quit your job to come home and be a full-time mom, then find yourselves dipping into the emergency fund. Being a stay-at-home mom is fine. It's a wonderful thing if you can afford it. But if that's the plan, you need to budget accordingly and practice living on just your husband's income before you quit your job.

God bless you two, Rachel!

recognize, as this could risk being connected to a phone number outside the U.S. and being charged a fee for connecting along with significant per-minute fees for as long as the individual remains on the phone.

The FCC suggests those who are unable to resolve bills from these types of scams with their telephone company directly can file a complaint with the FCC at https://consumercomplaints.fcc.gov/hc/en-us. In addition, those who are victims of international phone scams can file a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission at https://www.ftccomplaintassistant. gov/#crnt&panel1-1.

The FCC is also taking steps to attack illegal robocalls, including actions to make it easier for phone companies to block illegal robocalls and more difficult for scammers to reach potential victims.

In response to Idahoans contacting my office with concerns regarding robocalls, I am working to get to the root of the problem by introducing S. 2204, the Data Analytics Robocall Technology (DART) Act. This bipartisan legislation, which I introduced with Sen. Amy Klobuchar (D-Minn.), would establish a pilot program at the FCC to expand its efforts to combat robocalls by blocking calls that fail authentication technology and procedures used to prevent caller ID spoofing, while allowing emergency service alert calls to remain uninterrupted and not expanding the capabilities of voice service providers to collect or share data. S. 2204 would also provide a pathway for appeals for calls unintentionally blocked that might be otherwise allowable under law.

This legislation would build on legislation the Senate passed in May by an overwhelmingly bipartisan vote of 97-1 to hold those who participate in robocall scams accountable. S. 151, the Telephone Robocall Abuse Criminal Enforcement and Deterrence (TRACED) Act, which I co-sponsored with 84 senators from both sides of the aisle, including fellow Idaho Sen. Jim Risch, would require call authentication to prevent caller ID spoofing and increase penalties for illegal robocalls. However, the TRACED Act did not allow for blocking of calls that fail the authentication. The DART Act I introduced would bridge this gap by enabling the testing of options for combating unauthenticated robocalls.

The FCC reports unwanted calls are by far the biggest consumer complaint the commission receives. We all have too much happening to put up with illegal robocalls. I am encouraged this problem is getting broad, bipartisan attention and look forward to the implementation of sound policy to help end this invasive drain on time and resources.
